The University of Iowa 2013-14 General Catalog

The General Catalog provides information about academic programs at The University of Iowa, one of three universities governed by the Board of Regents, State of Iowa. The Catalog also provides links to supporting offices at the University, a list of administrative officers, an A-Z list of University of Iowa faculty members, a University calendar, and information extracted from the Iowa Administrative Code regarding admission requirements and Iowa resident/nonresident standing.

The General Catalog is published for informational purposes and should not be construed as the basis of a contract between a student and The University of Iowa. Every effort is made to provide information that is accurate at the time of publication. However, information on courses, curricula, fees, policies, regulations, and other matters is subject to change any time during the period for which the Catalog is in effect.

This edition of the 2013-14 Catalog was published in October 2013. For PDF versions of archived back editions, visit Office of the Registrar/General Catalog and use the drop-down menu under "Catalog Snapshots."

The General Catalog is produced by the Office of the Registrar and the Office of University Communication and Marketing. Your comments and suggestions are welcome. Questions concerning the Catalog may be directed to the Office of the Registrar at registrar-publications@uiowa.edu.

The University of Iowa has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools since the association’s organization in 1913. The University is a member of the Association of American Universities and is associated with Indiana, Michigan State, Northwestern, Ohio State, Pennsylvania State, and Purdue Universities and the Universities of Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, and Wisconsin in the Big Ten Conference. Along with the Big Ten universities, it also is associated with The University of Chicago in the Committee for Institutional Cooperation (CIC).

The University of Iowa prohibits discrimination in employment, educational programs, and activities on the basis of race, national origin, color, creed, religion, sex, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or associational preference. The University also affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunities and equal access to University facilities. For additional information, contact the Office of Equal Opportunity and Diversity, 202 Jessup Hall, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242-1316; 319-335-0705 (voice) and 319-335-0697 (text).
Academics at Iowa

The University of Iowa offers academic degree and nondegree programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. It also offers postdoctoral study and other opportunities for nondegree study and research. The General Catalog describes the University’s degree and nondegree programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

The following pages provide global information about undergraduate, graduate, and professional study across the University. They include lists of all undergraduate majors (including tracks and emphases), certificates, and minors, with links to the relevant Catalog sections; a link to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences’ undergraduate General Education Program; information about the undergraduate Four-Year Graduation Plan; information about graduate and professional study; descriptions of the University’s course numbering and grading systems; and contact information for supporting offices (admissions, registrar, housing, student financial aid, and equal opportunity).

For information about degree and nondegree programs in specific disciplines and interdisciplinary areas, including graduation requirements and courses offered, see the links under Colleges and Other Academic Units (p. 21) in the Catalog.

To find the Catalog section for a specific academic department or program, use the Catalog’s A-Z Directory or the Catalog Contents index.
Undergraduate Study

University of Iowa undergraduate students may earn majors, certificates, and minors in more than 100 subject areas. Many majors have varied tracks or emphases, which students may choose according to their own educational goals and interests. Each program is described in the 2013-14 General Catalog, with information on courses and other graduation or completion requirements. Click on the program links under “Undergraduate Majors and Pre-majors,” “Undergraduate Certificates,” and “Undergraduate Minors.”

- Undergraduate Majors and Pre-majors (p. 7)
- Undergraduate Certificates (p. 10)
- Undergraduate Minors (p. 11)

Students enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences must complete the college’s General Education Program in order to earn an undergraduate degree; other colleges also require General Education course work as part of their undergraduate curricula. For a detailed description of the program and its requirements, use the following link.

- General Education Program (p. 12)

Undergraduate students may participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan, in which students agree to certain conditions that guide their study, and the University ensures availability of courses that students need in order to graduate in four years or provides remedies for delays in graduation due to lack of a course.

- Four-Year Graduation Plan (p. 13)
Undergraduate Majors and Pre-majors

The University of Iowa offers the following undergraduate majors, pre-majors, and preparatory course work for selected professional degrees. Some majors offer Teacher Education Programs or the opportunity to earn a degree with teacher licensure, as indicated below. Each major links to the appropriate section of the 2013-14 General Catalog. Additional information about all majors is available on the Office of Admissions web site under Undergraduate Areas of Study.

General Education Program

All students entering the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), or Bachelor of Music (B.M.) degree must complete the CLAS General Education Program in addition to the requirements of their major and other requirements for graduation.

Undergraduate degree programs in other colleges include General Education requirements, which often may be satisfied with certain courses approved for the CLAS General Education Program.

For detailed information about CLAS General Education requirements and lists of courses approved in the CLAS General Education areas, see General Education Program (p. 306) (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences).
Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is a partnership between students and the University. Students who participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan agree to a number of conditions that guide their studies and their progress toward a degree. The University’s colleges and departments also agree to certain conditions. They ensure the availability of courses that students need for graduation; they also guarantee that they will provide certain remedies to a student facing a delay in graduation due to lack of a course, as long as the student has met the conditions of the four-year plan. The Tippie College of Business and the Colleges of Engineering, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Nursing participate in the four-year plan.

The University of Iowa Four-Year Graduation Plan is being revised. The original Four-Year Graduation Plan continues to apply to students who have already signed it. Students who commit to the four-year plan beginning fall 2013 will be held to the revised requirements. Information about the Four-Year Graduation Plan is located on the First-Year Experience web site.
Graduate and Professional Study

The University of Iowa offers graduate and professional degree programs and graduate certificate programs in a broad array of disciplines and interdisciplinary areas of study. Each of the University’s 11 colleges offers one or more master’s degree programs, and most offer doctoral degree programs. Degree programs are presented by individual colleges, with most graduate degrees being conferred by the Graduate College.

The Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog provides a list of most University of Iowa graduate degree programs as well as information about interdisciplinary graduate degree programs, joint degree programs, and certificate programs.

For information about graduate and professional degree and nondegree programs in specific disciplines and interdisciplinary areas, including graduation requirements and courses offered, see the appropriate General Catalog sections: Tippie College of Business (p. 621), College of Dentistry (p. 684), College of Education (p. 715), College of Engineering (p. 806), Graduate (p. 888) College, College of Law (p. 962), College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (p. 22), College of Medicine (p. 993), College of Nursing (p. 1105), College of Pharmacy (p. 1123), and College of Public Health (p. 1138).

Prospective graduate and professional students should apply through the Office of Admissions.
Course Numbering

Each course offered by The University of Iowa has an identifying number, which consists of a three-digit numerical prefix showing the college, department, or program that administers the course, followed by a colon and a three-digit numerical suffix for the individual course. For example, 034:001 identifies the course numbered 001 in the Department of Sociology (034), titled Introduction to Sociology Principles. Course suffix numbers below 100 designate courses primarily for undergraduates, numbers 100-199 designate courses for undergraduate and graduate students, and numbers 200 and above designate courses primarily for graduate students.

The University is in the process of adopting a new course numbering system. In the new system, course numbers consist of an alphabetical prefix (up to four letters) showing the college, department, or program that administers the course, followed by a colon and a four-digit numerical suffix for the individual course. For example, SOC:1010 identifies the course numbered 1010 in the Department of Sociology (SOC), titled Introduction to Sociology Principles.

Course suffix numbers 0000-0999 designate remedial-level courses; numbers 1000-2999 designate lower-level undergraduate courses; numbers 3000-4999 designate courses for upper-level undergraduate and graduate students (except in the College of Engineering, where numbers 5000-5999 designate course for undergraduate and graduate students); numbers 6000-7999 designate graduate-level courses; and numbers 8000-9999 designate professional-level courses.

In this edition of the Catalog, the legacy (old) course numbers are followed by the new numbers in parentheses. The sociology course example listed above appears as 034:001 (SOC:1010) Introduction to Sociology Principles.

Grading

The University uses a letter grading system for individual courses, except for the College of Law, which uses a numeric system for course grading. In order to compute grade-point average, letter grades are converted according to the following numerical scale. Grade-point averages are displayed at the bottom of students’ grade reports and are truncated so as not to exceed 4.00. All of the following marks appear on the permanent record.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) is the oldest and largest of the 11 colleges that make up The University of Iowa. Students from all over the United States and more than 50 other nations study together in the college. Every University of Iowa undergraduate takes courses offered by the college, and more than 75 percent of undergraduates earn their degrees from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The college provides a comprehensive liberal arts education, offering more than 70 majors and certificates as well as a wide variety of minors and opportunities for interdisciplinary work. Students also may design their own majors through the college’s Interdepartmental Studies Program.

In addition to their academic pursuits, students participate in the college in a variety of ways. They serve on the Dean’s Student Advisory Committee and as members of the Educational Policy Committee and the General Education Curriculum Committee—collegiate committees that advise the deans on important educational issues. Students are invited to serve on ad hoc committees within the college as well, and many departments have an undergraduate student group or association. CLAS students also serve in the University of Iowa Student Government. Interested students should contact the appropriate committee or office.

CLAS Web Site

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site contains a wealth of information for students and faculty members.

The CLAS Office of Academic Programs & Student Development page is devoted to undergraduate students and their advisors. It provides information on academic policies and procedures, including requirements of the CLAS General Education Program (see Academic Policies Handbook). Information about scholarships, service opportunities, and upcoming deadlines also is available on this page and on the For Students pages.

The CLAS Departments and Divisions link provides a list of the college’s departments, programs, and schools as well as its undergraduate majors, minors, and certificates.

Faculty members turn to the CLAS web site for information about teaching, curriculum, and resources for advising and instructing students. They also find updates on important CLAS committees as well as a link to the Dean’s Office.

Office of Academic Programs & Student Development

Located in Schaeffer Hall, at the center of campus, the Office of Academic Programs & Student Development is an integral part of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The office’s staff, led by the associate dean for undergraduate programs and curriculum, welcomes students wishing to declare or change majors; file second-grade-only options; or petition to register late, add or drop a course late, or withdraw an entire registration after the established deadlines.

The office’s staff members answer students’ questions concerning academic requirements and programs of study. They meet with students about General Education Program requirements, graduation requirements, collegiate policies that affect students, and a range of other issues, including academic probation and dismissal and strategies for the successful completion of a degree.

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may petition for exceptions to CLAS rules and requirements in the Office of Academic Programs & Student Development. Students may discuss their questions and the petition process first with an associate director in the office.

The office works closely with students on academic probation and counsels them on strategies for success. It conducts semiannual reviews of students on academic probation, handles dismissals from the college, and considers requests for reinstatement.

The Office of Academic Programs & Student Development also oversees appropriate disciplinary action for academic misconduct, such as plagiarism, cheating, and forgery.

General Education Program

All students entering the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), or Bachelor of Music (B.M.) degree must complete the CLAS General Education Program in addition to the requirements of their major and other requirements for graduation.

For General Education requirements, related academic policies, and lists of approved courses, see General Education Program (p. 306) under “Index: Academic Programs” on this page.

CLAS Units and Academic Programs

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences includes nearly 40 administrative units ranging across the fine and performing arts, humanities and letters, social sciences, and natural and mathematical sciences. These units offers 75 undergraduate majors and certificates as well as a wide variety of minors. They also offer more than 50 graduate programs, with degrees granted by the Graduate College.

Undergraduate Majors, Certificates, and Minors

The college offers undergraduate majors in a broad range of disciplines. In addition, several majors are offered to CLAS students by other colleges at the University, with the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences granting the degrees. The Tippie College of Business offers a major in economics (B.A. and B.S.); the Carver College of Medicine offers majors in biochemistry (B.A. and B.S.) and in microbiology (B.S.); and the College of Education offers majors in elementary education (B.A. and B.S.) and in science education (B.S.). For descriptions of the majors and their requirements, see the links under "Index: Academic Programs" on this page.

The College of Education offers a Teacher Education Program leading to licensure at the secondary level for students who have completed certain CLAS majors, such as art, English, mathematics, the sciences, and world languages, and who wish to work with students in middle school or high school. Students must apply for admission to the Teacher Education Program; contact the College of Education’s Office of Education Services.

Students who begin their study in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may earn undergraduate degrees in clinical laboratory sciences, nuclear medicine technology, and radiation sciences; see the Carver College of Medicine (p. 993) section of the Catalog for information about those majors.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a broad array of certificates and minors for undergraduate students. In addition, it partners with the Tippie College of Business to offer the Certificate in International Business and with the College of Engineering to offer the Certificate in Wind Energy. Link to information about CLAS certificates and minors under "Index: Academic Programs" on this page.

CLAS undergraduates may earn certificates and minors offered by other colleges as well. The Tippie College of Business offers the Certificate in Entrepreneurial Management, the Certificate in Risk Management and Insurance, and the minor in business administration. The College of Public Health offers the Certificate in Public Health. University College offers the Certificate in Leadership Studies, the Certificate in Nonprofit Management, and the Certificate in Sustainability. The College of Education offers minors in educational psychology and in human relations. For lists of all undergraduate certificates and minors offered by the University, see Certificates (p. 10) and Minors (p. 11) in the Academics at Iowa/Undergraduate Study section of the Catalog.

Undergraduates also may take courses in book arts from the Center for the Book (p. 915), a Graduate College program.

Graduate Degrees and Certificates

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers graduate programs in most of its disciplines, with degrees conferred by the Graduate College. Students may earn degrees at the master’s and doctoral levels; graduate certificates are available in some areas of study. See the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog for a complete list of graduate degrees offered by the University.

For information about specific CLAS graduate programs, see the links under "Index: Academic Programs" on this page.

Nondepartmental Courses

Most College of Liberal Arts and Sciences courses are offered by the college’s departments, programs, and schools. They are listed and described in the corresponding General Catalog sections; see the links under "Index: Academic Programs" on this page.

The college also offers the following nondepartmental courses.

610:029 (CLAS:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

Undergraduate major: African American studies (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: African American studies
Graduate degree: M.A. in African American world studies
Web site: http://www.uiowa.edu/~afam/index.html

African American studies focuses on the study of people of African descent in the United States and the African diaspora. The African American Studies Program originated in 1969 through courses intended to foster awareness of African Americans’ role in the development of the United States and the world. Because a thorough understanding of the African American experience cannot be achieved through study restricted to the perspective of a single discipline, all students are required to pursue courses in the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts.

The African American Studies Program draws upon faculty from American studies; communication studies; education; English; gender, women’s, and sexuality studies; health and human physiology; history; journalism and mass communication; religious studies; rhetoric; sociology; sport studies; and theatre arts.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in African American studies (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in African American studies

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in African American studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the major. Transfer credit is evaluated individually and is limited to a maximum of 9 s.h. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

INTRODUCTORY COURSES
Students are required to complete two of the following introductory courses.

129:060 (AFAM:1030) Introduction to African American Society 3 s.h.
129:061 (AFAM:1020)/045:030 (AMST:1030) Introduction to African American Culture 3 s.h.
129:062 (AFAM:1010) Foundations in African American Studies 3 s.h.

Foundations in African American Studies
[129:062 (AFAM:1010)] explores the history and the methodology of African American studies. Starting with readings related to the formation of the discipline, the course shows students what an African American studies approach to interpretation entails and culminates in a research paper.

Introduction to African American Society
[129:060 (AFAM:1030)] examines the construction of social and historical institutions in the United States and the African diaspora (e.g., Black church, Black family, gender, sexuality). The course may include readings in political science, religion, history, sociology, geography, anthropology, and other disciplines.

Introduction to African American Culture
[129:061 (AFAM:1020)] presents themes in African American cultural studies. It includes readings in literature, music, film studies, religious studies, and the visual and performing arts.

AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES CORE
In addition to the two required introductory courses, all students must complete at least two courses from each of the three topical areas below (minimum of 18 s.h.). Additional courses may be approved for the topical areas; consult with an African American studies advisor.

ELECTIVES
Students also must take two elective courses (minimum of 6 s.h.) selected from the three topical areas listed above. With the approval of an African-American studies advisor, students may substitute relevant courses offered by other departments for one or both electives; the substituted courses may not be cross-referenced with African American studies. Students must gain the advisor’s approval before enrolling in a substitute course.

Two electives selected from the three topical areas above, or approved substitutes 6 s.h.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT
The language requirement for the African American studies major is the same as the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). Students are encouraged, but not required, to take African language courses (Swahili is currently offered) or Spanish language courses to fulfill the World Languages requirement.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

During the first year of study, students should focus on completing the General Education Program, perhaps including Swahili or Spanish course work to begin satisfying the World Languages requirement.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least three courses in the major, including 129:062 (AFAM:1010) Foundations in African American Studies, and 129:060 (AFAM:1030) Introduction to African American Society or 129:061 (AFAM:1020) Introduction to African American Culture

Before the seventh semester begins: four more courses in the major (for a total of seven) and the completion of 90 s.h. toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major
Honors in the African American studies major offers students the opportunity to pursue special interests and individual in-depth research. Honors students in African American studies must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Honors students in African American studies complete all of the required course work for the major (30 s.h.). Those who wish to graduate with honors in the African American studies major are encouraged to register for up to 6 s.h. in 129:095 (AFAM:4990) Honors Project. Work in this course enhances the student’s ability to complete honors projects under the guidance of the supervising faculty member. Students take 129:095 (AFAM:4990) with the approval of their African American studies advisor, who typically supervises the course. Students may count up to 6 s.h. earned in 129:095 (AFAM:4990) toward the 30 s.h. required for the major.

Under the guidance of the African American studies advisor, the honors student defines a research project (thesis) using primary, secondary, or archival sources. Students make project proposals by the end of their junior year. Each student completes a thesis under the guidance of a supervising faculty member and presents the results as a senior essay to a committee of three faculty members, including the supervising African American studies faculty member and two other African American studies faculty members of the student’s choice. The student’s committee may choose to hear an oral defense of the honors thesis, usually during the student’s last semester.

Students should use one or more of their elective courses to develop the honors thesis.

Minor
The minor in African American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Course work done for another major or minor may not be counted toward the minor in African American studies.

Students must take 129:062 (AFAM:1010) Foundations in African American Studies. In consultation with their advisors, they should select either 129:060 (AFAM:1030) Introduction to African American Society or 129:061 (AFAM:1020) Introduction to African American Culture, and one course in each of the three topical areas listed under “African American Studies Core” above (total of three topical area courses, 9 s.h.): history, religion, and the diaspora; literature and performing arts; and media, politics, and social institutions. Two of the three topical area courses must be taken at The University of Iowa.

Graduate Program of Study
- Master of Arts in African American world studies
- African American studies is not accepting graduate students in 2013-14.

Cocurricular Activities

Afro-American Cultural Center
African American studies encourages students to use facilities of the Afro-American Cultural Center. The center serves as a museum and library of educational and cultural artifacts and exhibits of African American culture, providing cultural enrichment for the Iowa City community and promoting diversity among all members of the University community. It also provides a cultural meeting place for African American students.

African American Studies Student Association
The African American Studies Student Association aims to promote knowledge about people of African descent by sponsoring programs on various topics. Any University of Iowa student interested in African American studies is eligible to become a member.

Graduate Seminar
Graduate students from a range of disciplines in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences are encouraged to participate in the program’s interdisciplinary graduate seminar, which is dedicated to advanced readings, scholarly books, and articles in African American studies.

Graduate Student Mentoring and Advising
African American studies sponsors several intellectual and social gatherings for graduate students across disciplines. During these events, students connect with others interested in African Americans studies and receive advice about becoming faculty members and being productive members of the academic profession.

Seminar and Lecture Series
The African American Studies Seminar Series and the Darwin Turner Lecture bring important scholars and creative artists to the University of Iowa campus. Guests of the lecture and seminar series have included Amiri Baraka, Michelle Wallace, and Valerie Smith.

The New Research in African American Studies lecture series, sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, focuses on research by faculty in the African American Studies Program.

The Aging Studies Program offers undergraduate and graduate programs and a selection of courses open to students in all majors.

Undergraduate students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who would like to focus on aging studies as their major or as a second major should consider the individualized plan of study track offered by the Interdepartmental Studies Program. See Interdepartmental Studies (p. 377) in the Catalog.

The Aging Studies Program is administered by the School of Social Work (p. 555).

Undergraduate and Graduate Programs of Study

• Certificate in Aging Studies (undergraduate and graduate)
• Minor in aging studies (undergraduate)

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants the undergraduate certificate and minor; the Graduate College confers the graduate certificate.

Certificate

The Certificate in Aging Studies requires 21 s.h. The undergraduate certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. The graduate certificate program is open to University of Iowa graduate students with aging-related career interests and needs. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

Undergraduate students may earn the undergraduate certificate or the minor in aging studies, but not both.

The Certificate in Aging Studies takes a multidisciplinary approach to gerontology. Its course work has been coordinated and sequenced to provide a broad background in aging for students from varied disciplines. Students should talk with the Aging Studies Program coordinator about their intent to earn the certificate. They work with their academic advisors and the coordinator to develop an individual plan of study that complements their degree program and career interests.

The certificate’s required 21 s.h. must be earned in Aging Studies Program courses [prefix 153 (ASP)] and other courses approved for the program. With permission from the Aging Studies Program coordinator, students also may be able to use other aging-related courses for the certificate. Students must earn at least 18 s.h. of certificate credit in courses numbered 100 (3000) and above, and they must earn at least 15 s.h. toward the certificate at The University of Iowa.

Certificate requirements include a core curriculum of six courses and an additional 5 s.h. of elective course work from the list of approved aging-related courses. Students may take core courses before or concurrently with other courses in the program, but they should complete the core courses before they enroll in the internship and internship seminar. Students who complete an aging-related internship or practicum in their major field may be able to count that experience as their Aging Studies Program internship; consult with the Aging Studies Program coordinator. Transfer credit requests are evaluated individually by the Aging Studies Program coordinator.

The Certificate in Aging Studies requires the following course work.

CORE COURSES

All certificate students must complete the following six core courses.

One of these: graduate students must choose 153:135 (ASP:3135):

153:135 (ASP:3135) Global Aging 3 s.h.
153:181 (ASP:2181) The Anthropology of Aging 3 s.h.

And all of these:

153:108 (ASP:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.
153:150 (ASP:3150)/031:050 (PSY:2915) Psychology of Aging 3 s.h.
153:160 (ASP:3160) Biology of Aging 3 s.h.
153:189 (ASP:4189) Aging Studies Internship Seminar 1 s.h.
153:190 (ASP:4190)/042:190 (SSW:4190) Aging Studies Internship 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students must complete an additional 5 s.h. of electives selected from courses offered by the Aging Studies Program [prefix 153 (ASP)] and/or from approved aging-related courses offered by other academic units. Practicum and/or research courses offered by other academic units may be accepted for elective credit if they focus on aging; students who wish to apply course work from other departments should consult the Aging Studies Program chair.

Minor

Undergraduate students in the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Nursing, or the Tippie College of Business may earn the minor in aging studies. Students must have the approval of their college or major department in order to earn the minor.

Students may earn the minor or the undergraduate certificate in aging studies, but not both.

The minor in aging studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in aging-related course work, including 12 s.h. of courses numbered 100 (3000) and above taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The required introductory core course 153:108 (ASP:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging must be included in the 12 s.h. of advanced course work. Courses must be approved by the Aging Studies Program. Students earning the minor may not enroll in 153:190 (ASP:4190) Aging Studies Internship.

Courses

153:029 (ASP:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

153:108 (ASP:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.

153:120 (ASP:3920) Service Learning in Aging Studies 1 s.h.

153:124 (ASP:3900) Independent Study in Gerontology
Individual projects and/or research.

153:130 (ASP:4300) Aging Studies Colloquium--Undergraduate 1 s.h.
Current trends, practices, and research in gerontology and geriatrics. Requirements: aging studies enrollment.

153:135 (ASP:3135) Global Aging 3 s.h.
Demographic factors that contribute to the world wide phenomena of population aging in context of WHO Active Aging and the United Nation's Principles for Older Persons frameworks. Same as 042:135 (SSW:3135), 152:153 (GHS:3135).

153:144 (ASP:5750) Medicare and Medicaid Policy 3 s.h.
Health policies most pertinent to Americans over age of 65. Same as 174:144 (HMP:5750).

153:145 (ASP:8355) Introduction to Geriatric Dentistry 2 s.h.
Biological, psychological, and social aspects of aging; normal aging and disease processes associated with aging; pathological changes that affect oral health treatment of dental diseases and patient management. Requirements: D.D.S. enrollment or completion of dental hygiene program. Same as 112:145 (DENT:8355).

153:146 (ASP:3246) Health Promotion for Older Adults 3 s.h.
Problems, strategic efforts toward long-term goal of health promotion; disease prevention; slowing the decline caused by chronic conditions to extend independent, rewarding lives. Same as 096:146 (NURS:3246), 169:146 (LEIS:3246).

153:147 (ASP:3740) End-of-Life Care for Adults and Families 2-4 s.h.

153:150 (ASP:3150) Psychology of Aging 3 s.h.
The later years of human life viewed from perspectives of developmental psychology, biology, sociology. Prerequisites: 031:001 (PSY:1001), Same as 031:050 (PSY:2915).

153:151 (ASP:3151) The Anthropology of the Beginnings and Ends of Life 3 s.h.
Examination of diverse understandings of birth and death, drawing on anthropological analysis of personhood, kinship, ritual, and medicine; how social inequality and new technologies shape human experience at life’s margins. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Same as 113:151 (ANTH:3151), 152:156 (GHS:3151).

153:152 (ASP:3152) Anthropology of Caregiving and Health 3 s.h.
Diverse understandings and practices of care around the world; focus on relationships between caregiving practices and health across the life course. Same as 113:152 (ANTH:3152).

153:153 (ASP:3753) Programs and Services for Aging Adults 3 s.h.
Major gerontological programs and services, practitioners’ need for basic aging-practice competence; aging network; income, employment, health maintenance programs; continuum of care (preventive and well-elderly services, in-home services, community-based services, institutional care); assessment; major elder health issues, informal care; end-of-life care. Same as 042:153 (SSW:3753).

153:160 (ASP:3160) Biology of Aging 3 s.h.
Biogerontology; definition of aging and senescence, biological theories of aging, demographics, model systems foraging, premature aging syndromes, aging of organ systems in humans.

153:161 (ASP:3610) Rhetorical Issues in Health Care 3 s.h.

153:165 (ASP:4165) Communication Disorders and Aging 2 s.h.
Introduction to speech, language, and hearing processes and disorders among older adults; survey of characteristics of communication and communication breakdown, remediation, and strategies for improving communication with older adults with communication disorders; primarily for nonmajors and service providers other than speech-language pathologists and audiologists. Offered spring semesters of even years. Same as 003:165 (CSD:4165).

153:168 (ASP:3168) Aging and Leisure 3 s.h.
Status of the well elderly in relation to retirement issues, use of free time, and factors that support leisure activity; leisure services in long-term care. Same as 169:168 (LEIS:3168).
153:181 (ASP:2181) The Anthropology of Aging 3 s.h.
Comparative anthropological perspective on aging; ethnographies from diverse contexts used to examine intersections of kinship, religion, health, and medicine in later life. Same as 113:147 (ANTH:2181), 152:147 (GHS:2181).

153:185 (ASP:3785) Social Policy and the Elderly 3 s.h.
Public social policies, their affect on well-being of elderly, including women and minorities; U.S. and other nations policies. Prerequisites: 042:143 (SSW:4843). Requirements: an introductory course on aging, and junior or higher standing. Same as 153:185 (ASP:3785).

Introduction to death and dying; historical, cultural, societal, personal perspectives. Same as 042:186 (SSW:3786).

153:189 (ASP:4189) Aging Studies Internship Seminar 1 s.h.

153:190 (ASP:4190) Aging Studies Internship 2-3 s.h.
Opportunities for students in various disciplines to relate their areas of study to older adults and aging; interdisciplinary relationships, approaches to meeting needs of older adults. Same as 042:190 (SSW:4190).

153:195 (ASP:3501) Introduction to Nursing Homes 3 s.h.
Overview of nursing home roles in context of long-term care system, characteristics of nursing home residents. Same as 042:195 (SSW:3501).

153:211 (ASP:5211) Individual and Family Development: Life Span 3 s.h.
Infancy through senescence; families from their beginnings through their later years; theoretical, methodological issues. Same as 042:211 (SSW:5211).

153:219 (ASP:5219) Aging and the Family 2-3 s.h.
Research related to aging and the family; intergenerational relations, marital status in later life, diversity of older families, caregiving, elder abuse, policy issues. Same as 042:219 (SSW:5219).

153:230 (ASP:5000) Aging Studies Colloquium 1 s.h.
Current trends, practices, and research in gerontology and geriatrics.

153:241 (ASP:5401) The Care of the Frail Elderly 3 s.h.
Clinical management of the elderly; emphasis on economic considerations, principles of gerontological care, common syndromes, ethical issues; clinical application experience in a long-term care setting. Prerequisites: 096:224 (NURS:5029). Same as 096:241 (NURS:5401).

153:261 (ASP:6610) Epidemiology of Aging 1-2 s.h.
Epidemiologic methods for studying health and social problems of older persons; applications including research and public health practice and policy. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 173:140 (EPID:4400). Same as 173:261 (EPID:6610).

153:410 (ASP:7400) State of the Science in Biobehavioral Research on Aging 3 s.h.
Analysis and evaluation of science in biobehavioral aging research; overview of aging research and interdisciplinary contributions; biobehavioral phenomena pertinent to aging populations; relevant epidemiologic research, population/community-based research, primary prevention research, qualitative and quantitative analyses, instrumentation, intervention research, measurement studies; ethical and methodological issues, context of care; identification of literature gaps and future research agendas that promote successful aging. Requirements: for 096:410 (NURS:7400) — doctoral standing; for 153:410 (ASP:7400) — Ph.D. enrollment. Recommendations: knowledge of psychopathology, research design, and statistics. Same as 096:410 (NURS:7400).

153:420 (ASP:7401) State of the Science in Geriatric Mental Health Research 3 s.h.
Analysis and evaluation of science in geriatric mental health research in nursing and other disciplines; cognitive and affective function, substance abuse, and caregiver health/support; relevant epidemiologic research, population/community-based research, primary prevention research, qualitative and quantitative analyses, instrumentation, intervention research, and measurement studies; review and analysis of program evaluation and services research, emphasis on ethical and methodological issues; identification of literature gaps and future research agendas that promote successful aging. Requirements: for 096:420 (NURS:7401) — doctoral standing; for 153:420 (ASP:7401) — Ph.D. enrollment. Recommendations: knowledge of psychopathology, research design, and statistics. Same as 096:420 (NURS:7401).

The American Indian and Native Studies Program (AINSP) is an interdisciplinary program that focuses on the histories, cultures, literatures, and contemporary legal and political issues of Native North Americans and other indigenous peoples of the Americas.

Students taking AINSP courses begin to understand historical and contemporary social issues among indigenous peoples of the Americas. They acquire expertise for employment involving cross-cultural work through experience with ethnic, social, and political diversity. They also gain a background for more specialized or advanced work in a variety of social science disciplines, including anthropology, economics, education, geography, history, political science, psychology, and religious studies.

A certificate in AINSP complements degrees in professional areas such as health care, business, social work, and law.

The American Indian and Native Studies Program is administered by the Department of American Studies (p. 41).

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies
• Minor in American Indian and native studies

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants the undergraduate certificate and minor.

Certificate

The undergraduate Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies requires a minimum of 21 s.h. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor's degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student's transcript.

A student may earn the certificate or the minor in American Indian and native studies, but not both.

Students plan their programs in close cooperation with AINSP faculty advisors. They may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from their major toward the AINSP undergraduate certificate. Courses applied toward the AINSP certificate also may be used to complete the General Education Program (p. 306) or the requirements for a major or a minor.

The AINSP undergraduate certificate requires the following course work.

All of these:
149:049 (AINS:1049) Introduction to American Indian and Native Studies
149:102 (AINS:3002) Introduction to American Indian History and Policy
149:113 (AINS:3441) Native American Literature

At least 3 s.h. from these:
149:076 (AINS:3276) American Indian Environmentalism
149:110 (AINS:2165) Native Peoples of North America
149:195 (AINS:4095) Directed Cultural Experience
149:197 (AINS:4990) Independent Study
149:199 (AINS:4000) Special Topics: American Indian and Native Studies

And:
Electives chosen from the "Associated Courses" and "Courses" lists below

Minor

The minor in American Indian and native studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from a major toward the AINSP minor.

A student may earn the minor or the certificate in American Indian and native studies, but not both.

The minor includes the following course work.

149:049 (AINS:1049) Introduction to American Indian and Native Studies

One of these:
149:102 (AINS:3002) Introduction to American Indian History and Policy
149:113 (AINS:3441) Native American Literature

At least 3 s.h. from these:
149:076 (AINS:3276) American Indian Environmentalism
149:110 (AINS:2165) Native Peoples of North America
149:195 (AINS:4095) Directed Cultural Experience
149:197 (AINS:4990) Independent Study
149:199 (AINS:4000) Special Topics: American Indian and Native Studies

And:
Electives numbered 070 (2000) or above chosen from the "Associated Courses" and "Courses" lists below

Cultural Experience

The program highly recommends that students have an in-depth American Indian cultural experience, usually through study or volunteer work, before they complete their undergraduate requirements. Consult AINSP faculty advisors about available options.

Graduate Program of Study

• Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies

The Graduate College confers the graduate certificate.

Certificate

The graduate Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies requires a minimum of 20 s.h. in courses approved for AINSP and numbered 100 or above (see "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below). Graduate students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in work toward the certificate. They may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from their major field of study toward the AINSP graduate certificate.

Graduate students must apply to the academic coordinator to be admitted to the AINSP graduate certificate program. Students who earned an undergraduate certificate in the program may not receive a graduate certificate.

The AINSP graduate certificate requires the following course work.

149:102 (AINS:3002) Introduction to American Indian History and Policy 3 s.h.
149:299 (AINS:6099) Independent Study Project 2 s.h.
Electives numbered 100 (3000) or above chosen from the "Associated Courses" and "Courses" lists below 15 s.h.

Graduate students may petition the AINSP steering committee to include a 2000-level course chosen from the "Associated Courses" and "Courses" lists.

Associated Courses

AINSP accepts the following courses as electives. Although these courses are not offered by AINSP, they are concerned in part with Native North Americans or other indigenous peoples of the Americas. Students may petition the AINSP faculty for permission to use other relevant courses as electives for the undergraduate or graduate certificate or the minor.

For course descriptions, see the appropriate department sections of the Catalog.

ANTHROPOLOGY

113:163 (ANTH:2220) Archaeology of Mesoamerica 3 s.h.
113:181 (ANTH:3265) Archaeology of the Great Plains 3 s.h.

035:149 (SPAN:3220) Visual Culture: Colonial Spanish America 3 s.h.
035:173 (SPAN:4330) Colonial Spanish American Literature 3 s.h.

Courses

149:005 (AINS:1355) Literatures of Native American Peoples 3 s.h.
Genres of Native American literature, including oral literature; focus on written literature (fiction, essays, poetry, drama). Prerequisites: 010:003 (RHET:1030) and 08G:001 (ENGL:1200). Requirements: successful completion of the rhetoric requirement and then 08G:001 (ENGL:1200). GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts; Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 08G:005 (ENGL:1355).

149:049 (AINS:1049) Introduction to American Indian and Native Studies 3 s.h.
Themes and methodologies in the study of American Indians and other indigenous peoples; approaches from anthropology, history, law, literature, other disciplines. Offered fall semesters. GE: Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 045:049 (AMST:1049).

149:060 (AINS:1600) Sacred World of Native Americans 3 s.h.
GE: Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 032:060 (RELS:2700).

149:065 (AINS:1700) Sex, Gender, and Nature in the Culture of Native America 3 s.h.
Historical notions of gender, sexuality, and marriage among selected Native American cultures; how these beliefs conflicted with colonial European Christian beliefs; native peoples' sacred stories of creation and human origins compared with Euro-Christian perspectives; how Europeans' sexual and gender violence toward native peoples served as a tool of colonial oppression and conquest.

149:076 (AINS:3276) American Indian Environmentalism 3 s.h.
Same as 032:076 (RELS:3976).

149:082 (AINS:2078) American Indian Women: Myth, Ritual, and Sacred Power 3 s.h.
Participation of women and girls in native religious traditions; obstacles to knowing and understanding native women's religious roles and experiences. Same as 032:078 (RELS:2778).

149:085 (AINS:2085) Native American Material Culture 3 s.h.
Overview of American collectors and collections of Indian objects, prehistoric to contemporary. Same as 045:085 (AMST:2085).

149:099 (AINS:2999) Powwow Culture and History 3 s.h. Service learning experience working on the American Indian powwow at The University of Iowa; academic study of history and culture of Native American powwows.

149:102 (AINS:3002) Introduction to American Indian History and Policy 3 s.h. Same as 16A:110 (HIST:3002).

149:107 (AINS:4502) History of Mexico 3 s.h. Mexican history since the eve of the Spanish invasion, with focus on the national period; may include ethnic groups, conquest and demographic disaster, native survival, labor and migration, social protest and rebellions, nationhood, regional differences, religions, popular culture, economic growth and distribution, state building, international relations; survey. Same as 16W:107 (HIST:4502).

149:113 (AINS:3441) Native American Literature 3 s.h. English majors may apply this course to the following area and/or period requirement. AREA: American Literature and Culture. PERIOD: 20th/21st-Century Literature. Same as 008:153 (ENGL:3441).

149:154 (AINS:3554) Native Histories and Endurance in the Greater Midwest 3 s.h. Indigenous histories in the Great Lakes region; colonization and decolonization as ongoing processes rather than historic events.

149:155 (AINS:3555) Exploring American Icons: Cowboys, Indians, Bikers 3 s.h. Cowboys, Indians, and bikers as cultural icons from historic to contemporary times; examination of ideologies that circulate within and through these three groups as part of expressions of American identities.

149:158 (AINS:4560) Native American Women and Religious Change 3 s.h.

Native women’s diverse experiences and their roles in native societies, examined through contact experiences between native and nonnative peoples; changes in women’s roles in context of interactions between native people, missionaries, European colonists, and Americans; approaches to re-imaging women’s early contact roles presented in cultural narratives, archaeology, history, ethnography, and missionary records. Same as 131:159 (GWSS:4560), 032:158 (RELS:4920).

149:159 (AINS:3258) Southwestern Archaeology 3 s.h. Anthropological overview of prehistoric cultures of the American Southwest; emphasis on understanding archaeological arguments concerning major processes in the past. Same as 113:159 (ANTH:3258).

149:160 (AINS:4289) The Atlantic World c. 1450-1850 3 s.h. Interactions between peoples of Europe, Africa, and the Americas between the 15th and mid-19th centuries, interconnected system of exchange that defied national and imperial boundaries; encounters between Native Americans, Africans, and Europeans in different parts of the Americas; forced and voluntary resettlement of Africans and Europeans overseas; development of plantation slave societies; biological consequences of transatlantic contact; circulation of people, goods, and ideas; development of creole societies; era of revolutions; abolition of slavery. Same as 16W:160 (HIST:4289).

149:163 (AINS:4272) Native Americans in the Age of Empires, ca. 1500-1815 3 s.h. Overview of major issues in Native American history during the period of European Imperialism in North America. Recommendations: junior or senior standing. Same as 16A:163 (HIST:4272).

149:167 (AINS:3257) North American Archaeology 3 s.h. Prehistoric cultural development north of Mexico from initial occupation to European contact and conquest; emphasis on dynamics of culture change. Same as 113:167 (ANTH:3257).

149:178 (AINS:8593) Federal Indian Law 3 s.h. Specialized body of law that allocates power and authority in Indian country and has grown up around Native American peoples and their reservations; sovereignty arrangements, jurisdiction, federal Indian policy, tribal self-government. Same as 091:303 (LAW:8593).

149:195 (AINS:4095) Directed Cultural Experience arr. In-depth American Indian cultural experience, usually study or volunteer work, under supervision of an AINSP faculty member.

149:197 (AINS:4990) Independent Study arr.

Completion of a significant scholarly project that addresses the scope, goals, and ongoing development of American Indian and native studies as an academic field; findings presented on campus (e.g., AINSP steering committee or in association with an AINSP-sponsored event) or at an academic conference.

The American Sign Language Program offers two undergraduate programs of study. It also offers a number of courses open to all students. They include a four-semester course sequence in American Sign Language (ASL), courses for teacher licensure (see "Hearing Impaired Endorsement for Teachers" below), and courses on fingerspelling, deaf culture, ASL literature, ASL interpreting, and other topics. The four-course ASL sequence satisfies the World Languages requirement of the General Education Program (see "Language for General Education" below). Classroom instruction is supplemented by video materials and interactive software in the Language Media Center.

The American Sign Language Program is one of the academic units in the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (p. 222).

HEARING IMPAIRED ENDORSEMENT FOR TEACHERS

The American Sign Language Program offers courses that fulfill requirements for the Hearing Impaired Endorsement offered by the College of Education. The University of Iowa currently is the only institution in Iowa that offers this endorsement program. Holders of the endorsement are authorized to serve deaf and hard-of-hearing students from birth to age 21. The program is open to undergraduate and graduate students; applicants must hold or be in the process of completing requirements for an elementary or secondary teaching license. Contact the College of Education Office of Education Services to learn more.

- Minor in American Sign Language

Certificate

The Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies requires 34 s.h. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript; it confirms for potential employers and prospective graduate schools that the student has specialized knowledge in the field.

Students may earn the Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies or the minor in American Sign Language, but not both.

The certificate program teaches students about the history, culture, and language of the American deaf community. It is interdisciplinary, permitting students to link study in two or more disciplines into an organized investigation of a language and culture. Through their study of American Sign Language, students learn a language that is semantically and grammatically very different from their own and that operates in a different sensory channel. They also encounter a rich and complex culture, including a rapidly growing literature recorded on film and videotape since the early 20th century.

Certificate requirements include the four-course American Sign Language sequence (16 s.h.) or demonstration of equivalent proficiency; 6 s.h. of core courses; and 12 s.h. of focused electives in two or more disciplines.

Students may use each course required for the certificate to satisfy only one certificate requirement. But they may use a course to satisfy a certificate requirement as well as a requirement for a major or for a minor in another discipline. Courses used to satisfy certificate requirements may not be taken pass/nonpass.

A maximum of 6 s.h. of transfer credit may be accepted toward certificate requirements, with the approval of the American Sign Language and deaf studies advisor.

Students must declare their intention to pursue the certificate with the American Sign Language and deaf studies advisor. They also must submit a plan of study.

The Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies requires the following course work.

LANGUAGE SEQUENCE

Certificate students must complete the following sequence or be able to demonstrate equivalent proficiency. Students must demonstrate 75 percent proficiency in the expressive and receptive elements of each course in order to register for the next course in the sequence.

- 158:011 (ASL:1001) American Sign Language I 4 s.h.
- 158:012 (ASL:1002) American Sign Language II 4 s.h.
- 158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV 4 s.h.

CORE COURSES

Students complete at least two of these (minimum of 6 s.h.):

- 158:100 (ASL:4201)/16A:104 (HIST:4201) History of the American Deaf Community 3-4 s.h.
- 158:101 (ASL:3200) Topics in Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
FOCUSED ELECTIVES

Students earn a total of at least 12 s.h. in courses chosen from the lists below. They must choose courses from at least two different disciplines.

American Studies
045:001 (AMST:1010) Understanding American Cultures 3 s.h.
045:025 (AMST:2025) Diversity and American Identities 3 s.h.

Anthropology
113:014 (ANTH:1401) Language, Culture, and Communication 3 s.h.
113:045 (ANTH:1040) Language Rights 3 s.h.

Communication Sciences and Disorders
003:117 (CSD:3117) Psychology of Language 3 s.h.
003:118 (CSD:3118) Language Acquisition 1-3 s.h.
003:185 (CSD:3185) Hearing Loss and Audiometry 3 s.h.

English
08P:182 (ENGL:3190) Language and Learning 2-3 s.h.

History
16A:104 (HIST:4201)/158:100 (ASL:4201) History of the American Deaf Community 3-4 s.h.
16A:106 (HIST:4203) Disability in American History 3 s.h.

Linguistics
103:011 (LING:1010) Language and Society 3 s.h.
103:020 (LING:1020) Introduction to the Study of Language 3 s.h.
103:045 (LING:1040) Language Rights 3 s.h.
103:055 (LING:1060) Languages of the World 3 s.h.
103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics 3 s.h.
103:137 (LING:3670) Language Processes 3 s.h.
103:150 (LING:3100) Language and Gender 3 s.h.
103:156 (LING:3030) Child Language-Linguistic Perspectives 3 s.h.
103:157 (LING:4080) Linguistic Theory and Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
103:172 (LING:3117) Psychology of Language 3 s.h.
103:176 (LING:3118) Language Acquisition 1-3 s.h.

Psychology
031:122 (PSY:3085) Language Development 3 s.h.
031:137 (PSY:3670) Language Processes 3 s.h.

Social Work
042:147 (SSW:3847) Discrimination, Oppression, and Diversity 3 s.h.

Special Education
07B:180 (EPLS:4180) Human Relations for the Classroom Teacher 3 s.h.
075:182 (EDTL:3382) Language and Learning 2-3 s.h.

Courses
158:011 (ASL:1001) American Sign Language I 4 s.h.
158:012 (ASL:1002) American Sign Language II 4 s.h.
158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV 4 s.h.

Minor
The minor in American Sign Language requires 15 s.h. of ASL course work, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above taken at The University of Iowa, except 158:106 (ASLE:2500) Introduction to ASL Interpreting, which does not count toward the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include 158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV or demonstrated equivalent proficiency. Students may count a maximum of one course taught in English toward the minor, 158:100 (ASL:4201) History of the American Deaf Community or 158:110 (ASLE:3905) Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students, and must enroll in the 4 s.h. option with discussion conducted in ASL.

Students may earn the minor in American Sign Language or the Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies, but not both.

Language for General Education

The following four-course sequence satisfies the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). Students must demonstrate 75 percent proficiency in the expressive and receptive elements of each course in order to register for the next course in the sequence.

158:011 (ASL:1001) American Sign Language I 4 s.h.
158:012 (ASL:1002) American Sign Language II 4 s.h.
158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV 4 s.h.

Prerequisites: 158:011 taken at The University of Iowa, except ASL course work, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor requires 15 s.h. of ASL course work, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above taken at The University of Iowa, except 158:106 (ASLE:2500) Introduction to ASL Interpretation, which does not count toward the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor may include 158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV or demonstrated equivalent proficiency. Students may count a maximum of one course taught in English toward the minor, 158:100 (ASL:4201) History of the American Deaf Community or 158:110 (ASLE:3905) Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students, and must enroll in the 4 s.h. option with discussion conducted in ASL.

158:014 (ASL:2002) American Sign Language IV  4 s.h.

158:015 (ASL:1101) Fingerspelling and Numbers I  1 s.h.
Development of expressive and receptive American Sign Language fingerspelling, loan sign, and number skills based on word, phrase, and number recognition. Eight weeks. Prerequisites: 158:011 (ASL:1001).

158:016 (ASL:1102) Fingerspelling and Numbers II  1 s.h.
Development of expressive and receptive American Sign Language fingerspelling, loan sign, and number skills based on word, phrase, and number recognition. Eight weeks. Prerequisites: 158:015 (ASL:1101).

158:100 (ASL:4201) History of the American Deaf Community  3-4 s.h.

158:101 (ASL:3200) Topics in Deaf Studies  3 s.h.
Current topics in deaf studies; skill development in communicative fluency in ASL. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002), if not taken as a prerequisite.

158:102 (ASL:3300) American Deaf Culture  3 s.h.

158:103 (ASL:3600) American Sign Language Literature  3 s.h.
Introduction to the world of ASL literature, as recorded on videotape or film and in live performance; traditional folklore, storytelling, poetry, drama, oratory, jokes, and nonfiction narrative; analysis of genres in their social and cultural contexts as expressions of deaf experience; how historical and current issues in deaf culture are represented in literary form. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002), if not taken as a prerequisite.

158:104 (ASL:3400) Issues in ASL and Deaf Studies  3 s.h.
Current issues in American Sign Language and the American deaf community, such as linguistics, culture, literacy. Corequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002), if not taken as a prerequisite.

158:105 (ASL:3500) Deafness in the Media  3 s.h.
Exploration of the construct of deafness through mainstream media (e.g., commercial television, movies, fictional and nonfictional literature in print and on the Internet); various ways deaf people are constructed and presented for hearing audiences from the past 20 years, including deaf as long-suffering victims, deaf as heroes overcoming adversity, deaf as rebels against the mainstream, and deaf as lonely outcasts. Taught in American Sign Language. Prerequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002).

158:106 (ASLE:2500) Introduction to ASL Interpreting  3 s.h.
Introduction to sign language interpreting; history and current nature of the field, available opportunities, certification, training, ethics. Corequisites: 158:013 (ASL:2001), if not taken as a prerequisite.

An American Sign Language/deaf studies topic; individual study.

158:110 (ASL:3905) Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students  3-4 s.h.
Issues in deaf education—management techniques, communication strategies, teaching strategies, instructional materials, hands-on activities, assessments, parent involvement; use of technology, ethnic and cultural diversity, classroom management, pre-reading techniques, literacy development, educational program options. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002), if not taken as a prerequisite. Same as 07U:110 (EDTL:3905).

158:111 (ASL:3100) American Sign Language Conversation  3 s.h.
Improvement of receptive and expressive conversational ASL skills through small group discussion, class presentations. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014 (ASL:2002), if not taken as a prerequisite.

The Department of American Studies provides an interdisciplinary introduction to American culture, past and present. It helps students acquire a broad familiarity with the dynamics of cultural experience and explore aspects of life in the United States, such as sport, popular and fine arts, institutions, values, gender and ethnic relations, artifacts, and the everyday life of a diverse citizenry.

The department offers undergraduate programs of study in American studies and in sport studies as well as graduate programs of study in American studies, with a sport studies subtrack available in the Ph.D.

The department also is the administrative home of the American Indian and Native Studies Program, which offers an undergraduate certificate and minor and a graduate certificate; see American Indian and Native Studies (p. 34) in the Catalog.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in American studies (Bachelor of Arts)
- Major in sport studies (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in American studies
- Minor in sport studies

Bachelor of Arts: American Studies

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in American Studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. Students must earn at least 24 s.h. for the major at The University of Iowa. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major in American studies stresses broad training in cultural analysis and communication. Although it offers no explicit vocational training, the program provides preparation for careers in business, education, government, journalism, or social service; for advanced study in the humanities, the social sciences, theology, or business; or for professional study in law or medicine. American studies students may arrange internships through the University’s Pomerantz Career Center.

A distinctive feature of the American studies major is the opportunity to develop broad training in cultural analysis as well as emphasis of particular interests within the study of American culture. With the help of their American studies advisors, students may elect to pursue one of five focus areas within American studies, or they may create an individual plan of study. Each focus area allows students to group courses in American studies and other departments around a specific interdisciplinary theme, topic, or set of social issues; see “American Studies Focus Areas” below.

Shortly after declaring the major, a student should meet with his or her faculty advisor to explore the range of course work available and to begin shaping an individual plan of study. By the student’s second term in the major, the student and advisor should have agreed upon a plan of study and focus area for completing the requirements for the major.

The major in American Studies usually requires the following 12 courses.
- 045:020 (AMST:2000) Sources for American Studies 3 s.h.
- 045:025 (AMST:2025) Diversity and American Identities 3 s.h.
- 045:090 (AMST:3090) Seminar in American Cultural Studies 3 s.h.
- Two additional 100-level American studies courses 6 s.h.
- Three additional American studies core courses (any level) 9 s.h.

Special interest focus area: four courses in American studies and/or other departments 12 s.h.

American Studies Focus Areas

Students should consult regularly with the Department of American Studies about courses offered by American studies and other departments that count toward each focus area. A maximum of two courses from a single department outside American studies may be counted toward a single focus area.

ETHNIC STUDIES, DIVERSITY, AND DIFFERENCES

Students choose this focus to develop interdisciplinary understanding of an individual ethnic and/or racial group (e.g., Latino/a studies, Jewish-American studies) or to examine broadly gender, race, sexuality, social class, region, national origins, and age in the United States. Emphasis is on the historic emergence of categories of social difference, especially as revealed in cultural practices and artifacts, geography and cityscapes, leisure, and popular expression.

AMERICAN ARTS, LITERATURE, AND POPULAR CULTURE
Students who choose this focus examine artistic creations to discover how they are shaped by cultural preconceptions, norms, and standards, and how in turn these expressive forms affect ongoing developments in cultural life. Emphasis is on skills in the formal analysis of artistic artifacts, historical inquiry, and cultural contextualization.

AMERICAN SOCIETY, POLITICS, AND EVERYDAY LIFE
Students who choose this focus consider the dynamics of social change, the emergence and fate of political movements, and the forms and practice of everyday life in America. The area encompasses the tradition of revolution in America, the effects of technological and economic change, and the roles of the family, workplace, and community from the colonial era to the digital age.

THE POLITICS OF NATURE: ENVIRONMENT, SUSTAINABILITY, AND LANDSCAPE
Students who choose this focus explore how Americans from pre-Columbian times to the present have shaped and regarded the natural environment. Topics might include the perception of wilderness in early America; the relationship of Native American peoples to the land; the impact of industrialization and urban growth on the environment; the emergence of a cult of nature; the treatment and representation of animals; the mass production, distribution, and consumption of food; and the growing movement for sustainability in agriculture, architecture, urban planning, and individual lifestyles.

SPORT AND POPULAR AMUSEMENT
Students who choose this focus examine the various sports, recreational activities, and popular amusements enjoyed in the United States from colonial and early America to the present. They examine the relationship between work and play, the role of technology and the media, the commercialization of sport, and the politics of gender, race, class, sexuality, and disability.

INDIVIDUALLY DESIGNED FOCUS AREAS
Individually designed focus areas may concentrate on an interdisciplinary topic, theme, group of people, or time period. Students who wish to design their own interdisciplinary focus area should consult with their American studies advisor for appropriate courses.

Bachelor of Arts: Sport Studies
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in sport studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 45 s.h. of work for the major (30 s.h. in sport studies and 15 s.h. in an outside specialization area or a minor). At least 24 s.h. of credit for the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The sports studies major examines sport in its historical and contemporary cultural contexts. Course work provides students with the critical skills necessary to understand the cultural significance of sport as it relates to the media, the economy, the political system, and the educational system. A focus on the race, class, and gender differences in the sport experience is central to the major.

Many students use their experience in the program to prepare for graduate school. For others, the required second concentration area or minor serves as an introduction to careers in a number of fields, such as sport journalism, sport management, or coaching.

The major in sport studies requires the following course work.

SPORT STUDIES FOUNDATION
Students should complete the foundation courses as early as possible.

Both of these:

028:074 (SPST:1074) Inequality in American Sport 3 s.h.
045:001 (AMST:1010) Understanding American Cultures 3 s.h.

SPORT STUDIES CORE
Students must complete one course from each of the following four content areas (total of 12 s.h.).

Diversity in sport—one of these:

028:078 (SPST:2078) Women, Sport, and Culture 3 s.h.
028:079 (SPST:2079) Race and Ethnicity in Sport 3 s.h.

International dimensions—one of these:

028:176 (SPST:3176) Sport and Nationalism 3 s.h.
028:177 (SPST:3177) Sport in the Western World 3 s.h.

Contemporary sport in America—one of these:

028:175 (SPST:3175) Sport and the Media 3 s.h.
028:188 (SPST:3179) American Sport Since 1900 3 s.h.

History of sport and leisure in America—one of these:

028:178 (SPST:3178) American Sport to 1900 3 s.h.
028:179 (SPST:3174) The American Vacation 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES
Students must complete at least 12 s.h. of approved elective courses; the department suggests courses from the following list. Students also may include courses from the sport studies core (above) that they have not already taken.

06E:165 (ECON:3390) Sports Economics 3 s.h.
06T:151 (ENTR:4450) Professional Sports Management 3 s.h.
019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture 3 s.h.
019:164 (JMC:3820) Images and Society 3 s.h.
20E:075 (CLSA:1875) Ancient Sports and Leisure 3 s.h.
027:035 (HHP:2150) Stress Management 3 s.h.
027:076 (HHP:2500) Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.
028:171 (SPST:3171) Baseball in America 3 s.h.
028:084 (SPST:2084)/045:084 (AMST:2084) Sport and Film 3 s.h.
028:180 (SPST:2081) Theory and Ethics of Coaching 3 s.h.
028:193 (SPST:3193) Independent Study 1-3 s.h.
028:194 (SPST:4999) Honors Project 1-3 s.h.
028:198 (SPST:4900) Topics in Sport Studies 1-3 s.h.
034:066 (SOC:2810) Social Inequality 3 s.h.
045:020 (AMST:2000) Sources for American Studies 3 s.h.
B.A.: Sport Studies

Before the fifth semester begins: declaration of the major

Before the sixth semester begins: area of specialization determined

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six sport studies courses and the completion of 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight sport studies courses

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

Honors programs in the American studies and sport studies majors offer students the opportunity to pursue special interests in individual, in-depth research. Honors students in either major must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Honors students carry out a research project. Working under the guidance of an undergraduate advisor, each student defines a research project and then makes a project proposal, ideally by the end of the junior year. The student completes the project under the guidance of a supervising faculty member. American studies honors students register for up to 6 s.h. in 045:095 (AMST:4999) Honors Project. Sport studies honors students register for up to 3 s.h. in 028:194 (SPST:4999) Honors Project.

Contact the American studies honors advisor for more information about honors in either major.

Minor: American Studies

The minor in American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in American studies courses (prefix 045 (AMST)), including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered above 045:001 (AMST:1010) Understanding American Cultures are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students interested in earning the American studies minor should consult with one of the department’s faculty members.

Minor: Sport Studies

The minor in sport studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in University of Iowa sport studies courses (prefix 028 (SPST)), including at least 6 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit may not be counted toward the minor. Students select courses for the minor according to their interests and the recommendation of the undergraduate coordinator.
Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies

The Department of American Studies administers the American Indian and Native Studies Program, which offers a certificate for undergraduate and graduate students and a minor for undergraduates; see American Indian and Native Studies (p. 34) in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in American studies (with or without thesis)
- Doctor of Philosophy in American studies (optional sport studies subtrack)

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in American studies requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree generally is offered without thesis; students must petition the director of graduate studies for permission to pursue the thesis option.

Each M.A. student designs an interdisciplinary field of concentration in consultation with his or her American studies advisor. The M.A. in American studies requires the following work.

- 045:200 (AMST:5000) Theory and Practice of American Studies I 3 s.h.
- 045:201 (AMST:5001) Theory and Practice of American Studies II 3 s.h.
- Two graduate seminars in American studies 6 s.h.
- Five courses in the interdisciplinary field of concentration 15 s.h.
- Electives 9 s.h.

M.A. portfolio

Each student must complete an M.A. portfolio, which includes a research paper, faculty evaluations for all courses taken during the student’s first full year of graduate study, and a self-evaluation essay. The research paper is a graduate seminar paper that demonstrates the student’s skills as a research scholar and writer and represents his or her strongest work. The paper should be 25-30 pages, including a bibliography.

The self-evaluation essay summarizes the American studies methods and materials that have shaped the student’s interdisciplinary work in the field and states how the master’s degree work in American studies has contributed to, challenged, or complicated the student’s goals and ambitions beyond the degree.

Students assemble the M.A. portfolio under the guidance of their advisors and should submit it no later than December 1 of their third semester in residency. The portfolio is evaluated on a satisfactory/unsatisfactory (S/U) basis by a three-person American studies faculty committee. Students whose portfolio receives a U may resubmit the portfolio during their fourth semester of residency.

For students who wish to continue their education with doctoral study, the M.A. portfolio serves as the application for admission to the Ph.D. program in American studies. The department informs applicants whether they have been accepted into the Ph.D. program by the end of the fall semester in which they submit their M.A. portfolio; admission is contingent upon successful completion of the M.A. during the student's fourth semester of residency.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in American studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Students may focus in American studies or choose the sport studies subtrack.

Each student works with his or her faculty advisor to map out a coherent plan of study that reflects the student’s particular interests. Students are permitted considerable flexibility in constructing their study plan, but they must meet certain basic requirements, which include foundation courses, area foundation courses, two interdisciplinary fields of concentration, a research skills course, elective course work, and a dissertation.

The two fields of concentration may be defined to correspond with the student’s strongest intellectual interests, but they must be interdisciplinary in concept and multidisciplinary in scope. Each must include course work from more than one of the University’s departments and programs. The two concentration areas may, and usually should, have an intellectual relationship with each other.

Students are expected to address the cultural diversity of American life in their course work and reading.

The Doctor of Philosophy requires the following work. Some course requirements are different for American studies and sport studies.

COURSE WORK

Required Foundation Courses

All students complete the required foundation courses and should take them as early as possible.

- 045:200 (AMST:5000) Theory and Practice of American Studies I 3 s.h.
- 045:201 (AMST:5001) Theory and Practice of American Studies II 3 s.h.

Area Foundation Courses

American studies students:

- Two American studies graduate seminars 6 s.h.

Sport studies students:

- 028:276 (SPST:6276) Sport in U.S. Culture 3 s.h.
- 028:374 (SPST:6074) Seminar in Sport History 3 s.h.

First Field of Concentration

American studies students:

- Courses in an interdisciplinary field with a historical concentration, designed with the advisor and approved by the department’s Plan of Study Committee 18 s.h.

Sport studies students:

- 028:278 (SPST:6078) Seminar: Women in Sport 3 s.h.
- 028:378 (SPST:6072) Seminar in Cultural Studies of Sport 3 s.h.

Interdisciplinary sport studies courses 12 s.h.
Internships

Qualified graduate students in American studies can arrange internships with a number of local agencies, including the State Historical Society of Iowa, the Division of Historic Preservation, the University of Iowa Museum of Art, the Iowa Humanities Board, Brucemore, the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum, and the Putnam Museum. With special permission, candidates conducting research during such on-the-job training may receive academic credit through 045:320 (AMST:7994) Independent Study. Other internships with social agencies, government, or business also may be arranged.

Second Field of Concentration

American studies and sport studies students:

Courses in an interdisciplinary field designed with the advisor and approved by the department’s Plan of Study Committee

Research Skills

American studies students:

045:550 (AMST:7085) Dissertation Writing Workshop 3 s.h. (taken three times)

Sport studies students:

028:295 (SPST:7070) Sport Studies Workshop 1 s.h.

Additional Requirements

American studies and sport studies students:

Dissertation work (045:600 (AMST:7090) Ph.D. Thesis) 21 s.h.

and electives

ADMISSION TO PH.D. CANDIDACY

Admission to Ph.D. candidacy signifies that the department judges the doctoral student qualified to take the comprehensive examination. Doctoral students advance to Ph.D. candidacy based on a review conducted during their second year in the Ph.D. program (typically during fall semester); the review assesses the student’s readiness to complete his or her studies through the comprehensive examination and the dissertation, which is an original work of scholarship. In addition to judging the student’s readiness for Ph.D. candidacy, the review provides a progress report on the student’s work and a tentative prognosis for future prospects in the field.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

The comprehensive examination comprises three written exams and one oral exam.

The first exam is taken under the supervision of an American studies faculty member, who also chairs the comprehensive examination. The candidate takes a timed, take-home written exam of no less than four hours and no longer than two days; the exam details the candidate’s approach to American studies (methods and models), including his or her position and critical engagement with models of American studies scholarship.

The remaining two written exams explore the candidate’s major fields; these are at least four hours long and may be given on a take-home basis at the examiner’s discretion.

The oral exam covers material from the written exams.

DISSERTATION

The final requirement for the Ph.D. in American studies is the dissertation, a substantive book-length manuscript that involves interdisciplinary research and analysis and that represents an original contribution to knowledge. All Ph.D. dissertations must be approved by a committee of five faculty members, including at least two from the Department of American Studies.

Undergraduate major: anthropology (B.A., B.S.)
Undergraduate minor: anthropology
Graduate degrees: M.A. in anthropology; Ph.D. in anthropology
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/anthropology/

Anthropology is the comparative study of peoples and cultures past and present. The discipline’s four major subfields—cultural anthropology, biological anthropology, linguistic anthropology, and archaeology—have important connections to other social sciences, physical and biological sciences, and to the arts and humanities.

Anthropology provides a framework for understanding the relation of human beings to their natural environment and to the social and cultural worlds they create and inhabit. The field provides insight into biological and sociocultural evolution and includes a focus on economic, social, and political organizations, symbolic systems, and social systems. Comparative studies of these and other aspects of past and present cultures yield information on regularities and differences.

In addition to offering undergraduate and graduate degree programs, the Department of Anthropology administers the University’s Museum Studies (p. 456) Program, which offers an undergraduate certificate.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in anthropology (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in anthropology

The major in anthropology prepares individuals for advanced training or careers in anthropology, allied fields, and professional programs. Students who complete an anthropology major gain special understanding of human relations and expertise for jobs involving international or cross-cultural work, cultural resource management, and social and ethnic diversity in the United States.

Upon graduation, anthropology majors embark on careers in government, international affairs, conservation, economic development, public health, cultural resource management, urban and regional planning, social work, museum work, and education. Many go on to help resolve contemporary world problems by working with international or domestic organizations such as Americorps, the Peace Corps, and Teach for America. Some pursue graduate study in anthropology or related social sciences while others earn degrees in business, law, or the health sciences.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in anthropology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. The B.A. is designed to offer a comprehensive overview of anthropology’s four main subfields and the broadest possible cross-cultural background.

The Bachelor of Science with a major in anthropology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 42 s.h. of work for the major. The B.S. is appropriate for students with interests in any of anthropology’s subfields; it offers enhanced opportunities to gain experience and develop skills in research methods and scientific reasoning.

B.A. and B.S. students in anthropology may elect to complete one of four optional emphases; see "Undergraduate Emphasis Areas" below.

All undergraduates majoring in anthropology, including transfer students, must earn a minimum of 15 s.h. for the major at The University of Iowa. Students may apply credit earned at approved field schools offered by other institutions toward the major, with Department of Anthropology approval.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who declare anthropology as their major when they are admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences are advised at the Academic Advising Center until they have earned 24 s.h. Students who have earned more than 24 s.h. are advised in the department. Students are assigned an advisor based on faculty advisor loads and student interests.
Common Requirements
All anthropology majors (B.A. or B.S.) must complete the following requirements:

113:003 (ANTH:1101) Cultural Anthropology 3 s.h.
113:012 (ANTH:1201) Introduction to Prehistory 3 s.h.
113:013 (ANTH:1301) Human Origins 3 s.h.
113:014 (ANTH:1401) Language, Culture, and Communication 3 s.h.
113:050 (ANTH:1001) Issues in Anthropology 3 s.h.
One course in archaeology (area or topical) or biological anthropology numbered 100 (3000) or above and not used to fulfill the area studies requirement 3 s.h.
One course in sociocultural or linguistic anthropology numbered 100 (3000) or above 3 s.h.
One course in area studies numbered 100 (3000) or above and not used to fulfill the archaeology requirement 3 s.h.
Three electives numbered 100 (3000) or above 9 s.h.

Anthropology electives offer many options, including courses dealing with environment and culture, expressive culture (art, verbal arts, literature, music, and dance), gender and sexuality, human evolution, human osteology, human prehistory, identity, language and culture, medical anthropology, molecular genetics, primatology, psychological anthropology, religion and ritual, and urban anthropology. Department faculty members offer area studies courses that focus on Latin America, Europe, Japan, South Asia, and Native North America.

Additional Bachelor of Arts Requirements
Bachelor of Arts students are strongly encouraged to take courses and participate in archaeological field and laboratory research, biological anthropology laboratory research, ethnographic research methods in sociocultural anthropology, and multimedia research in linguistic anthropology.

Additional Bachelor of Science Requirements
Bachelor of Science students must fulfill additional requirements in the following three areas.

Quantitative, mathematical, or formal reasoning tool
Directed laboratory or field research
Allied topical course work

QUANTITATIVE, MATHEMATICAL, OR FORMAL REASONING TOOL
Bachelor of Science students must complete two courses (a minimum of 6 s.h.) in statistics, computing, logic, and/or mathematics in addition to the course they take to fulfill the General Education Program’s Quantitative and Formal Reasoning requirement. The department accepts the following courses to fulfill the tool requirement. Students who would like to use other courses should consult their advisors.

22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.
22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.
22M:015 (MATH:1440) Mathematics for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.
22S:002 (STAT:1010) Statistics and Society 3 s.h.
22S:025 (STAT:1020)/(PSQF:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
026:036 (PHIL:1636) Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate 3 s.h.
036:017 (COMM:1117) Theory and Practice of Argument 4 s.h.
103:013 (LING:1050) Language and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.
143:080 (HONR:1800) Honors Seminar in Quantitative and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.

DIRECTED LABORATORY OR FIELD RESEARCH
Bachelor of Science students complete an approved directed research requirement (minimum of 3 s.h.) consisting of one of the following.

Laboratory research: a laboratory practicum in anthropology research labs or independent, faculty-guided, laboratory research, including use of the collections of the Office of the State Archaeologist.

Field research project: faculty-advisted projects involving the collection of primary archaeological, biological, ethnographic, and/or linguistic data in a fieldwork setting.

A University of Iowa field archaeological school program or approved equivalent.

An approved internship: internships typically involve work in cultural resource management firms, museums, and public health research or education projects; to receive research credit for an internship, students must make a final report to their faculty advisor, summarizing the work accomplished or presenting materials that document the nature of the work.

ALLIED TOPICAL COURSE WORK
Bachelor of Science students complete a topical specialization in one of the following allied fields: biology, chemistry, computer science, economics, geography, geoscience, global health studies, health and human physiology, health promotion, linguistics, mathematics, psychology, science education, sport studies, or statistics and actuarial science. Minors (or at least five courses) in other fields, chosen in consultation with the student’s advisor, also may be applied toward this requirement.

Optional Undergraduate Emphasis Areas
The department offers four optional undergraduate emphasis areas: gender and culture, cultural resource and heritage management, environmental anthropology, and medical anthropology. Students majoring in anthropology may use an emphasis area to provide a particular focus in their study plan.

Each emphasis area reflects broad issues bridging subfields in and outside of anthropology. Completion of an emphasis area indicates the achievement of considerable expertise and is noted on the student’s transcript.

Each emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.). With careful course selection, students majoring in anthropology can complete an emphasis area without adding to the semester hours required for graduation.
GENDER AND CULTURE EMPHASIS

Anthropological research regarding gender and sexuality has grown dramatically in recent years, enhancing and drawing from other theoretical and methodological approaches within the discipline. Such studies contribute a cross-cultural perspective to the discussion surrounding these fundamental aspects of human experience, both in academia and in public life.

The gender and culture emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.) chosen from the following list. Each course provides an integrated overview of essential theoretical and topical issues in the field.

Five of these:

113:102 (ANTH:3106) Ethnography and Auto/Biography 3 s.h.
113:105 (ANTH:3300) Mothers and Motherhood 3 s.h.
113:107 (ANTH:2108) Gendering India 4 s.h.
113:108 (ANTH:2102) Anthropology of Marriage and Family 3 s.h.
113:112 (ANTH:3101) Anthropology of Sexuality 3 s.h.
113:127 (ANTH:3121) South Asian Sexual Cultures 3 s.h.
113:133 (ANTH:4140) The Anthropology of Women’s Health 3 s.h.
113:137 (ANTH:2101) The Anthropology of Love 3 s.h.
113:140 (ANTH:3118) Politics of Reproduction 3 s.h.
113:141 (ANTH:3140) Feminist Anthropology 3 s.h.
113:154 (ANTH:3119) Anthropology of Sexual Minorities 3 s.h.
113:182 (ANTH:3141) Women, Health, and Healing 3 s.h.

CULTURAL RESOURCE AND HERITAGE MANAGEMENT EMPHASIS

In North America and throughout much of the rest of the world, modern land use continually threatens evidence of past land use. Most archaeological excavations are conducted as cultural resource management (CRM), so it is essential that all researchers who work with archaeological data and individuals committed to site preservation have a basic understanding of CRM. Students who choose this emphasis learn about the field and about how to address related ethical issues as well as technical and theoretical challenges.

The cultural resource and heritage management emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.): a fundamental overview course, two area electives, a technical/practical elective, and a field school course. Students may use some of these courses to satisfy requirements for the major, such as the 100-level course in archaeology and the 100-level courses to satisfy requirements for the major, such as anthropology.

Overview—this course:

113:170 (ANTH:3240) Cultural Resources Management: Archaeology: Practice and Practicalities 3 s.h.

Area electives—two of these (or one of these and one other Department of Anthropology area course):

113:110 (ANTH:2165) Native Peoples of North America 3 s.h.
113:159 (ANTH:3258) Southwestern Archaeology 3 s.h.
113:167 (ANTH:3257) North American Archaeology 3 s.h.
113:179 (ANTH:3260) Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas 3 s.h.
113:181 (ANTH:3265) Archaeology of the Great Plains 3 s.h.

Technical/practical elective—one of these:

113:124 (ANTH:3237) Politics of the Archaeological Past 3 s.h.
113:158 (ANTH:3207) Animal Bones in Archaeology 3 s.h.

113:160 (ANTH:3255) Introduction to Archaeological Ceramics 3 s.h.
113:162 (ANTH:2290) Practicum in Archaeology 3 s.h.
113:168 (ANTH:2205) Archaeological Methods 3 s.h.
113:173 (ANTH:3256) Household Archaeology and Anthropology 3 s.h.
113:189 (ANTH:4620) Approaches to Geoarchaeology 3 s.h.
113:190 (ANTH:3221) Beyond the Map: Introduction to Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in Anthropology 3 s.h.
213:190 (ANTH:3305) Human Osteology 3 s.h.

Field school—one of these:

113:199 (ANTH:3295) Field Research in Archaeology 3 s.h.
An equivalent course from another university

ENVIRONMENTAL ANTHROPOLOGY EMPHASIS

The interaction between humans and the environments they inhabit has long been a central issue in anthropology, and environmental degradation is a worldwide concern today. Pollution, loss of biodiversity, and global warming recognize no political boundaries, but attitudes and behaviors involving the natural environment vary widely from culture to culture. Understanding and incorporation of these varied perspectives will be vital to the development and successful use of workable solutions.

The environmental anthropology emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.): two theory courses, which deal primarily with human-environmental interactions; and three area or topical electives, which deal in part with environment, ecology, and subsistence technologies. The following are sample courses in each area.

Theory courses:

113:113 (ANTH:2261) Human Impacts on the Environment 3 s.h.
113:114 (ANTH:3112) Environmentalisms 3 s.h.
113:139 (ANTH:4130) Religion and Environmental Ethics 3 s.h.
113:143 (ANTH:3103) Environment and Culture 3 s.h.

Area or topical electives:

113:125 (ANTH:2175) Japanese Society and Culture 3 s.h.
113:126 (ANTH:3282) Animals, Culture, and Food 3 s.h.
113:130 (ANTH:3238) Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula 3 s.h.
113:131 (ANTH:2110) Latin American Economy and Society 3 s.h.
113:150 (ANTH:3239) Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe 3 s.h.
113:157 (ANTH:2216) Foodways and Cuisine in the Past 3 s.h.
113:158 (ANTH:3207) Animal Bones in Archaeology 3 s.h.
113:161 (ANTH:3205) Prehistoric People of the Ice Age 3 s.h.
113:164 (ANTH:4205) Comparative Prehistory 3 s.h.
113:178 (ANTH:6205) Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology 3 s.h.
113:181 (ANTH:3265) Archaeology of the Great Plains 3 s.h.
113:187 (ANTH:3283) Cultures in Collision 3 s.h.
113:189 (ANTH:4620) Approaches to Geoarchaeology 3 s.h.
113:196 (ANTH:3275) The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt 3 s.h.

MEDICAL ANTHROPOLOGY EMPHASIS

Human experiences of sickness and suffering are universal yet profoundly shaped by cultural and historical contexts. Medical anthropology explores cultural and biological diversity in sickness, health, and healing through approaches that include examining individual experiences of disrupted well-being, considering how biological and... cultural factors interact to promote health or produce sickness, analyzing political-economic causes of health inequalities, and applying research to improve health research and services in an increasingly global world. Course work in medical anthropology helps students prepare for a range of health professions and social services careers and for work in diverse settings that increasingly include nongovernmental organizations devoted to improving health.

The medical anthropology emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.): one overview course and four electives that focus on particular topics.

Overview—this course:

- 113:185 (ANTH:3102) Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.

Electives—four of these:
- 113:112 (ANTH:3101) Anthropology of Sexuality 3 s.h.
- 113:119 (ANTH:3111) Health in Mexico 3 s.h.
- 113:121 (ANTH:3110) Health of Indigenous Peoples 3 s.h.
- 113:133 (ANTH:4140) The Anthropology of Women’s Health 3 s.h.
- 113:140 (ANTH:3118) Politics of Reproduction 3 s.h.
- 113:147 (ANTH:2181) The Anthropology of Aging 3 s.h.
- 113:151 (ANTH:3151) The Anthropology of the Beginnings and Ends of Life 3 s.h.
- 113:152 (ANTH:3152) Anthropology of Caregiving and Health 3 s.h.
- 113:182 (ANTH:3141) Women, Health, and Healing 3 s.h.
- 213:090 (ANTH:2320) Anthropological Perspectives on Human Infectious Disease: Origins and Evolution 3 s.h.
- 213:153 (ANTH:3326) Infectious Disease and Human Evolution 3 s.h.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Anthropology majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Bachelor of Arts

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major and the completion of 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: at least one anthropology course or other course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four anthropology courses or other courses in the major, one course in the minor area, one course for the quantitative or formal reasoning tool requirement

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major, three courses in the minor area, the second quantitative or formal reasoning tool course, and the completion of 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major, including the directed research requirement and four courses in the minor area

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major and in the minor area, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The department offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the anthropology major. Departmental honors students must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in anthropology. To graduate with honors in the major, they must conduct an independent research project that culminates in a 30-50 page thesis. The project includes completion of 6 s.h. divided between 113:186 (ANTH:4995) Honors Research Seminar (offered only in fall semesters) and 113:176 (ANTH:4996) Honors Research, typically taken the next semester. Honors students also must take one of their anthropology courses at the graduate level.

Students working toward a B.S. may count their directed research project or laboratory practicum toward the requirements for graduation with honors, but fulfilling the research requirement for the B.S. does not by itself fulfill the honors research requirement. Students must work with their honors thesis advisor to structure their research so that it meets the added requirements of honors work.

Contact the department’s director of undergraduate studies to learn more about honors in anthropology.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor

The minor in anthropology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in anthropology courses, including 12 s.h. in University of Iowa Department of Anthropology courses (prefix 113 or 213 (ANTH)) numbered 100 (3000) or above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor.

Courses for the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students may create a focus for the minor by completing an emphasis; see “Optional Undergraduate Emphasis Areas” above.
Certificate in Museum Studies

The Department of Anthropology administers the University’s Museum Studies Program, which offers an undergraduate certificate; see Museum Studies (p. 456) in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in anthropology
- Doctor of Philosophy in anthropology

Graduate study in anthropology is open to individuals with varied undergraduate majors and training backgrounds. Students normally are admitted directly to the Ph.D. program; once they complete requirements for the M.A., their committees recommend whether or not they should continue to work toward the Ph.D.

Graduate students become competent in the discipline’s four major subfields: sociocultural anthropology, linguistic anthropology, archaeology, and biological anthropology. Ph.D. students develop professional specialization for independent research and teaching in one of the subfields and may elect to pursue a concentration in feminist anthropology or paleoanthropology. Students also may choose to earn a terminal M.A. with a focus on cultural resource management—archaeology (CRM), which prepares them for a professional career in that field.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in anthropology requires 30-36 s.h. of graduate credit, depending on the student’s previous anthropological training. Students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. earned in courses outside anthropology toward the M.A. in anthropology. The degree normally is awarded to students after two years in the graduate program.

Master's degree students who choose to focus on cultural resource management—archaeology (CRM) normally do not go on to earn a Ph.D. in anthropology.

During the first semester of the M.A. program, students are advised by the director of graduate studies. By the end of the second semester, they must select an advisor and begin forming an M.A. committee. In consultation with the committee, the student develops a research project and writes an M.A. paper. The committee must approve the M.A. paper by the end of the fourth semester of study. The student also presents the paper publicly. As an alternative to the M.A. paper, students may choose to write a formal M.A. thesis, which must follow the Graduate College thesis guidelines. Students must submit a final copy of their M.A. thesis or paper to the department.

Master's degree students who intend to earn a doctorate should consider taking 113:210 (ANTH:5110) Anthropological Data Analysis or another statistics course during their M.A. study.

GENERAL COURSE WORK

M.A. students must complete core seminars in at least three of four subfields (total of 9 s.h.). They choose core seminars from the following.

113:240 (ANTH:5101) Seminar Sociocultural Anthropology 3 s.h.
113:268 (ANTH:5201) Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

In consultation with their advisor and committee members, students select additional course work to complete the remaining semester hours required for the M.A. Elective hours may include courses in other disciplines, directed study, or up to 6 s.h. of M.A. thesis credit for students who choose the thesis option.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in anthropology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The Ph.D. balances the general anthropological competence obtained at the M.A. level with professional specialization and competence for independent research and teaching in one of four subfields: sociocultural anthropology, linguistic anthropology, archaeology, and biological anthropology.

Ph.D. students also may elect to pursue a concentration in feminist anthropology or paleoanthropology; see "Graduate Concentrations" below.

To ensure focus on the student’s research interests, the department has an integrated process of simultaneous preparation of reading lists, research proposals for submission to granting agencies, dissertation proposal, and position papers. In order to complete the degree, all doctoral students are required to complete appropriate course work and the Ph.D. comprehensive process, carry out original anthropological research, and write and defend a dissertation. Students work closely with their advisor and committee at all stages.

In the first semester after completing the M.A. (or the first semester in the program for students who enter with an M.A. in anthropology from another institution), the student selects an advisor. By the end of the second semester, the student selects a committee to oversee his or her completion of the comprehensive process.

Students immediately begin consulting with their advisor, and eventually their committees, to start compiling an annotated bibliography of works relevant to future research. The annotated bibliography is a working document for the student’s use in the Ph.D. program; it is not a formal requirement and does not require formal review.

In the third and fourth semesters of the program, the student completes the comprehensive process. Then he or she may select a dissertation committee.

All doctoral students must demonstrate reading and/or speaking knowledge of one language other than English. They must meet this requirement before beginning dissertation research.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

Students should take all lecture courses and seminars that are relevant to the areas they intend to cover in their dissertation papers. They may count a maximum of 18 s.h. earned in non-anthropology courses toward the 72 s.h. required for the Ph.D., including the maximum of 9 s.h. that may be counted toward the master’s degree. Students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. of independent study courses beyond the master’s degree toward the Ph.D.

All doctoral students are required to take 113:210 (ANTH:5110) Anthropological Data Analysis or another statistics course within the first three years of graduate study, preferably during the M.A. program (first two years).

Students must take at least one theory course beyond the course they took to fulfill the master’s degree requirements in their specialization subfield. This course should be chosen from one of the following lists.

THE PH.D. COMPREHENSIVE PROCESS

The comprehensive process consists of preparing a research proposal and prospectus defense and writing comprehensive essays. According to individual needs and in consultation with his or her committee, a student selects the order of completing these two tasks. Successful completion of both tasks advances the student to Ph.D. candidacy.

To remain in good academic standing, students must complete the comprehensive process by the end of the fourth semester in the Ph.D. program. Students who do not adhere to this timeline are placed on departmental probation.

Working closely with his or her committee, each student drafts a research proposal for the program of dissertation research and defends a research prospectus before the Ph.D. committee. The defense is open to students and faculty. A copy of the student’s dissertation prospectus must be made available in the department office one week before the defense.

Each student must write two comprehensive essays, which must be of publishable quality. One essay must concern the student’s geographical area of specialization; the other must deal with his or her primary topical area. In some fields (e.g., biological anthropology), a geographical area may not be relevant. The essays are responses to questions the committee prepares in consultation with the student.

Comprehensive essays should demonstrate analysis, evaluation, synthesis, and control of a body of information (knowledge and comprehension). They should critique a major problem or debate (application and analysis), and they should develop a position on an issue and provide an explanation or theoretical justification for the position (evaluation and synthesis).

Doctoral students who have completed the comprehensive examination process are encouraged to enroll in 113:382 (ANTH:7501) Dissertation Writing Seminar to enhance timely progress on their dissertations.

DISSERTATION

All Ph.D. candidates are required to carry out original anthropological research. Students typically conduct dissertation research after defending their research prospectus and writing comprehensive essays. Dissertations usually are based on fieldwork. Some are based on data from archival collections, laboratory projects, collections, or other source materials.

Graduate Concentrations

In addition to their required course work in the four Ph.D. subfields, students may complete a concentration in feminist anthropology or paleoanthropology. Each concentration reflects broad issues bridging subfields in and outside of anthropology.

Completion of a concentration indicates substantial expertise. It is recognized as a department credential and may be added to a student’s curriculum vitae.

FEMINIST ANTHROPOLOGY CONCENTRATION

The feminist anthropology concentration offers broad training in a growing specialization area that enhances and draws from other theoretical approaches in anthropology. Graduate students in anthropology and other disciplines may explore particular aspects of the field by taking feminist anthropology courses.

Course work in the concentration emphasizes feminist perspectives, theories, methods, and analytic techniques in anthropology. It improves students’ academic job prospects in anthropology and other fields, especially women’s studies and gender studies. It also helps students prepare for careers in applied or public anthropology.

Feminist anthropology students take 15 s.h. of course work in the concentration in addition to their regular core requirements. The 15 s.h. should be divided between graduate seminars and elective courses as noted below. Concentration courses may fulfill requirements for graduate electives in anthropology.

Feminist anthropology was offered as a track in the Master of Arts in academic year 2006-07 and earlier. Students who took courses as part of the M.A. track may count them toward the Ph.D. concentration.

The following list of approved courses is subject to change; contact the Department of Anthropology for updates. Students may petition to count other courses in anthropology or other disciplines toward the concentration, if the courses or the students' work in them includes significant relevant content. Petitions are reviewed by the feminist anthropology faculty.

Graduate Seminars

Students complete at least two of these (minimum of 6 s.h.) and may count additional graduate seminar courses as elective credit.

- 113:221 (ANTH:6125) Seminar: Feminist Ethnography 3 s.h.
- 113:222 (ANTH:5120) Reading Transnational Feminist Theory 3 s.h.
- 113:273 (ANTH:6415) Seminar: Language, Gender, and Sexuality 3 s.h.
- 113:290 (ANTH:6310) Anthropology of Science, Technology, and Gender 3 s.h.

Electives

Students must earn a minimum of 9 s.h. in electives and may count extra credit earned in graduate seminars toward the elective requirement.

- 113:102 (ANTH:3106) Ethnography and Auto/Biography 3 s.h.
- 113:105 (ANTH:3300) Mothers and Motherhood 3 s.h.
- 113:107 (ANTH:2108) Gendering India 4 s.h.
- 113:133 (ANTH:4140) The Anthropology of Women’s Health 3 s.h.
- 113:140 (ANTH:3118) Politics of Reproduction 3 s.h.
- 113:141 (ANTH:3140) Feminist Anthropology 3 s.h.
- 113:154 (ANTH:3119) Anthropology of Sexual Minorities 3 s.h.
- 113:182 (ANTH:3141) Women, Health, and Healing 3 s.h.

PALEOANTHROPOLOGY CONCENTRATION

The paleoanthropology concentration offers broad training that combines archaeological and biological anthropology, two traditional subfields of anthropology important in understanding the biocultural factors that have been critical in human evolution. The concentration combines course work in both biological and archaeological anthropology, complementing the specialized training that students from either subfield receive in their own specialization. Paleoanthropology courses emphasize integration of biological and cultural factors in the evolution of hominid species up to and including modern humans. They encompass primate and human evolutionary anatomy, technology and subsistence in Paleolithic archaeology, and modern human hunter-gatherers.

Paleoanthropology students take 15 s.h. of course work in the concentration in addition to their regular core requirements. The 15 s.h. should be divided between graduate seminars and elective courses as noted below.

Students may choose core seminars to fulfill requirements for both the M.A. general course work and the paleoanthropology concentration.

The following list of approved courses is subject to change; contact the Department of Anthropology for updates. Students may petition to count other courses in anthropology or other disciplines toward the concentration, if the courses or the students' work in them includes significant relevant content. Petitions are reviewed by the paleoanthropology faculty.

Graduate Seminars

All of these (9 s.h.):

- 113:268 (ANTH:5201) Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method 3 s.h.
- 213:285 (ANTH:5301) Seminar: Biological Anthropology 3 s.h.
- 213:288 (ANTH:6505) Seminar: Paleoanthropology 3 s.h.

Electives

At least two of these (6 s.h. minimum):

- 113:178 (ANTH:6205) Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology 3 s.h.
- 113:179 (ANTH:3260) Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas 3 s.h.
- 113:258 (ANTH:6230) Seminar: Zooarchaeology 3 s.h.
- 213:151 (ANTH:3325) Human Evolutionary Genetics 3 s.h.
- 213:169 (ANTH:4315) Human Evolutionary Anatomy 3 s.h.
- 213:170 (ANTH:4310) Primate Evolutionary Biology 3 s.h.
- 213:187 (ANTH:4305) Human Evolution 3 s.h.
- 213:190 (ANTH:3305) Human Osteology 3 s.h.

Admission

Applicants for admission to the graduate program in anthropology are considered regardless of their undergraduate major or previous field of training. Students without previous training in anthropology may be expected to perform additional work necessary to achieve competence expected for their degree objective.

Students normally are admitted directly to the Ph.D. program. For students without an M.A. in anthropology, the first two years of the Ph.D. program are devoted to fulfilling the requirements of the M.A. After those requirements are completed, the student’s committee recommends to the faculty whether the student should continue to work toward the Ph.D.

Students with an M.A. in anthropology from another institution may proceed directly into a Ph.D. program organized around their special research interests.

Applicants for admission to the graduate program must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants must submit the following:

- a completed University application form;
- transcripts of all previous undergraduate and graduate work;
- three letters of recommendation from individuals competent to judge the applicant’s potential for graduate training;
- Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores;
- at least one written example of previous work (for example, a term paper).

Applicants whose first or official language is not English and whose previous academic degrees were not earned at an English-language institution must submit scores on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or the International English Language Testing System (IELTS).

Applicants with an M.A. from another university must submit a copy of their master’s thesis; applicants who earned an M.A. without thesis or whose thesis is not yet complete should submit written copies of three papers completed in graduate school.

Financial Support

Financial assistance, usually in the form of teaching and research assistantships, may be offered to doctoral and potential doctoral students in good standing for up to five years. Students making satisfactory and timely progress through the graduate program are in good standing. Eligibility for financial aid is reduced after two years in the M.A. program, after two years in the Ph.D. program, or after one year of postdoctoral fieldwork or research enrollment. The amount and types of aid depend on departmental needs. The department usually awards financial aid to most entering graduate students every year.

Students are notified in writing of a provisional financial award before the semester or summer session for which the award has been granted. Although awards are made before the end of the previous semester, each award is contingent upon satisfactory completion of that semester’s work by the awardee.

Archaeological Field Research

Under the direction of University archaeologists, students acquire skills in data recovery and interpretive techniques. Opportunities are available for students to participate in archaeological field research in France, the Netherlands, Portugal, Sicily, the U.S. Southwest, or at various sites in the U.S. Midwest. Occasional fieldwork in East and Southeast Asia is available to graduate students in the paleoanthropology research program.

Resources, Facilities

The department has access to the Iowa Archaeological Collections through the Office of the State Archaeologist and maintains its own archaeological collections (midwestern prehistoric and historical and comparative faunal material).

The department maintains a documented human osteology teaching collection amassed by the University of Iowa Carver College of Medicine and the Department of Anatomy and Cell Biology, and it holds a substantial documented human osteology research collection originally from Stanford University's medical school that is maintained jointly with the Office of the State Archaeologist.

Individual faculty members maintain field laboratories and conduct research outside the United States, maintaining ties with research institutions in foreign countries, including the Laboratoire d’Ethnologie Préhistorique at Pincevent; the Centre de Recherches Archéologiques at Verberie, in France; the National Museum of Ethnology in Japan; the Institute of Technology Bandung (ITB), in Indonesia; the Gemeente Nijmegen, Bureau Archeologie, Nijmegen, the Netherlands, and the Deutsches Archäologisches Institut of Madrid in Spain.

The department also has well-equipped laboratories for the study of archaeology, biological anthropology, a state-of-the-art multimedia linguistic anthropology laboratory, and a GIS/quantitative analysis laboratory.

The University is a charter member of the Human Relations Area Files (HRAF), an extensively annotated set of source materials on the peoples of the world--their environments, behavioral patterns, social lives, and cultures. Through HRAF and other library resources, anthropology students have access to source materials on more than 400 different cultures.

The University’s exchange programs for Iowa students provide opportunities and some scholarships for study abroad.

Faculty

Members of the anthropology faculty have studied and lived in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, Europe, Mexico and Central America, Pacific Islands, South America, and the United States. Recent field research has been conducted in Belgium, Brazil, Cameroon, China, Czech Republic, Ecuador, Fiji, France, Greece, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Myanmar (formerly Burma), Namibia, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Russia, the Gambia, the United States, and Vietnam.

Current faculty interests include patterns of political and economic development of emerging nations; the trade in Mexican folk art, material culture, human rights; indigenous movements; visual culture and indigenous media; gender and the cultural politics surrounding sobriety in native North America; lesbian and gay families in the United States; the cultural production of scientific knowledge about racial/ethnic infant mortality disparities in U.S. public health; power, memory, and social inequality in ancient Iberia; language and gender; expressive culture and performance in the Brazilian Amazon; language and social justice; colonial linguistics, cultural politics of language, religion, and ethnicity; spiritual tourism in India; community and conflict, ritualization, localized religion, and environmentalism in Japan; ethnic minorities in Japan; diasporas, love, and romantic relations, culture, and totalitarianism in North Korea; paleoanthropological investigations of Pleistocene karst caves in China and northern Vietnam; geological and paleoanthropological field surveys of the Plio-Pleistocene Sangiran Dome, in Java; Neanderthal craniofacial form, function, and evolutionary history; anatomical modernity and the origins of modern humans; historical archaeology of Iowa; primate evolutionary history; faunal and spatial analyses from Paleolithic sites in France, middle Stone Age adaptations in Namibia; regional interaction and migration in late-prehistoric North America; peopling of the Americas; human impacts on the environment in North America.

Courses

For Undergraduates

113:003 (ANTH:1101) Cultural Anthropology 3 s.h.

Comparative study of culture, social organization. GE: Social Sciences; Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 187:008 (IS:1101).

113:010 (ANTH:2100) Anthropology and Contemporary World Problems 3 s.h.

Selected world problems from an anthropological perspective; current dilemmas and those faced by diverse human groups in recent times and distant past. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.
113:012 (ANTH:1201) Introduction to Prehistory 3 s.h.
Data, theories of evolution of human cultures from end of Pleistocene to emergence of complex societies; emphasis on prehistoric cultural information from world areas from which relatively complete sequences are available. GE: Historical Perspectives.

113:013 (ANTH:1301) Human Origins 3 s.h.
Processes, products of human evolution from perspectives of heredity and genetics, evolutionary theory, human biological characteristics, fossil record, artifactual evidence, biocultural behaviors. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

113:014 (ANTH:1401) Language, Culture, and Communication 3 s.h.
Human language in context of animal communication; development, acquisition of language; biological base; language as a linguistic system in cultural social context. GE: Social Sciences.

113:029 (ANTH:1000) First-year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

113:041 (ANTH:1061) Origins of Life in the Universe (Part 2) 4 s.h.
Fundamental questions (How old is the universe? What is the nature of life? How has life evolved on Earth? What are our human origins? Are there other habitable planets in the universe?) that revolve around understanding origins from different perspectives (i.e., astronomy, physics, geoscience, biology, chemistry, anthropology); work with faculty from several departments to investigate these questions; inquiry-based activities to build success in critical thinking, teamwork, and effective written and oral communication; second of a two-part sequence. Prerequisites: 029:040 (ASTR:1060) or 002:050 (BIOL:1060) or 012:045 (GEOG:1060). Recommendations: first-year or sophomore standing. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 029:041 (ASTR:1061), 012:046 (GEOG:1061), 002:051 (BIOL:1061).

113:045 (ANTH:1040) Language Rights 3 s.h.

113:050 (ANTH:1001) Issues in Anthropology 3 s.h.
In-depth exploration of methodological and theoretical issues in contemporary anthropology; emphasis on critical reading of primary texts.

113:060 (ANTH:1305) Forensic Anthropology and CSI 3 s.h.
Role and range of techniques used in forensic anthropology; how analysis of skeletal and nonskeletal remains is used in crime scene investigation; case studies.

113:062 (ANTH:1003) Anthropology of Violence 3 s.h.
Sources and manifestations of violence; violence in varied contexts—war, genocide, colonialism, state violence, terrorism, domestic violence; anthropological perspective considering structural, economic, and symbolic violence.

113:066 (ANTH:1007) The Anthropology of Virtual Worlds 3 s.h.
How virtual reality intertwines with social existence; anthropological exploration of virtual worlds, from checking e-mail to setting up bar crawls on Facebook; forms of virtual identity, how virtual life affects language.

113:067 (ANTH:1008) Anthropology of Immigration 3 s.h.
Anthropological study of movements of people, goods, ideas around the world, drawing upon recent theory and ethnographic examples; topics include citizenship, family/parenting, gender, labor, economy, religion.

113:081 (ANTH:1310) Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century 3 s.h.
Heredity in human families, populations; genetic basis of normal, abnormal traits; chromosome behavior; molecular basis of genetics; sex determination. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab. Same as 002:081 (BIOL:1311).

213:090 (ANTH:2320) Anthropological Perspectives on Human Infectious Disease: Origins and Evolution 3 s.h.
Origin and evolution of important infectious diseases in human history; biological evolution of infectious agents and biocultural responses to emerging infectious diseases; primary focus on viruses and bacteria; selected world problems from an anthropological perspective; current dilemmas and those faced by diverse human groups in recent times and distant past. Same as 152:090 (GHS:2320).
113:091 (ANTH:2164) Culture and Healing for Future Health Professionals

Health professions increasingly focused on how to best provide health care to culturally diverse populations; introduction to key cultural and social influences on sickness and healing; worldwide examples. Same as 152:091 (GHS:2164).

Advanced Courses

General Anthropology

113:103 (ANTH:3001) Introduction to Museum Studies
Overview of museum history, function, philosophy, collection, and curatorial practices; governance and funding issues; exhibition evaluation and audience studies; examples from Museum of Art, Museum of Natural History, Old Capitol Museum, and Medical Museum. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 07S:112 (EDTL:3001), 097:115 (SIED:3001), 024:102 (MUSM:3001).

113:148 (ANTH:3005) Special Topics in Anthropology
Problems, concepts involved in comparing and contrasting behavior and ideas of different cultures.

113:149 (ANTH:3010) Special Topics in Anthropology
Problems, concepts involved in comparing and contrasting behavior and ideas of different cultures.

113:190 (ANTH:3221) Beyond the Map: Introduction to Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in Anthropology
Software environment for managing, visualizing, and analyzing spatial relationships in anthropology; mapmaking tool; spatial organization of material culture.

113:209 (ANTH:7109) Research Design and Proposal Writing
Anthropological research design; preparation of proposals for fieldwork or laboratory analysis.

113:210 (ANTH:5110) Anthropological Data Analysis
Quantitative procedures for analyzing field data, library materials; elementary statistics, introduction to computers.

113:235 (ANTH:5001) Graduate Teaching Pro-Seminar
Graduate student teaching skills: developing course guidelines, leading discussion, grading, review sessions, dealing with problem students and complaints; development of syllabi and teaching portfolios; mentoring of less-experienced teaching assistants.

113:382 (ANTH:7501) Dissertation Writing Seminar

Organization of dissertation, setting and meeting deadlines, writing a chapter, and workshop reading drafts; seminar group work and consultation with advisors; completion and revision of at least one dissertation chapter; for anthropology graduate students who are beginning, or about to begin, their dissertation writing process. Requirements: anthropology graduate student who passed comprehensive exams (prospectus and essays).

Area Studies

Several archaeology courses may be used to fulfill the undergraduate area studies requirement; see "Archaeology" below.

113:107 (ANTH:2108) Gendering India
Aspects of Indian culture, including nation, family, sexuality, work, and religion, through the lens of gender; Hindu India, differences in region, caste, and class. Same as 131:107 (GWSS:2108).

113:110 (ANTH:2165) Native Peoples of North America

113:118 (ANTH:3108) North Korea and Totalitarianism
North Korea viewed as a human society, rather than a global security threat, through examination of the nation's culture and politics.

113:119 (ANTH:3111) Health in Mexico
Use of anthropological perspectives to examine disease, healing systems, and ideas about health and the body in Mexico and its diaspora; relationships between structural conditions and historical and political transformations; ideas about gender and race; chronic and acute disease in Mexico; conquest and disease; racialized bodies; sexual health; biomedicine; shamanism; immigration and health; pollution and narcoviolence; readings in English. Same as 152:119 (GHS:3040).

113:125 (ANTH:2175) Japanese Society and Culture
Cultural anthropology of Japan, including historical tradition, religious ethos, social organization, human ecology, educational and political institutions; emphasis on how these aspects relate to and influence one another. GE: Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 39J:125 (JPNS:2175).

113:127 (ANTH:3121) South Asian Sexual Cultures
How sexuality is embedded in kinship, economics, nation, and religion in South Asia, with focus on India; chastity, celibacy, romance, arranged marriage, nonnormative sexualities associated with courtesans and hijras. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100) or 131:010 (GWSS:1001) or 131:010 (GHS:1001) or 131:055 (GHS:1002). Same as 131:127 (GWSS:3121).

113:128 (ANTH:3142) American Cultures
How anthropology has understood the diversity of non-indigenous cultures in the United States; history of anthropological engagement with the United States; racial/ethnic formations, immigration, class variations, health, sexuality, and gender. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101).
113:111 (ANTH:2150) Transnational Feminism 3 s.h.
Introduction to feminist perspectives from U.S. and non-U.S. contexts; how geopolitics shapes understanding of familiar feminist issues (e.g., reproduction, cultural practices, sexualities, poverty); emphasis on global south regions. Same as 131:149 (GWSS:2150).

113:116 (ANTH:2136) Urban Anthropology 3 s.h.
Cross-cultural approach to urban anthropology; urbanizing processes, migration and adaptation, aspects of class and ethnicity in urban settings, urban economic relations. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

113:117 (ANTH:3131) Anthropology and Human Rights 3 s.h.
Complex history and evolving relationship of anthropology and international human rights discourses; concept deployment of culture and rights in human rights ideas, practice, discourse, and as a form of global law. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or 113:013 (ANTH:1301) or 113:014 (ANTH:1401).

113:121 (ANTH:3110) Health of Indigenous Peoples 3 s.h.
Health problems and services for indigenous populations worldwide, from perspective of Fourth World postcolonial politics. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101). Same as 149:121 (AINS:3110), 152:121 (GHS:3110).

113:133 (ANTH:4140) The Anthropology of Women's Health 3 s.h.
How female gender intersects with culture, environment, and political economy to shape health and illness; reproductive health, violence, drug use, cancer; readings in anthropology, public health. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101). Same as 172:133 (CBH:5140), 131:133 (GWSS:4140).

113:135 (ANTH:3109) Psychological Anthropology 3 s.h.
Cultural diversity in constructions of self, mind, and emotion; religious experience, altered states of consciousness, behavioral disorders. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101).

113:136 (ANTH:3117) Using Ethnographic Methods 3 s.h.
Ethnography, holistic, qualitative research in cultural context for anthropological and related research and careers involving interpersonal interaction; multiple ethnographic methods and their rationales. Recommendations: desire to interact with others, and prior course work in fields that employ ethnographic or qualitative research (social sciences, social work, nursing, public health).

113:137 (ANTH:2101) The Anthropology of Love 3 s.h.
The culturally diverse concept and practice of love as seen through cross-cultural and interdisciplinary texts on romantic and other forms of love.

113:139 (ANTH:4130) Religion and Environmental Ethics 3 s.h.
How humans conceptualize the biophysical environment through religious beliefs and practices; how images of the environment influence people's activities, how they are used by grassroots environmental movements. Requirements: junior or senior standing. Same as 032:130 (RELS:4730).
113:140 (ANTH:3118) Politics of Reproduction 3 s.h.
Debates over women’s reproductive experience, including its medicalization. Same as 131:144 (GWSS:3118).

113:141 (ANTH:3140) Feminist Anthropology 3 s.h.
Development and evolution of feminist critiques in cultural anthropology; readings from early studies by women ethnographers, classic writings that sought to give women cross-cultural visibility, recent experimental texts. Same as 131:141 (GWSS:3140).

113:142 (ANTH:3114) Anthropology of Religion 2-3 s.h.
Approaches; religious roles; shamanism, witchcraft, curing; mythology; place of religion in social and cultural change. Same as 032:165 (RELS:3714).

113:143 (ANTH:3103) Environment and Culture 3 s.h.
Individual and group responses to scarcities of natural resources such as land, water, food. Requirements: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100) or graduate standing.

113:145 (ANTH:3113) Religion and Healing 3 s.h.

113:146 (ANTH:3127) Anthropology of Death 3 s.h.
How anthropologists and archaeologists study death, dying, mortuary rituals, and notions of the afterlife in contemporary North America and in different places and times. Requirements: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or graduate standing.

113:147 (ANTH:2181) The Anthropology of Aging 3 s.h.
Comparative anthropological perspective on aging; ethnographies from diverse contexts used to examine intersections of kinship, religion, health, and medicine in later life. Same as 153:181 (ASP:2181), 152:147 (GHS:2181).

113:151 (ANTH:3151) The Anthropology of the Beginnings and Ends of Life 3 s.h.
Examination of diverse understandings of birth and death, drawing on anthropological analysis of personhood, kinship, ritual, and medicine; how social inequality and new technologies shape human experience at life’s margins. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Same as 153:151 (ASP:3151), 152:156 (GHS:3151).

113:152 (ANTH:3152) Anthropology of Caregiving and Health 3 s.h.
Diverse understandings and practices of care around the world; focus on relationships between caregiving practices and health across the life course. Same as 153:152 (ASP:3152).

113:154 (ANTH:3119) Anthropology of Sexual Minorities 3 s.h.
Ethnographic studies of sexual minorities and anthropological approaches to lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgendered persons and communities; behavior, identity, performativity, kinship, globalization, the HIV/AIDS pandemic. Requirements: junior, senior, or graduate standing. Same as 131:154 (GWSS:3119).

113:155 (ANTH:3135) Key Debates in Sociocultural Anthropology 3 s.h.
Historical overview of sociocultural anthropological theories, exploration of key moments of critical reflections, and e-assessment of discipline; highly recommended for anthropology majors with sociocultural emphasis. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Recommendations: anthropology major.

113:156 (ANTH:3116) Fictionalized Ethnography in Literature and Film 3 s.h.
Evaluation of fictional narratives as sources of ethnographic information, instructive and revealing depictions of other societies and cultures; culturally specific themes through storylines, creative works as cultural artifacts in presentations of differing perspectives and concerns from the authors’ personal experiences.

113:182 (ANTH:3141) Women, Health, and Healing 3 s.h.
Women’s experience as recipients and providers of health care; intersection of race, class, cultural variation, and women’s health; reproductive and nonreproductive health concerns. Same as 131:143 (GWSS:3141).

113:184 (ANTH:5415) Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.
Anthropological contributions to and critiques of the international health enterprise; case studies illustrating anthropology and international health’s intersection, and their differences. Offered spring semesters. Same as 172:131 (CBH:5415), 152:184 (GHS:5415).

113:185 (ANTH:3102) Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.
Major theoretical, methodological approaches; international health and development; biomedicine as a cultural system; ethnomedicine; anthropology and AIDS, human reproduction, epidemiology, ethnopsychiatry. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Same as 152:185 (GHS:3102), 172:173 (CBH:5125).

113:191 (ANTH:3134) Anthropology of Play 3 s.h.
Fundamental logic and variation of what is considered human play in diverse cultures.

113:202 (ANTH:6115) Ethnographic Field Methods 3 s.h.
Basic data-gathering techniques for field research in sociocultural anthropology. Same as 172:202 (CBH:6115).

113:221 (ANTH:6125) Seminar: Feminist Ethnography 3 s.h.
Feminist critiques of traditional ethnographies; informed by contemporary feminisms. Same as 131:245 (GWSS:6125).

113:222 (ANTH:5120) Reading Transnational Feminist Theory 3 s.h.
Issues in transnational feminist scholarship, including colonialism, globalization, the nation-state, religion, cultural traditions, and human rights, in global and U.S. domestic contexts; interdisciplinary readings with focus on anthropology, other social sciences. Same as 131:222 (GWSS:5120).

113:240 (ANTH:5101) Seminar Sociocultural Anthropology 3 s.h.

Social institutions in the world’s societies; problems in theory, method, interpretation. Requirements: anthropology graduate standing.

113:247 (ANTH:6635) Crossing Borders Seminar 2-3 s.h.

113:248 (ANTH:6632) Crossing Borders Proseminar 3 s.h.

113:250 (ANTH:6107) Seminar: Ritual and Performance 3 s.h.
Approaches to comparative study of ritual in religious and secular contexts.

113:251 (ANTH:6117) Seminar: Resistance in Theory and Practice 3 s.h.
Various forms of political resistance, some bold and dramatic (peasant rebellions), others more subtle and mundane (dissimulation, false compliance, pilfering); some resistance is symbolic (milennarian movements, rituals of conflict, status reversal); learning to recognize and attend to more subtle forms.

113:274 (ANTH:6141) Medical Anthropology and Social Theory 3 s.h.
How medical anthropology has both responded and contributed to key theoretical developments in recent decades, such as discourse/narrative analysis, practice theory, feminist theory, postcolonial theory, science and technology studies.

113:290 (ANTH:6310) Anthropology of Science, Technology, and Gender 3 s.h.
Science and technology done in particular social and structural contexts; theoretical approaches for understanding cultures of science and social uses of technology; focus on gender-related aspects of real world cases. Recommendations: graduate standing in any discipline with interest in understanding cultural context of scientific practice. Same as 131:290 (GWSS:6310).

Archaeology 3 s.h.
The following archaeology courses may be used to fulfill the area studies requirement.

113:194 (ANTH:3277) Roman Archaeology 3 s.h.
113:196 (ANTH:3275) The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt 3 s.h.

A course may be used to fulfill either the archaeology or the area studies requirement, but not both (see "Common Requirements" under "Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science” above).

Intricate connections between dogs and our social, economic, political, and spiritual lives; human relationships with dogs that extend back at least 16,000 years; process of dog domestication; roles dogs play in human ideology and past economies; modern interactions with dogs.

113:113 (ANTH:2261) Human Impacts on the Environment 3 s.h.
Long-term patterns of human-environment interactions surveyed through archaeological case studies; varied scales of human impacts, including animal extinction, habitat destruction, agricultural practices, urban growth, state-level societies. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

113:124 (ANTH:3237) Politics of the Archaeological Past 3 s.h.
How control over management of material remains of the ancient past, and representations of that past, intersect with the identity of diverse groups, including archaeologists, indigenous peoples, national governments, collectors, ethnic minorities and majorities, museum curators; struggles for control of the archaeological past at different scales (artifacts, skeletal remains, sites, imagery, narratives) and in different regions of the world. Same as 024:124 (MUSM:3237).

113:126 (ANTH:3282) Animals, Culture, and Food 3 s.h.
The varied roles animals have played in human society through time; impact of humans on animal populations, ethical aspects of animals’ roles in modern societies.

113:130 (ANTH:3238) Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula 3 s.h.
Introduction to archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula, from earliest human occupation through period of Romanization.

113:138 (ANTH:3236) Archaeological Approaches to Social Change 3 s.h.
How archaeologists identify, explain, and interpret social change in the material record of the ancient past; archaeological evidence and explanations—drawn from case studies worldwide and theoretical perspectives—for population growth, migration, colonization, centralization, stratification, conflict, regionalism, devolution, specialization, and standardization. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201).

113:150 (ANTH:3239) Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe 3 s.h.
Archaeology of European societies between the Mesolithic and Iron Age; how ideas about Europe's prehistoric past have been used for political purposes. Requirements: 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or graduate standing.

113:157 (ANTH:2216) Foodways and Cuisine in the Past 3 s.h.
Anthropological and archaeological perspective on cuisine; present-day links between food and culture; past cuisines viewed through written documents and archaeological data; histories of different foods.

113:158 (ANTH:3207) Animal Bones in Archaeology 3 s.h.
Use of faunal material in interpretation of archaeological remains, including skeletal anatomy, identification, taphonomy, determination of age and sex, seasonality, quantification, sampling, breakage and cutmarks, interpretations; laboratory sessions. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201).

113:159 (ANTH:3258) Southwestern Archaeology 3 s.h.
Anthropological overview of prehistoric cultures of the American Southwest; emphasis on understanding archaeological arguments concerning major processes in the past. Same as 149:159 (AINS:3258).

113:160 (ANTH:3255) Introduction to Archaeological Ceramics 3 s.h.
Basic analytical techniques for archaeological ceramics, applied primarily to ceramics from midwestern and western North America; raw materials, manufacture, decoration and style, craft specialization, use, and discard. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201).

113:161 (ANTH:3205) Prehistoric People of the Ice Age 3 s.h.
Hominid occupation of Old World during Pleistocene; hominin fossils, artifacts, settlement patterns, climatic reconstruction, evolutionary processes; survey and evaluation. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201) and 113:168 (ANTH:2205).

113:162 (ANTH:2290) Practicum in Archaeology arr.
Intensive, hands-on examination of a wide range of materials recently recovered from archaeological sites; pottery, lithics (stone tools and related items), plant remains, animal bones; for students with strong archaeological interests or archaeological field experience.

113:163 (ANTH:2220) Archaeology of Mesoamerica 3 s.h.
Archaeological data related to the evolution of civilization in Mesoamerica; sequence from hunter-gatherers to A.D. 1519; emphasis on Central Mexico, Maya area, Oaxaca.

113:164 (ANTH:4205) Comparative Prehistory 3 s.h.
Cultural evolution in Old World, New World; emphasis on developments from pre-agricultural societies to appearance of urban civilizations; focus on Mesoamerica, Central Andes, Near East, Egypt, Indus Valley, China. Requirements: 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or anthropology graduate standing.

113:167 (ANTH:3257) North American Archaeology 3 s.h.
Prehistoric cultural development north of Mexico from initial occupation to European contact and conquest; emphasis on dynamics of culture change. Same as 149:167 (AINS:3257).

113:168 (ANTH:2205) Archaeological Methods 3 s.h.
Current theoretical approaches, methods used to investigate the past; site formation processes, taphonomy, sampling and research design, typology and seriation, subsistence-settlement reconstruction, cultural evolution. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201).

113:169 (ANTH:3241) Lithic Analysis in Archaeology 3 s.h.
Archaeological issues examined and addressed with lithic data; use of lithic data to study the past, specific techniques applied. Requirements: 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or graduate standing.

113:170 (ANTH:3240) Cultural Resources Management Archaeology: Practice and Practicalities 3 s.h.
Cultural Resources Management (CRM) archaeology as the largest sector of archaeological research in the United States in terms of employment, funding, and field- and lab-related activity; investigate the past, navigate the complexities of compliance requirements from federal, state, and local regulations concerning historic preservation; introduction to the legal, procedural, and practical foundations of CRM archaeology; prepare students for employment by acquisition of skills from project planning through dissemination of results. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201). Recommendations: completion of other anthropology, geography, history, or Native American studies courses.

113:173 (ANTH:3256) Household Archaeology and Anthropology 3 s.h.
Structure and activities of households today and in the past; what households tell us about the larger culture; how intangible aspects of households are studied through material remains. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100) or 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or 113:013 (ANTH:1301) or 113:014 (ANTH:1401).

113:174 (ANTH:3206) Seminar: Taphonomy 3 s.h.
Taphonomy (study of fossil record in paleontology and archaeology); processes for accumulation, modification, and deposition of remains in prehistory; instruction by archaeologist and paleontologist. Requirements: graduate standing. Same as 012:174 (GEOS:3206).

113:178 (ANTH:6205) Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology 3 s.h.
Variability in adaptations of hunter-gatherers on a global scale; emphasis on subsistence, mobility, social organization; archaeological record of prehistoric hunter-gatherers interpreted through study of modern societies. Requirements: graduate standing.

113:179 (ANTH:3260) Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas 3 s.h.
Major themes in earliest human settlement of the Americas, including human mobility, subsistence, technology, human impacts on the environment.

113:181 (ANTH:3265) Archaeology of the Great Plains 3 s.h.
Contrasting lifeways, diets, and technologies that humans used to survive on North America’s Great Plains, from Ice Age hunter-gatherers to Euroamerican homesteaders.
113:187 (ANTH:3283) Cultures in Collision 3 s.h.
Survey of archaeological evidence for differences in human interactions between two or more cultural groups; issues such as ethnicity, war, economy, repression, multiethnic communities.

113:188 (ANTH:3242) Archaeology of the Middle East—Prehistory and Early History 3 s.h.
Overview of prehistoric and early historic archaeology of the Middle East; questions that underpin archaeological narrative for the region from its initial peopling through city-states and imperial formations. Recommendations: introduction to archaeology.

113:189 (ANTH:4620) Approaches to Geoarchaeology 3 s.h.
Geoarchaeology as multidisciplinary contextual framework for human paleoecology; natural processes that create the archaeological record, approaches to reconstructing landscapes of the past as a context for archaeological deposits; weekend field trip. Prerequisites: 012:136 (GEOS:3360) or 012:172 (GEOS:4720) or 113:161 (ANTH:3205) or 113:164 (ANTH:4205). Same as 012:185 (GEOS:4620).

113:192 (ANTH:3276) Greek Archaeology and Ethnohistory 3 s.h.
Archaeology and ethnology of the Greek world, from end of Bronze Age to late Roman Empire; sociocultural processes that influence development and persistence of Greek civilization. Same as 20E:118 (CLSA:3235).

113:193 (ANTH:3290) Special Topics in Archaeology 3 s.h.

113:194 (ANTH:3277) Roman Archaeology 3 s.h.
Archaeology and ethnology of Roman civilization from Iron Age eighth-century occupation of the Palatine Hill to the end of the Roman empire in the West, A.D. 476. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201) or 113:013 (ANTH:1301). Same as 20E:119 (CLSA:3240).

113:196 (ANTH:3275) The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt 3 s.h.
Introduction to the archaeology of ancient Egypt from predynastic times to Roman Egypt, including monumental architecture; patterns of everyday life; social, economic, and demographic considerations; history of archaeology in Egypt. Prerequisites: 113:012 (ANTH:1201). Same as 20E:196 (CLSA:3596).

113:197 (ANTH:3235) The Stuff of Lives: Archaeology of the Material World 3 s.h.
Ways that archaeologists and anthropologists have approached their studies of the material world and the relationship between material culture and economics, social structure, and symbolism. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:012 (ANTH:1201).

113:199 (ANTH:3295) Field Research in Archaeology arr.
Beginning skills in site surveying and excavation, lab work, record keeping at nearby prehistoric sites.

113:258 (ANTH:6230) Seminar: Zooarchaeology 3 s.h.
Interpretation of faunal material in archaeology; intensive survey of classic and recent literature on taphonomy, skeletal anatomy, population parameters, seasonality, quantification and sampling, butchering patterns, ethnoarchaeology, social and economic inferences. Prerequisites: 113:158 (ANTH:3207).

113:268 (ANTH:5201) Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method 3 s.h.

Biological Anthropology

213:115 (ANTH:3306) The Neanderthal Enigma 3 s.h.
Survey of Neanderthals as the most widely known, yet enigmatic, fossil human lineage; history of discoveries; current interpretations of Neanderthal’s origins, anatomy and behavior, relationship to today’s people, extinction. Prerequisites: 113:013 (ANTH:1301).

213:116 (ANTH:3307) Modern Human Origins 3 s.h.
Current data and theories regarding the emergence of Homo sapiens; how human anatomical modernity is defined and recognized in the fossil record; competing models for modern humans’ emergence—multiregional evolution, out of Africa, the assimilation model; interpretation of recent developments and discoveries in the human fossil record; contemporary contributions from genetics, developmental biology, evolutionary ecology, paleodemography.

213:151 (ANTH:3325) Human Evolutionary Genetics 3 s.h.
Application of molecular methods and theory to biological anthropology; how recent advances in genetics have provided insight into the evolution of human and nonhuman primates. Prerequisites: 113:013 (ANTH:1301).

213:153 (ANTH:3326) Infectious Disease and Human Evolution 3 s.h.
Infectious disease as a central and important role in evolution of modern humans; impact of important infectious diseases on human history through primary literature. Recommendations: evolutionary theory background or interest.

213:165 (ANTH:3308) Human Variation 3 s.h.
Range and patterning of biological diversity in contemporary human populations; past and present attempts to organize and explain human genetic, morphological variation in light of recent data, theory.

213:169 (ANTH:4315) Human Evolutionary Anatomy 3 s.h.
Interpretation of skeletal remains as the basis for reconstructing forms, adaptations, lifestyles of prehistoric humans; body size, musculature, stance, activity patterns, brain size, and sexual dimorphism. Prerequisites: 213:190 (ANTH:3305).

213:170 (ANTH:4310) Primate Evolutionary Biology 3 s.h.
Origin and diversification of the primate order through fossil evidence, morphology, systematics, and biomolecular studies emphasizing phylogenetic interpretations, paleobiological and paleoecological reconstructions.
213:187 (ANTH:4305) Human Evolution 3 s.h.
From earliest fossil record of apes to origin and diversification of hominid family and appearance of modern Homo sapiens; evidence from paleontology, comparative anatomy, biomolecular studies, archaeology considered from evolutionary perspective.

213:188 (ANTH:3310) Primate Behavior and Ecology 3 s.h.
Systematics, anatomy, behavior, and ecology of the living species of primates; emphasis on adaptations and interactions of free-ranging primates. Requirements: 113:013 (ANTH:1301) or high school biology course.

213:190 (ANTH:3305) Human Osteology 3 s.h.
The human skeletal system; normal and pathologic variation; skeletal measurement and analysis with application to paleoanthropology, forensic, and archaeological investigations. Prerequisites: 113:013 (ANTH:1301).

Specimen preparation, cataloging, moulding and casting, photography, computer analyses, library research.

213:285 (ANTH:5301) Seminar: Biological Anthropology 3 s.h.
Physical anthropology, including heredity and genetics, evolutionary theory, human biological characteristics, primate and human fossil record, primate behavior and ecology, human adaptations. Requirements: graduate standing in anthropology or biology or related department.

213:288 (ANTH:6505) Seminar: Paleoanthropology 3 s.h.
Current understandings of biocultural processes and events underlying Pleistocene human evolution; cross-disciplinary approach combining human paleontology and Paleolithic archaeology. Requirements: graduate standing or undergraduate honors standing or advanced undergraduate standing.

Linguistic Anthropology

113:171 (ANTH:3415) Multi-Media Ethnography 3 s.h.
Skills and tools for using multimedia technologies in ethnographic research and presentations; students conduct research projects using audio and video recording equipment and develop media-based presentations; ethnographic emphasis on contextually situated social interaction. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100).

113:244 (ANTH:6410) Seminar: Semiotics 3 s.h.
Piercian semiotic and Saussurean semiological conceptual frameworks; focus on anthropological, linguistic issues.

113:271 (ANTH:5401) Seminar: Linguistic Anthropology 3 s.h.
Fundamental concepts and methods employed in the anthropological study of language; principal areas of current research.

113:273 (ANTH:6415) Seminar: Language, Gender, and Sexuality 3 s.h.
Role of language and discourse in cultural constructions of gender identities and relations, including domination and subordination; theoretical perspective and methodological approaches that have shaped thought on the language/gender nexus. Same as 131:273 (GWSS:6415), 103:221 (LING:6415).

Individual Reading and Research

113:176 (ANTH:4996) Honors Research 2-4 s.h.
Project chosen in consultation with honors advisor.

113:183 (ANTH:3015) Independent Study arr.

113:186 (ANTH:4995) Honors Research Seminar 2-4 s.h.

Undergraduate majors: art (B.A., B.F.A.); art history (B.A.)

Undergraduate minors: art; art history

Graduate degrees: M.A. in art; M.F.A. in art; M.A. in art history; Ph.D. in art history

Web site: http://www.art.uiowa.edu/

The School of Art and Art History provides a creative, multidisciplinary environment for students of the studio arts and the history of art. Established in 1936, the school is firmly grounded in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. It encourages interaction among its diverse faculty as well as collaboration with related disciplines across campus.

Iowa’s art and art history graduates enjoy success as practicing professional artists, professors of art history, teachers, museum directors and curators, theater designers, commercial designers, and art administrators.

The University of Iowa is restoring and replacing School of Art and Art History facilities that were damaged or destroyed by Iowa River flooding during summer 2008. Art Building West has reopened and once again houses the school’s main office. Planning is under way to replace flood-damaged buildings that could not be restored. Visit the School of Art and Art History web site and ISIS for information about studio, office, and classroom sites.

Studio Art

The studio art program is based on the idea that the philosophical issues of society that are questioned and interpreted by artists are the basis for an artist’s work. The diversity of concept and style among School of Art and Art History faculty members encourages students to seek and work toward a keen understanding of themselves as individuals capable of making their own personal statements as part of the philosophical continuum in art’s history.

Studying the broad contexts in which art is made, understood, and used by society prepares studio art students to continue work in an academic setting as well as in museums, galleries, and a multiplicity of other venues. Graduate students are especially encouraged to examine the contexts of visual and verbal issues central to their own work and that of their contemporaries.

Undergraduate and graduate students select their major and minor studio art disciplines from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

Art History

Art history, a broad intellectual discipline, is central to the humanities. Diverse approaches characterize the school’s art history faculty, who have interdisciplinary ties within and beyond the University. Their primary mission is to help students develop skills for exploring issues and problems central to the history of art as a whole as well as to its specialized areas. Because the major in art history stresses the development of critical visual thinking and analytical writing, it prepares students for graduate work in art history and for other professional fields as well.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in art (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts)
- Major in art history (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in art
- Minor in art history

Students interested in teaching art in elementary and/or secondary schools may apply to the Art Education Program; see "B.A. and B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure" below.

Students majoring in art begin their study as Bachelor of Arts students and may request admission to the B.F.A. program in a process called “clearance,” usually during their third year; see "Bachelor of Arts: Art" and "Bachelor of Fine Arts: Art” below.

Bachelor of Arts: Art

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in art requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 39 s.h. of work for the major. The program provides a foundation in art history as well as an understanding of the formal traditions and contemporary practices in studio art. Students take courses in the school’s studio art programs, including ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

Bachelor of Arts students majoring in art may count a maximum of 50 s.h. earned in art and art history courses toward the degree; they must earn at least 70 s.h. of credit... in courses outside the School of Art and Art History in order to graduate.

B.A. students with a double major in the school (e.g., a major in art and a major in art history) or a major and a minor in the school (e.g., a major in art and a minor in art history) may count a maximum of 64 s.h. of credit in art and art history courses toward the degree; they must earn at least 56 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History in order to graduate.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students majoring in art begin their study in the Bachelor of Arts program. Those interested in pursuing concentrated work in a specific studio art program may apply for admission to the Bachelor of Fine Arts program through a process called “clearance,” in which the faculty evaluates the student’s readiness for B.F.A. study. Clearance usually takes place during the third year, but it may be conducted earlier or later, depending on the student’s readiness.

The major in art for the Bachelor of Arts requires the following course work. Not all courses are offered every semester, including required courses. When planning their course work, students should consult their advisors and ISIS to determine when specific courses will be offered.

ART HISTORY

Two of these:

- 01H:002 (ARTH:1040) Arts of Africa 3 s.h.
- 01H:005 (ARTH:1050) From Cave Paintings to Cathedrals: Survey of Western Art I 3 s.h.
- 01H:006 (ARTH:1060) From Mona Lisa to Modernism: Survey of Western Art II 3 s.h.
- 01H:016 (ARTH:1070) Asian Art and Culture 3 s.h.

FOUNDATIONAL STUDIO ART

Both of these, taken before the 3-D and 2-D courses listed below them:

- 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing 3 s.h.
- 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals (prerequisite for all studio courses) 3 s.h.

STUDIO ART 3-D COURSES

Two of these:

- 01C:060 (CERM:2010) Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.
- 01G:084 (MTLS:2910) Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts 3 s.h.
- 01J:090 (INTM:2710) Intermedia I 3 s.h.
- 01N:015 (SCLP:2810) Undergraduate Sculpture I 3 s.h.
- 01T:021 (TDSN:2210) Problems in 3-D Design I: Form and Structure 3 s.h.

STUDIO ART 2-D COURSES

Two of these (students interested in entering the B.F.A. program with painting as their studio art discipline should choose 01K:009 (PNTG:2410) as one of their two courses):

- 01D:090 (DSGN:2110) Graphic Design I 3 s.h.
- 01F:007 (DRAW:2310) Life Drawing I 3 s.h.
- 01K:009 (PNTG:2410) Painting I 3 s.h.

REQUIRED ELECTIVES

Art and art history electives must bring the total credit in art history, studio art, and art education to a minimum of 39 s.h.

Electives chosen from School of Art and Art History courses 9 s.h.

Transfer Students

Transfer students should contact the undergraduate academic advisors for information regarding transfer portfolio review and specific course work that will satisfy the requirements of the art major for the Bachelor of Arts.

Study Abroad

Students who wish to study abroad must meet with the undergraduate advisor before they depart in order to confirm approval of the courses they plan to take.

Students who take studio art courses abroad must bring their artwork back to campus and present it in a portfolio review, which determines whether the work will satisfy a requirement for their major; if it is, the student is credited with fulfilling the requirement once he or she completes the course with a passing grade.

Bachelor of Fine Arts: Art

The Bachelor of Fine Arts with a major in art requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 62 s.h. of work for the major. The program provides a foundation in art history as well as an understanding of the formal traditions and contemporary practices in studio art. It also includes a concentration in studio art.

B.F.A. students select one studio art discipline, choosing from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture. They may not select bookbinding, calligraphy, or papermaking as their studio art discipline. Although students may choose only one B.F.A. discipline, they gain exposure to other studio areas through the B.F.A. program of study.

Bachelor of Fine Arts students majoring in art may count a maximum of 62 s.h. earned in art and art history courses toward the degree; they must earn at least 58 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History in order to graduate.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students majoring in art begin their study in the Bachelor of Arts program. They may apply to the Bachelor of Fine Arts program after consulting with the faculty in the studio discipline of their choice. Students are admitted to the B.F.A. program through a process called “clearance,” which is conducted once each semester; they must be admitted to the B.F.A program at least one semester before they graduate. Students who wish to enter the B.F.A. program should consult the faculty in their major studio art discipline for information about the required portfolio review.

B.F.A. students complete all requirements for the B.A. major in art plus additional studio work. They also must present a show of their work before they graduate.

The art major for the Bachelor of Fine Arts requires the following work.

REQUIRED COURSES FOR THE BACHELOR OF ARTS

All course work required for the B.A. with a major in art; see "Bachelor of Arts: Art" above

ADDITIONAL STUDIO ART FOR B.F.A. STUDENTS

All of these:

Three advanced courses in the student’s studio art discipline
One introductory course and one advanced course in a second studio art discipline
One introductory course and one advanced course in a third studio art discipline

EXHIBIT

B.F.A. students must present a show of their work before they graduate.

Transfer Students

Transfer students should contact the undergraduate academic advisors for information regarding transfer portfolio review and specific course work that will satisfy the requirements of the art major for the Bachelor of Arts.

Study Abroad

Students who wish to study abroad must meet with the undergraduate advisor before they depart in order to confirm approval of the courses they plan to take.

Students who take studio art courses abroad must bring their artwork back to campus and present it in a portfolio review, which determines whether the work will satisfy a requirement for their major; the requirement is waived if the study abroad course was taught by a School of Art and Art History faculty member who gave the student a grade.

Students who plan to take art history courses abroad must present the course syllabus to their advisors well in advance of their departure. The head of the art history program determines whether the study abroad course was taught by a School of Art and Art History faculty member who gave the student a grade.

Bachelor of Arts: Art History

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in art history requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 57 s.h. of work for the major (45 s.h. in art and art history and 12 s.h. in humanities disciplines).

Art history engages in problems of historical analysis and in interpretation of culture. The program provides students with a strong liberal arts background and prepares them for competitive placement in graduate schools across the country. As students progress through the major, they become familiar with historical relationships between art objects and society, learn techniques of formal analysis, study patterns of patronage, and absorb methods for interpreting the meaning of paintings, sculptures, and architecture. In the course of their studies, art history majors develop their research abilities and writing skills.

Bachelor of Arts students majoring in art history may count a maximum of 50 s.h. earned in art and art history courses toward the degree; they must earn at least 70 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History in order to graduate.

B.A. students with a double major in the school (e.g., a major in art history and a major in art) or a major and a minor in the school (e.g., a major in art history and a minor in art) may count a maximum of 64 s.h. of credit in art and art history courses toward the degree; they must earn at least 56 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History in order to graduate.

All students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in art history requires the following course work.

ART HISTORY

All of these, taken before enrollment in courses numbered 099 (2975) and above:

- 01H:005 (ARTH:1050) From Cave Paintings to Cathedrals: Survey of Western Art I 3 s.h.
- 01H:006 (ARTH:1060) From Mona Lisa to Modernism: Survey of Western Art II 3 s.h.
- 01H:007 (ARTH:1080) Writing About the Visual Arts 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 01H:002 (ARTH:1040) Arts of Africa 3 s.h.
- 01H:016 (ARTH:1070) Asian Art and Culture 3 s.h.

All of these:

- 01H:099 (ARTH:2975) Undergraduate Seminar in the History of Art (taken fall of junior or senior year) 3 s.h.

Three courses chosen from those numbered 01H:020 (ARTH:2130) through 01H:090 (ARTH:2040), excluding 01H:029 (ARTH:1000) 9 s.h.

Five upper-level courses chosen from those numbered 01H:100 (ARTH:3000) through 01H:199 (ARTH:3990) 15 s.h.

STUDIO ART

This course:

- 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 01C:060 (CERM:2010) Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.
- 01F:007 (DRAW:2310) Life Drawing I 3 s.h.
- 01G:084 (MTLS:2910) Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts 3 s.h.
- 01K:009 (PNTG:2410) Painting I 3 s.h.
- 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) Introduction to Printmaking 3 s.h.
- 01N:015 (SCLP:2810) Undergraduate Sculpture I 3 s.h.

COURSES IN OTHER DISCIPLINES

Four or more courses chosen from at least three disciplines outside art and art history (e.g., anthropology, classics, history, literature, philosophy, political science, religious studies, sociology) 12 s.h.
Course selections must be approved by an undergraduate advisor.

Transfer Students
Transfer students planning to major in art history should meet with the undergraduate advisor to discuss the requirements they may fulfill with transfer courses. Art history transfer courses must be reviewed by the art history division head to determine the student’s placement in or exemption from required art history courses.

Study Abroad
Students who wish to study abroad must meet with the undergraduate advisor before they depart in order to confirm approval of the courses they plan to take.

Students who plan to take art history courses abroad must present the course syllabus to their advisors well in advance of their departure. The head of the art history program determines whether the study abroad course is equivalent to a course required for the major; if it is, the student is credited with fulfilling the requirement once he or she completes the course with a passing grade.

Students who take studio art courses abroad must bring their artwork back to campus and present it in a portfolio review, which determines whether the work will satisfy a requirement for their major; the requirement is waived if the study abroad course was taught by a School of Art and Art History faculty member who gave the student a grade for the course.

B.A. and B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure
Art and art history majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

The Art Education Program requires a broad foundation in formation traditions of studio art and substantive knowledge in art history as well as teacher certification course work. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A.: Art

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least eight courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.F.A.: Art
Admission to the program leading to the B.F.A. in art is limited and depends on the department’s evaluation of the student’s work. In order to participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan, students must be admitted to the degree program on schedule as determined by the art advisor.

Before the third semester begins: at least four courses in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least 14 courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 18 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Art History

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least eight courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major: Art
The school offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the art major. Honors students in art must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in the major. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

In order to graduate with honors in art, students register for 01P:190 (ARTS:4190) Honors in Studio Art, in which they must complete an honors project supervised by a faculty member. They must prepare a statement of the sources of their work and hold an exhibition of the project. The statement may address the history of art, the history of ideas, or a personal philosophy and should be written under the supervision of the faculty member who supervises the honors project.

Honors students majoring in art should consult with their academic advisors about honors requirements in detail during early registration for the semester in which they plan to graduate. Students must apply for graduation with honors during the semester before they will graduate.

Honors in the Major: Art History

The school offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the art history major. Honors students in art history must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in the major. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Students must apply for graduation with honors during the semester before they will graduate. They choose one of the following two options for graduating with honors in the art history major.

Option 1: Students take two upper-division courses with honors designation and complete an extra project, such as an annotated bibliography, a supplemental paper or presentation, or a comparable project endorsed by the instructor. Then they enroll in a third upper-division course appropriate to their honors thesis topic and write the thesis (5,000 to 7,000 words) as part of the course, for an additional 1 s.h. Students register for 01H:190 (ARTH:3985) Honors Research in Art History.

Option 2: Students research and write an honors thesis of 10,000 to 15,000 words under the direction of an art history faculty member, earning 3 s.h.; they register for 01H:190 (ARTH:3985) Honors Research in Art History.

Students work with an art history faculty member as their honors thesis advisor. They must have the thesis advisor’s approval before beginning work on their thesis project. The thesis should conform to the Graduate College format for theses; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College in the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Minor: Art

The minor in art requires a minimum of 15-16 s.h. in art courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Courses in art education, bookbinding, calligraphy, graphic design, and papermaking and courses with prefixes 01B and 01P do not count toward the minor in art.

The minor must include one survey-level course chosen from these:
- 01H:002 (ARTH:1040) Arts of Africa: 3 s.h.
- 01H:005 (ARTH:1050) From Cave Paintings to Cathedrals: 3 s.h.
- 01H:006 (ARTH:1060) From Mona Lisa to Modernism: 3 s.h.
- 01H:016 (ARTH:1070) Asian Art and Culture: 3 s.h.

Before registering for a course, students must satisfy all prerequisites for the course.

Contact an undergraduate advisor in the School of Art and Art History for more information about how to meet the requirements for the minor.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in art
- Master of Fine Arts in art
- Master of Arts in art history
- Doctor of Philosophy in art history

The College of Education offers an M.A. program in art education; see Teaching and Learning (p. 774) in the Catalog.

Master of Arts: Art

The Master of Arts program in art requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered with emphases in the following studio art disciplines: ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

M.A. students must hold a B.A. or B.F.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. Undergraduate deficiencies, if any, may be made up concurrently with graduate study but do not count toward the graduate degree requirements.

The 38 s.h. of credit required for the M.A. includes at least 16 s.h. in a primary studio art emphasis; 8 s.h. in a secondary studio art emphasis chosen from one of the studio art disciplines listed above that offer at least 24 s.h. in courses; 3 s.h. in the history and theory of art, excluding readings and directed studies; and 3 s.h. in theory, history, criticism, or philosophy, earned in courses inside or outside of the school.

M.A. students undergo a division-wide review for M.A. candidacy by the faculty during their third semester in residence. All except painting and drawing students must submit a written artist’s statement.

M.A. students choose the written thesis or nonthesis option in consultation with their area advisor. They may earn 1 s.h. for writing a technical or substantial thesis by registering for 01A:302 (ARTS:6000) M.A. Written Thesis, with approval of the thesis supervisor. Thesis credit... earned in an M.A. program is not applicable toward M.F.A. requirements.

Master of Fine Arts: Art

The Master of Fine Arts program in art requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit, including approved credit earned for the M.A. in art. The degree is offered with thesis and with emphases in the following studio art disciplines: ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

M.F.A. students must hold an M.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. Transfer credit is decided by faculty review. Following completion of the M.A., students may be invited into the M.F.A. Program.

The 60 s.h. of credit required for the M.F.A. includes at least 24 s.h. in a primary studio art emphasis; at least 12 s.h. in a secondary studio art emphasis selected from those listed above; 3 s.h. in art history and theory of art; and 3 s.h. in theory, history, criticism, or philosophy (if not already taken). Students must earn 8 s.h. in their primary studio art emphasis and 4 s.h. in their secondary studio art emphasis after being granted an M.A. in art.

All students must undergo an M.F.A. committee review. They also must complete a written thesis and possibly a studio thesis.

M.F.A. students may earn 1 s.h. for writing a technical or substantial thesis by registering for 01A:304 (ARTS:7000) M.F.A. Written Thesis, with approval of the thesis supervisor. Thesis credit earned in an M.A. program is not applicable toward M.F.A. requirements.

Master of Arts: Art History

The Master of Arts program in art history requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with thesis. M.A. students are expected to acquire a broad knowledge of art history and to become familiar with major periods and monuments of world art. They also become proficient scholars, receiving training in research methods and theory necessary for subsequent scholarship at the Ph.D. level.

M.A. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50. Only one semester of academic probation is allowed. All M.A. candidates, including transfer students, must take at least 24 s.h. in residence at The University of Iowa.

M.A. students in art history must earn a grade of B or higher in semester-long courses numbered 100 (3000) or above in five of the following 10 distribution fields: African (including Oceanic), architecture, Asian, ancient (3000 B.C.E. to 300 C.E.), medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, 18th- and 19th-century European, American (including pre-Columbian, Native American, and African American), and modern/contemporary. These courses must be taken after the B.A. is granted.

M.A. students must complete a substantial thesis that demonstrates their ability to conduct scholarly research and convey ideas in writing appropriately for the discipline and for the student’s specialization field.

REQUIRED COURSES

M.A. students in art history must satisfactorily complete 01H:200 (ARTH:6000) History and Methods during their first fall semester of enrollment and must register for an art history seminar in their first, second, and third semesters of enrollment.

They also must satisfactorily complete 01H:210 (ARTH:6020) Art History Colloquium every semester that they are enrolled for 9 s.h. or more or are serving as teaching or research assistants. Students who are not employed as teaching or research assistants or are registered for less than 9 s.h. are strongly encouraged to attend the colloquium.

Courses outside the curriculum of the School of Art and Art History’s art history division do not carry art history credit. Cross-referenced courses not taught by art history faculty members also do not carry art history credit.

DIRECTED STUDIES

Directed Studies [01H:300 (ARTH:6040)] is designed for graduate students who already have taken one or more advanced courses in a specific art history field. It provides students with an opportunity to work one-to-one with a professor to continue specific research interests developed in lecture courses or seminars, or on topics that eventually may be the subject of a thesis or dissertation. Directed Studies cannot be substituted for a lecture course already offered in the program. Students must discuss their decision to take Directed Studies with the professor involved and have the professor’s approval. The Directed Studies topic must be within the professor’s range of expertise.

Students meet with their Directed Studies professor once a week. The hours of work and written assignments required for Directed Studies must be equal to a comparable regularly scheduled course. Directed Studies is not available through Guided Correspondence Study.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

M.A. students must demonstrate proficiency in French or German by the end of their third semester. Proficiency is determined by a translation exam administered under the direction of the art history division. Credit earned in language courses does not count toward the degree.

M.A. COMMITTEE

The M.A. committee consists of the student’s M.A. thesis advisor and two additional tenured or tenure-track faculty members in art history.

M.A. THESIS

M.A. students must complete a written thesis on a topic chosen from one of the 10 distribution fields (see “Master of Arts: Art History” above). Students register for and may count 3 s.h. of thesis credit toward graduation. Students choose an M.A. thesis advisor who specializes in their concentration field. Students who wish to concentrate in more than one field must work closely with faculty members in both fields.

FINAL EXAMINATION

The final examination constitutes an oral defense of the written M.A. thesis. The final examination meeting with the M.A. committee normally takes place toward the end of the student’s last semester of course work.

Doctor of Philosophy: Art History

The Doctor of Philosophy program in art history requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. students are expected to acquire great breadth and depth of knowledge in the discipline of art history, achieve a high level of expertise in a specialized field, and demonstrate professional speaking and writing skills. The program provides them with scholarly challenges, research skills, and mentoring necessary for professional development and successful careers.

Ph.D. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50. They may count a maximum of 38 s.h. of work completed for the M.A. toward the Ph.D., excluding credit earned in language courses. Students are allowed only one semester of academic probation.

To establish academic residency, doctoral students must be enrolled full-time (at least 9 s.h.) at The University of Iowa for two semesters beyond their first 24 s.h. of graduate study; or they must enroll for at least 6 s.h. in each of three semesters during which they hold an assistantship of one-quarter-time or more. Resident tuition is assessed for assistantship semesters and adjacent summer sessions.

Ph.D. students major in one of the following 10 distribution fields: African (including Oceanic), architecture, Asian, ancient (3000 B.C.E. to 300 C.E.), medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, 18th- and 19th-century European, American (including pre-Columbian, Native American, and African American), and modern/contemporary. Students also minor in two fields. The first minor must be in an art history distribution field that is not contiguous with the major field; the second may be in any art history distribution field or in a relevant discipline outside of art history, subject to the faculty’s approval.

Ph.D. students must complete a publishable dissertation that makes an original contribution to the art history discipline and demonstrates evidence of superior understanding of critical issues in the student’s chosen specialization field.

For more detailed information, consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin.

REQUIRED COURSES

Ph.D. students must satisfactorily complete 01H:200 (ARTH:6000) History and Methods, even if they have completed a similar course at another institution (students who have completed the course for a master’s degree or other previous work at Iowa are exempt). They must register for an art history seminar in their first three semesters of Ph.D. course work (or in their fifth, sixth, and seventh semesters of graduate study), before the Ph.D. readings course and comprehensive exam.

They also must satisfactorily complete 01H:210 (ARTH:6020) Art History Colloquium every semester that they are enrolled for 9 s.h. or more or are serving as teaching or research assistants. Students who are not employed as teaching or research assistants or are registered for less than 9 s.h. are strongly encouraged to attend the colloquium.

Students may count up to 6 s.h. of credit earned for dissertation research toward the 72 s.h. required for the degree. Courses outside the curriculum of the School of Art and Art History’s art history division do not carry art history credit.

DIRECTED STUDIES

Normally, a maximum of 6 s.h. earned in 01H:300 (ARTH:6040) Directed Studies may be applied toward the semester-hour requirement for the Ph.D., although doctoral students may petition the art history faculty for permission to apply up to 9 s.h.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

Students must demonstrate proficiency in French or German for admission to the Ph.D. program. They also must demonstrate proficiency in a second non-English language relevant to their research area by the end of their third semester of Ph.D. work or before their dissertation topic is approved. Proficiency is determined by a translation exam administered under the direction of the art history division. Credit earned in language courses does not count toward the degree.

PH.D. COMMITTEE

The Ph.D. committee consists of the student’s dissertation advisor, who is responsible for the major field; two members responsible for the two minor fields; and at least two additional members. Of these five, four must be tenured or tenure-track faculty members from the art history division. One must be from outside the division and must be a member of the Graduate College faculty. When appropriate, committees may include additional members.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Upon completion of course requirements, the Ph.D. candidate takes three written comprehensive examinations. The major exam consists of six questions and lasts six hours; the two minor exams each consist of three questions and last three hours. The exams are taken on any three days within one week (Monday through Friday).

The scope of the comprehensive exams is determined in consultation with the candidate’s degree committee supervisor and the committee members responsible for the two minor fields.

ORAL COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Within approximately two weeks of completing the three written exams, the candidate meets with his or her degree committee for the oral comprehensive examination, which concentrates on questions that arise from the written comprehensive exams.

DISSERTATION PROPOSAL

As soon as possible after completing the comprehensive examinations, the candidate submits a dissertation proposal to his or her degree committee and subsequently to the degree committee. The committee meets as a group with the candidate to discuss the dissertation proposal and to offer comments and suggestions. (The proposal must be submitted to the committee at least two weeks before the approval meeting.) The proposal includes a 1-2 page abstract, a 10-15 page précis (including a review of the state of the field), and a bibliography.

After the proposal has been approved by the committee, the candidate circulates an abstract to the entire art history faculty. He or she must give a public presentation on the dissertation topic no later than the end of the semester following the degree committee’s approval. The presentation is scheduled with the head of art history.

FINAL EXAMINATION

Upon completing a dissertation, which constitutes an original scholarly contribution to the field, the candidate meets with the Ph.D. committee for an oral defense of the dissertation. The oral defense constitutes the final examination for the Ph.D. The successful completion of this examination normally marks the last stage in the candidate’s fulfillment of requirements for the degree.

Admission

Prospective graduate students must meet the School of Art and Art History’s admission requirements for the specific degree programs they plan to enter. Prospective students must submit application materials to the University’s Office of Graduate Admissions and to the specific program they wish to enter. Program-specific application requirements and deadline dates are listed in the appropriate sections below.

All applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants to all art and art history graduate programs must submit the following to the University’s Office of Graduate Admissions: a completed graduate application form (one area of interest must be specified on the form); an official copy of all transcripts of undergraduate and/or graduate work completed by the application date; TOEFL scores (if applicable); and the required application fee.

Art history applicants also must submit Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores.

Applicants whose first or official language is not English and whose previous academic degrees were not earned at an English-language institution must score as follows on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL): for studio art applicants, at least 550 (paper-based) or 81 (Internet-based); for art history applicants, at least 600 (paper-based) or 100 (Internet-based).

Deadline dates for submission of materials to the Office of Graduate Admissions are December 15 for art history programs and February 1 for studio art programs, for fall admission.

The Office of Graduate Admissions notifies all applicants by mail of admission decisions. Acceptance notification cannot be given over the phone by either the admissions office or the School of Art and Art History.

M.A. and M.F.A.: Art

Applications to the M.A. and M.F.A. programs in studio art, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received by the School of Art and Art History graduate program coordinator and the Office of Graduate Admissions by February 1 for fall admission.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see “Admission” above), applicants must submit the following materials to the graduate program coordinator at the School of Art and Art History: a one-page statement of purpose, official transcripts for all undergraduate and graduate work completed by the application date; three letters of recommendation assessing potential as a graduate student, application for graduate awards (if desired), and application for graduate scholarships and fellowships (if desired). They also must submit one of the following portfolios (portfolios are returnable portfolio).

Images in the portfolios should be JPEG files in RGB format submitted on CDs (or DVDs for intermedia). They should not exceed 72 dpi and 1240 by 1240 pixels. File size must not exceed 1 MB. Image files must be numbered according to the order in which they are to be presented to the Admissions Committee, beginning with 01. Each CD or DVD must be accompanied by a list that includes each image’s name, title, medium, size, and the approximate date of work as well as the student’s name and emphasis.

Ceramics, design, drawing, intermedia and video art, jewelry and metal arts, and painting: A CD containing eight images in the primary studio art emphasis and two in a second emphasis; intermedia works may be submitted on DVDs.

Photography: A CD containing 20 images in photography and two or three images in a second emphasis.

Printmaking: A CD containing 10-20 images, including a selection of four to six original printed works, sent in a returnable portfolio.

Sculpture: A CD containing 20 images in sculpture, including details, and two or three images in a second emphasis.

Extreme care is taken in handling all portfolios, but the school cannot be responsible for reimbursement in the event of loss or damage.

Applications and all supporting materials are reviewed by a committee of art and art history faculty members from the appropriate area.

M.A.: Art History

Applications to the M.A. program in art history, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the University’s Office of Graduate Admissions by December 15 for fall admission in the following year.

Applicants must hold a bachelor’s degree, preferably in art history or a related field.

Although exceptions may be made when other components of the application are strong, applicants should have a combined verbal and quantitative score of at least 300 and an analytical writing score of at least 5 on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test; and an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.25 on a 4.00 scale.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), the following materials must be submitted to the graduate program coordinator at the School of Art and Art History: transcripts from all colleges and universities the applicant has attended; three letters of recommendation assessing the applicant’s potential for graduate study in art history (sent by the person making the recommendation); and a research paper (preferably from an art history course) or undergraduate thesis that demonstrates the applicant’s potential to undertake research in art history.

Applicants also must submit a 1,000-word personal statement describing their intellectual development, academic interests, and career goals; the statement must name the University of Iowa faculty member under whose guidance the applicant hopes to work and tell how that faculty member’s area of expertise, or how the art history program, is especially suited to the applicant’s interests and goals.
Applicants to graduate programs in art history should consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin on the School of Art and Art History web site.

Ph.D.: Art History

Applications to the Ph.D. program in art history, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the Office of Graduate Admissions by December 15 for fall admission in the following year.

Applicants must hold an M.A. in art history or a related graduate degree and must have demonstrated proficiency in French or German. Proficiency in a second non-English language relevant to the student’s research area is required by the end of the third semester of Ph.D. work; see “Language Requirement” under “Doctor of Philosophy in Art History” above.

Although exceptions may be made when other components of the application are strong, applicants should have a combined verbal and quantitative score of at least 300 on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test; and a graduate g.p.a. of at least 3.50 on a 4.00 scale.

Students who completed an M.A. at The University of Iowa and who wish to apply for entrance into the Ph.D. program must make a formal application for change of status through the graduate program coordinator. Applications are evaluated in the context of the entire applicant pool.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see “Admission” above), the following materials must be submitted to the graduate program coordinator at the School of Art and Art History: transcripts from all colleges and universities the applicant has attended; three letters of recommendation, including one from the applicant’s M.A. thesis supervisor, assessing the applicant’s potential for doctoral study in art history (sent by the person making the recommendation); and a copy of an M.A. thesis or other substantial M.A. research paper.

Applicants also must submit a 1,000-word personal statement describing their purpose in pursuing graduate studies and their intellectual development, academic interests, and career goals; the statement must name the University of Iowa faculty member under whose guidance the applicant hopes to work and how that faculty member’s area of expertise, or the art history program, is especially suited to the applicant’s interests and goals.

Applicants to graduate programs in art history should consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin on the School of Art and Art History web site.

Financial Support

Fellowships, teaching assistantships, research assistantships, and tuition scholarships are awarded to graduate students on the basis of artistic and/or scholarly record.

In the studio programs, financial aid to new students is possible, but most assistantships and scholarships are awarded to graduate students who have been in residence for at least a year. This gives faculty members an opportunity to observe their performance and potential.

Presidential Graduate Fellowships

The Graduate College awards Presidential Graduate Fellowships on the basis of a University-wide competition among incoming Ph.D. students. For information about the fellowships, including nomination and selection criteria and stipends, see Presidential Graduate Fellowship on the Graduate College web site.

Dean’s Graduate Fellowships

The Graduate College awards Dean’s Graduate Fellowships on the basis of a University-wide competition among graduate students. Criteria for the fellowships are similar to those for the Presidential Graduate Fellowship but are designed to support incoming students who are underrepresented in graduate education. For more information, see Dean’s Graduate Fellowship on the Graduate College web site.

Teaching and Research Assistantships

Assistantships are awarded to graduate students on the basis of academic record, promise as scholars or artists, and demonstrated ability to do the job. Quality of performance in one’s graduate program at Iowa is generally the major criterion for awarding teaching assistantships. The number of hours of work required depends on the amount of the award.

Scholarships and Fellowships

The School of Art and Art History offers a variety of scholarships and fellowships made possible by contributions from alumni who wish to support promising artists and scholars. These awards are made on the same basis as teaching and research assistantships.

Information and application materials for graduate scholarships and fellowships are included in the admissions package. They also are available from the School of Art and Art History main office.

Renewal or reappointment for fellowships and assistantships depends on adequate progress toward the degree (graduate students must accumulate at least 18 s.h. of graduate credit each calendar year and maintain a grade-point average above the required minimum) and satisfactory performance of assistantship duties.

Decisions on assistantships and financial aid generally are made during the latter part of the spring semester for the following academic year. Applications and all relevant materials should be on file by February 1.

Student Organizations

The undergraduate Art History Society and the graduate Art History Society sponsor activities for students. The Faculty/Graduate Student Art History Colloquium meets five times each semester to focus on professional development and issues of broad interest in art.

Resources and Facilities

Reference Collections

The art library contains 100,000 volumes, an outstanding periodical collection, and an extensive microfilm and microfiche archive.

The school’s Office of Visual Materials contains a rapidly growing collection of 325,000 slides, 30,000... digital images, 350,000 35mm slides, 30,000 mounted photographs, and a video collection.

Museum of Art

The University of Iowa Museum of Art has a significant permanent collection that includes major holdings of 20th-century and contemporary art, African and pre-Columbian art, English and American silver, European and American prints, drawings and photographs, and Etruscan, Iranian, and contemporary American ceramics. As well as serving as a resource for research in a wide variety of art history areas, the museum offers a program of exhibitions, lectures, and recitals.

Due to the Iowa River flooding of summer 2008, the museum's collections are being displayed and its events are being held in a variety of other facilities. Learn about current exhibitions and events, and their locations, by visiting the Museum of Art web site.

Interdisciplinary Resources

Colloquia, visiting artists and lecturer programs, and graduate workshops bring visitors to the School of Art and Art History and provide open forums for discussion of issues in art and scholarship.

Among the school's major assets is the Project for the Advanced Study of Art and Life in Africa (PASALA), an interdisciplinary program that brings together faculty with international reputations in art history, anthropology, films, history, and literature to offer courses and independent study of art in West, Central, East, and South Africa. The result is a program of unusual breadth and depth of expertise. PASALA is among the most active of such programs in the country, organizing international symposia that discuss significant topical issues and publishing the proceedings in regular issues of Iowa Studies in African Art. PASALA offers scholarships and support for research in Africa and dissertation preparation to outstanding students. A major resource for PASALA is the Stanley Collection of African Art in the University of Iowa Museum of Art.

Art history participates in the University's Crossing Borders program, which offers major financial support to designated graduate student fellows whose dissertation topics involve multiple foreign language areas. Fellows take team-taught seminars in a range of disciplines, with focus on interactions across cultural, regional, or national divides. They help plan an annual convocation, at which they and invited lecturers present their research.

The School of Art and Art History affiliates with the Department of American Studies (p. 41), giving students opportunities to study not only the history of American art but a variety of interdisciplinary programs in American history, literature, and politics. The school also is linked to the Medieval Studies (p. 448) Program, which offers an undergraduate certificate and courses in the history, literature, and culture of the Middle Ages.

Art Buildings

The University of Iowa is restoring and replacing School of Art and Art History facilities that were damaged or destroyed by Iowa River flooding during summer 2008. The school's administrative center, Art Building West, has reopened and once again is home to the school's main office as well as the Office of Visual Materials, the Art Library, an auditorium, art history classrooms, a gallery, a café, and studios for graphic design, painting, animation, and digital photography. Designed by architect Steven Holl, Art Building West has won numerous awards for its innovative design, including the 2007 American Institute of Architects Honor Award for Architecture.

Studio classrooms are temporarily housed in the Studio Arts Building, on Iowa City's south side, and planning is under way for permanent facilities to be built close to Art Building West. Visit the School of Art and Art History web site and ISIS for information about studio, office, and classroom sites.

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A.: Art

- Before the fifth semester begins: at least four courses in the major
- Before the seventh semester begins: at least eight courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
- Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.F.A.: Art

Admission to the program leading to the B.F.A. in art is limited and depends on the department's evaluation of the student's work. In order to participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan, students must be admitted to the degree program on schedule as determined by the art advisor.

- Before the third semester begins: at least four courses in the major 01H:310 (ARTH:6110) Seminar: Problems in African Art 2-3 s.h.

Key themes and issues in ancient art. Same as 20E:326 (CLSA:6200).

01H:320 (ARTH:6300) Seminar: Problems in Ancient Art 3 s.h.

01H:340 (ARTH:6440) Seminar: Problems in Medieval Art 3 s.h.

Major issues, methodologies.

01H:353 (ARTH:6640) Seminar: Problems in Baroque Art

01H:359 (ARTH:6740) Graduate Seminar: Nineteenth-Century Art

01H:362 (ARTH:6840) Seminar: Modern/Contemporary Art
Major issues, methodologies.

01H:366 (ARTH:6940) Seminar: Problems in American Art

01H:385 (ARTH:6085) Seminar: Problems in Architectural History
Key themes, architects, and literature that informs the history of the built environment in varied cultural contexts.

Studio Art for Undergraduate and Graduate Students

Courses numbered 099 and below are primarily for undergraduates and may not be repeated unless noted on ISIS. Some courses numbered 100-199 are repeatable. Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all studio courses for art majors.

Fundamentals

01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing 3 s.h.
Two-dimensional visual language, media; space, form; color. Requirements: art major or art minor.

01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals 3 s.h.
Two- and three-dimensional concepts and their relations; working with basic drawing instruments; problems in visual arts; artists’ philosophies and techniques. Requirements: art major.

01A:006 (ARTS:1500) Media, Social Practice, and Design Studio Foundations 3 s.h.
Introduction to key principles and skills in graphic design, photography, and video.

01A:009 (ARTS:1560) Art Student Ambassador Seminar 0-1 s.h.
Ambassadors provide information about the School of Art and Art History to incoming and visiting students, the University community, and the broader community; conduct tours; meet with students and parents; review curriculum; provide information on opportunities; coordinate events; and develop materials for incoming students. Requirements: art major.
Ceramics

Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all ceramics courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01C:060 (CERM:2010) Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.
Basic handbuilding methods of forming, firing, glazing clay. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors. GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts.

01C:061 (CERM:2020) Exploring Thrown Forms in Clay II 3 s.h.
Basic wheel-throwing techniques; clay, glaze formulation and preparation in kiln firing. Prerequisites: 01C:060 (CERM:2010).

01C:170 (CERM:3010) Advanced Clay Forming III 4 s.h.
Advanced throwing techniques; larger scale, more professional goals; projects may be more sculptural or one of a kind. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 01C:060 (CERM:2010) and 01C:061 (CERM:2020).

01C:171 (CERM:4010) Advanced Clay Forming IV 4 s.h.
Advanced individual projects. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01C:061 (CERM:2020) or 01C:170 (CERM:3010).

01C:172 (CERM:4020) Ceramic Materials and Effects 4 s.h.
Empirical, practical methods of glaze and body formulation; effects of various types of kilns and firing atmospheres on glaze materials, clay bodies; digital imaging used for testing and documenting results. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 01C:170 (CERM:3010). Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01C:173 (CERM:4030) Undergraduate Ceramics Workshop 3-4 s.h.
Advanced undergraduate studio; critiques of student work and electronic portfolio development, visiting artist participation; may include field trips. Prerequisites: 01C:171 (CERM:4010).

01C:174 (CERM:4040) Kiln Building 4 s.h.
Kiln theory, design, construction methods; may include participation in kiln construction. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 01C:170 (CERM:3010).

01C:176 (CERM:4050) Concepts: Materials and Installation 4 s.h.
Exposure to contemporary methods of working in clay, develop critical thinking skills that move clay into the realm of conceptual work; develop a personal direction in the medium; conceptual development and material exploration; set clay side by side with other materials and mediums; demonstrate dedication to the work and to the development of mature ideas and forms of expression. Prerequisites: 01C:170 (CERM:3010).

01C:190 (CERM:4099) Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in ceramics for advanced students.
01C:270 (CERM:6099) Graduate Individual Instruction in Ceramics
Requirements: knowledge of clay and glaze computation, and ability to fire kilns.

01C:275 (CERM:6075) Ceramics Workshop 3-4 s.h.
Advanced graduate studio; critique of student work; visiting artists, field trips. Prerequisites: 01C:171 (CERM:4010).

Design
Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all design courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01D:090 (DSGN:2110) Graphic Design I 3 s.h.
Basic principles, techniques, and applications of graphic design, typography, composition, visual perception; creative, problem-solving aspects of graphic design. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520). Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01D:098 (ANIM:2125) Introduction to Animation 3 s.h.
Introduction to animation and its role in contemporary creative practice; focus on historical and technical principles of traditional 2-D animation, 2-D digital animation, and 3-D computer animation; creative, conceptual, and technical facets of animation practice; conceptualize and execute animations using processes and methods currently integrated into contemporary time-based art practice. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01D:100 (DSGN:3120) Typography 4 s.h.

01D:105 (ANIM:3125) Animation I 4 s.h.
Continuation of 01D:098 (ANIM:2125); focus on technology of 3-D animation; 3-D modeling, texturing, animation, rendering and lighting; projects cover creative, conceptual, and technical facets of 3-D animation pipeline; students conceptualize and execute projects using processes and methods currently integrated into 3-D animation industry through lectures, critiques, computer software, screenings, and labs. Prerequisites: 01D:098 (ANIM:2125).

01D:110 (DSGN:3130) Web Site Design I 3 s.h.
Designing for the World Wide Web; composition, manipulation, organization of type and images; projects, demonstrations, discussions. Prerequisites: 01D:090 (DSGN:2110) and 01D:100 (DSGN:3120).

01D:115 (ANIM:3130) Professional Practices in Animation and Gaming Studios 2 s.h.
Experiential learning experience through immersion in professional animation and gaming studios that blend technology, art, and design; behind-the-scenes meetings with professionals, equipment, and processes involved in creating major animated and video game works; studio and museum visits to gain understanding of technology and art, professional studio culture, and innovative design; animation history, studio culture, entertainment artistry, art technology, and contemporary art.

01D:120 (DSGN:3110) Graphic Design II 4 s.h.
In-depth study and exploration of graphic design as creative and problem-solving tool of visual communication; translation of ideas and concepts into comprehensible visual language. Prerequisites: 01D:090 (DSGN:2110) and 01D:100 (DSGN:3120).

01D:128 (DSGN:3122) Computer Graphic Design 3 s.h.
Advanced composition, manipulation of image and type; organization and pre-press file management using Macintosh platform. Prerequisites: 01D:090 (DSGN:2110).

01D:140 (DSGN:4130) Web Site Design II 4 s.h.
Continuation of 01D:110 (DSGN:3130); in-depth exploration and study of graphic design principles and their application in online and interactive media; further development of HTML, CSS, other related technologies. Prerequisites: 01D:110 (DSGN:3130) and 01D:120 (DSGN:3110). Corequisites: 01D:150 (DSGN:4110) or 01D:160 (DSGN:4140), if not taken as prerequisites.

01D:145 (ANIM:3135) Animation II 4 s.h.
Continuation of 01D:105 (ANIM:3125); focus on technology of 3-D animation; 3-D modeling, texturing, animation, rendering and lighting; projects cover creative, conceptual, and technical facets of 3-D animation pipeline; students conceptualize and execute projects using processes and methods currently integrated into 3-D animation industry through lectures, critiques, computer software, screenings, and labs. Prerequisites: 01D:105 (ANIM:3125).

01D:150 (DSGN:4110) Graphic Design III 4 s.h.
Continuation of 01D:120 (DSGN:3110); graphic design knowledge and skills applied to complex design problems such as visual identity, packaging, information design. Prerequisites: 01D:110 (DSGN:3130) and 01D:120 (DSGN:3110).

01D:160 (DSGN:4140) Problems in Graphic Design 4 s.h.
Design topics; content varies. Prerequisites: 01D:090 (DSGN:2110), 01D:100 (DSGN:3120), and 01D:120 (DSGN:3110).

01D:190 (DSGN:4199) Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in design for advanced students.

01D:200 (DSGN:6175) Graduate Graphic Design Workshop 4 s.h.
Complex problems in graphic design; planning, development, organization of integrated design programs.

01D:240 (DSGN:6299) Individual Instruction in Design arr.
Three-Dimensional Design

01T:020 (TDSN:2205) Art and Engineering 3 s.h.
Collaborative, interdisciplinary, cutting-edge opportunity to gain real world engineering experience while learning to think creatively and analytically to create engaging works of art; interdisciplinary collaboration and creative methodologies that enhance life-long creative practice of artists and engineers; basic electronics and Arduino prototyping platform to create programmable, sensor-driven, responsive circuits. Same as 055:012 (ECE:2120).

01T:021 (TDSN:2210) Problems in 3-D Design I: Form and Structure 3 s.h.
Materials, their formal and structural possibilities. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01T:022 (TDSN:2220) Problems in 3-D Design II: Form and Function 4 s.h.
How objects are designed and structured; modeling, graphic skills necessary for basic project development. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01T:021 (TDSN:2210).

01T:025 (TDSN:2230) Introduction to Portfolio Design 3 s.h.
Preparation of presentation boards and portfolio production for print and job application; for students in 3-D design and related areas. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01T:028 (TDSN:2270) Digital Forming 3 s.h.
Introduction to process of design; work with 3-D virtual digital tools to create objects and forms printed with rapid prototyping technology; use of Leonar3Do software, 3-D glasses, and a bird device that functions as a mouse to create forms in space; virtual modeling techniques that allow creation and manipulation of shapes in the air; design development on Leonar3Do, improved with 3ds Max, and saved for 3-D printing. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01T:064 (TDSN:2240) Introduction to Computer-Aided Design for 3-D Design 3 s.h.
Basic principles of 2-D and 3-D computer-aided drafting; use of AutoCAD software to draw plans, elevations, and sections for objects and interior spaces. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520). Same as 053:040 (CEE:2240).

01T:070 (TDSN:2250) Introduction to Computer Modeling for 3-D Design 3 s.h.
Basic knowledge and practical technical skills using 3ds Max studio software; experience creating and manipulating basic forms and working with texture, background, light, and camera viewpoints; basic animation. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01B:035 (ARTS:1020) for nonmajors.

01T:075 (TDSN:2260) Introduction to Virtual Reality for 3-D Design 3 s.h.
Introduction to Vizard software; design of virtual 3-D space; translation of environments created in 3ds Max software into Vizard software. Corequisites: 01T:070 (TDSN:2250), if not taken as a prerequisite.

01T:102 (TDSN:3100) 3-D Computer-Aided Design arr.
Three-dimensional computer-aided drafting; use of AutoCAD software. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01T:110 (TDSN:3150) Advanced Robotics 3 s.h.
Advanced peripheral integration and control, including stepper motors, solar power, audio playback, and live data manipulation through physical sensors; advanced fabrication (e.g., printed circuit boards and wiring harness design); for students with previous experience in robotics and electronics. Prerequisites: 01N:105 (SCLP:3840).

01T:137 (TDSN:3210) Environmental Design I 4 s.h.
Human interaction with the interior and exterior environment. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 01T:021 (TDSN:2210). Same as 049:158 (THTR:3206).

01T:141 (TDSN:3220) Interior Design I 4 s.h.
Relationship of interior space to its architecture, environment, human element; color, materials, furnishings, lighting; projects. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01T:021 (TDSN:2210).

01T:142 (TDSN:3230) Color for Interior Design 4 s.h.
Use of color for interior spaces; principles of color theory reviewed and applied to 3-D environments; color as a compositional element and psychological tool. Prerequisites: 01T:021 (TDSN:2210).

01T:143 (TDSN:4102) Digital Animation and Visual Art 3 s.h.
Assimilation of digital animation into realm of traditional fine art mediums; exploration of fundamental skills (storyboarding, rotoscoping, stop motion, motion graphics, 3-D animation); Adobe Photoshop, After Effects, and 3ds Max techniques explored in rotoscoping, stop motion, motion graphics, 3-D animation); Adobe Photoshop, After Effects, and 3ds Max techniques and software that are industry standards in the careers of animators, storyboard artists, roto artists, digital compositors, and motion graphic artists; production of a show reel of student work for group showing and final critique. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01T:144 (TDSN:4220) Interior Design II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 01T:141 (TDSN:3220). Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 01T:064 (TDSN:2240) and 01T:141 (TDSN:3220).

01T:147 (TDSN:4160) 3-D Computer Graphic Art 3 s.h.
Three-dimensional modeling, emphasis on movement in form and function; advanced modeling techniques in polygonal and NURBS modeling to generate fundamentally sound models used for rapid prototyping, visualization, and animation; Box modeling, NURBS modeling, rigging, materials, bump maps, normal maps, and rendering; fundamental skills of computer graphic artists working in the fields of animation, architectural visualization, video game modeling, industrial design, and engineering design. Prerequisites: 01T:070 (TDSN:2250).

01T:176 (TDSN:4170) Problems in 3-D Design: Locative Art Practice 4 s.h.
How our relationship to Earth has changed with new forms of locating place in it; new forms of representation used to express exploration of that relationship; designing a locative research project; exploration of four major course concepts (geo-annotation, locative inscription, GPS drawing, alternative cartography) using portable, networked, and location-aware computing for mapping relationships. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01T:190 (TDSN:4199) Undergraduate Individual Instruction
Individual instruction in 3-D design for advanced students.

01T:192 (TDSN:4150) Fabrication and Design: Hand-Built Bicycle
Students build a bicycle frame by hand; project involves use of CAD modeling and development of fabrication skills to create a modern-day work of art. Prerequisites: 01T:064 (TDSN:2240).

01T:193 (TDSN:4155) Hand-Built Bicycles in the Rockies
Building a titanium hand-built bike; use of hand-built fabrication techniques and tools; translation of CAD design into first full-suspension titanium fat bike; aspects of metal technology, concept development, fabrication geometry and design, metal properties and selection, tool selection, brazing and TIG welding, jig setup and use, and mitering; travel to Fort Collins, Colorado to work for one week at Black Sheep Bikes (two-time winner of the North American Hand Built Bike Show). Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01T:238 (TDSN:6210) Environmental Design II
Continuation of 01T:137 (TDSN:3210); design of virtual environments.

01T:240 (TDSN:6299) Individual Instruction in 3-D Design
Individual instruction in 3-D design for advanced students.

01T:249 (TDSN:6295) Advanced Problems in Design
Special issues and topics in design.

Intermedia
Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all intermedia courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01J:090 (INTM:2710) Intermedia I
Interdisciplinary focus; emphasis on conceptual, installation, video, time-based media, performance art. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01J:091 (INTM:2720) Intermedia II
Interdisciplinary investigation of materials and concepts in relation to time-based media, performance, video, installation; individual and collaborative projects. Prerequisites: 01J:090 (INTM:2710).

01J:095 (INTM:2730) Topics in Intermedia
Continuation of study and practice in emerging media and new genres, including video, Internet art, installation, new media, and social practice. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01J:100 (INTM:3730) Advanced Intermedia Topics
Areas of intermedia practice, including installation, video, Internet-based production, sound design, image and text, new media. Prerequisites: 01J:090 (INTM:2710).
01J:104 (INTM:3720) Media Art Lab
4 s.h.
Study and production in the media arts—digital video, sound, installation/performance, Internet, new media art; conceptual development through readings, screenings; hands-on workshops using a range of media production equipment and platforms; in-class, short-term projects. Requirements: 01J:090 (INTM:2710) or 048:034 (CCL:1834) or graduate standing. Recommendations: experience with media technologies.

01J:108 (INTM:3750) Art and Ecology
4 s.h.
Collaborative, creative research group; artistic responses to environmental sustainability and related social issues; critical approaches rooted in humanities, other disciplines. Prerequisites: 01J:090 (INTM:2710).

01J:110 (INTM:4775) Intermedia Workshop
3-4 s.h.
Visual practice/visual theory; projects, critiques, visiting artists and scholars. Requirements: 01J:091 (INTM:2720) or graduate standing in intermedia.

01J:115 (INTM:3755) What is Storytelling For?
4 s.h.

01J:140 (INTM:3765) Artists in the Community--Intermedia
3-4 s.h.
Student participation in internships at Iowa City and Johnson county nonprofit organizations; interdisciplinary seminar.

01J:180 (INTM:4780) Women’s Lives in Alternative Texts
3 s.h.
Work of contemporary comics creators; how they craft memoir-based texts that explore intersections of aging, sexuality, race, gender, and relationships. Same as 131:180 (GWSS:4180).

01J:190 (INTM:3799) Undergraduate Individual Instruction
1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in intermedia for advanced students.

01J:200 (INTM:6780) Art, Engagement, and Activism
4 s.h.
Role of artists in our communities; how to build a rewarding studio practice and influence social, political, and cultural decisions within the community; work of artists, designers, creative scholars, performers, and writers whose work is socially engaged, collaborative, labeled as radical or activist in nature; students produce a small body of written, visual, and performed work influenced by events and needs within their communities; examination and discussion of various theories of art, activism, performance, and engagement.

01J:201 (INTM:6799) Individual Instruction in Intermedia and Video Art
arr.

01J:208 (INTM:6795) Intermedia Graduate Special Topics
3-4 s.h.
Areas of intermedia practice, including installation, video, Internet-based production, sound design, image and text, new media.

Jewelry and Metal Arts
Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01G:084 (MTLS:2910) Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts
3 s.h.
Fabrication, hammer forming, hydraulic die forming, soldering, riveting, etching, texturing, anodization of aluminum and titanium, stone setting, and patination techniques; creation of jewelry, flatware, and other functional and nonfunctional sculptural objects using varied metals and other materials; emphasis on creativity, learning, and basic metalworking techniques. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01G:085 (MTLS:2920) Intermediate Jewelry and Metal Arts
4 s.h.
Applications with casting (gold, silver, bronze), enameling, and stone setting, processes may be combined; photo etching and 3-D computer modeling; trends in craft; emphasis on development of student’s personal aesthetics, learning, and refining technical skills in metalworking and jewelry techniques. Prerequisites: 01G:084 (MTLS:2910).

01G:184 (MTLS:4920) Mold Making
4 s.h.
All aspects of mold making, including plaster, rubber, and silicone.

01G:186 (MTLS:3920) Advanced Jewelry and Metal Arts
4 s.h.
Electroforming; production of hollow copper structures through prolonged electroplating on a nonmetallic form (typically wax) with a conductive coating; metal-forming techniques (e.g., raising and fold forming); emphasis on development of personal aesthetics, learning, and refining technical skills in metalworking and jewelry techniques. Prerequisites: 01G:084 (MTLS:2910).

01G:187 (MTLS:4910) Mixed Media Workshop
3-4 s.h.
Free exploration of all media and materials, including found objects; creation of conceptual and/or functional mixed media objects, jewelry, sculptures, installation pieces; pioneering use of new materials, development of new techniques, creation of diverse innovative art works. Prerequisites: 01G:084 (MTLS:2910). Recommendations: 01G:085 (MTLS:2920) and 01G:186 (MTLS:3920).

01G:188 (MTLS:4975) Graduate Workshop
4 s.h.
Independent studio work; personal aesthetics, conceptual and technical skills developed and refined; creation of work without boundaries of media; portfolios, exhibitions, professional goals. Prerequisites: 01G:185, 01G:186 (MTLS:3920), and 01G:187 (MTLS:4910).

01G:190 (MTLS:4999) Undergraduate Individual Instruction
1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in metalsmithing and jewelry for advanced students.

01G:192 (MTLS:4960) Form and Fabrication: The Hand-Built Bicycle Frame II
4 s.h.
Building on 01T:192 (TDSN:4150); advanced concepts of bicycle frame design and fabrication; concept development, fabrication geometry and design, metal properties and selection, tool selection, brazing and welding, including titanium-milling and how to build a frame jig; emphasis on applying fabrication skills while situating frame building project within context of a design problem. Prerequisites: 01T:192 (TDSN:4150).

01G:240 (MTLS:6999) Individual Instruction in Metalworking and Jewelry

Painting

Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all painting courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01K:009 (PNTG:2410) Painting I 3 s.h.
Emphasis on observational painting, theory and development of pictorial ideas and skills. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520). Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01K:010 (PNTG:2420) Painting II 4 s.h.
Materials, techniques, beginning of a personal painting language through observation and imagination. Prerequisites: 01K:009 (PNTG:2410).

01K:046 (PNTG:2430) Painting III 4 s.h.
Painting, with contemporary issues overlying study in materials and techniques; language and direction of personal painting. Prerequisites: 01K:010 (PNTG:2420).

01K:049 (PNTG:2440) Advanced Painting 4 s.h.
Individual projects as they aid the realization of a personal vision. Prerequisites: 01K:046 (PNTG:2430). Requirements: 01K:046 (PNTG:2430) taken two times.

01K:190 (PNTG:4499) Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in painting for advanced students.

01K:199 (PNTG:4495) Special Topics in Painting and Drawing 3-4 s.h.
Advanced issues in painting, drawing. Prerequisites: 01K:010 (PNTG:2420).

01K:206 (PNTG:6495) Graduate Painting: Topics 3-4 s.h.
Individual painting projects in desired medium; topics vary.

01K:207 (PNTG:6475) Graduate Drawing and Painting Workshop 3-4 s.h.

01K:208 (PNTG:6480) Graduate Drawing and Painting Forum 1 s.h.
Problems and issues of contemporary artists.

Photography

Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all photography courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01L:036 (PHTO:2510) Beginning Digital Photography 3 s.h.
How to use digital technology to make high-quality color and black-and-white photographs from scanned film and digital files; basic photography skills, including exposure, bracketing, composition; how to use raw files to make large digital prints; color profiles for fine digital printing. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520). Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors.

01L:040 (PHTO:2513) Digital Photographic Imaging 3 s.h.
Working knowledge of digital image-making techniques, including image capture, image building/editing, printing/output options, work with Photoshop on Macintosh computers.

01L:101 (PHTO:3510) Intermediate Darkroom 3-4 s.h.
Darkroom techniques, including film developing and printing; theory and practice of photography as fine art and cultural phenomenon; development of visual literacy, students' critical awareness of their work. Requirements: 01L:034 or 01L:036 (PHTO:2510) for majors; 01L:036 (PHTO:2510) or 01L:040 (PHTO:2513) for nonmajors.

01L:102 (PHTO:3520) Intermediate Photography Digital 3-4 s.h.
Digital photography including landscape, portrait, collage, still life, manipulated images; black-and-white and color printing; computer technology; history of photography in political and social issues. Prerequisites: 01L:036 (PHTO:2510).

01L:105 (PHTO:4510) Advanced Photography 3-4 s.h.
Individual projects; development of personal vision. Prerequisites: 01L:101 (PHTO:3510) or 01L:102 (PHTO:3520).

01L:129 (PHTO:4545) Materials and Techniques 4 s.h.
Concepts and techniques, from reading contemporary topics to understanding and applying nontraditional photographic processes and digital imaging. Prerequisites: 01L:101 (PHTO:3510).

01L:140 (PHTO:4555) Advanced Digital Imaging 4 s.h.
Varied image editing programs, with focus on Photoshop and the web. Prerequisites: 01L:101 (PHTO:3510) or 01L:102 (PHTO:3520).

01L:165 (PHTO:4665) Introduction to 4x5 and Studio Lighting 4 s.h.
Use of a 4x5 camera to correct perspective, depth of field; large format printing, negative processes. Prerequisites: 01L:101 (PHTO:3510).
01L:190 (PHTO:4599) Undergraduate Individual Instruction
1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in photography for advanced students.

01L:231 (PHTO:6599) Individual Instruction in Photography
arr.

01L:236 (PHTO:6575) Graduate Photography Workshop
4 s.h.
Projects; group critiques; readings.

Printmaking

Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all printmaking courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01M:011 (PRNT:2610) Introduction to Printmaking
3 s.h.
Introduction to methods, materials, and concepts of printmaking. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520). Requirements: art major.

01M:111 (PRNT:3610) New Media for Printmaking
4 s.h.
New concepts and techniques for contemporary print media, including digital and less toxic applications in relief, intaglio, lithography, and screenprinting. Prerequisites: 01M:011 (PRNT:2610).

01M:121 (PRNT:3620) Intaglio
4 s.h.
Concepts, techniques; traditional through contemporary ideas, methods; emphasis on metal plate printing, including etching, drypoint, engraving, softground, aquatint. Requirements: 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) or BFA candidacy in any area or graduate standing.

01M:122 (PRNT:4620) Advanced Intaglio and Relief
3-4 s.h.
Concepts and techniques of intaglio/relief; etching, engraving, drypoint, softground, aquatint, woodcut, linocut, color printing; emphasis on advanced methods, personal vision.

01M:124 (PRNT:3630) Relief
3-4 s.h.
Concepts and techniques of relief printmaking, including woodcut, linocut, relief etching, black-and-white and color printing methods; traditional and contemporary approaches; for graduate students with no printmaking experience. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510), 01A:004 (ARTS:1520), and 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:131 (PRNT:3640) Lithography
4 s.h.
Technical, aesthetic characteristics; basic direct drawing, processing, printing of stone and plate images in black and white. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510), 01A:004 (ARTS:1520), and 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:132 (PRNT:4640) Advanced Lithography
3-4 s.h.
Technical, aesthetic aspects; emphasis on color printing, indirect image-forming and photo-mechanical processes. Prerequisites: 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) and 01M:131 (PRNT:3640).

01M:134 (PRNT:3680) Silkscreen
4 s.h.
Photographic, nonphotographic stencil techniques for silkscreen printing. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510), 01A:004 (ARTS:1520), and 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) for art majors; 01B:001 (ARTS:1010) and 01B:080 (ARTS:1050) for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:135 (PRNT:4610) Advanced Printmaking
4 s.h.
Print media (i.e., intaglio, lithography, relief, screenprint); emphasis on individual technical and conceptual growth and development of independent studio practices. Requirements: two courses chosen from 01M:121 (PRNT:3620), 01M:124 (PRNT:3630), 01M:131 (PRNT:3640), and 01M:134 (PRNT:3680).

01M:142 (PRNT:3660) Monoprint
3-4 s.h.
Concepts, techniques in use of traditional and alternative printmaking media to produce unique, matrix-generated prints. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01M:021, and 01M:024 or 01M:031.

01M:151 (PRNT:3670) Foil Imaging I
3 s.h.
Participation in development of a new art form involving creation of original prints and other works of art using hot stamped foil and Iowa Foil Printer. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510), 01A:004 (ARTS:1520), and 01M:011 (PRNT:2610) for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:152 (PRNT:4670) Foil Imaging II
4 s.h.
Advanced aesthetic and technical research for creation of original prints and other works of fine art using hot stamped foil and other printmaking techniques; individual instruction. Prerequisites: 01M:151 (PRNT:3670).

01M:160 (PRNT:4675) Special Workshop in Printmaking
2-3 s.h.
Issues, themes, or studio practice.

01M:170 (PRNT:3675) Foil Workshop in Printmaking
2 s.h.
Hands-on experience creating foil prints; workshop format. One or two weeks. Offered summer session.

01M:250 (PRNT:6699) Individual Instruction in Printmaking
arr.

01M:260 (PRNT:6675) Graduate Print Workshop
3-4 s.h.
Contemporary issues in printmaking; emphasis on development of personal work and independent studio practice through group critiques, special research projects, work in all print media.

Sculpture

Courses 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all sculpture courses for art majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing is prerequisite for nonmajors.
01N:015 (SCLP:2810) Undergraduate Sculpture I
Basic sculptural concepts, processes, investigation of materials such as plaster, clay, wood; emphasis on developing formal language, acquiring basic skills; spatial, conceptual, technical issues. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) for nonmajors. GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts.

01N:016 (SCLP:2820) Undergraduate Sculpture II
Continuation of 01N:015 (SCLP:2810); form, materials, processes, woodcarving, welding, concrete carving and direct application; expanding concept development; contemporary sculptural formats, collaborative process. Prerequisites: 01N:015 (SCLP:2810).

01N:017 (SCLP:2835) Welding and Fabrication
Metal welding, cutting, forging, and fabrication. Requirements: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520) for majors; 01B:001 (ARTS:1010) or 01B:090 (ARTS:1080) for nonmajors.

01N:019 (SCLP:2875) Sculpture Workshop
Critiques with focus on concept and form development; new processes. Prerequisites: 01N:015 (SCLP:2810).

01N:030 (SCLP:3810) Introduction to Art Studio
Exploration, design, and creation of interactive artworks, kinetic sculpture, robotic art, sound works, light art, and performance environments; application of basic electronics and mechanical techniques; use of programmable micro-controller Arduino.

01N:040 (SCLP:3895) Topics in Sculpture
Projects, reading; specialized conceptual forms and issues in contemporary sculpture, such as public art, installation. Prerequisites: 01N:015 (SCLP:2810).

01N:050 (SCLP:3840) Figure Modeling
Exploration of the human form with live model; clay on a wire armature, portrait modeling, relief. Prerequisites: 01N:015 (SCLP:2810).

01N:060 (SCLP:4825) Casting in Hot Metal
Foundry work, wax working, mold making, and processes. Prerequisites: 01G:184 (MTLS:4920) and 01N:016 (SCLP:2820).

01N:070 (SCLP:4830) Motion Systems for Visual Art
In-depth study of motion in art; study of nature, dance, and mechanisms used as inspiration; motion considered conceptually and mined for specific qualities based on student interest; basic mechanical systems (e.g., gears, pulleys, levers, cams); technical considerations (e.g., material choices for low friction interfaces, ball-bearings, various bushings); power transmission via motors, wind, and human power; discussion of mechanical systems.

01N:080 (SCLP:4899) Undergraduate Individual Instruction
Individual instruction in sculpture for advanced students.

01N:260 (SCLP:6899) Individual Instruction in Sculpture
Arr.

01N:264 (SCLP:6264) Graduate Sculpture Workshop
Critique seminar with readings for graduate sculptors and nonsculpture graduate students.

Bookbinding

01Y:015 (BKAT:4280) Artists' Books
Exploration of the book as a form for artistic expression; emphasis on conceptual development; relationship between content, form, and structure; how a book's structure and design can enhance and integrate part of the work's meaning. Prerequisites: 01Y:150 (BKAT:4205) or 108:150 (UICB:4205). Same as 108:154 (UICB:4280).

01Y:0150 (BKAT:4205) Bookbinding I: Materials and Techniques
Hands-on introduction to materials and techniques commonly used in bookbinding. Same as 108:150 (UICB:4205).

01Y:0151 (BKAT:4270) Bookbinding II
Build on skills acquired in 108:150 (UICB:4205); projects to complete six bindings based on historical and contemporary models; sewing styles, board attachments, endband types; nonadhesive and case-bound structures, varied materials and binding styles, their effects on structure, aesthetic considerations, further development of solid binding skills; historical development of particular binding practices. Prerequisites: 108:150 (UICB:4205). Same as 108:151 (UICB:4270).

01Y:0152 (BKAT:5210) Bookbinding III
Bookbinding structures based on historical and contemporary models; differences in various binding practices, how these differences affect function, why the styles developed; experience choosing appropriate structures for particular uses; emphasis on fine tuning skills and techniques required for advanced binding practices; sewn endbands, rounding and backing, sewing on varied supports, board attachments, and covering methods. Requirements: for 108:152 (UICB:5210) — 108:150 (UICB:4205) and 108:151 (UICB:4270); for 01Y:152 (BKAT:5210) — 01Y:150 (BKAT:4205) or 01Y:151 (BKAT:4270) or 108:150 (UICB:4205) or 108:151 (UICB:4270). Same as 108:152 (UICB:5210).

01Y:0153 (BKAT:5260) Studies in Bookbinding
Topics related to hand bookbinding. Same as 108:153 (UICB:5260).

01Y:0156 (BKAT:4210) Boxes and Enclosures
Hands-on techniques for a variety of book enclosures; appropriateness, aesthetic issues concerning box design; Japanese wraparound case, drop-spine box, hinged and lidded boxes, slipcase; technical skill development. Prerequisites: 108:150 (UICB:4205). Same as 108:156 (UICB:4210).

01Y:0157 (BKAT:4220) Moveable/Sculptural Books
Varied formats for moveable and/or sculptural books; history; readings, hands-on model making. Same as 108:157 (UICB:4220).

01Y:0158 (BKAT:4230) Pop-Up Book Structures
Calligraphy

01Z:133 (BKAT:5120) Western Papermaking History and Technique 3 s.h.
History and technique of traditional European hand papermaking and related aesthetics; students gain confidence in pursuing independent production of handmade papers or undertaking related research in their own particular areas of interest; fiber preparation, sheet forming, and drying/finishing methods; concurrent readings and discussions of related history and aesthetics; special projects selected by student with instructor approval. Same as 108:133 (UICB:5130).

01Z:142 (BKAT:4400) History of Western Letterforms 3 s.h.
History of Western letterforms, with focus on tools, materials, techniques; the major hands, their place in history, their influence on modern times; creation of letterforms using appropriate tools; hands-on approach with emphasis on understanding rather than mastery. Same as 108:142 (UICB:4400).

01Z:143 (BKAT:3400) Calligraphy: Foundational Hands 3 s.h.
Fundamental calligraphic skills using Roman majuscule, Humanistic miniscule, Italic; basic layout and color theory incorporated into letter practice. Same as 108:143 (UICB:3400).

01Z:146 (BKAT:4490) Studies in Letter Arts 3 s.h.

Papermaking

01X:104 (BKAT:3280) Elements of Book Art 3 s.h.

01X:110 (BKAT:3100) Papermaking 3 s.h.
History, fundamental techniques of Western and Eastern hand papermaking; projects in traditional sheet forming, basic paper chemistry, paper coloring. Offered spring semesters. Same as 108:110 (UICB:3100).

01X:120 (BKAT:5110) Islamic/Asian Papermaking History and Technique 3 s.h.
History, technique, and aesthetics of traditional Islamic and Asian hand papermaking. Same as 108:132 (UICB:5110).

01X:130 (BKAT:4100) Paperworks 3 s.h.
Conceptual and methodological approaches to 2-D and 3-D paper works; students create a body of works that couple the unique properties of paper-pulp medium with personal visual ideas and clarity of intent; contemporary issues in paper pulp and the medium’s relationship to larger art and craft contexts. Same as 108:130 (UICB:4100).

01X:131 (BKAT:5180) Advanced Projects in Paper Production 3 s.h.
Advanced independent projects undertaken in a classroom setting; collaborative group discussions to plan, implement, troubleshoot, and evaluate student projects. Prerequisites: 108:132 (UICB:5110) or 108:133 (UICB:5130) or 01X:120 (BKAT:5110) or 01Z:133 (BKAT:5120). Same as 108:131 (UICB:5180).

01X:136 (BKAT:5170) Advanced Papermaking Production 3 s.h.
Independent Western- or Japanese-style projects undertaken at UICB Research and Production Paper Facility at Oakdale Campus under faculty guidance; plan, implement, and evaluate professional scale production runs using full-scale equipment. Prerequisites: 108:132 (UICB:5110) or 108:133 (UICB:5130) or 01X:120 (BKAT:5110) or 01Z:133 (BKAT:5120). Same as 108:136 (UICB:5170).

01X:210 (BKAT:6099) Individual Instruction in Papermaking/Paperworks arr.
Prerequisites: 01X:120 (BKAT:5110).

Interdepartmental Courses

01P:029 (ARTS:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

01P:134 (ARTS:3230) Scene Design I 3 s.h.
Development of theatre scenery; how to research, conceptualize, and express ideas in three-dimensional models, simple sketches, and drafting. Same as 049:134 (THTR:3230).

01P:150 (ARTS:3320) Introduction to Sequential Art: Comics/Graphic Novels 3 s.h.
Overview of contemporary American comic artists, history of comics and graphic novels in the United States; genres and structures in sequential art; students create works that combine design, images, texts, story. Requirements: satisfaction of rhetoric requirement.

01P:160 (ARTS:4300) Letterpress I 3 s.h.
Mechanics of letterpress printing, typography, and design as applied to hand set metal type and edition printing; printing on a Vandercook proof press; introduction to photopolymer plates and methods of illustration related to edition printing, historical aspects of printing technology, typecasting, type classification; role of letterpress in modern private press and contemporary artist books. Same as 108:160 (UICB:4300).

01P:161 (ARTS:5340) Letterpress III: The Handprinted Book 3 s.h.
01P:162 (ARTS:4390) Book and Publication Design 3 s.h.
Students plan, design, and produce a book using Adobe Creative Suite; page layout software, typography, page layout and design, book formatting, handling of image files, preparation of materials for print and other contemporary book media; history of book design, book design in contemporary publishing; visit to University of Iowa Libraries Special Collections. Prerequisites: 01D:100 (DSGN:3120) or 108:160 (UICB:4300). Same as 108:162 (UICB:4390).

01P:163 (ARTS:4330) Digital to Letterpress Book Design 3 s.h.

01P:164 (ARTS:4340) Digital Design for Artists’ Books 3 s.h.
Introduction to concepts, techniques, and technologies used to design and produce artists’ books with personal computers and graphic design software. Same as 108:164 (UICB:4340).

01P:165 (ARTS:4310) Innovative Letterpress 3 s.h.
Creation of the visual book using letterpress printing; narrative, serialization, type as graphic, physical structure of the book; traditional letterpress printing, monoprinting, nontraditional letterpress techniques using technology ranging from metal to digital. Same as 108:165 (UICB:4310).

01P:167 (ARTS:5330) Letterpress III: Imagemaking 3 s.h.

01P:185 (ARTS:3400) Grant Writing in the Arts 3 s.h.

01P:190 (ARTS:4190) Honors in Studio Art 0-3 s.h.
Research, preparation, and exhibition of an honors project in studio art. Requirements: studio art major, UI g.p.a. of at least 3.33, and art g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

01P:199 (ARTS:4200) Topics in Studio Arts 3 s.h.

01P:299 (ARTS:6190) Graduate Independent Study arr.
Individual instruction by a faculty member.

Art Education for Undergraduate and Graduate Students

01E:143 (ARTE:3143) Methods of Art Education in Elementary Schools 3-4 s.h.
Application of studio methods to teaching children in Saturday Children’s Art Class Program. Same as 07E:143 (EDTL:3143).

01E:190 (ARTE:4099) Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in art education. Prerequisites: 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) and 01A:004 (ARTS:1520).

01E:196 (ARTE:3030) Designing and Teaching Art Workshops 4 s.h.
Overview; child, adolescent art; relationships with art, education; survey of literature; community art teaching experiences.

01E:290 (ARTE:6099) Individual Instruction in Art Education arr.

01E:367 (ARTE:6267) Seminar: Current Issues in Art Education 3-4 s.h.
Analysis of literature in art education and related disciplines. Same as 07S:367 (EDTL:6267).

01E:406 (ARTE:7206) Research in the Arts and Humanities 3 s.h.
Individual research under supervision; application to thesis preparation, doctoral prospectus development. Same as 07S:406 (EDTL:7206).

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/dwllc/asl

The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures offers instruction in languages of Asia and eastern Europe as well as in the literatures, civilizations, and cultures of the regions. In addition to offering degree programs, the department welcomes undergraduate and graduate students from across the University to enroll in courses that complement their degree programs or satisfy their personal interests.

The department offers language study in Chinese, Czech, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Polish, Russian, and Sanskrit.

Undergraduate students in all majors may satisfy the World Languages requirement of the General Education Program (p. 306) with courses in Chinese, Czech (effective fall 2013), Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Russian, or Sanskrit; see "Language for General Education" below. They also may get acquainted with Asia and Eastern Europe by taking any of the department’s General Education Program courses on Asian humanities and on Russian and Slavic literature and culture, all taught in English. Entering students may take the department's First-Year Seminars, one on Asian culture and civilization, the other on Slavic culture and civilization.

The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures is one of the academic units in the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (p. 222).

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in Asian languages and literature (Bachelor of Arts)
- Major in Russian (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in Asian languages
- Minor in Russian

The major in Asian languages and literature gives students the opportunity to develop advanced skills in an Asian language while they study the people, literatures, and cultures of Asia. Students choose one of four tracks: Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit.

Students interested in Asian studies may add a second major in international studies with an emphasis in Asian studies; see International Studies (p. 393) in the Catalog. Many other disciplines work well as second majors for Asian languages and literature students, such as history, art history, political science, religion, sociology, journalism, business, and anthropology.

Graduates have found careers in education, government, communications, business, and other fields in the United States and abroad. The program also provides excellent background for advanced study in a variety of fields in the humanities and social sciences and for professional schools, such as law and business.

The Russian major trains students in both written and spoken Russian and in Russian literature, culture, and civilization. The department encourages students to pursue a second major (e.g., global health, history, linguistics, political science) and to develop their interests in related or complementary fields. Students interested in focusing on a broader interdisciplinary understanding of the region may earn a second major in International Studies (p. 393).

Training in Russian is often an important asset to careers in the natural and physical sciences, engineering, medicine, business, journalism, library and information science, and the social and military sciences. It also may be appropriate preparation for study of law or international relations as well as Slavic languages and literatures, comparative literature, and other humanistic disciplines.

Some governmental agencies are interested in job candidates who have advanced training in Russian; these agencies give preference to applicants who combine strong language proficiency with a well-rounded background in area studies. Students who develop an exceptional facility with the Russian language may pursue careers in literary and technical translation and interpretation.

Bachelor of Arts: Asian Languages and Literature

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in Asian languages and literature requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 27-30 s.h. of work for the major. Students choose one of four tracks: Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit. Credit required for the major depends on choice of track; requirements for each track are listed below. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The amount of approved transfer credit that may be applied to the major varies by track; students should consult their advisors about courses taken at other institutions, including study abroad.

The major in Asian languages and literature requires the following work.

Chinese Track

The Chinese track requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the following courses.

CHINESE LANGUAGE

Students must successfully complete 039:105 (CHIN:2101) Second-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:106 (CHIN:2102) Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester (total of 10 s.h.) at The University of Iowa with a grade of C or higher, or the equivalent, before they may enroll in the following required courses.

All of these:

039:108 (CHIN:4101) Classical Chinese: First Semester 3 s.h.

Advanced Chinese language—one of these:

039:165 (CHIN:5101) Fifth-Year Chinese: First Semester 3 s.h.

039:240 (CHIN:5201) Seminar in Chinese Fiction 3 s.h.

Hindi Track

The Hindi track requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the following courses.

Additional South Asian studies courses numbered 100 or above, including 1-3 s.h. of independent study 16 s.h.

A list of South Asian studies courses numbered 100 or above (advanced) is available from the department.

Hindi track students are urged to fulfill the General Education Program (p. 306) Historical Perspectives or International and Global Issues requirement (3 s.h.) by completing 016:007 (HIST:2606)/039:057 (ASIA:2606) Civilizations of Asia: South Asia.

Japanese Track

The Japanese track requires 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students may apply a maximum of 12 s.h. of approved transfer credit toward track requirements. Those who are planning to study abroad should consult with their Japanese track advisors in advance to determine whether their planned course work abroad will be accepted toward track requirements.

The following courses are prerequisite to the Japanese track; students may not count credit earned in these courses toward track requirements.

39J:010 (JPNS:1101) First-Year Japanese: First Semester 5 s.h.

Work for the Japanese track includes third-year and fourth-year Japanese, literature and translation, linguistics and advanced language studies, and cultural studies. Students must complete the following courses.

THIRD- AND FOURTH-YEAR JAPANESE

Both of these sequences (12 s.h.):

LITERATURE AND TRANSLATION

Three of these (9 s.h.):

39J:130 (JPNS:3201) Workshop in Japanese Literary Translation 3 s.h.
LINGUISTICS AND ADVANCED LANGUAGE STUDIES

Students may substitute one of the following Slavic language two-course sequences for one of the four required Russian/East European culture courses (see list above). Availability of Polish language courses varies.

- 041:121 (SLAV:1121)-041:122 (SLAV:1122) Elementary Polish I-II
- 041:141 (SLAV:1211)-041:142 (SLAV:1212) Conversational Czech I
- 041:143 (SLAV:2211)-041:144 (SLAV:2212) Conversational Czech III-IV

Students majoring in Russian are urged to choose elective courses in economics, geography, history, political science, global health, and international studies. Nearly every avenue of professional training and employment requires a solid background in Russian area studies. For example, criteria for U.S. government employment include substantive knowledge in history, economics, political science, sociological disciplines, scientific specialties, demography, military-related skills, and in some cases, cultural and religious background. In-depth knowledge of literature or linguistics without other substantive background may be of limited practical use in finding employment.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

Students majoring in Asian languages and literature (Chinese or Japanese track) or in Russian who are interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for their major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services about requirements. Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Asian languages and literature majors must complete designated pedagogy and linguistics courses in the department in addition to the course work required for their major.

Students who plan to use their work toward a minor in Chinese, Japanese, or Russian as academic background for earning teacher licensure should contact the Office of Education Services about requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A.: Asian Languages and Literature

Before the third semester begins: for students in Chinese and Japanese tracks, language work begun (students in the Hindi and Sanskrit tracks may begin language work in their sophomore year)

Before the fifth semester begins: at least first-year language competency

Before the seventh semester begins: at least second-year language competency and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least third-year, first-semester language competency and one additional course in the major (two additional courses in the Japanese track)

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Russian

Before the third semester begins: competence in first-year Russian

Before the fifth semester begins: competence in second-year Russian

Before the seventh semester begins: competence in third-year Russian, an additional course in the major, and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester: competence in fourth-year Russian and two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major: Asian Languages and Literature

The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the Asian languages and literature major. Students who wish to graduate with honors in the major must have the consent of the department chair and a faculty sponsor (an Asian specialist from any department). They must register for 039:191 (ASIA:4301) Honors Tutorial and 039:195 (ASIA:4506) Senior Honors Thesis and must complete an acceptable thesis based on original research.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Honors in the Major: Russian

The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the Russian major. Students must have junior or senior standing, a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in Russian, and a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in order to enroll in the honors program in Russian. Students may earn up to 9 s.h. of honors credit in Russian; they earn 3 s.h. for each set of extensive readings with discussions, regular reports, and semester paper that they complete. Contact the department for information about requirements for graduation with honors in the Russian major.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor: Asian Languages

The minor in Asian languages is offered with four emphases: Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, and Sanskrit. Credit for the minor varies by emphasis. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Requirements for each emphasis are listed below.

CHINESE EMPHASIS

The minor in Asian languages with Chinese emphasis requires 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. earned in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. The minor must include the following course work. Some of these courses have prerequisites; students must complete all of a course’s prerequisites before they may register for that course.
Both of these sequences:

One of these:

039:141 (CHIN:3341) Chinese Literature: Poetry 3 s.h.
039:142 (CHIN:3202) Chinese Literature: Prose 3 s.h.
039:173 (CHIN:4206) Transnational Chinese Cinemas 3 s.h.
039:180 (CHIN:4203) Modern Chinese Writers 3 s.h.

HINDI EMPHASIS

The minor in Asian languages with Hindi emphasis requires 14 s.h., including 11 s.h. of advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. The courses 039:123 (SOAS:2101) First-Year Hindi-Urdu: First Semester and 039:124 (SOAS:2102) First-Year Hindi: Second Semester do not count as advanced courses for the minor.

JAPANESE EMPHASIS

The minor in Asian languages with Japanese emphasis requires 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa.

The following courses are prerequisite to the Japanese emphasis; students may not count credit earned in them toward requirements for the minor.

039:010 (JPNS:1101) First-Year Japanese: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:012 (JPNS:1103) First-Year Japanese: Second Semester 5 s.h.
039:102 (JPNS:3102) Second-Year Japanese: Second Semester 4-5 s.h.

The minor with Japanese emphasis must include the following courses.

039:105 (JPNS:3103)-039:106 (JPNS:3104) Third-Year Japanese I-II 6 s.h.
One course in literature and translation 3 s.h.
One course in linguistics and advanced language studies 3 s.h.
One course in literature and translation, or in linguistics and advanced language studies, or in cultural studies 3 s.h.

Students select the courses in literature and translation, linguistics and advanced language studies, and cultural studies from those listed under "Bachelor of Arts: Asian Languages and Literature"/"Japanese Track" above.

SANSKRIT EMPHASIS

The minor in Asian languages with Sanskrit emphasis requires 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. The advanced courses must be chosen from the following list.

039:111 (SOAS:2902) First-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 4 s.h.
039:112 (SOAS:3901) Second-Year Sanskrit: First Semester 3 s.h.
039:113 (SOAS:3902) Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 3 s.h.
039:186 (SOAS:4201) Third-Year Sanskrit: First Semester 3 s.h.
039:187 (SOAS:4202) Third-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 3 s.h.
039:216 (SOAS:5201) Individual Sanskrit for Advanced Students

The course 039:110 (SOAS:2901) First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester does not count as an advanced course for the minor.

Minor: Russian

The minor in Russian requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Russian courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. taught in English toward the minor. The department recommends that students choose 100-level courses for the minor, such as the following sequences.

041:109 (SLAV:3113)-041:110 (SLAV:3114) Beginning Composition and Conversation I-II 8 s.h.
041:111 (SLAV:3111)-041:112 (SLAV:3112) Third-Year Russian I-II 8 s.h.
041:113 (SLAV:4111)-041:114 (SLAV:4112) Fourth-Year Russian I-II 8 s.h.

Language for General Education

Undergraduate students in all majors may satisfy the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306) with course sequences in Chinese, Czech (effective fall 2013), Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Russian, and Sanskrit.

Students who have had experience with Japanese or Russian should take the appropriate University of Iowa language placement test, which helps determine the level at which they should begin study of the language. Students with backgrounds in Chinese, Czech, Hindi, Korean, or Sanskrit may receive individual evaluations from the department.

CHINESE

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement and is appropriate for students without previous knowledge of Chinese.

039:008 (CHIN:1111) First-Year Chinese: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:009 (CHIN:1112) First-Year Chinese: Second Semester 5 s.h.
039:105 (CHIN:2101) Second-Year Chinese: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:106 (CHIN:2102) Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester 5 s.h.

Students who have participated in 165:814 (ABRD:3411) Iowa in Tianjin after completing 039:008 (CHIN:1111) First-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:009 (CHIN:1112) First-Year Chinese: Second Semester, may fulfill the World Languages requirement with the following sequence.

039:008 (CHIN:1111) First-Year Chinese: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:009 (CHIN:1112) First-Year Chinese: Second Semester 5 s.h.
039:107 (CHIN:2103) Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: First Semester 3 s.h.
039:114 (CHIN:2104) Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: 3 s.h. Second Semester

Students who have taken 039:107 (CHIN:2103) and/or 039:114 (CHIN:2104) should not enroll in 039:105 (CHIN:2101) and/or 039:106 (CHIN:2102).

Additional course work is available, including advanced Chinese, classical Chinese, and business Chinese. Consult the department for appropriate placement in Chinese language courses.

CZECH

Effective fall 2013, the following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement and is most appropriate for students without previous knowledge of Czech.

041:141 (SLAV:1211) Conversational Czech I (effective fall 2013) 4 s.h.
041:142 (SLAV:1212) Conversational Czech II (effective fall 2013) 3 s.h.
041:143 (SLAV:2211) Conversational Czech III (effective fall 2013) 3 s.h.
041:144 (SLAV:2212) Conversational Czech IV (effective fall 2013) 3 s.h.

HINDI

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement. Additional courses are available.

039:123 (SOAS:2101) First-Year Hindi-Urdu: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:124 (SOAS:2102) First-Year Hindi: Second Semester 5 s.h.
039:126 (SOAS:3101) Second-Year Hindi: First Semester 4 s.h.
039:127 (SOAS:3102) Second-Year Hindi: Second Semester 4 s.h.

JAPANESE

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement and is appropriate for students without previous knowledge of Japanese.

039:010 (JPNS:1101) First-Year Japanese: First Semester 5 s.h.
039:012 (JPNS:1103) First-Year Japanese: Second Semester 5 s.h.
039:101 (JPNS:3101) Second-Year Japanese: First 4-5 s.h. Semester
039:102 (JPNS:3102) Second-Year Japanese: Second 4-5 s.h. Semester

KOREAN

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement and leads to elementary/intermediate proficiency in Korean.

039:040 (ASIA:1101) First-Year Korean: First Semester 4 s.h.
039:041 (ASIA:1102) First-Year Korean: Second Semester 4 s.h.
039:042 (ASIA:2101) Second-Year Korean: First Semester 4 s.h.
039:043 (ASIA:2102) Second-Year Korean: Second 4 s.h. Semester

RUSSIAN

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement.

041:001 (SLAV:1111) First-Year Russian I 5 s.h.
041:002 (SLAV:1112) First-Year Russian II 5 s.h.
041:003 (SLAV:2111) Second-Year Russian I 4 s.h.
041:004 (SLAV:2112) Second-Year Russian II 4 s.h.

SANSKRIT

The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program's World Languages requirement.

039:110 (SOAS:2901) First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester 4 s.h.
039:111 (SOAS:2902) First-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 4 s.h.
039:112 (SOAS:3901) Second-Year Sanskrit: First Semester 3 s.h.
039:113 (SOAS:3902) Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 3 s.h.

Related Certificate

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the Tippie College of Business offer the Certificate in International Business. The program entails study of international business and economics; international relations and institutions; a language; and the art, literature, culture, and/or politics of a geographic area. Students of Chinese, Japanese, Hindi, or Russian are likely to satisfy the certificate’s language requirement while completing the requirements for their major. For information about the certificate, see International Business (p. 387) in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in Asian civilizations

The master’s degree program in Asian civilizations prepares students for doctoral study in a variety of disciplines. It also may be good choice for students planning nonacademic careers in which advanced knowledge of Asian civilizations could be useful. For example, students working toward professional degrees, such as an M.D. or J.D., may decide to earn the M.A. in Asian civilizations while completing the professional degree.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in Asian Civilizations requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit, including 24 s.h. earned in residence at The University of Iowa. All students must maintain a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher. Detailed information on degree requirements is sent to all applicants.

M.A. students choose from several tracks: Hindi language and literature, Sanskrit language and literature, South Asian studies, Chinese literature and culture, Chinese linguistics, teaching Chinese as a foreign language, interdisciplinary Chinese studies, teaching Japanese as a... foreign language, Japanese studies, and interdisciplinary Japanese studies.

By the end of the first semester in residence, students propose a study plan developed in consultation with their advisor and in accordance with guidelines for specializations within the program.

By the end of the final semester in residence, students are expected to demonstrate, either by departmental examination or the successful completion of courses at the appropriate level, advanced competence in Chinese, Japanese, Hindi, or Sanskrit. Advanced competence is defined generally as fourth-year level course work in Chinese or Japanese and third-year level in Hindi and Sanskrit.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog. The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures requires a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 for regular admission and a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 for conditional admission.

Applicants must submit a statement of purpose, a research paper written in English, three letters of recommendation, and scores on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test. Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 590 (paper-based) or 97 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a foreign language (TOEFL).

Both international and U.S. graduate applications requesting financial support for the following academic year are due February 1. All other applications are accepted until April 15 for fall admission and October 1 for spring admission.

Application materials are available from the department.

Study Abroad

The department strongly urges its students to seek opportunities for summer language study and study abroad to accelerate the language acquisition process. The University’s memberships in the American Institute of Indian Studies and the China Cooperative Language and Study Programs consortium help facilitate students’ access to quality international programs in India and China. The government of the People's Republic of China offers scholarships for two students to live and study in Mainland China each year.

The UI-Nanzan Exchange allows Iowa students to pay Iowa tuition, room, and board while attending the Center for Japanese Studies at Nanzan University in Nagoya, Japan. There also is a cooperative agreement with the Landour Language School in the Himalayan foothills of India. The South Asian Studies Program has launched a new study abroad program in Mysore and Bangalore, India, where students have the opportunity to study a variety of aspects of traditional and modern Indian civilization.

Iowa students participate in summer, semester, or academic year programs in Russia under the auspices of the American Council of Teachers of Russian (ACTR), the association that directs academic language training programs in the cities of Moscow, St. Petersburg, and Vladimir.

Many students participate in summer, semester-long, and year-long study abroad programs in India, China, and Japan offered through other U.S. universities. In many cases credit is transferable, and it is possible for a student to study abroad and still complete the Four-Year Graduation Plan. There are many resources available for funding research and study abroad. It also may be possible for students to apply University of Iowa financial aid to their study abroad programs.

Contact the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures or International Programs Study Abroad for more information.

Summer Study, Internships

The department offers an intensive course of language study (second year) each summer in which students complete the equivalent of one academic year of study (equivalent of one course for each of two semesters, totaling 8 s.h.). Scholarships are available for summer intensive Russian.

Students are encouraged to enrich their programs of study through internships designed to combine work experience in Asia or the United States with study or research projects. The University’s Pomerantz Career Center keeps a list of internships.

Activities

Student Associations

Students have many opportunities to enrich their studies in Asian languages and literature while living in Iowa City. The University sponsors student associations for students from many Asian countries, including mainland China, Japan, Korea, India, Pakistan, and Taiwan. All University of Iowa students are welcome to join. Various international community groups sponsor cultural events and holiday celebrations throughout the year.

Residence in Living-Learning Community

The Global Mosaic Living-Learning Community welcomes American and international first-year and second-year students who wish to broaden their knowledge of international issues, languages, and cultures. Global Mosaic members live in Mayflower Residence Hall and enjoy a variety of programs on diverse cultures, the arts, fashion, cinema, dining and cuisine, study abroad, and more. Students must apply to live in the Global Mosaic Living-Learning Community; see the Living-Learning Communities web page.

Facilities

Language Media Center

The University’s Language Media Center provides facilities for language learning, teaching, and research. Equipment in the center includes state-of-the-art computer, audio, and video facilities as well as standard and short-wave radios, tape and cassette recorders, record players, and soundproof recording rooms. An electronic classroom, a soundproof workroom, and a library of tape, disc, and cassette recordings also are available.
University of Iowa Libraries
Since 1960 University of Iowa Libraries has routinely acquired most American titles in Asian studies and selected overseas scholarly publications in English and other Western languages. The Main Library’s Asian collection includes approximately 80,000 volumes in Asian languages and about 140,000 Western-language volumes on Asian subjects. The University has been a member of the Library of Congress Foreign Currency Exchange Program for Indian books and periodicals since 1975. The library’s nonprint media collection includes a growing number of Asian feature films. A Chinese-Japanese-Korean computer terminal gives students and faculty access to the growing Research Libraries Information Network database in Asian languages.

Financial Support
Undergraduate and graduate students have access to the following financial aid and scholarship resources. Contact the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures for application information.

Cheng/Liu Scholarship: Undergraduate and graduate students currently majoring in Chinese in the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures at The University of Iowa may apply for the Cheng/Liu Scholarship. The award can be used for summer Chinese language study.

Fairall Scholarship: Undergraduate or graduate majors who have attended and/or graduated from Iowa elementary or secondary schools may be nominated by the department to receive a Fairall Scholarship. Preference is given to Japanese studies students. Applications are available late spring, with scholarships to be awarded the following fall semester.

Foreign language and area studies fellowships: Only U.S. citizens are eligible. Graduate students combining work in Asian languages at an advanced level with interdisciplinary or professional programs may apply. The award is offered by International Programs for academic year and summer language study.

Graduate assistantships: The department offers teaching assistantships for graduate students in the program. All applicants to graduate study in the program receive information on applying for an assistantship. Assistantships are awarded each spring for the following academic year.

Graduate international research: Opportunities for funding research abroad include Stanley Fellowships for Graduate Student Research Abroad, CIREH Research Scholarships in International Health, Fulbright Grants, and Foreign Language Area Scholarships.

Summer language scholarships: Currently enrolled undergraduate and graduate students may compete for a Stanley-University of Iowa Foundation Support Organization Summer Language Scholarship, to be used for intensive summer language study in Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit. Eight to ten awards of $2,000–$2,500 are made each summer. Applications are due March 1.

Support for undergraduate study abroad: Opportunities for undergraduates to study abroad include the Presidential Scholarships for Study Abroad and the Stanley Scholarships for International Research and Study.

039:168 (ASIA:3560) Topics in Asian Religions  3 s.h.
Same as 032:170 (RELS:3560).

039:170 (ASIA:3655) Zen Buddhism  3 s.h.
Prerequisites: 032:004 (RELS:1404) or 032:006 (RELS:1506) or 032:010 (RELS:1510). Same as 032:188 (RELS:3655).

039:172 (ASIA:3890) Comparative Ritual  3 s.h.
Practice and theory; rituals from religions, including Hinduism, Buddhism, Christianity, Indian religions; theories of interpretation. Same as 032:172 (RELS:3890).

039:173 (CHIN:4206) Transnational Chinese Cinemas  3 s.h.
Films from Mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Chinese diasporic communities, silent era to present; relationship of film to nation-state, cultural interflows, media technologies, ideologies. English subtitles. Same as 048:174 (CCL:4674).

039:175 (ASIA:4166) Topics in Asian History  3 s.h.
Same as 16W:178 (HIST:4166).

039:177 (ASIA:6483) Second Language Classroom Learning  3 s.h.
Synthesis of empirical findings on children’s and adults’ learning of a second or foreign language; emphasis on theoretical underpinnings of approaches, methods, techniques in language teaching. Same as 164:171 (SLA:6506), 07S:183 (EDTL:6483).

039:178 (ASIA:3414) Government and Politics of the Far East  3 s.h.
Functions, institutions of government in countries of Far East; focus on social, economic, historical environments. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences. Same as 030:143 (POLI:3414).

039:180 (CHIN:4203) Modern Chinese Writers  3 s.h.
Readings in modern and contemporary Chinese fiction; in English translation. Same as 048:183 (CCL:4203).

039:183 (SOAS:3920) Enlightenment: Cross-Cultural Experiments in Religious Realization  3 s.h.
Enlightenment as one of the most important ideas that feeds contemporary religious and spiritual imagination; exploration of this concept in contemporary religious and spiritual discourse. Same as 032:182 (RELS:3582).

039:188 (ASIA:3775) East Meets West: The Western Reception of Eastern Religion  3 s.h.
Introduction of religious ideas and forms from India, China, and Japan into Europe and America to late 20th century, from Greeks to New Age. Same as 032:178 (RELS:3575).

039:196 (ASIA:4655) China Since 1927  3 s.h.
Communist revolution from 1920s to founding of People’s Republic of China in 1949; Mao Zedong’s radical policies, Cultural Revolution; Deng Xiaoping’s economic reforms; China today. GE: International and Global Issues. Same as 16W:198 (HIST:4655).

039:197 (ASIA:4657) Chinese History from 1600 to 1927  3 s.h.
Chinese history from the 17th to early 20th century, history of the Qing dynasty (1644-1911); Qing’s role in shaping aspects of today’s politics in China and the mentality of Chinese people; foundation of Manchu state in early 17th century, Ming-Qing transition in 1644, politics and society during the high Qing era, decline of the empire under foreign invasion and inner rebellions in the 19th century, collapse of the dynasty in 1911. Same as 16W:197 (HIST:4650).

039:198 (ASIA:4507) Topics in Asian Studies  3 s.h.
Topics vary.

039:199 (ASIA:4508) Asian Studies  3 s.h.
Japanese Culture and Civilization

Aspects of the Japanese language that reflect culture, social structures of Japan; communication styles and strategies, cross-cultural communication, language in media, metaphors.

Same as 032:116 (RELS:3660).

39J:123 (JPNS:3260) Japanese Painting 3 s.h.
Japanese painting in its historical, cultural contexts; focus on developments of successive eras—religious art; narrative, other literary connections; Zen; decorative traditions; popular arts; Japan and the modern world. Same as 01H:123 (ARTH:3260).

Cultural anthropology of Japan, including historical tradition, religious ethos, social organization, human ecology, educational and political institutions; emphasis on how these aspects relate to and influence one another. GE: Values, Society, and Diversity. Same as 113:125 (ANTH:2175).

Phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, pragmatics; basic structural features of Japanese language.

39J:129 (JPNS:3402) Japan: Culture and Communication 3 s.h.

39J:130 (JPNS:3201) Workshop in Japanese Literary Translation 3 s.h.

39J:135 (JPNS:3135) Postmodern Aesthetics and Japanese Culture 3 s.h.
Japanese postmodern trends (from Zen Buddhism to the habits of contemporary otaku consumers); examination of aesthetics including works of literature, film, visual art, and electronic media.

39J:141 (JPNS:3202) Traditional Japanese Literature in Translation 3 s.h.
From seventh century to early modern times. Same as 048:143 (CCL:3204).

39J:142 (JPNS:3203) Modern Japanese Fiction in Translation 3 s.h.
Nineteenth century to present. Same as 048:142 (CCL:3203).

39J:143 (JPNS:3204) Topics in Japanese Literature in Translation 3 s.h.
Topics vary.

39J:144 (JPNS:3205) Major Authors in Modern Japanese Literature 3 s.h.
Modern Japanese literary works in English translation.

Close reading in English of Murasaki Shikibu’s Tale of Genji; tale’s literary and social contexts, and later reception. Same as 048:144 (CCL:4201).

39J:146 (JPNS:3206) Warriors Dreams 3 s.h.
Images of the warrior in traditional Japanese literature, from poetry of the eighth century to romances of the 19th century; readings in English. Same as 048:147 (CCL:3206).

39J:147 (JPNS:3208) Introduction to Japanese Film 3 s.h.
History of Japanese cinema with particular attention paid to Japanese conventions and innovations that differ from classical Hollywood or European paradigms (benshi silent-film narrators, jidaigeki period films, wartime propaganda, postwar melodrama, avant-garde Japanese New Wave, rise of Japanese documentary, anime); screenings may include works by world-famous directors (Mizoguchi, Ozu, Kurosawa) and later masters (Ichikawa Kon, Suzuki Seijun, Itami Juzo); knowledge of film or Japanese is not necessary; all readings in English, films screened with Japanese subtitles.

39J:162 (JPNS:3700) Topics in Global Cinema 3 s.h.
Identification of new models and methods to investigate cinema’s relationship to current global issues beyond traditional scholarly focus in Western Europe and the United States; exploration of an emerging field, moving away from the paradigm of national cinema and bringing together shared theoretical frameworks while acknowledging different historical and cultural contexts. Same as 218:160 (WLLC:3700), 039:164 (ASIA:3700).

39J:172 (JPNS:4610) Japan--Age of the Samurai 3 s.h.
Society, culture, and politics of feudal Japan; social class, gender, norms, and political and economic developments explored through cinema and literature. Same as 16W:172 (HIST:4610).

39J:173 (JPNS:4615) Modern Japan 3 s.h.
Political, social, and cultural developments of Japanese feudalism; feature films, fiction. Same as 16W:173 (HIST:4615).

39J:175 (JPNS:4620) Japan--U.S. Relations 3 s.h.
Political, social, economic, and cultural developments in Japan mid-19th to late-20th century. Same as 16W:175 (HIST:4620).

Korean Culture and Civilization

039:174 (ASIA:4151) Selected Readings in Korean I 3 s.h.
Korean literary works and various readings related to Korean history, culture, and society; expansion of Korean literary and cultural knowledge through readings; advanced Korean texts. Prerequisites: 039:151 (ASIA:3102).

039:179 (ASIA:4152) Selected Readings in Korean II 3 s.h.
Slavic Culture and Civilization

041:102 (SLAV:3202) Russian Literature in Translation 1860-1917
Survey of major works, figures, and trends of 19th- and 20th-century Russian literature; age of the Russian novel; development of short fiction, drama, poetry of the Silver Age. Same as 048:107 (CCL:3302).

041:104 (SLAV:3131) Health Care and Health Reforms in Russia
Societal changes and their continuing effect on the Russian health care system since 1991; guest lectures from public health, nursing, medicine, cultural anthropology. Same as 152:170 (GHS:3131).

041:108 (SLAV:3990) Special Readings
Russian-language materials determined by student and instructor. Requirements: 16 s.h. of Russian language instruction.

041:134 (SLAV:3134) Forbidden Masterpieces: Russian and Czech Authors who Changed History
Examination of 20th-century literature written by authors fighting for the freedom of their nations, often suppressed, banned, imprisoned, or even stripped of their citizenship by the totalitarian communist governments; film screenings; works and films that made serious political statements, often at great risk to the artists involved, that influenced political changes. Taught in English.

041:150 (SLAV:2100) Secrets of Russian Mentality
Deeper insight of Russian mentality through philosophical, historical, cultural, and practical developments that have shaped Russian behavior and thought.

041:155 (SLAV:3122) Tolstoy and Dostoevsky
Tolstoy’s War and Peace, Anna Karenina; Dostoevsky’s Crime and Punishment, The Brothers Karamazov, and short stories. Taught in English. Same as 048:149 (CCL:3122).

041:157 (SLAV:3124) Invitation to Nabokov
Nabokov’s works and his writings on Russian literature.

041:160 (SLAV:2131) Women in Russian Society
Historical developments that have shaped women’s role in contemporary Russian society; readings in cultural history, political science, autobiographical and fictional literature, contemporary film. Taught in English.

041:164 (SLAV:2531) Topics in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies
Arranged.

041:165 (SLAV:3100) West and East: Women in the Slavic World
Roles of women in two Slavic countries—Islamic Republic of Dagestan in Russia, and the Czech Republic—using approaches from the social sciences and humanities; Christian/Catholic traditions in the western Slavic country (i.e., Czechoslovakia/ Czech Republic) and Islamic influences in eastern parts of Russia; analysis of women’s egalitarian roles in socialist societies of 1980s, the impact of the major political, economic, and social transitions on women’s lives in 1990s.

Undergraduate major: B.A., B.S. in Biochemistry
Graduate degree: M.S., Ph.D. in Biochemistry
Web site: http://www.biochem.uiowa.edu/

Biochemistry is the study of basic chemical processes that occur in and govern all living systems. Nearly all areas of the life sciences engage in biochemical research.

Biochemistry graduates with bachelor’s degrees often work as research assistants in industry, government, education, or health services; teach in secondary schools; or go on to advanced study in medicine, dentistry, or other areas. Those with advanced degrees pursue careers as teachers, researchers, or administrators in universities and medical schools, government, research agencies, and varied industries.

The Department of Biochemistry offers degree programs for undergraduates and for graduate students and administers the academic curriculum at both levels. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants undergraduate degrees in biochemistry and oversees undergraduate academic policy relating to the student record. The Graduate College grants graduate degrees in biochemistry.

Undergraduate Programs
• Major in biochemistry (Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts)

Bachelor of Science
The Bachelor of Science with a major in biochemistry requires a total of 120 s.h., including 71 s.h. of work for the major. In order to count transfer credit in biochemistry toward the major, students must have the approval of an undergraduate advisor in the department.

The biochemistry major for the B.S. prepares students to work in positions that require a mastery of general biochemistry. It is also excellent preparation for graduate study in biochemistry and related sciences or for study toward a professional degree in the health sciences.

Students are encouraged to take courses from other disciplines, such as business, pre-law, psychology, or journalism. This prepares them for a variety of career paths.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The biochemistry major for the Bachelor of Science requires the following course work.

All of these:
029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.
099:101 (BIOC:3101) Technical Communication in Biochemistry 1 s.h.
099:120 (BIOC:3120) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.
099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II 3 s.h.
099:140 (BIOC:3140) Experimental Biochemistry 2 s.h.
Advanced science electives, chosen in consultation with advisor 9 s.h.
One of these:
099:155 (BIOC:4155) Research, Independent Study 6 s.h.
Lab-intensive advanced science electives, chosen in consultation with the advisor 6 s.h.
One of these sequences:
Two of these:
004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
099:241 (BIOC:5241) Biophysical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
099:242 (BIOC:5242) Biophysical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
One of these:
004:141 (CHEM:2410) Organic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
004:142 (CHEM:2420) Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors (preferred) 3 s.h.

Students are encouraged to begin research by taking 099:115 (BIOC:3115) Undergraduate Independent Study (may be taken for a total of 6 s.h.), which has no prerequisites. The course involves experience in an active biochemistry research lab, which must be arranged ahead of time with a supervising faculty member. Students may make arrangements directly with the faculty member or they may request assistance from an undergraduate advisor. Credit earned in 099:115 (BIOC:3115) does not count toward the major, but it does count toward the minimum 120 s.h. required to graduate.

In order to register for 099:155 (BIOC:4155) Research, Independent Study, students must have a completed 099:120 (BIOC:3120), 099:130 (BIOC:3130), and 099:140 (BIOC:3140) with a grade average of B or higher. in the three courses, and they must not have earned a grade below B-minus in any one of them; or they must have their advisor’s consent and the instructor’s consent to enroll in 099:155 (BIOC:4155).

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in biochemistry requires a total of 120 s.h., including 55 s.h. of work for the major. In order to count transfer credit in biochemistry toward the major, students must have the approval of an undergraduate advisor in the department.

Students are encouraged to take courses from other disciplines, such as business, pre-law, psychology, or journalism. This prepares them for a variety of career paths.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The biochemistry major for the Bachelor of Arts requires the following course work.

All of these:

- 099:120 (BIOC:3120) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.
- 099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II 3 s.h.
- 099:140 (BIOC:3140) Experimental Biochemistry 2 s.h.

Advanced science electives, chosen in consultation with advisor 6 s.h.

One of these sequences:

One of these:

- 004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
- 004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
- 099:241 (BIOC:5241) Biophysical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
- 099:242 (BIOC:5242) Biophysical Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts students who intend to go on to advanced degrees in the biological or health sciences are advised to earn at least 4 s.h. in 099:115 (BIOC:3115) Undergraduate Independent Study or 099:155 (BIOC:4155) Research, Independent Study. There are no prerequisites for 099:115 (BIOC:3115). The course involves experience in an active biochemistry research lab, which must be arranged ahead of time with a supervising faculty member. Students may make arrangements directly with the faculty member or they may request assistance from an undergraduate advisor. Credit earned in 099:115 (BIOC:3115) does not count toward the major, but it does count toward the minimum 120 s.h. required to graduate.

In order to register for 099:155 (BIOC:4155) Research, Independent Study, students must have completed 099:120 (BIOC:3120), 099:130 (BIOC:3130), and 099:140 (BIOC:3140) with a grade average of B or higher in the three courses, and they must not have earned a grade below B-minus in any one of them; or they must have their advisor’s consent and the instructor’s consent to enroll in 099:155 (BIOC:4155).

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Students interested in teaching at the elementary and/or secondary level must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP). Several courses in the College of Education and student teaching are required. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins:

Before the fifth semester begins:

Before the seventh semester begins:

Before the eighth semester begins:

Before the eighth semester begins:

Before the ninth semester begins:

- the courses listed above, plus 004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I and 004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II, and at least one-third of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the tenth semester begins:

- the courses listed above, plus 004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I and 004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

During the eighth semester:

- enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins:

- 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II, math through 22M:026 (MATH:1860) Calculus II or above; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation
Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 002:010 and 002:011, 004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I and 004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I or 004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II or 099:241 (BIOC:5241) Biophysical Chemistry I or 099:242 (BIOC:5242) Biophysical Chemistry II, and a science elective

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Qualified students may work toward graduation with honors in biochemistry. They must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). To graduate with honors in the major, students must earn 6 s.h. in 099:120 (BIOC:3120) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I or 099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I or 004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II or 099:241 (BIOC:5241) Biophysical Chemistry I or 099:242 (BIOC:5242) Biophysical Chemistry II, and a science elective

Graduate Programs

• Master of Science in biochemistry
• Doctor of Philosophy in biochemistry

Students admitted to graduate study in biochemistry usually pursue the Doctor of Philosophy. Qualified students interested in earning the Doctor of Medicine along with the Ph.D. may apply to the Medical Scientist Training (p. 1038) Program, which offers a joint M.D./Ph.D. program.

Master of Science

The Master of Science program in biochemistry requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit, thesis research, and a thesis. See “Doctor of Philosophy” for information about the graduate curriculum.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in biochemistry requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The focus of the graduate program is on the individual student.

The 72 s.h. required for the degree includes 34 s.h. of course work and 16 s.h. of research credit. Students may take courses that enhance their educational goals. All Ph.D. students take the following 19 s.h. of course work; they choose an additional 13 s.h. from courses offered by the Department of Biochemistry and other University of Iowa departments.

099:261 (BIOC:5261) Research Techniques (first-year laboratory rotation) 1-5 s.h.
650:270 (GRAD:7270) Principles of Scholarly Integrity 0-1 s.h.
Biophysical chemistry (students typically earn 6 s.h.) 1-3 s.h.
Molecular or cellular biology (students typically earn 6-8 s.h.) 1-4 s.h.
Graduate seminar 3 s.h.

The following is a typical first-year curriculum.

First semester:
099:243 (BIOC:5243) Protein Structure, Function, and Regulation: Biophysical Chemistry Module 1 1 s.h.
099:245 (BIOC:5245) Protein Structure, Stability, and Folding: Biophysical Chemistry Module 2 1 s.h.
099:247 (BIOC:5247) Biophysics of Macromolecular Interactions: Biophysical Chemistry Module 3 1 s.h.
099:261 (BIOC:5261) Research Techniques 1-5 s.h.
156:201 (BISC:5201) Fundamentals of Gene Expression 1 s.h.
156:204 (BISC:5204) Biostatistics for Biomedical Research 1 s.h.
156:265 (BISC:5265) Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication 2 s.h.
650:270 (GRAD:7270) Principles of Scholarly Integrity 0-1 s.h.

Second semester:
099:226 (BIOC:5226) Enzyme Kinetics and Bioorganic Mechanisms 1-2 s.h.
099:244 (BIOC:5244) Ligand Binding and X-Ray Crystallography: Biophysical Chemistry Module 4 1 s.h.
099:246 (BIOC:5246) Enzyme Kinetics and Enzyme Mechanisms: Biophysical Chemistry Module 5 1 s.h.
099:248 (BIOC:5248) Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectroscopy: Biophysical Chemistry Module 6 1 s.h.
099:261 (BIOC:5261) Research Techniques 1-5 s.h.
142:215 (MCB:6215) Transcription and Multi-Functional Regulation by RNA 1 s.h.
142:217 (MCB:6217) Epigenetics, Cancer, and Mouse Models of Disease 1 s.h.
156:205 (BISC:5205) Practical Bioinformatics 1 s.h.
156:265 (BISC:5265) Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication 2 s.h.
099:282 (BIOC:5282) Seminar 0-1 s.h.
or
156:265 (BISC:5265) Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication 2 s.h.

Once students are promoted to the second year of study, they choose research laboratories for Ph.D. thesis research and begin their thesis projects. They take courses that supplement their interests and preparation, including the following.

099:282 (BIOC:5282) Seminar 1 s.h.
Graduate-level science electives 6 s.h.

Students take the comprehensive examination before the end of June in their second year, after which they are admitted formally to degree candidacy and begin to concentrate on thesis research. The program culminates in successful defense of completed thesis work before an examining committee.
In addition to meeting these requirements and those of the Graduate College, students are expected, as part of their training, to assist in teaching biochemistry for one semester.

Throughout the program, students are associated with faculty-directed research groups. They receive close personal attention from the biochemistry faculty members who serve as research advisors.

Admission

The graduate program in biochemistry is flexible enough to accommodate students with bachelor's degrees in any of the biological, biochemical, or physical sciences. Appropriate preparation includes one-year, college-level courses in organic and physical chemistry, biology, physics, and mathematics through calculus. Students are expected to have had one or more introductory courses in biochemistry.

Applicants must have an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and must submit acceptable verbal, quantitative, and analytical scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. Applicants are encouraged to submit their scores on the GRE Subject Test in Chemistry; Biology; or Biochemistry, Cell, and Molecular Biology.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Students admitted to the Ph.D. program in biochemistry routinely receive a stipend and tuition support.

Faculty and Research

The department's faculty members supervise research in biochemistry; molecular, cellular, developmental, computational, and structural biology; and model system genetics. Their work is supported by grants from the National Institutes of Health, the National Science Foundation, the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and other sources. To learn more about the department's faculty members and areas of research, visit the Department of Biochemistry web site.

Facilities

The Department of Biochemistry occupies 36,700 square feet on the fourth floor of the Bowen Science Building and 7,500 square feet on the third floor of the Medical Education Research Facility on the University's health sciences campus. It has a number of well-equipped research laboratories; other departmental facilities include the Biochemistry Stores, the Mattill Biochemistry Reading Room, and the Heath Conference Room.

The department makes available a number of shared instruments; among them are an Applied PhotoPhysics stopped flow spectrometer SX20 (2009); a Jasco spectrophotometer, model J815 (2010); a Horiba fluorolog-3 spectrofluorometer (2010); and a Beckman Coulter ultra XLI analytical centrifuge (1996).

Faculty, staff, and students in the department have access to a variety of shared Carver College of Medicine resources, including X-ray crystallography, the DNA Facility, the NMR Facility, the Proteomics Facility, the Flow Cytometry Facility, the Gene Transfer Vector Core Facility, the Small Animal Imaging Core, and the Transgenic Animal Facility. The University also supports resources such as the Central Microscopy Research Facilities and the Center for Biocatalysis and Bioprocessing.

099:161 (BIOC:8101) Biochemistry for Dental Students

099:162 (BIOC:8102) Biochemistry for Pharmacy Students

099:163 (BIOC:8103) Medical Biochemistry
Biochemical concepts and application to clinical problems. Requirements: M.D. enrollment.

099:164 (BIOC:8204) Biochemistry for Physician Assistant Students
Aspects of general biochemistry necessary for understanding the biochemical basis of human disease; analysis of appropriate clinical cases. Requirements: enrollment in Physician Assistant Studies and Services.

099:215 (BIOC:5215) Directed Readings for Graduate Students
Directed readings with course content arranged with professor.

099:226 (BIOC:5226) Enzyme Kinetics and Bioorganic Mechanisms
Principles and applications of steady-state and transient enzyme kinetics; mechanisms of catalysis of biochemical reactions. Prerequisites: 099:120 (BIOC:3120).

099:241 (BIOC:5241) Biophysical Chemistry I
Principles and experimental approaches used to study structure and function of biological macromolecules; protein structure, stability, and dynamics; macromolecular interactions; common biophysical methods. Requirements: one year of biochemistry. Recommendations: physical chemistry course and one semester of calculus.

099:242 (BIOC:5242) Biophysical Chemistry II
Principles and experimental approaches used to study structure and function of biological macromolecules; ligand binding and enzyme catalysis; X-ray crystallography; NMR spectroscopy. Requirements: one year of biochemistry. Recommendations: physical chemistry course and one semester of calculus.

099:243 (BIOC:5243) Protein Structure, Function, and Regulation: Biophysical Chemistry Module 1
Overview of principles of protein structure, stability, folding, and dynamics; brief treatment of structural biology approaches to help students become critical users of models derived from X-ray crystallography and NMR; taken alone or as part of 099:241 (BIOC:5241). Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry. Same as 156:206 (BISC:5206).

099:244 (BIOC:5244) Ligand Binding and X-Ray Crystallography: Biophysical Chemistry Module 4
In-depth examination of principles of ligand binding; experimental approaches to study interactions with small molecules, proteins, and nucleic acids; X-ray crystallography in determining structures of biological macromolecules; taken alone or as part of 099:242 (BIOC:5242). Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry.

099:245 (BIOC:5245) Protein Structure, Stability, and Folding: Biophysical Chemistry Module 2
In-depth examination of statistical thermodynamics and molecular forces in biological systems as related to protein structure, stability, and folding; nucleic acid structure and stability; taken alone or as part of 099:241 (BIOC:5241). Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry.

099:246 (BIOC:5246) Enzyme Kinetics and Enzyme Mechanisms: Biophysical Chemistry Module 5
Enzymes as unparalleled catalysts and representing a unique class of drug targets; organic chemistry of enzyme catalyzed reactions with emphasis on physical organic logic of sources of enzyme-catalytic power; enzyme inhibition by small molecules from a medicinal chemistry perspective; taken alone or as part of 099:242 (BIOC:5242). Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry. Same as 046:266 (PHAR:5566).

099:247 (BIOC:5247) Biophysics of Macromolecular Interactions: Biophysical Chemistry Module 3
In-depth examination of protein-protein interactions and protein-nucleic acid interactions; implications in biological motility, transcription, and replication; taken alone or as part of 099:241 (BIOC:5241). Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry.

Basic principles of nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) and applications important for understanding structure and function of biological macromolecules; emphasis on methodology and experimental design, interpretation of data, and critical reading of literature; intended for graduate students with an interest in applications of NMR to problems of structural biology; taken alone or as part of 099:242 (BIOC:5242). Requirements: one year of biochemistry. Recommendations: basic knowledge of spectroscopy and some previous exposure to NMR from basic chemistry courses.

099:253 (BIOC:7253) Metabolism I
Basics of carbohydrate metabolism (glycolysis, gluconeogenesis, the pentose phosphate pathway), hormonal regulation of carbohydrate metabolism, the citric acid cycle, amino acid catabolism, oxidative phosphorylation; assignment of an advanced topic related to material, typically a recent research paper, extending inquiry beyond that presented in class and presented orally at end of five-week module. Requirements: undergraduate biochemistry course or background in enzyme function.

099:254 (BIOC:7254) Metabolism II
Central carbon metabolism, carbohydrate biosynthesis in plants and bacteria, lipid structure/function, fatty acid catabolism, lipid biosynthesis, and biological membranes/transport; assignment of an advanced topic related to material, typically a recent research paper, extending inquiry beyond that presented in class and presented orally at end of five-week module. Prerequisites: 099:253 (BIOC:7253).
099:256 (BIOC:7256) Molecular Biology  1 s.h.
DNA, RNA, and protein metabolism, regulation of gene expression, and DNA-based information technologies.

099:261 (BIOC:5261) Research Techniques  1-6 s.h.
Laboratory rotation for first-year graduate students in biochemistry.

099:275 (BIOC:5875) Perspectives in Biocatalysis  1-3 s.h.

099:282 (BIOC:5282) Seminar  0-1 s.h.
How to evaluate reports of scientific investigations critically; techniques for presenting scientific information.

Undergraduate major: biology (B.A., B.S.)

Undergraduate minor: biology

Graduate degrees: M.S. in integrated biology; Ph.D. in integrated biology

Web site: http://www.biology.uiowa.edu

The Department of Biology offers undergraduate and graduate programs that prepare students for work in a wide variety of fields in business, education, foundations, government, health care, industry, and research. It also offers several courses that undergraduate students in all majors may use to satisfy the General Education Program (p. 306) Natural Sciences requirement and other courses on topics of general interest for undergraduate non-biology majors, including a First-Year Seminar designed for entering students.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in biology (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Minor in biology

The major in biology prepares students to enter research or service careers associated with private industry or government programs and for primary and secondary school teaching. It also prepares them to enter advanced degree programs leading to careers in higher education and to independent research in a variety of biological fields, or for practice in health professions such as medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing, veterinary medicine, medical technology, and physical therapy.

Students majoring in biology may earn a Bachelor of Science or a Bachelor of Arts degree. All students complete the chemistry/physics/mathematics foundation and the biology core. In addition, B.S. students choose one of six tracks, while B.A. students choose courses from several breadth menus and have a wider selection of elective courses.

The department acquaints undergraduate students with the nature of practicing scientists’ work by offering 002:189 (BIOL:4898) Entering Research, 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations (requires membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program), and 002:199 (BIOL:4899) Introduction to Research (requires a Department of Biology faculty sponsor). Students associate with one of the department’s research groups in experiments, discussion of current research, study of specialized topics, and attendance at research seminars.

Students interested in field biology, zoology, or botany may take varied courses in those subjects offered during the summer at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207), in northwestern Iowa.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science with a major in biology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 63-73 s.h. (18-19 courses) of work for the major. The major is divided into six tracks that emphasize the most dynamic and active areas in the biological sciences. Five of the tracks—cell and developmental biology, genetics and biotechnology, evolutionary biology, neurobiology, and plant biology—emphasize distinct areas. The sixth track—comprehensive biology—provides highly diverse content.

Students working toward a B.S. must complete the chemistry/physics/mathematics foundation, the biology core, and one of the six tracks. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). Students who wish to apply transfer credit toward graduation with a major in biology should consult their biology advisor.

CHEMISTRY/PHYSICS/MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

All of these:

004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

One of these sequences:

029:011 (PHYS:1511)-029:012 (PHYS:1512) College Physics I-II 8 s.h.
029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.
One of these:
22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.

One of these:
22S:030 (STAT:2010) Statistical Methods and Computing (preferred for evolution track) 3 s.h.
22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.

BIOLOGY CORE

All of these:
002:031 (BIOL:1411)-002:032 (BIOL:1412) Foundations of Biology - Diversity of Form and Function 8 s.h.
002:128 (BIOL:2512) Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.
002:131 (BIOL:3172) Evolution 4 s.h.

Tracks for the Bachelor of Science

Bachelor of Science students majoring in biology must select a single track. Each track includes seven or eight courses. The experiential elective requirement may be satisfied by taking an appropriate investigative lab for the track, or through several other options: students who use 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations must complete a minimum of 6 s.h. in that course; students who use 002:199 (BIOL:4899) Introduction to Research must complete a minimum of 5 s.h. in that course in combination with 1 s.h. in 002:189 (BIOL:4898) Entering Research; and students who use 002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology must complete a minimum of 4 s.h. in that course.

CELL AND DEVELOPMENTAL BIOLOGY TRACK

The cell and developmental biology track provides education in the structure and function of cells and in the principles of development as they apply to animals and plants. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in cellular and developmental biology, to prepare for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields, or to take positions in laboratories and companies engaged in cancer research and related fields.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)

One of these:
099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOL:3120) & 099:130 (BIOL:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

Group 2 (Cell/Developmental Biology Core)

This course:
002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.

One of these:
002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.

One of these:
002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory 4 s.h.
002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab 4 s.h.

Group 3 (Experiential Elective)

One of these:
002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory (if not used for group 2 above) 4 s.h.
002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab (if not used for group 2 above) 4 s.h.
002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.
002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab 4 s.h.
002:186 (BIOL:3656) Neurobiology Laboratory 4 s.h.
002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations (in cell/developmental biology) 6 s.h.
002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology 4 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

At least two of these, with a minimum of one course numbered 100 (3000) or above:
002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology (if not used for group 2 above) 3 s.h.
002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology (if not used for group 2 above) 3 s.h.
002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
002:170 (BIOL:4213) Bioinformatics 4 s.h.
002:184 (BIOL:4753) Developmental Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
002:180 (BIOL:3253) Fundamental Neurobiology 4 s.h.
002:168 (BIOL:4333) Genes and Development 3 s.h.
002:178 (BIOL:3314) Genomics 3 s.h.
002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:171 (BIOL:3713) Molecular Genetics 4 s.h.
061:157 (MICR:2157) General Microbiology 5 s.h.
061:147 (MICR:3147) Survey of Immunology 3 s.h.

EVOLUTIONARY BIOLOGY TRACK

The evolutionary biology track provides education in the principles of evolution as they apply to understanding diversity within and among species, from genomic, ecological, and historical perspectives. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in evolutionary biology and related fields or to take positions in laboratories using population genetics or phylogenetic approaches such as forensics, fisheries, and human disease mapping.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)

One of these:
099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOL:3120) & 099:130 (BIOL:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

Group 2 (Evolution Core)

Both of these:
002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.
002:134 (BIOL:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.

One of these:
002:178 (BIOL:3314) Genomics 3 s.h.
002:160 (BIOL:4373) Molecular Phylogenetics 3 s.h.
002:162 (BIOL:4273) Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution 3 s.h.
Group 3 (Experiential Elective)
One of these:
002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab 4 s.h.
002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations (in evolution) 6 s.h.
002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology 4 s.h.
159:195 (ENVS:3095) Field Ecology 4 s.h.
An approved Iowa Lakeside Laboratory course 4 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)
At least two of these, with a minimum of one course numbered 100 (3000) or above:
002:170 (BIOL:4213) Bioinformatics 4 s.h.
002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
002:168 (BIOL:4333) Genes and Development 3 s.h.
002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:160 (BIOL:4373) Molecular Phylogenetics 3 s.h.
002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:162 (BIOL:4273) Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution 3 s.h.
061:170 (MICR:3170) Microbial Genetics 3 s.h.

GENETICS AND BIOTECHNOLOGY TRACK
The genetics and biotechnology track provides education in the key principles of transmission, maintenance, regulation, and manipulation of genes. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in genetics or to enter the modern biotechnology industry. It also provides excellent preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)
One of these:
099:110 (BIOC:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOC:3120)-099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations 6 s.h.
002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology 4 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)
At least two of these, with a minimum of one course numbered 100 (3000) or above:
002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
002:184 (BIOL:4753) Developmental Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:181 (BIOL:4353) Neurophysiology 3 s.h.

NEUROBIOLOGY TRACK
The neurobiology track provides education in nervous system function at all levels, from molecular to systems biology. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in neurobiology and related areas, including psychology and the social sciences; to enter laboratories that study the therapeutic basis of neurological disorders; or to work in pharmaceutical companies. It also provides good preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)
One of these:
099:110 (BIOC:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOC:3120)-099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

Group 2 (Neurobiology Core)
All of these:
002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:143 (BIOL:3244) Animal Behavior 4 s.h.
002:180 (BIOL:3253) Fundamental Neurobiology 4 s.h.
002:186 (BIOL:3656) Neurobiology Laboratory 4 s.h.

Group 3 (Experiential Elective)
One of these:
002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory 4 s.h.
002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab 4 s.h.
002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.
002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations (in neurobiology) 6 s.h.
002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology 4 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)
At least two of these, with a minimum of one course numbered 100 (3000) or above:
002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
002:184 (BIOL:4753) Developmental Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:181 (BIOL:4353) Neurophysiology 3 s.h.
PLANT BIOLOGY TRACK

The plant biology track provides education in how plants grow, how they have evolved, and how they interact with other organisms. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in biology specializing in plants. It also is good preparation for positions in plant biotechnology companies that work in biofuels development, crop improvement, or carbon dioxide sequestration, or in agencies dedicated to the conservation of natural lands.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)
One of these:

- 099:110 (BIOC:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
- 099:120 (BIOC:3120) & 099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

Group 2 (Plant Biology Core)
Both of these:

- 002:134 (BIOL:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.
- 002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab 4 s.h.
- 002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.

Group 3 (Experiential Elective)
One of these:

- 002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab (if not used for group 2 above) 4 s.h.
- 002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab (if not used for group 2 above) 4 s.h.

COMPREHENSIVE BIOLOGY TRACK

The comprehensive biology track offers a diverse, well-balanced introduction to the major fields of biology. This track prepares students for graduate study in the biological sciences and in science education and for work in laboratories that engage in research and applications in many fields of biology. It also provides broadly based preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology)
One of these sequences:

- 099:120 (BIOC:3120) & 099:130 (BIOC:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II 6 s.h.

Group 2 (Cellular Biology)
One of these:

- 002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
- 002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.

Group 3 (Biological Systems)
One of these:

- 002:143 (BIOL:3244) Animal Behavior 4 s.h.
- 002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
- 002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
- 002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
- 002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.

Group 4 (Population Biology)
One of these:

- 002:103 (BIOL:2374) Biogeography 3 s.h.
- 002:134 (BIOL:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.
- 002:162 (BIOL:4273) Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution 3 s.h.

Group 5 (Investigative Lab)
One of these:

- 002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory 4 s.h.
- 002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab 4 s.h.
- 002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.

- 159:195 (ENVS:3095) Field Ecology 4 s.h.
- An approved Iowa Lakeside Laboratory course 4 s.h.

Group 6 (Experiential Elective)
At least one of these:

- 002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory (if not used for group 5 above) 4 s.h.
- 002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab (if not used for group 5 above) 4 s.h.
- 002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab (if not used for group 5 above) 4 s.h.
- 002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab (if not used for group 5 above) 4 s.h.
- 002:186 (BIOL:3656) Neurobiology Laboratory 4 s.h.

An approved Iowa Lakeside Laboratory course 4 s.h.
Suggested Schedule for First-Year Science Courses
The following first-year schedule of science courses is recommended for all biology majors (B.A. or B.S. students).

First-semester science courses:

- 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.
- Calculus or mathematics leading to calculus 5-10 s.h.

Second-semester science courses:

- 002:031 (Biol:1411) Foundations of Biology 4 s.h.
- 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.
- Calculus (if not taken during the first semester) 5 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in biology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 60-70 s.h. (19 courses) of work for the major. The major for the Bachelor of Arts prepares students for graduate study in the biological sciences and is especially appropriate for those interested in careers in biological science education at all levels. It also provides suitable preparation for professional positions in laboratory or field research or for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

The B.A. program is broadly based. It introduces students to key concepts in important areas of biology and, compared to the B.S. program, provides more flexibility in choosing elective courses.

Students working toward a Bachelor of Arts must complete the chemistry/physics/math foundation; the biology core; one course from each of three breadth menus; one course with a laboratory; and three elective courses, which may include one course in the history or philosophy of science. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who wish to apply transfer credit toward graduation with a major in biology should consult their biology advisor.

CHEMISTRY/PHYSICS/MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION
All of these:

- 004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II 3 s.h.
- 099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.

One of these sequences:

- 029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.

One of these:

- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.

One of these:

22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.

BIOLOGY CORE
All of these:

- 002:031 (Biol:1411)-002:032 (Biol:1412) Foundations of Biology - Diversity of Form and Function 8 s.h.
- 002:128 (Biol:2512) Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.
- 002:131 (Biol:3172) Evolution 4 s.h.

BREADTH MENUS
Students must complete at least one course from each of the following three breadth menus.

Molecular and Cellular Biology
002:114 (Biol:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
002:171 (Biol:3713) Molecular Genetics 4 s.h.

Developmental Biology and Physiology
002:104 (Biol:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:117 (Biol:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
002:124 (Biol:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
002:145 (Biol:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (Biol:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.

Ecology and Evolutionary Biology
002:103 (Biol:2374) Biogeography 3 s.h.
002:134 (Biol:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.

COURSE WITH A LABORATORY
One of these (must not have been used as a breadth menu course):

- 002:108 (Biol:2346) Vertebrate Zoology 4 s.h.
- 002:132 (Biol:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.
- 002:133 (Biol:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory 4 s.h.
- 002:135 (Biol:3736) Developmental Biology Lab 4 s.h.
- 002:138 (Biol:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab 4 s.h.
- 002:186 (Biol:3656) Neurobiology Laboratory 4 s.h.
- 002:196 (Biol:4999) Honors Investigations 6 s.h.
- 012:121 (Geos:3210) Principles of Paleontology 3 s.h.
- 061:157 (MICR:2157) General Microbiology 5 s.h.
- 099:140 (BIOC:3140) Experimental Biochemistry 4 s.h.
- Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses (students consult their advisors) 4-5 s.h.

ELECTIVES
Students complete at least three elective courses, which may include any course chosen from a breadth menu or from the list of courses with a laboratory that has not been used to satisfy those requirements, any other 2-4 s.h. course numbered 100 (2000) or above offered by the Department of Biology, any approved advanced biology course taught at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207) (students should consult their advisors), and/or any course(s) chosen from the following list:

- 012:107 (Geos:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.
- 012:122 (Geos:3220) Evolution of the Vertebrates 3 s.h.
- 012:170 (Geos:4700) Evolution of Ecosystems 3 s.h.
- 027:155 (Hhp:4130) Skeletal Muscle Physiology 3 s.h.
- 061:147 (MICR:3147) Survey of Immunology 3 s.h.
Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins:

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, 002:128 (BIOL:2512) Fundamental Genetics, 002:131 (BIOL:3172) Evolution, 029:011 (PHYS:1511) College Physics I and 029:012 (PHYS:1512) College Physics II or equivalents; five or six more courses in the major including an investigative lab; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above and two or three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

- Calculus (if not taken during the first semester) 5 s.h.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Biology majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education's Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Students with a strong interest in science teaching may complete a major offered by the Science Education Program. Students choose from emphases in biology, chemistry, earth science, and physics and earn a Bachelor of Science degree. They may apply for admission to the Teacher Education Program. See Science Education (p. 769) in the Catalog.

Honors in the Major

The department offers qualified students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the biology major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

In the Biology Honors Program, students gain an introduction to the pursuits of practicing scientists by associating with one of the department’s research groups and participating in an independent research project guided by a faculty member (the research supervisor).

Honors students write a thesis based on an interesting biological problem, which is usually identified by the research supervisor. The thesis should clearly document that the student has acquired the necessary experimental skills to address specific questions and test specific hypotheses related to the research problem. Honors Seminar in Biology [002:198 (BIOL:4998)], or an equivalent seminar, provides students with an ideal opportunity to improve their skills in seminar presentation and in writing scientific English. Throughout undergraduate residence, departmental honors students also may enroll in honors sections of courses offered by the Department of Biology and by other departments and programs.

To graduate with honors in the biology major, students must fulfill the following requirements:

- complete the requirements for a major in biology (either B.S. or B.A.) with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all course work in the major taken at The University of Iowa (including all biology courses and cognates in chemistry, physics, biochemistry, mathematics, and statistics);
- complete 2 s.h. in either 002:198 (BIOL:4998) Honors Seminar in Biology or an advanced biology seminar course;
- complete a minimum of 6 s.h. (taken over two or more semesters) of 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations;
- write a brief research proposal summarizing the background and goals of their proposed honors research;
- upon completion of their research, submit an acceptable honors thesis; and
- give a brief oral presentation of their research findings to other biology honors students.

Students pursuing a B.S. in biology may apply 6 s.h. of 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations toward the experiential elective requirement in an appropriate track. Students pursuing a B.A. in biology may apply 6 s.h. of 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations toward the required course with a laboratory and count the 2 s.h. earned in 002:198 (BIOL:4998) Honors Seminar in Biology toward the elective requirement.

Biology majors interested in graduating with honors in the major should contact the biology honors advisor as early as possible, preferably during their sophomore or junior year, so that they may be matched with an appropriate lab. Visit Biology Honors Program to learn more about honors study in the department.

Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack

Bachelor of Arts students interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. Designed for undergraduates majoring in biology, chemistry, environmental sciences, or physics, the joint program enables students to earn a B.A. and an M.A.T. in five years by beginning to earn graduate credit during their fourth year of undergraduate study and by counting up to 18 s.h. of qualifying credit toward both degrees. For more information, see “Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack” in the Teaching and Learning (College of Education) section of the Catalog. Interested students should consult an advisor.

Joint B.A./M.P.H. with Epidemiology Subtrack or M.S. in Epidemiology

Bachelor of Arts students majoring in biology who are interested in earning a Master of Science in epidemiology or a Master of Public Health with epidemiology subtrack may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/M.P.H. or M.S. program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Public Health. The joint program permits students to count 12 s.h. of credit toward the requirements of both degrees, enabling them to begin the study of public health before they complete the bachelor’s degree. For information about the M.P.H., see “Epidemiology Subtrack” in the Master of Public Health (p. 1171) section of the Catalog; for information about the M.S. program, see Epidemiology (p. 1154) in the Catalog.

Minor

The minor in biology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in biology courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses numbered 100 (2000) or above offered by the Department of Biology at The University of Iowa or in approved Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207) courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor and in the advanced courses. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may not use transfer courses to satisfy the advanced course requirement.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Science in integrated biology, with or without thesis
- Doctor of Philosophy in integrated biology

Department of Biology graduate programs emphasize original research and the skills essential for publishing and communicating research findings to the biology community. They prepare students for careers in the academic research community, education, industry, and government.

The department emphasizes the Ph.D. program. The M.S. without thesis is an exit degree program; entering graduate students are not admitted to the nonthesis program. Research programs in the department cover most areas of the biological sciences: cell biology, developmental biology, ecology, evolution, genetics, neurobiology, and plant biology.

When a new graduate student is admitted, he or she is assigned a temporary advisor. The student and advisor meet before registration to discuss the student’s educational background and to formulate a study plan for the first year. Students may be advised to take specific course work in order to enhance their background in certain areas.

During the first year, students whose preparation in chemistry, genetics, mathematics, and physics does not meet the department’s graduate entry requirements must remedy deficiencies by taking appropriate course work.

Minimum entry requirements are:
- two semesters of organic chemistry or one semester of organic chemistry and one semester of biochemistry;
- one semester of calculus;
- two semesters of college physics; and
- 20 s.h. of work in biology.

A student with a bachelor’s degree outside the biological sciences may request modification of certain area requirements; the Graduate Affairs Committee decides whether portions of the requirements may be waived. Students take 002:227 (BIOL:5412) Fundamental Genetics--Graduate Lecture and 002:228 (BIOL:5512) Fundamental Genetics--Graduate Discussion during the first year, but they may be excused from this requirement by the Graduate Affairs Committee if they already have taken equivalent course work. After the first year, students are advised by their research sponsor and dissertation committee.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in integrated biology requires 30 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis and 34 s.h. of graduate credit without thesis. All M.S. students take a seminar (2 s.h.) with a substantial writing and oral presentation requirement and two advanced lecture-based courses in biology. Students receive academic credit for courses required for an M.S. or Ph.D. but not for courses taken to remedy undergraduate deficiencies.

Thesis students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. of research credit toward the degree. Remaining course work is tailored to the student’s background and career goals and is selected in consultation with the student’s advisory committee. The thesis is based on original research. After the thesis is accepted by the student’s supervisor and advisory committee, the student must pass an oral examination based on the thesis research and on related subjects.

Nonthesis students must write a library research report for a maximum of 4 s.h. of credit. They may apply up to 8 s.h. of research credit toward the degree. The nonthesis program may include credit earned in biology or cognate sciences; course work is tailored to the student’s background and career goals and is selected in consultation with the student’s advisory committee.

Upon completion of the 34 s.h. and acceptance of the research report by the faculty sponsor, the nonthesis student must pass a written examination covering the graduate program in integrated biology, including the area of the research report.

See The Graduate Program on the Department of Biology web site to learn more about course work and details of the M.S. program.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in integrated biology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The department expects new Ph.D. students to do research in three laboratories on a rotating basis during their first semester (August-December). Students consult with their temporary advisors and with prospective faculty research sponsors before identifying their preferences for research rotations. They choose a permanent laboratory affiliation based on their rotations.

During the first year, students are required to enroll in 002:200 (BIOL:6298) Concepts, Models, and Systems in Biology (COSMOS) Seminar, which introduces students to multiple levels of biological analysis and provides them with significant opportunities to hone their skills in written and oral communication. At the end of the first year, students take a qualifying exam that consists of essay questions based on major themes in biology; students’ performance on this exam determines whether or not they may continue in the program.

During the first two years, students must enroll in at least two advanced lecture courses, one seminar course (2 s.h.) that has a significant writing component, and a course on scientific writing designed for graduate students.

Each student’s dissertation committee determines additional formal course work and proficiency requirements based on the student’s background and current and prospective research interests. The committee also determines what portion of the formal course work or proficiency requirements the student must complete before taking the comprehensive examination.

For the comprehensive examination, students prepare a National Institutes of Health/National Science Foundation-style grant application on their planned thesis work and answer questions about the document in an oral exam. Students must demonstrate knowledge of biology fundamentals and the analytic and synthetic skills necessary to become creative, independent scientists. Once they complete the course work and proficiency requirements and pass the comprehensive examination, students may be admitted to full candidacy for the Ph.D.

Ph.D. students also must develop and demonstrate teaching skills by serving as teaching assistants for at least two semesters. The first teaching semester takes place during spring of the student’s first year; it includes at least two semesters. The first teaching semester takes place during spring of the student’s first year; it includes extensive departmental training in effective teaching skills.

The program culminates in students’ preparation of a dissertation based on original independent research. Students must pass a final examination that covers the thesis and its specialized field before the Ph.D. is awarded.

See The Graduate Program on the Department of Biology web site to learn more about course work and details of the Ph.D. program.

Admission

The department considers applications to the Doctor of Philosophy program and the Master of Science program with thesis. The Master of Science without thesis is an exit degree; entering graduate students are not admitted to the nonthesis program.

Application materials for the graduate program must be sent both to the University’s Office of Admissions and to the Department of Biology graduate admissions committee. Complete instructions are listed on the application form; contact the Department of Biology or visit its web site. Applicants should have official transcripts from each undergraduate and graduate institution they have attended sent to both the Office of Admissions and the Department of Biology. They also should arrange to have official scores from the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test (verbal, quantitative, and analytical writing) sent to both offices. A valid B.A. or B.S. from an accredited institution is required.

Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 600 (paper-based) or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and have their score sent to the Office of Admissions. International applicants who received their degrees (either bachelor’s or master’s) from a U.S. institution are exempt from this requirement. All international students whose first language is not English are required to take an English proficiency exam when they first enroll for classes.

Successful applicants for graduate admission usually have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and score above 1200 (combined verbal and quantitative) on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test taken before August 2011; or 308 (combined verbal and quantitative) on the GRE taken August 2011 or later. These criteria are general guidelines for the admissions committee, which also considers letters of recommendation, research experience, and other appropriate criteria.

Although most applicants have completed undergraduate programs in biology, the department also considers applicants with backgrounds in related sciences providing they have taken the required course work.

Students applying for admission to the M.S. with thesis program should have a bachelor’s degree in one of the biological sciences. Students with bachelor’s degrees in other areas may need to register as nondegree students (A9 or G9) and make up the equivalent of the department’s bachelor’s degree program prior to consideration for admission. Nondegree students must complete chemistry, physics, and calculus requirements in addition to the biology courses listed in the undergraduate program. Nondegree students should consult the department’s graduate program administrator before applying for admission.

Applications should be submitted by January 1 (check the Department of Biology web site for current deadlines) and must include the applicant’s GRE test scores. In order to meet the deadline, applicants must take the GRE in October or earlier. Late applications are considered as placement and funding permit.

For more information about graduate programs in integrated biology, visit the Department of Biology web site. Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

All graduate students making satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D. receive stipends and full tuition support from non-University of Iowa fellowships, teaching assistantships, or research assistantships available through individual research grants administered by faculty members or by the University. First-year Ph.D. students are supported by department fellowships during the research rotation period and by teaching assistantships during the spring semester.

Facilities

The department is housed in two contiguous buildings, with modern facilities and equipment for state-of-the-art research.

Facilities include the Keck Dynamic Image Analysis Facility, which couples sophisticated state-of-the-art microscopy and computerized motion analysis to permit three-dimensional real-time analysis of cell movement in vitro and in situ. The Roy J. Carver Center for Genomics houses the department’s DNA sequencing, oligo synthesis, quantitative PCR, functional genomics/microarray facilities, and informatics facilities. The Roy J. Carver Center for Imaging is a well-staffed microscopy and imaging facility; its newly established confocal microscope is available for teaching and research.

A large greenhouse is used in plant research and education.

The department also houses animal-care facilities suitable for mice, rats, rabbits, Xenopus laevis, and zebra fish. These facilities are managed by the University’s animal care unit, which is accredited by the Association for Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care. A central University facility provides assistance in the preparation of transgenic mice.

The department is home to the Developmental Studies Hybridoma Bank, which is affiliated with the National Institutes of Health. The hybridoma bank collects and distributes monoclonal antibodies that originate in laboratories all over the world. Its collection now contains more than 1300 monoclonal antibodies that are distributed to users internationally for a modest fee.

In addition to department facilities, the University offers a genomic sequencing service, a DNA oligonucleotide synthesis and enzyme lab, oligopeptide synthesis and sequencing equipment, and mass- and NMR spectroscopy facilities. The Center for Biocatalysis and Bioprocessing is available for growing large amounts of microorganisms (e.g., 100 liters) for use in protein isolation.

Iowa Lakeside Laboratory

The Iowa Lakeside Laboratory is a field station run cooperatively by The University of Iowa, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa. Located on West Lake Okoboji, in northwestern Iowa, the laboratory affords excellent conditions for summer study in field biology, limnology, phyology, aquatic ecology, polination biology, and plant taxonomy. It offers a wide variety of summer courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Students should check with their advisors to determine whether specific courses may be counted toward requirements for graduation. See Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207) (University College) in the Catalog or visit the Lakeside Laboratory web site.
Courses

Many courses include field and/or laboratory components.

Primarily for Undergraduates

002:001 (BIOL:1261) Introduction to Botany 4 s.h.
Biology of plant life; emphasis on structure, function, reproduction, inheritance, diversity, evolution. Requirements: one year of high school chemistry. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

002:002 (BIOL:1141) Introductory Animal Biology 4 s.h.

002:028 (BIOL:1808) Ways of Knowing Science 1 s.h.
Science as a powerful way of knowing based on experimentation and observation of natural world; introduction to subdivisions of scientific research; scope and methods of scientific research; questions that scientific research seek answers for; methods that scientists use to obtain answers to their questions; how science affects us personally and how it affects the rest of society; research seminars, discussion, and exploration.

002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology 4 s.h.
Unifying concepts of living systems; emphasis on common properties and processes; chemical and cellular basis of life, genetics, and evolution. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110). GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

002:032 (BIOL:1412) Diversity of Form and Function 4 s.h.
Underlying unifying concepts of life; emphasis on diversity of living systems; the tree of life, cellular evolution, prokaryotic diversity, plant and animal form and function; interactions among diverse forms of life and their environment. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411). Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:031 (BIOL:1411). GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

002:050 (BIOL:1060) Origins of Life in the Universe 3 s.h.
Fundamental questions (How old is the universe? What is the nature of life? How has life evolved on Earth? What are our human origins? Are there other habitable planets in the universe?) that revolve around understanding origins from different perspectives (i.e., astronomy, physics, geoscience, biology, chemistry, anthropology); work with faculty from several departments to investigate these questions; inquiry-based activities to build success in critical thinking, teamwork, and effective written and oral communication; second of a two-part sequence. Recommendations: first-year or sophomore standing. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 029:041 (ASTR:1061), 012:046 (GEOS:1060), and 012:045 (GEOS:1060). 002:051 (BIOL:1061) Origins of Life in the Universe (Part 2) 4 s.h.

002:013 (BIOL:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.
Adaptations of organisms to their physical and biological environments; organism-environment interactions; population biology; interactions between species; ecology of communities, ecosystems; human impact on ecosystems. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411), 002:032 (BIOL:1412), and 02M:016 (MATH:1460) or 02M:025 (MATH:1850) or 02M:031 (MATH:1550). Corequisite: a basic statistics course. Same as 159:134 (ENVS:2673).

002:128 (BIOL:2512) Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.

002:134 (BIOL:2673) Ecology 3-4 s.h.
Adaptations of organisms to their physical and biological environments; organism-environment interactions; population biology; interactions between species; ecology of communities, ecosystems; human impact on ecosystems. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411), 002:032 (BIOL:1412), and 22M:016 (MATH:1460) or 22M:025 (MATH:1850) or 22M:031 (MATH:1550). Recommendations: a basic statistics course. Same as 159:134 (ENVS:2673).

002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
Techniques of molecular biology, genomics, neuropharmacology, and functional brain imaging applied to understanding how the brain works. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412).
Elementary Topics of General Interest

These courses are not open to graduate students and do not provide credit toward a biology major.

002:021 (BIOL:1140) Human Biology 4 s.h.
Molecular and cellular basis of human life; integration of humans and the biosphere through photosynthesis, respiration; structure, function of human tissues, organs, organ systems; reproduction, genetics, impact of molecular biology and genetic engineering; lecture, laboratory. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

002:022 (BIOL:1370) Understanding Evolution 3 s.h.
Evolution and diversity of living things, their patterns on Earth, their organization in ecological systems; dynamics of evolutionary processes. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

002:029 (BIOL:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities, field trips). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

002:040 (BIOL:1251) How the Brain Works (and Why It Doesn't) 3-4 s.h.
Introductory survey of neuroscience; structure and function of the brain; nature of consciousness; brain function in mental illness and degenerative disorders; genes and the mind; perception, sensation, memory, and emotions. Requirements: non-biology major. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

002:081 (BIOL:1311) Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century 3 s.h.
Heredity in human families, populations; genetic basis of normal, abnormal traits; chromosome behavior; molecular basis of genetics; sex determination. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab. Same as 113:081 (ANTH:1310).

002:087 (BIOL:1360) Spring Flora 3 s.h.
Recognition and identification of spring-flowering herbaceous plants, native woodland trees and shrubs, woody landscape plants; family characteristics, use of taxonomic key.

002:095 (BIOL:1260) Plants and Human Affairs 2-3 s.h.
How plants are useful to people: food, clothing, shelter, medicines, psychoactive agents; plants' social, economic, ecological significance. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

002:099 (BIOL:2211) Genes, Genomes, and the Human Condition 3 s.h.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

002:101 (BIOL:3898) Teaching Internship in Biology 2 s.h.
Training in teaching the laboratory component of a large General Education biology course; weekly session with instructor, shadowing and assisting a graduate teaching assistant in a lab section, leading laboratory exercises. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412). Requirements: grades of B or higher in 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412), and junior or senior standing.

002:104 (BIOL:3233) Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
Fundamental mechanisms in differentiation, organogenesis, morphogenesis; and pattern formation; mechanistic approach at molecular, cellular, tissue levels of organizations. Prerequisites: 002:032 (BIOL:1412), 002:128 (BIOL:2512), and 004:012 (CHEM:1120). Requirements: grades of C- or higher in 002:032 (BIOL:1412) and 002:128 (BIOL:2512).

002:117 (BIOL:3363) Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
Developmental processes throughout life cycle of vascular plants; current knowledge of mechanisms, control; emphasis on molecular and genetic approaches to studying development. Prerequisites: 002:128 (BIOL:2512).

002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.

002:131 (BIOL:3172) Evolution 4 s.h.

002:132 (BIOL:3676) Evolution Lab 4 s.h.
Methods of sampling and describing variation in natural populations; application of molecular genetic, bioinformatic, and computational techniques to describe genetic variation through sequence analysis; use of controlled laboratory experiments and computer simulations to illustrate evolutionary principles. Prerequisites: 002:128 (BIOL:2512). Corequisites: 002:131 (BIOL:3172), if not taken as a prerequisite.

002:133 (BIOL:3626) Cell Biology Laboratory 4 s.h.
Conceptual understanding and technical skills in fluorescence microscopy and digital imaging, mammalian cell culture, tissue fractionation, centrifugation, electrophoresis, and expression of recombinant proteins. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411), 002:032 (BIOL:1412), and 002:114 (BIOL:2723).
002:135 (BIOL:3736) Developmental Biology Lab
4 s.h.
Experimental manipulation of embryos to examine mechanisms of early development, including gametogenesis and fertilization, cleavage, gastrulation, pattern formation and organogenesis; in vivo imaging of development, methods to visualize gene expression and independent research; model organisms including sea urchin, fish, frog, chick, mouse. Prerequisites: 002:104 (BIOL:3233) and 002:128 (BIOL:2512).

002:138 (BIOL:3716) Genetics and Biotechnology Lab
4 s.h.

002:143 (BIOL:3244) Animal Behavior
4 s.h.
Genetics, sensory physiology, migration, development of behavior, circadian rhythms, foraging strategies, aggression, sexual and parental behavior, group selection, social behavior. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412).

002:160 (BIOL:4373) Molecular Phylogenetics
3 s.h.
Theory underlying phylogenetic analysis with application of these methods to molecular data sets; analysis of multigene data, organellar, and nuclear genome sequences to reconstruct the history of cells. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:131 (BIOL:3172) or graduate standing.

002:162 (BIOL:4273) Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution
3 s.h.
Nucleotide sequences, genes, and mutation; rates and patterns of nucleotide substitution; selection at the molecular level and the neutral theory; population genetics theory; genome evolution. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:131 (BIOL:3172) or graduate standing.

002:168 (BIOL:4333) Genes and Development
3 s.h.
Mechanisms by which genes control development of multicellular animals; methodology of scientific research applied to developmental genetics. Requirements: grade of B or higher in 002:128 (BIOL:2512). Recommendations: 002:104 (BIOL:3233).

002:170 (BIOL:4213) Bioinformatics
4 s.h.
Overview of bioinformatics topics, including access to sequence data, pairwise and multiple sequence alignment algorithms, molecular phylogeny, microarray data analysis, protein analysis, proteomics and protein structure analysis; emphasis on each topic includes biological motivation, computational approach (practical and theoretical), and interpretation of output. Prerequisites: 002:128 (BIOL:2512) or 099:120 (BIOL:3120). Recommendations: grade of B+ or higher in 002:128 (BIOL:2512) or 099:120 (BIOL:3120), or graduate standing. Same as 127:170 (GENE:6170).

002:171 (BIOL:3713) Molecular Genetics
4 s.h.
Mechanism, regulation of RNA, DNA, protein biosynthesis, with emphasis on methods of genetic analysis; application of modern recombinant DNA techniques to basic problems. Requirements: 002:128 (BIOL:2512) or 099:120 (BIOL:3120) or first-year graduate standing.

002:178 (BIOL:3314) Genomics
3 s.h.
Major areas of genomics, including DNA and protein sequence analysis, structural diversity of whole genomes, microarray applications, proteomics; computer workshop experience in applying bioinformatics tools. Prerequisites: 002:128 (BIOL:2512) or 099:120 (BIOL:3120).

002:180 (BIOL:3253) Fundamental Neurobiology
4 s.h.
Cellular neurobiology (cytoskeleton and transport, membrane physiology, synaptic transmission and plasticity, sensory transduction); systems neurobiology (peripheral and central sensory processing, autonomic and somatic motor systems); cognitive neurobiology (emotion, biological rhythms and sleep, memory, attention, language); developmental neurobiology. Prerequisites: 002:145 (BIOL:2753). Recommendations: 002:114 (BIOL:2723) and 099:110 (BIOL:3110). Same as 132:180 (NSCI:7180).

002:181 (BIOL:4353) Neurophysiology
3-4 s.h.
Physiological properties of nerve cells, nervous systems; axonal conduction, synaptic transmission, sensory transduction, integrative processes, higher functions. Prerequisites: 002:145 (BIOL:2753) or 002:180 (BIOL:3253), 22M:016 (MATH:1460) or 22M:025 (MATH:1850), and 029:012 (PHYS:1512) or 029:082 (PHYS:1612). Same as 132:181 (NSCI:4353).

002:184 (BIOL:4753) Developmental Neurobiology
3 s.h.
Neural induction and nervous system patterning; neurogenesis, axon and dendrite outgrowth and targeting; synapse formation, specificity, refinement; mechanisms of neuronal cell death; myelination; neural stem cells; introduction to cellular, molecular, and genetic techniques in studies of neural development. Prerequisites: 002:145 (BIOL:2753). Corequisites: 002:180 (BIOL:3253). Requirements: grade of B- or higher in 002:145 (BIOL:2753) or graduate standing. Same as 072:184 (MPB:5184), 132:184 (NSCI:6184).

002:186 (BIOL:3656) Neurobiology Laboratory
4 s.h.
Principles and practice of neurobiology research, including microscopy and imaging, cellular and molecular neurobiology, and electrophysiology. Prerequisites: 002:145 (BIOL:2753).

002:188 (BIOL:4897) Advanced Teaching Internship in Biology
arr.
Teaching the laboratory component of a large introductory-level biology course; weekly training session with instructor; shadowing and assisting a graduate teaching assistant in a weekly lab section. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412). Requirements: grades of B- or higher in 002:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412), junior or senior standing, and interview with instructor.

002:189 (BIOL:4898) Entering Research
1 s.h.
Independent, investigative research experience; research process —establishing goals and expectations with a mentor, defining a research hypothesis, presentation of results in written and oral form; supportive learning environment to share research experiences and develop identities as scientists, explore relationships between medicine and research, and learn skills to become effective independent researchers. Corequisites: 002:196 (BIOL:4999) or 002:199 (BIOL:4899).

002:192 (BIOL:3743) Basic Biology of Human Disease
2 s.h.

Basic problems of infectious disease; selected viral, bacterial, and fungal pathogens, with emphasis on fungal pathogenesis; DNA fingerprinting; epidemiological study of disease dynamics. Prerequisites: 002:128 (BIOL:2512).

002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations
Conduct independent scientific research related to the field of biology. Requirements: honors standing in biology, UI g.p.a. of at least 3.33, and biology g.p.a. of at least 3.33.

002:198 (BIOL:4998) Honors Seminar in Biology
2 s.h.
Requirements: honors standing.

002:199 (BIOL:4899) Introduction to Research
2-3 s.h.
Conduct independent scientific research related to the field of biology.

Primary for Graduate Students

002:174 (BIOL:5320) Computational Genomics
3 s.h.
Introduction to computational methods used in genome analysis and functional genomics; biological sequence analysis, sequence database search, microarray data analysis, biological network analysis; in-depth coverage of principal genome science challenges and recent solutions. Same as 051:122 (BME:5330), 127:173 (GENE:5173), 055:122 (ECE:5220).

002:190 (BIOL:5177) Topics in Evolution and Ecology
1-2 s.h.
Requirements: grades of B- or higher in 002:128 (BIOL:2512) and 002:131 (BIOL:3172), or graduate standing.

002:191 (BIOL:5117) Topics in Molecular Genetics
1-2 s.h.
Requirements: grade of C+ or higher in 002:128 (BIOL:2512) or graduate standing.

002:194 (BIOL:5127) Topics in Cell and Development
1-2 s.h.

002:195 (BIOL:5157) Topics in Neurobiology
1-2 s.h.
Topics vary. Requirements: 002:180 (BIOL:3253) or graduate standing.

1-2 s.h.
Primary research on central biological questions utilizing full array of organisms and analytical approaches; opportunity to improve skills in public speaking, presentation, and scientific writing. Requirements: integrated biology graduate standing.

002:202 (BIOL:5211) Genes, Genomes, and the Human Condition Graduate Lecture
3 s.h.
Organization, expression, and evolution of genes in context of genomes; focus on human genome; distribution and transmission of variation in human population. Recommendations: 002:031 (BIOL:1411) highly recommended.

002:207 (BIOL:5289) Research Method and Theory
2 s.h.
Materials and methods of scientific investigation; lab techniques; library resources usage, NCBI data base training; lab safety; research ethics; reading, writing, presenting scientific papers. Requirements: new graduate standing in biology.

002:215 (BIOL:5199) Critical Readings in Biology
arr.

002:218 (BIOL:5218) Microscopy for Biomedical Research
arr.
Basic microscopy methods for research including optics, preparation, and analysis of biomedical specimens; light, fluorescence, confocal, transmitting electron, scanning electron, atomic force microscopes, elemental analysis; immunochrometry and stereology techniques; individualized laboratory instruction. Prerequisites: 002:114 (BIOL:2723). Same as 060:218 (ACB:5218), 061:218 (MICR:5218).

002:220 (BIOL:5220) Advanced Microscopy for Biomedical Research
arr.
Technically advanced microscopy and instrumentation for research; individualized laboratory experience with opportunity to explore applications of microscopy methods. Requirements: for 060:220 (ACB:5220) — an introductory microscopy course; for 002:220 (BIOL:5220) —060:218 (ACB:5218) or 061:218 (MICR:5218), or 012:156 (GEOS:4156) or 052:156 (CBE:4156) or 060:156 (ACB:4156); for 061:220 (MICR:5220) — an introductory EM course. Same as 060:220 (ACB:5220), 061:220 (MICR:5220).

002:227 (BIOL:5412) Fundamental Genetics--Graduate Lecture
3 s.h.

002:228 (BIOL:5512) Fundamental Genetics--Graduate Discussion
1 s.h.
Critical evaluation of classic genetics papers. Requirements: biology graduate standing.

002:234 (BIOL:6188) Seminar: Writing in Natural Sciences
2 s.h.
Writing and critiquing skills in the natural sciences.

002:265 (BIOL:6265) Neuroscience Seminar
0-1 s.h.

002:270 (BIOL:5270) Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication
2 s.h.
Selected papers and oral and written presentations tied to students’ research rotations; introductory seminar. Same as 156:265 (BISC:5265), 072:342 (MPB:5342).

002:301 (BIOL:6199) Research: Biology
arr.

002:303 (BIOL:6899) Independent Study in Biology
arr.

002:309 (BIOL:6759) Molecular Neurobiology of Hearing Development, Function, and Disease
3 s.h.
Up-to-date overview of auditory system, function, and development; molecular basis for development, function, and disease; auditory system as basis for most human communication; prominent functional reduction during senescence; structure, function, development, and disease mechanisms that provide long-term solutions to cure or prevent beyond currently available treatment of hearing loss with a cochlear implant; series of lectures organized to provide an overview of various aspects of this system. Prerequisites: 002:180 (BIOL:3253).

Undergraduate Programs of Study
• Major in chemistry (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in chemistry

The undergraduate major in chemistry provides a strong foundation for success in graduate and professional study and for positions in academic or industrial chemistry.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in chemistry requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 68-70 s.h. of work for the major (17 s.h. in foundation chemistry courses, 29 s.h. in advanced chemistry, and 22-24 s.h. in supporting course work). B.A. students must earn at least 20 s.h. in advanced chemistry courses at The University of Iowa.

The chemistry major for the Bachelor of Arts provides a more general education than the B.S. program offers and may be the degree of choice for students who are interested in earning licensure to teach in secondary schools (see "B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure" below). Advanced courses in chemistry, biology, mathematics, physics, or other science disciplines are recommended as electives for B.A. students. Those who choose appropriate electives may meet entrance requirements for graduate or professional programs such as chemistry, biochemistry, medicine, or dentistry. Graduates also may pursue careers and education in business, law, and other areas.

The chemistry major for the Bachelor of Science is certified by the American Chemical Society. Current and projected demand for Bachelor of Science graduates in chemistry is excellent in research and in control and process-development work. The program also provides all the prerequisites for graduate work in chemistry or biochemistry and in other biomedical areas with a molecular focus.

Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science students take the same chemistry foundation, integral calculus, and introductory physics courses and several of the same advanced chemistry courses. Bachelor of Science students take more advanced chemistry courses plus science electives, which may include research. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Courses in the chemistry major have prerequisites, so they must be taken in the correct order. Advanced chemistry courses are built on the chemistry foundation courses. Most advanced courses are taught only once a year. Students should consult their academic advisors and plan their course schedules carefully. They should take 004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements during the first semester of the second year.

The major in chemistry requires the following course work.

CHEMISTRY FOUNDATION COURSES (B.A. AND B.S.)

All students (Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science) complete the following foundation courses.

One of these sequences:

One of these sequences:

One of these:
B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Chemistry majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Students who plan to use their work toward a minor in chemistry as academic background for earning teacher licensure should contact the Office of Education Services about requirements.

Students with a strong interest in science teaching may complete a major offered by the Science Education Program. Students choose from emphases in biology, chemistry, earth science, and physics and earn a Bachelor of Science degree. They may apply for admission to the Teacher Education Program. See Science Education (p. 769) in the Catalog.

Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack

B.A. students majoring in chemistry who are interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. Designed for undergraduates majoring in biology, chemistry, environmental sciences, or physics, the joint program enables students to earn a B.A. and an M.A.T. in five years by beginning to earn graduate credit during their fourth year of undergraduate study and by counting up to 18 s.h. of qualifying credit toward both degrees. For more information, see "Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack" in the Teaching and Learning (p. 774) (College of Education) section of the Catalog. Interested students should consult an advisor.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Courses in the chemistry major have prerequisites, so they must be taken in the correct order. Most advanced courses are taught only once a year. Students should consult their academic advisors and plan their course schedules carefully. They should take 004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements during the first semester of the second year. A typical chemistry course schedule and a regression list are available from the department.

Bachelor of Arts

---

ADVANCED CHEMISTRY (B.A. AND B.S.)

All students complete these:

- 004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements 3 s.h.
- 004:125 (CHEM:3250) Inorganic Chemistry 2 s.h.

ADDITIONAL ADVANCED CHEMISTRY (B.A.)

Bachelor of Arts students complete one of these:

- 004:143 (CHEM:3430) Analytical Measurements 3 s.h.
- 004:144 (CHEM:3440) Physical Measurements 3 s.h.
- 004:153 (CHEM:3530) Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.

ADDITIONAL ADVANCED CHEMISTRY (B.S.)

Bachelor of Science students complete all of these:

- 004:143 (CHEM:3430) Analytical Measurements 3 s.h.
- 004:144 (CHEM:3440) Physical Measurements 3 s.h.
- 004:153 (CHEM:3530) Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
- 004:170 (CHEM:4270) Advanced Inorganic Chemistry 3 s.h.

INTEGRAL CALCULUS (B.A. AND B.S.)

All students complete one of these sequences:

INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS (B.A. AND B.S.)

All students complete one of these sequences:

- 029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II (preferred) 8 s.h.

SCIENCE ELECTIVES AND RESEARCH (B.S.)

Bachelor of Science students complete a total of 6 s.h. chosen from these:

- 004:162 (CHEM:3999) Undergraduate Research 1-4 s.h.

Advanced science elective courses

Bachelor of Science students must earn a total of at least 6 s.h. chosen from advanced science elective courses and/or 004:162 (CHEM:3999) Undergraduate Research; 004:162 (CHEM:3999) may be repeated for additional credit, up to a maximum of 15 s.h. for the course. A partial list of additional courses that satisfy the chemistry elective requirement is available from the department. Generally, advanced courses in related science disciplines beyond the introductory level and math-related courses with a prerequisite of calculus II or equivalent are accepted. Students should consult their advisors to gain approval for a course that is not on the list.
Undergraduate Research and 004:191 (CHEM:5091) Graduate Chemistry Orientation. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students who earn a minor normally complete the following course work.

Resources, Activities

The department offers undergraduate students majoring in chemistry and other students interested in chemistry a number of opportunities to enrich their classroom studies.

Undergraduate Chemistry Center

The Chemistry Center serves all students who take chemistry courses as well as the department’s professors and teaching assistants. The center maintains waiting lists and offers other assistance with registration; returns examinations and homework assignments; schedules alternative exams; and provides information about all lower-level chemistry courses. Information about student organizations and departmental scholarships and awards also is available at the Chemistry Center.

Student Organizations

Students may join the University of Iowa undergraduate student chapter of the American Chemical Society (ACS). Chapter activities include dinner meetings with guest speakers; field trips to local industry; participation in local and national meetings of the ACS; and participation in chemistry outreach programs. Students in the ACS student chapter develop leadership, organization, and speaking skills valuable during their college experience and throughout their careers.

The department has a chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, a co-ed chemistry fraternity. The Alpha Theta Chapter is open to students in chemistry, biochemistry, chemical engineering, and related fields. Alpha Chi Sigma sponsors many social and professional events throughout the year.

The department also supports the activities of Women in Science and Engineering (WISE), whose aim is to increase women’s participation and advancement as students, faculty members, and professional staff; promote a supportive study and work environment for women; integrate women’s ideas, strengths, and approaches into research, teaching, and service; and inform the public of educational and career opportunities for women in scientific and technical fields. WISE sponsors a living-learning community in Stanley Hall (a University residence hall) for first-year female students majoring in science or engineering, the Student-to-Student Support in Science mentoring program, a service learning program, and the WISE Discourse and Dining series.

Scholarships and Awards

A number of awards and scholarships are available to chemistry majors, including the American Institute of Chemists Award, the Undergraduate Award in Analytical Chemistry, the Chemistry Alumni Awards (one each for a sophomore, a junior, and a senior), the Merck Index Award, and the Viksnins, Harris & Padyg PLLP Award.

Chemistry majors also may apply for the Donald J. and Margaret Burton Scholarship, Ken Sando Scholarship, Shoemaker-Strickler Scholarship, E. David Cater Scholarship, and Russell K. Simms Scholarship.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Science in chemistry, with or without thesis
- Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry

Master of Science

The Master of Science in chemistry requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered with or without thesis, in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry. M.S. students must demonstrate minimal proficiency in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry by passing specific examinations or by enrolling in suitable core courses. This requirement must be completed by the end of the second year of enrollment. A g.p.a. of at least 3.00 is required for admission to the master’s examination.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. study in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry includes minimal proficiency examinations, core courses as necessary, a minimum of 11 s.h. of advanced course work, and research.

Students who meet the course requirements with a cumulative g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher are admitted to the oral comprehensive examination upon presentation and preliminary approval of their written research proposal and research progress report; they must take the oral comprehensive examination no later than the end of their second year of enrollment.

Upon completing Ph.D. research, candidates prepare the dissertation. The final examination consists of an oral defense of the thesis, at which time the candidate presents at least one manuscript of the publishable portion of his or her thesis.

Admission

Applicants for graduate admission should have a bachelor’s degree with a major in chemistry, preferably with a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher. Most admitted graduate students receive financial support. For application information, contact the Department of Chemistry or visit its web site.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Facilities

The Department of Chemistry office, support facilities, and faculty offices are located in the Chemistry Building, as is laboratory and classroom space dedicated to teaching and research activities. Several faculty members have offices and laboratories in the Iowa Advanced Technology Laboratories, across the street from the Chemistry Building. See the Department of Chemistry web site for information about facilities and advanced instrumentation available for instruction and research.

Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

Students planning to take more than one year of chemistry should take 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II. Students who require only one year of chemistry with no laboratory component may take 004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I and 004:008 (CHEM:1080) General Chemistry II. Students who have not had high school chemistry or do not have strong math and/or chemistry preparation should consider taking 004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I before 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I; academic advisors and the Chemistry Diagnostic Test can help students determine whether to take 004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I before 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I.

004:005 (CHEM:1050) Technology and Society

Nonmathematical exploration of selected areas of technology; basic science background, current technological applications, implications for society; for nonscience majors. Recommendations: closed to students who have taken college chemistry courses. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

004:016 (CHEM:1060) Technology and Society Laboratory

Laboratory for 004:005 (CHEM:1050); demonstrations, student experiments. Corequisites: 004:005 (CHEM:1050), if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: closed to students who have earned more than 3 s.h. in chemistry courses. GE: Natural Sciences Lab only.

004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I

Atomic structure, chemical bonds, mole relations, stoichiometry, states of matter, acids and bases, reaction rates, electrochemistry, nuclear chemistry. Requirements: elementary algebra. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.
004:008 (CHEM:1080) General Chemistry II 3 s.h.
Organic chemistry and biochemistry. Requirements: 004:007 (CHEM:1070) or high school chemistry. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

004:009 (CHEM:1090) Supplemental Chemistry Lab 1 s.h.
Lab techniques, elementary synthesis, measurement, analysis, case-study lectures and experiments; safety glasses, appropriate dress, compliance with laboratory safety protocols required. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 004:018 (CHEM:1180) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190).

004:010 (CHEM:1100) Chemistry in Industry and the Economy 3 s.h.
Atomic structure, chemical bonding, acid and bases, polymers, pharmaceuticals, DNA, proteins, and basic economics. Requirements: non-science major. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.
Chemical bonding and chemical reactions; atomic and molecular structure, chemical equations, stoichiometry, gases, liquids, thermodynamics of phase changes, solutions, equilibria; acids, bases, pH, elementary organic chemistry; the solid state, including modern materials; lecture, discussion, laboratory. Requirements: 22M:008 (MATH:1005), or ACT math subscore of 24 and ALEKS score above 65%. Recommendations: Chemistry Diagnostic Test score of 16. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.
Continuation of 004:011 (CHEM:1110); colligative properties of solutions, chemical thermodynamics, electrochemistry, chemical kinetics, chemical bonding, aspects of industrial chemistry, nuclear chemistry; lecture, discussion, laboratory. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110). GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

004:016 (CHEM:1160) Principles of Chemistry Lab 2 s.h.
Laboratory techniques. Requirements: grades of C or higher in 004:018 (CHEM:1180) and 004:019 (CHEM:1190). GE: Natural Sciences Lab only.

004:018 (CHEM:1180) Chemical Science I 3 s.h.
GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

004:019 (CHEM:1190) Chemical Science II 3 s.h.
GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

004:020 (CHEM:1200) Chemical Science Laboratory 2 s.h.
GE: Natural Sciences Lab only.

004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements 3 s.h.
Continuation of 004:012 (CHEM:1120); techniques of data collection and processing, including titrimetric and instrumental techniques for data collection and computer techniques for data processing. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:020 (CHEM:1200). Requirements: chemistry major.

004:029 (CHEM:1000) First-Year Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

004:111 (CHEM:3110) Analytical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
Modern theory and practice; emphasis on chemical equilibria (acid-base chemistry, solubility, complexation) and electroanalytical chemistry (potentiometry, voltammetry, coulometry). Corequisites: 004:131 (CHEM:4431) or 004:132 (CHEM:4432), if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:112 (CHEM:3120) Analytical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 004:111 (CHEM:3110); emphasis on instrumental methods, including atomic and molecular spectroscopy, mass spectrometry, chemical separations. Prerequisites: 004:111 (CHEM:3110).

004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.
Carbon-containing compounds; structure, stereochemistry, physical properties, reactivity, reaction mechanisms, synthesis; emphasis on alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alcohols, alky halides, aromatics. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190).

004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 004:121 (CHEM:2210); use of spectroscopic techniques to determine chemical structures; chemistry of carbonyl compounds, amines, ethers, amino acids, carbohydrates, nucleosides. Prerequisites: 004:121 (CHEM:2210).

004:123 (CHEM:2230) Organic Chemistry I for Majors 3 s.h.
Carbon-containing compounds; structure, stereochemistry, physical properties, reactivity, reaction mechanisms, synthesis; emphasis on alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alcohols, alky halides, aromatics. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190). Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:124 (CHEM:2240) Organic Chemistry II for Majors 3 s.h.
Continuation of 004:123 (CHEM:2230); use of spectroscopic techniques to determine chemical structures; chemistry of carbonyl compounds, amines, ethers, amino acids, carbohydrates, and nucleosides. Prerequisites: 004:121 (CHEM:2210) or 004:123 (CHEM:2230). Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:125 (CHEM:3250) Inorganic Chemistry 2-3 s.h.
Modern principles; emphasis on descriptive chemistry of the main group and transition elements, ionic and covalent chemical bonding theories, symmetry, inorganic stereochemistry. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190). Corequisites: 004:122 (CHEM:2220) or 004:124 (CHEM:2240).
004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
Chemical thermodynamics and its application to chemical equilibrium, phase changes and chemical equilibria; ideal and real gases; kinetic theory; surface absorption and electrochemistry; thermodynamics. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190), 029:012 (PHYS:1512) or 029:082 (PHYS:1612), and 22M:026 (MATH:1860) or 22M:032 (MATH:1560).

004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
Quantum mechanics and its application to atomic and molecular structure; determination of structure and bonding by various spectroscopic methods; chemical kinetics. Prerequisites: 004:012 (CHEM:1120) or 004:019 (CHEM:1190), 029:012 (PHYS:1512) or 029:082 (PHYS:1612), and 22M:026 (MATH:1860) or 22M:032 (MATH:1560).

004:141 (CHEM:2410) Organic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
Preparation, purification, identification, analysis of chemical compounds, principally organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110) and 004:012 (CHEM:1120), or 004:016 (CHEM:1160) or 004:020 (CHEM:1200); and 004:121 (CHEM:2210) or 004:123 (CHEM:2230). Corequisites: 004:122 (CHEM:2220) or 004:124 (CHEM:2240).

004:142 (CHEM:2420) Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors 3 s.h.
Preparation, purification, identification, analysis of chemical compounds, principally organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110) and 004:012 (CHEM:1120); or 004:016 (CHEM:1160) or 004:020 (CHEM:1200); and 004:121 (CHEM:2210) or 004:123 (CHEM:2230). Corequisites: 004:124 (CHEM:2240). Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:143 (CHEM:3430) Analytical Measurements 3 s.h.

004:144 (CHEM:3440) Physical Measurements 3 s.h.
Laboratory experience using advanced instrumental and computational methods to generate and analyze data relevant to modern physical chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:021 (CHEM:2021). Corequisites: 004:131 (CHEM:4431) or 004:132 (CHEM:4432), if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: chemistry major.

004:153 (CHEM:3530) Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
Preparation and characterization of a variety of inorganic, organometallic, and coordination compounds of the main group and transition elements; emphasis on synthetic techniques, methods for characterization of inorganic species. Prerequisites: 004:125 (CHEM:3250), and 004:141 (CHEM:2410) or 004:142 (CHEM:2420).

004:161 (CHEM:4261) Selected Topics in Chemistry 1-3 s.h.
Prerequisites: 004:121 (CHEM:2210) or 004:123 (CHEM:2230). Same as 220:161 (WRIT:3261).

004:170 (CHEM:4270) Advanced Inorganic Chemistry 3 s.h.
Modern principles, including crystal field/ligand field/molecular orbital theory, inorganic reaction mechanisms, coordination chemistry, bioinorganic chemistry, main group and transition metal organometallic chemistry, solid-state inorganic chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:125 (CHEM:3250) and 004:132 (CHEM:4432). Corequisites: 004:153 (CHEM:3530), if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:171 (CHEM:4171) Advanced Analytical Chemistry 3 s.h.
Emphasis on fundamental aspects of electrochemistry, atomic and molecular spectroscopy, chemical separations. Prerequisites: 004:112 (CHEM:3120), 004:131 (CHEM:4431), and 004:132 (CHEM:4432).

004:172 (CHEM:4372) Advanced Organic Chemistry 3 s.h.
Basic concepts from perspectives of structure, mechanism, synthesis, stereochemistry. Prerequisites: 004:122 (CHEM:2220) or 004:124 (CHEM:2240).

004:173 (CHEM:4873) Atmospheric and Environmental Chemistry 3 s.h.
Fundamental chemical processes of importance in the atmosphere, soil, and water, with emphasis on kinetics and photochemistry of homogeneous and heterogeneous reactions, atmospheric structure and dynamics, global geochemical cycling, chemistry-climate relationships, environmental remediation strategies; experimental methods in field and laboratory studies. Corequisites: 004:131 (CHEM:4431) or 004:132 (CHEM:4432), if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:175 (CHEM:4875) Introduction to Polymer Chemistry 2-3 s.h.
Synthesis, structures, characterization, properties, and applications of polymers. Prerequisites: 004:122 (CHEM:2220) or 004:124 (CHEM:2240).

004:176 (CHEM:4760) Radiochemistry: Energy, Medicine, and the Environment 3 s.h.
Fundamental theoretical concepts of radiochemistry and their application in energy, medicine, and environmental sectors. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110), 004:012 (CHEM:1120), and 004:121 (CHEM:2210).

004:180 (CHEM:4480) Introduction to Molecular Modeling 3 s.h.
Theory and application of ab initio quantum mechanics, semiempirical molecular orbital theory, and molecular mechanics force fields to chemical research problems; underlying theory of these methods (with emphasis on ab initio theory) and their practical application to chemical problems; computational chemistry projects using modeling software. Corequisites: 004:132 (CHEM:4432), if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:191 (CHEM:5091) Graduate Chemistry Orientation 2 s.h.
Pedagogy, safety and research issues relevant to advanced chemistry careers. Requirements: senior standing.
Primarily for Graduate Students

004:192 (CHEM:5092) Ethics in Chemical Sciences 1 s.h.
Scholarly integrity for being a responsible chemist on graduate-level research; introduction to infrastructure of scientific scholarship with emphasis on interacting with peers, funding agencies, industrial entities; responsible conduct in research in the context of creation of knowledge, dissemination of scientific findings, intellectual property, and conflict of interest; workshops to study cases in chemical research to illustrate the principles of scholarly integrity.

004:201 (CHEM:5299) Special Topics in Inorganic
Chemistry 1-3 s.h.
Prerequisites: 004:170 (CHEM:4270).

004:202 (CHEM:5202) Coordination Chemistry and
Spectroscopy 1.3 s.h.
Structure and bonding of d-block metal complexes, theory and application of relevant spectroscopic methods, inorganic reaction mechanisms, transition metals in catalysis. Prerequisites:
004:170 (CHEM:4270).

004:203 (CHEM:5203) Organometallic Chemistry 3 s.h.
Emphasis on organometallic compounds of transition metal

004:204 (CHEM:5204) Physical Methods in
Inorganic Chemistry 3 s.h.
Application of physical methods to problems; recent developments; emphasis on magnetic resonance spectroscopy.
Prerequisites: 004:170 (CHEM:4270).

004:205 (CHEM:5205) Bioinorganic Chemistry 2-3 s.h.
The role of metal ions in biology from an inorganic chemical perspective; emphasis on structure and mechanism for transition metal-containing metallo-enzymes.

004:206 (CHEM:5806) Solid-State and Materials
Chemistry 3 s.h.
Introduction to the chemical concepts of solid-state chemistry; focus on synthesis and characterization of various inorganic materials; structure/property relationships, real-world examples.
Prerequisites: 004:170 (CHEM:4270).

004:207 (CHEM:5107) Electrochemistry 2-3 s.h.
Fundamental aspects, including mass transport and electron transfer, electrochemical methodology (e.g., voltammetry and potentiometry), determination of homogeneous and heterogeneous reaction mechanisms. Prerequisites:
004:111 (CHEM:3110), 004:112 (CHEM:3120), and
004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:208 (CHEM:5108) Spectroscopy 3 s.h.
Principles of atomic and molecular absorption and emission spectroscopy in ultraviolet, visible, and infrared regions of the spectrum, including fluorescence, phosphorescence,
Raman spectroscopy; applications to analytical problems, with emphasis on modern instrumentation and methodology.
Prerequisites: 004:111 (CHEM:3110), 004:112 (CHEM:3120), and
004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:209 (CHEM:5109) Separations 3 s.h.
Analytical separations; basic theory, practical applications, instrumentation, modern techniques (extractions, gas and liquid chromatography, capillary electrophoresis), and detection
(mass spectrometry). Prerequisites: 004:111 (CHEM:3110),
004:112 (CHEM:3120), and 004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:210 (CHEM:5110) Chemical Sensors 2 s.h.
Theory, practical limitations, analytical utility based on immobilized reagents with electrochemical, thermal, optical transduction mechanisms. Prerequisites: 004:111 (CHEM:3110)
and 004:112 (CHEM:3120), or 004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:213 (CHEM:5199) Special Topics in Analytical Chemistry arr.
Content varies.

004:214 (CHEM:5114) Chemical Systems Modeling 2 s.h.
Basic processes and techniques; these methods applied to systems relevant to students' own research. Prerequisites:
004:111 (CHEM:3110) or 004:112 (CHEM:3120) or
004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:215 (CHEM:5115) Biophotonics 3 s.h.
Structure, dynamics of biomolecules and their optical spectroscopy; ultrasensitive fluorescence spectroscopy, vibrational spectroscopy, optical activity and circular dichroism, time-resolved spectroscopy. Prerequisites: 004:111 (CHEM:3110),
004:112 (CHEM:3120), and 004:171 (CHEM:4171).

004:216 (CHEM:5118) Nanomaterials 3 s.h.
Basic principles associated with nanoscience and nanotechnology; fabrication and synthesis, size dependent properties, characterization, applications of materials at nanometer length scales, recent technological breakthroughs in the field. Requirements: graduate standing or advanced undergraduate standing in engineering and science.
Recommendations: knowledge of basic chemistry.

004:220 (CHEM:5120) Electrochemistry of Polymer
Films 1 s.h.
Use of electrochemical methods to characterize polymer and thin films; transport through polymer films and composites, electrochemistry of polymer films. Requirements: physical chemistry course.

004:221 (CHEM:5321) Spectroscopic Methods in Organic Chemistry 3-4 s.h.
Methods and techniques of structure determination for organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:172 (CHEM:4372).

004:225 (CHEM:5399) Organic Chemistry Special
Topics 1,3 s.h.
Prerequisites: 004:172 (CHEM:4372).

004:226 (CHEM:5326) Organic Reactions 3 s.h.
Survey of organic reactions used in contemporary organic synthesis; emphasis on C-C bond forming reactions, functional group interconversions, oxidations and reductions; mechanistic details of reaction types; innovations in catalytic and asymmetric organic reactions. Prerequisites: 004:172 (CHEM:4372).
004:228 (CHEM:5328) Mechanisms of Organic Reactions
3 s.h.
Application of basic mechanistic concepts.

004:229 (CHEM:5329) Advanced Organic Synthesis
3 s.h.
Preparation of complex organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:172 (CHEM:4372).

004:231 (CHEM:5431) Statistical Thermodynamics I
3 s.h.
Fundamentals of classical thermodynamics and equilibria; ensembles; noninteracting systems; theory of phase transitions; Monte-Carlo methods; classical fluids; nonequilibrium systems. Prerequisites: 004:131 (CHEM:4431).

004:233 (CHEM:5433) Quantum and Computational Chemistry
3 s.h.
Fundamental principles of quantum chemistry; angular momentum; approximation methods; theory of atomic and molecular electronic structure; applications of computational quantum mechanics to chemical systems. Corequisites: 004:132 (CHEM:4432), if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:234 (CHEM:5434) Molecular Spectroscopy
3 s.h.
Quantum mechanical theory of molecular spectroscopy; time-dependent perturbation theory, selection rules, lineshapes; selected applications in microwave, vibrational (infrared and Raman), electronic, optical, and magnetic resonance spectroscopy. Prerequisites: 004:233 (CHEM:5433).

004:235 (CHEM:5435) Chemical Kinetics
3 s.h.
Potential energy surfaces, transition state theory, diffusion limited rates, linear free energy relationships, isotope effects, solvent effects, RRKM theory; connection between experiment and various theories in the gas and solution phases; emphasis on assignment of experimental error to derived quantities. Prerequisites: 004:132 (CHEM:4432).

004:238 (CHEM:5438) Surface Chemistry and Heterogeneous Processes
3 s.h.
Fundamental and applied aspects of surface chemical processes; theories of molecular adsorption/desorption and surface complexation; kinetics; surface analysis and instrumentation; applications of surface chemistry in heterogeneous catalysis, heterogeneous environmental/ atmospheric processes, and materials chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:131 (CHEM:4431).

004:242 (CHEM:5499) Physical Chemistry Topics
1-3 s.h.
Advanced topics relevant to modern physical chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:132 (CHEM:4432) and 22M:026 (MATH:1860).

004:275 (CHEM:5875) Perspectives in Biocatalysis
1-3 s.h.

004:281 (CHEM:5190) Seminar: Analytical Chemistry
0-1 s.h.

004:283 (CHEM:5290) Seminar: Inorganic Chemistry
0-1 s.h.

0-1 s.h.

004:286 (CHEM:5490) Seminar: Physical and Environmental Chemistry
0-1 s.h.

004:287 (CHEM:5890) Research Frontiers in Chemistry
1 s.h.

004:288 (CHEM:5990) Chemistry Colloquium
0-1 s.h.
Presentation and discussion of research by invited presenters.

004:290 (CHEM:7999) Research in Chemistry
arr.
Thesis work for advanced degrees.

004:291 (CHEM:6990) Research Seminar
0-1 s.h.
Presentation and discussion of thesis research for advanced degrees.

004:604 (CHEM:7604) Ethics in Chemical Sciences for Postdocs
0 s.h.
Introduction to infrastructure of scientific scholarship; emphasis on interacting with peers, funding agencies, industrial entities; scholarly integrity for being a responsible chemist on graduate-level research; responsible conduct in research in context of creation of knowledge, dissemination of scientific findings, intellectual property, conflict of interest; workshop cases in chemical research that illustrate principles of scholarly integrity.

Undergraduate major: cinema (B.A.)

Undergraduate minor: cinema

Graduate degrees: M.F.A. in film and video production; M.A. in film studies; Ph.D. in film studies

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/ccl/

The Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature provides students with opportunities to explore and gain insight into cinema as a subject of international and interdisciplinary study as well as creative practice. The curriculum emphasizes both the study of film and related media in their historical and cultural contexts as well as film and video production in a variety of modes. The department and its affiliated faculty offer expertise in film and video production, and in film history and theory with special emphasis on the study of international film cultures. The department also has considerable expertise in the history, theory, and production of documentary media. Student projects are completed using state-of-the-art equipment and software that is regularly updated. Students and faculty members also have ready access to the extensive media holdings of the UI Libraries as well as the Institute for Cinema and Culture.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in cinema (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in cinema

The major in cinema provides an individualized program in the interdisciplinary study and production of film and audiovisual arts. The program is designed to promote cultural awareness, to increase speaking and writing skills, and to develop capacities for systematic reasoning about films.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in cinema requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete 21 s.h. in University of Iowa course work and may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from another major, minor, or certificate toward the major in cinema. Students with a double major in cinema and in comparative literature may count a maximum of 12 s.h. toward both majors. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major in cinema is an individualized, interdisciplinary study of film and the production of creative work in film, video, and interactive multimedia. It is designed to promote cultural and artistic awareness, to increase speaking and writing skills, and to develop capacities for systematic reasoning and effective production in cinema arts.

All students are expected to gain a perspective on both the study and the production of film, video, or digital media while becoming acquainted with the historical, critical, and theoretical issues of the area. In conjunction with an appropriate overall curriculum, the major in cinema can offer effective preparation for continuing study or creative work in the humanities, arts, and cinema; provide a solid foundation for careers in film, video, television, and digital production; and lead to careers in arts administration, advertising, and business.

The major in cinema requires the following course work.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: The major in cinema requires only one course in film, video, and digital production: 048:034 (CCL:1834) Modes of Film and Video Production. This is the only production course included in the assurances of the Four-Year Graduation Plan. More advanced courses in production may be used to complete the major, but admission to these courses is limited and depends on student achievement in prerequisite production courses.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major, including 048:001 (CCL:1601) Introduction to Film Analysis, and 048:025 (CCL:1025) Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing or 048:034 (CCL:1834) Modes of Film and Video Production

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major, including 048:001 (CCL:1601) Introduction to Film Analysis, 048:025 (CCL:1025) Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing, and 048:034 (CCL:1834) Modes of Film and Video Production; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers undergraduate students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the cinema major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

To graduate with honors in the cinema major, students must complete an honors thesis. Once they have earned 75 s.h., they submit a written proposal for the thesis. The proposal must be approved by the faculty member who heads the student’s honors thesis committee; the committee must be composed of at least two faculty members from the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature. The student must complete the honors thesis over the next two consecutive semesters. For specific honors thesis requirements in the cinema major, contact the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature.

Minor

The minor in cinema requires 15 s.h. of University of Iowa cinema courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses numbered 048:051 (CCL:1620) and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students must choose courses with a primary emphasis in cinema. Contact the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature for a list of approved courses.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy in film studies
- Master of Fine Arts in film and video production

Admission to the Doctor of Philosophy program in comparative literature is suspended; for degree requirements, see the 2010-11 General Catalog. For information about the Master of Fine Arts in comparative literature, translation subtrack, see Translation (p. 616) in the Catalog.

Master of Arts: Film Studies

The Master of Arts degree in film studies requires 36 s.h. of graduate credit. The focus is on film in an international context, with required distributions of course work in U.S. cinema, European cinema, world cinemas, and film production, documentary film, animation, or experimental film.

Students meet formal degree requirements with course work and a written examination on two areas, which the student selects from one list focusing on film theory and another list focusing on film history. Exams are offered annually in January.

Master of Fine Arts: Film and Video Production

The Master of Fine Arts degree in film and video production requires 54 s.h. of graduate credit earned in creative and scholarly course work aimed at producing a body of artistic work in film, digital media, multimedia installation, and/or animation. Degree requirements include advanced course work in film/media theory or history, annual public presentations and critiques, the development of an artist statement, a thesis paper, and a creative thesis project.

Doctor of Philosophy: Film Studies

The Doctor of Philosophy degree in film studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit earned in course work concentrated in film history and film theory. With the consultation and guidance of a faculty committee, students prepare for a qualifying examination in the first or second year, formulate and pursue a plan of study proposing areas to be mastered before the dissertation, present a predissertation exam on these areas, and write a dissertation in the area of advanced research.

Admission

Applications to graduate programs in the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature are evaluated by faculty members. Application materials may include undergraduate and/or graduate transcripts, personal statements, writing samples, letters of recommendation, samples of creative work, and test scores. Admission decisions are based on the full range of an applicant’s accomplishments and evidence that he or she will thrive in the department’s programs. The department welcomes applicants with diverse academic backgrounds; previous experience in the area of planned graduate study is desirable but not required. Contact the department or its director of graduate study for information about how to apply.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Resources

The Institute for Cinema and Culture promotes international film culture on the University of Iowa campus by supplementing the curriculum of the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature with regular film screenings and public events, often in collaboration with other departments and programs. The institute helps departments, faculty members, and student groups present films and relevant speakers to an interdisciplinary audience. It is especially dedicated to providing Iowa students and faculty members the opportunity to view and study important films from nations and cultures otherwise underrepresented in course offerings and at local theaters. Each semester the institute offers 048:112 (CCL:3627) Proseminar in Cinema and Culture, a course with public screenings devoted to a single national cinema or a focused topic in world film. It also regularly sponsors a range of campus film festivals and hosts the Cinematheque series, which showcases rare and unusual films each semester.

Courses

048:001 (CCL:1601) Introduction to Film Analysis 3 s.h.
Formal analysis of film; narrative cinema and approaches to narrative structure; authorship and genre issues, other major topics.

Introduction to filmmaking and films in Asia through an overview, emphasis on one or more Asian countries, or a specific theme in Asian cinema.

048:029 (CCL:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities, field trips). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

048:030 (CCL:1615) Introduction to Film Theory 3 s.h.
Classical film theory—formalist and realist theories, authorship, genre; contemporary film theory—semiotics, feminism, psychoanalysis, ideological criticism, postmodernism, queer theory.

048:034 (CCL:1834) Modes of Film and Video Production 4 s.h.
Introduction to nonfiction, fiction, and experimental modes of film and video production; video exercises and nonlinear editing. Corequisites: 048:001 (CCL:1601), if not taken as a prerequisite.

048:040 (CCL:1240) Major Texts of World Literature, Antiquity to 1700 3 s.h.
Reading, analysis of major literary texts from writing’s origins to 1700 in the Mediterranean, Asia, Africa; interrelationship of literature and history. GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts.

048:041 (CCL:1241) World Literature and World Film 3 s.h.
Reading and analysis of major literary texts from the 17th century to the present, in chronological sequence; emphasis on interrelationship of literature and history. Requirements: completion of rhetoric requirement. GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts.
048:051 (CCL:1620) Film Criticism 3 s.h.
Evaluation and analysis of film, from journalistic reviews to academic scholarship; principles and theoretical positions.

048:052 (CCL:1625) Gender and Film 3 s.h.
Representations of femininity, masculinity, sexual identity, how they relate to society, culture; examples from feminist, psychoanalytic, queer theory.

048:053 (CCL:1630) Introduction to Film Sound 3 s.h.
Sound as an acoustic, technological, aesthetic, and historical issue; functions of voice, music, sound effects.

048:061 (CINE:2861) Introduction to Screenwriting: Short Form 3 s.h.
Principles of writing with an eye to the screen; develop, write, and workshop screenplays for short film/video projects including fiction, nonfiction, and experimental work; introduction to preproduction activities; exercises and journal assignments with diaries, dreams, and conceptual writing practice. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:062 (CCL:1632) Disney in America 3 s.h.
How Walt Disney Corporation has influenced American cultural values, ideals, and experiences through its evolution from an animation company in the 1920s, to a theme park company and television producer in the 1950s, to a media conglomerate today; the corporation’s national importance, Hollywood’s contributions to the Depression and World War II, postwar urban and community planning, America’s changing leisure behavior, advertising and childhood, modern business history, and exportation of American culture. Same as 045:065 (AMST:1065).

048:063 (CCL:2863) Film/Video Production: Microcinemas and DIY Distribution 3 s.h.
Nature and practice of film festivals; microcinemas and small-scale distribution in historical context of cinema culture and as audience-building and outreach for independently produced films, video, and new media; management and orchestration of the annual Iowa City International Documentary Festival. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:064 (CCL:2864) Film/Video Production: Alternative Forms 3 s.h.
Hands-on workshops in alternative or innovative video/film practices and technologies; varied topics. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:065 (CCL:2865) Film Production: Material of 16mm Film 3 s.h.
Basic 16mm motion picture camera, editing, and sound techniques; individual and group exercises. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:066 (CCL:2866) Video Production: Nonfiction 3 s.h.
Single-camera shooting on location, with emphasis on editing; group exercises oriented to nonfiction forms. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:067 (CCL:2867) Screenwriting: Long Form 3 s.h.
Visualization, sequencing, dialog; preparation of treatment, screenplay for fiction film; script problems. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:068 (CCL:2868) Video Production: Fiction 3 s.h.
Development of fiction video making technique through group projects in the studio and on location, and nonlinear editing. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:070 (CCL:1635) Styles and Genres 3 s.h.
Major film types (musicals, science fiction, westerns, film noir) and their cultural significance.

048:071 (CCL:1640) Film Authors 3 s.h.
A major director or comparison of directors; director’s role in industrial and collaborative contexts, relations between biography and criticism, function of individual styles.

048:081 (CCL:1645) Film and Literature 3 s.h.
Relationships among films, novels, plays, adaptations; shared and distinct formal elements of cinematic and literary texts, their cultural functions.

048:091 (CCL:1185) Internship arr.
Opportunity to apply skills; faculty supervision, on or off campus. Requirements: cinema and comparative literature major.

048:095 (CCL:2199) Undergraduate Seminar 3 s.h.
Focus on a significant text or critical problem. Requirements: junior or senior standing, and cinema and comparative literature major.

048:098 (CCL:2198) Honors Tutorial arr.

048:099 (CCL:2195) Individual Study arr.

048:100 (CCL:2100) Introduction to Criticism and Theory 3 s.h.
Critical approaches to the phenomenon of literature. Requirements: junior standing.

048:103 (CCL:4603) Topics in Contemporary Film 3 s.h.
Specific issues or periods in contemporary film.

048:104 (CCL:4604) Topics in European Film 3 s.h.
Specific issues or periods in European film.

048:105 (CCL:3605) French Cinema 3-4 s.h.
Taught in English. GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts. Same as 009:147 (FREN:3510).

048:106 (CCL:4606) Topics in Asian Cinema 3 s.h.
Issues or topics in East or South Asian cinemas. Same as 039:145 (ASIA:4606).
048:107 (CCL:3302) Russian Literature in Translation 1860-1917
3 s.h.
Survey of major works, figures, and trends of 19th- and 20th-century Russian literature; age of the Russian novel; development of short fiction, drama, poetry of the Silver Age. Same as 041:102 (SLAV:3202).

048:108 (CCL:4608) History of Documentary Film
3 s.h.
A period, type, or concern of nonfiction filmmaking. Prerequisites: 048:001 (CCL:1601).

048:109 (CCL:3309) European Literature of the Nineteenth Century
3 s.h.
English majors may apply this course to the following area and/or period requirement. AREA: Modern British Literature and Culture. PERIOD: 18th/19th-Century Literature. Same as 008:131 (ENGL:3349).

048:110 (CCL:3210) Comparative Arts
3 s.h.
Cultural and aesthetic issues arising from side-by-side investigation of several art forms, including literature, cinema, painting, music, opera, architecture; periods, schools, styles, and their theories. Same as 181:110 (IWP:3210).

048:112 (CCL:3627) Proseminar in Cinema and Culture
1-2 s.h.
A national cinema or topic in international film.

048:116 (CCL:3223) Reading European Poetry
3 s.h.
Development of literary reading skills and critical imagination; increase awareness of the complexity of poetry translation, introduction to works of major canonical poets from several European traditions and languages.

048:117 (CCL:4616) Topics in National Cinema
3 s.h.
Cinema’s intersection with the nation; questions of representation, culture, and identity in the national, subnational, and/or transnational context. Prerequisites: 048:001 (CCL:1601) or 048:002 (CCL:1602).

048:118 (CCL:4618) Topics in World Cinemas
3 s.h.
Issues in international film history and film theory.

048:120 (CCL:4620) Issues in Film Theory
3 s.h.
Key theorists, approaches, topics in film theory.

048:121 (CCL:4821) Film and Video Production: Selected Topics
4 s.h.
Student productions focusing on a particular genre, issue, or process. 16mm, video, or audio, such as experimental film or video, collaborative projects, nonfiction, narrative, and so forth. Prerequisites: 048:064 (CCL:2864) or 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:068 (CCL:2868) or 048:121 (CCL:4821) or 048:123 (CCL:4843) or 048:131 (CCL:4841) or 048:132 (CCL:4842) or 048:133 (CCL:4845) or 048:136 (CCL:3876), Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:064 (CCL:2864) or 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:068 (CCL:2868) or 048:121 (CCL:4821) or 048:123 (CCL:4843) or 048:131 (CCL:4841) or 048:132 (CCL:4842) or 048:133 (CCL:4845) or 048:136 (CCL:3876).

048:123 (CCL:4843) Film and Video Production: Image Design
4 s.h.
Strategies, techniques, and technologies used in moving image production; emphasis on generic lighting practices, composition; short projects using film, videotape. Prerequisites: 048:063 (CCL:2863) or 048:064 (CCL:2864) or 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:068 (CCL:2868) or 048:136 (CCL:3876). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:063 (CCL:2863) or 048:064 (CCL:2864) or 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:068 (CCL:2868) or 048:136 (CCL:3876).

048:124 (CCL:4864) Film Production: Advanced 16mm Film
4 s.h.
Processes and approaches to the short film; students produce a seven-minute, sync-sound project, including film shooting and digital editing. Prerequisites: 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:121 (CCL:4821) or 048:123 (CCL:4843).

048:125 (CCL:3877) Screenwriting: Short Form
4 s.h.
Exercises and projects in writing, developing, and workshopping screenplays for short film or video; budgeting, location scouting, other preproduction activities. Prerequisites: 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:067 (CCL:2867) or 048:068 (CCL:2868). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 048:065 (CCL:2865) or 048:066 (CCL:2866) or 048:067 (CCL:2867) or 048:068 (CCL:2868).

048:127 (CCL:4836) Advanced Screenwriting
4 s.h.
Write a feature screenplay (105-115 pages) within the industry standard contract guidelines for independent and studio projects; completion of outline, beat sheet, treatment, first draft; one rewrite. Prerequisites: 048:067 (CCL:2867).

048:130 (CCL:4825) Digital Production: Animation
4 s.h.
Intermediate 3-D modeling, motion graphics; student projects culminating in CDR or video presentation. Prerequisites: 048:034 (CCL:1834).

048:131 (CCL:4841) Film/Video/Audio Production: Sound Design

Undergraduate majors: ancient civilization (B.A.); classical languages (B.A.)
Undergraduate minors: ancient civilization; classical languages; Greek; Latin
Postbaccalaureate certificate: classics
Graduate degrees: M.A. in classics; M.A. in Greek; M.A. in Latin; Ph.D. in classics
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/classics/

Classics is the study of ancient languages, literatures, and cultures of the Mediterranean basin from approximately 2000 B.C.E. to 600 C.E. It embraces three civilizations—the Minoan-Mycenaean, Greek, and Roman; two languages—Greek and Latin; and a geographical area including Europe, North Africa, Egypt, and the Near East. The Department of Classics provides a basis for understanding and interpreting the contribution of the ancient world to life in the present and the future.

Undergraduates in all majors may satisfy the World Languages requirement of the General Education Program (p. 306) with courses in Greek, Latin, or Sanskrit; see "Language for General Education" below. The department offers a substantial selection of courses taught in English at the undergraduate and graduate levels; several are approved for General Education. The department’s First-Year Seminar introduces entering undergraduates to classics.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in ancient civilization (Bachelor of Arts)
• Major in classical languages (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in ancient civilization
• Minor in classical languages
• Minor in Greek
• Minor in Latin

The department’s undergraduate majors provide a solid foundation for graduate study in classics, European literature, law, history, art, philosophy, and religion. The major in classical languages offers concentrations in Greek and/or Latin. Bachelor of Arts graduates have become secondary school and university teachers, lawyers, doctors, librarians, museum curators, and bankers.

Bachelor of Arts: Ancient Civilization

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in ancient civilization requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. The program concentrates on the ancient civilization of the Mediterranean world, draws on courses offered by various University departments, and allows students to create individual programs. The major offers an optional track for students with a particular interest in civilizations of the east Mediterranean from the earliest times through antiquity; see "Egypt and the Ancient Near East Track" below.

The major, including the Egypt and the ancient Near East track, is sponsored by the School of Art and Art History and the Departments of Classics, History, and Religious Studies.

Although the major is not preparation for graduate study in classics, it provides a sound basis for preparing individuals to teach at the secondary school and community college levels. It also provides a liberal arts and sciences foundation appropriate for further study in law, medicine, and other professions.

Students choose courses in consultation with their advisors. They must earn at least 15 s.h. of the credit required for the major in courses numbered 100 or above, which may include classics in English courses numbered 20E:100 (CLSA:4400) and above, the Greek language courses 20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II, and the Latin language courses 20L:011 (CLSL:2001) World of Cicero and 20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry. Transfer credit is evaluated individually.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

In addition to completing required course work, students maintain a required portfolio detailing their progress toward the major, which they must complete before graduation; see "Major Portfolio" below.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the major and in all University of Iowa courses.

The major in ancient civilization requires the following course work.

MAJOR PORTFOLIO

To comply with the Board of Regents, State of Iowa, policy on student outcomes assessment, the Department of Classics has established a method to assess the achievement level of B.A. students completing one of the department’s majors. Each student must maintain a portfolio that details the student’s progress in attaining the objectives of his or her major. Students must register for and complete the following course.

The student submits the portfolio to the undergraduate advisor by midterm of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. Formal approval of the portfolio is required for graduation. Consult the undergraduate advisor for details.

Egypt and the Ancient Near East Track

The Egypt and the ancien Near East track concentrates on the civilizations of the east Mediterranean, specifically Egypt and the cultures of Asia Minor, from the earliest times through late antiquity.

The track is interdisciplinary; students select courses from archaeology, art, history, literature, and religion. The track provides a sound basis for preparing individuals to teach ancient civilizations of the Mediterranean and the Near East, ancient history, and ancient art history at the secondary school and community college levels. It also provides a strong liberal arts foundation suitable for further study in law, medicine, and other professions.

Students in the Egypt and the ancient Near East track choose courses in consultation with their advisors.
must earn at least 21 s.h. of the credit required for the ancient civilization major in courses listed under "Course Selection Requirements" below. They also must earn at least 15 s.h. for the major in courses numbered 100 or above, which may include classics in English courses numbered 20E:100 (CLSA:4400) and above, the Greek language courses 20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II, and the Latin language courses 20L:011 (CLSL:2001) World of Cicero and 20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry. Transfer credit is evaluated individually.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

In addition to required course work, students maintain a required portfolio detailing their progress toward the major, which they must complete before graduation; see "Major Portfolio" below.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the major and in all University of Iowa courses.

The major in ancient civilization with the Egypt and the ancient Near East track requires the following course work.

MAJOR PORTFOLIO

To comply with the Board of Regents, State of Iowa, policy on student outcomes assessment, the Department of Classics has established a method to assess the achievement level of B.A. students completing one of the department’s majors. Each student must maintain a portfolio that details the student’s progress in attaining the objectives of his or her major. Students must register for and complete the following course.

20E:182 (CLSA:3982) Graduation Portfolio 0 s.h.

The student submits the portfolio to the undergraduate advisor by midterm of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. Formal approval of the portfolio is required for graduation. Consult the undergraduate advisor for details.

Bachelor of Arts: Classical Languages

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in classical languages requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36 s.h. of work for the major. The major trains students to read the ancient Greek and/or Latin languages and acquaints them with the major works of Greek and/or Roman literature.

Classical languages students learn about the history of ancient Greece of the eighth through the fourth centuries B.C.E., where most of the modern Western notions of political, artistic, and social life are rooted. They also develop an understanding of the Roman republic and empire, when Rome established its hegemony over the Mediterranean basin, laid the foundation of law for the Western World, and spread Greece’s culture to the West.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). Transfer credit is evaluated individually.

In addition to completing required course work, students maintain a required portfolio detailing their progress toward the major, which they must complete before graduation; see “Major Portfolio” below.

The major in classical languages requires the following course work.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

Students majoring in ancient civilization or classical languages who are interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for their major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A.: Ancient Civilization

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major
Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Classical Languages—Greek and Latin

Before the third semester begins:

Before the seventh semester begins: sixth semester of Latin and fourth semester of Greek, or sixth semester of Greek and fourth semester of Latin, two more courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: enrollment in at least two or three additional courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Classical Languages—Greek Only

Before the third semester begins:

Before the seventh semester begins: three or four more courses in the major

Before the eighth semester begins: two or three more courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Classical Languages—Latin Only

Before the third semester begins:

Before the seventh semester begins: three or four more courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: two or three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The Department of Classics offers students majoring in ancient civilization or in classical languages the opportunity to graduate with honors in the major. Departmental honors students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in their first three years of classics courses. To graduate with honors in the major, they must complete two courses in honors reading during their senior year, one each semester of the year, earning 3 s.h. of credit for each course. The readings and discussions must be on an ancient author or a field in ancient history or literature chosen by the student and his or her instructor. At the end of the second semester, the student presents a long paper, which is read and judged for honors by two members of the department. Students who write an honors thesis in classical languages must be enrolled at the same time in the appropriate advanced language courses.

Departmental honors students must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Minor: Ancient Civilization

The minor in ancient civilization requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

Department of Classics courses in Greek numbered 20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I or above and in Latin numbered 20L:011 (CLSL:2001) World of Cicero or above are considered advanced for the minor in ancient civilization. Appropriate courses in art, religion, history, and philosophy may be counted toward the minor in ancient civilization, if approved by the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Greek or Latin should consult the advisor.

Minor: Classical Languages

The minor in classical languages requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

Minor: Greek

The minor in Greek requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

The sequence 20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II, and Department of Classics courses numbered 100 or above are considered advanced for the minor in Greek. Students may satisfy the advanced courses requirement for the minor by completing 20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II plus two courses numbered 100 or above, one of which may be a relevant 20E course in Greek history, culture, or literature. For a list of relevant courses, contact the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Greek or Latin should consult the advisor.

Minor: Latin

The minor in Latin requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

The sequence 20L:011 (CLSL:2001) World of Cicero and 20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry, and Department of Classics courses numbered 100 or above are considered advanced for the minor in Latin. Students may satisfy the advanced courses requirement for the minor by completing 20L:011 (CLSL:2001) World of Cicero and 20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry plus two courses numbered 100 or above, one of which may be a relevant 20E course in Roman history, culture, or literature. For a list of relevant courses, contact the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Latin should consult the advisor.

Language for General Education

The Department of Classics offers course sequences in Greek, Latin, and Sanskrit that students in all majors may use to fulfill the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who have had previous course work or other experience with Greek or Latin should take the appropriate language placement test, which helps determine the level at which a student should begin Greek or Latin language study at The University of Iowa. The tests are offered during summer orientation programs and monthly by Evaluation and Examination Service.

Students with previous knowledge of Sanskrit should consult the department about appropriate placement.

GREEK

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with Greek should complete the following sequence.

Postbaccalaureate Program of Study

- Certificate in Classics
Certificate

The Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics requires 18 s.h. in Department of Classics courses numbered 100 and above (upper-level and graduate courses). The program is designed for students who have a bachelor’s degree and would like further study in Greek and Latin in order to be competitive for admission to a graduate program in classics. Entry to most graduate programs requires study of both Latin and Greek, normally a minimum of three years in one language and two years in the other.

The certificate is designed to be completed in two semesters by students who enter with two years of Latin and one to two years of Greek, or vice versa. It requires 18 s.h. in Department of Classics courses numbered 100 or above (upper-level and graduate courses). At least 12 s.h. of the required credit must be earned in Greek and Latin language courses; the remaining 6 s.h. may be earned in approved advanced courses taught in English [prefix 20E (CLSA)]. Transfer credit is not accepted toward the certificate. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 to remain in good standing and complete the program.

A suggested plan of study for a student who enters the program with two years of Latin and one year of Greek is as follows.

Fall semester:

- 20E:198 (CLSA:4085) Postbaccalaureate Seminar 0 s.h.
- 20L:120 (CLSL:3001) Latin Literature of the Republic I 3 s.h.
- 20L:171 (CLSL:3176) Elementary Latin Composition 3 s.h.

Spring semester:

- 20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II 3 s.h.
- 20L:121 (CLSL:3002) Latin Literature of the Republic II 3 s.h.
- One elective with prefix 20E, 20G, or 20L numbered 100 or above 3 s.h.

A suggested plan of study for a student who enters the program with two years of Latin and one year of Greek is as follows.

Fall semester:

- 20E:198 (CLSA:4085) Postbaccalaureate Seminar 0 s.h.
- 20G:120 (CLSG:3001) Archaic and Classical Periods I 3 s.h.
- 20L:120 (CLSL:3001) Latin Literature of the Republic I 3 s.h.
- 20L:171 (CLSL:3176) Elementary Latin Composition 3 s.h.

Spring semester:

- 20G:121 (CLSG:3002) Archaic and Classical Periods II 3 s.h.
- 20L:121 (CLSL:3002) Latin Literature of the Republic II 3 s.h.
- One elective with prefix 20E, 20G, or 20L numbered 100 or above 3 s.h.

Students who complete the program successfully receive a certificate from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a letter from the Department of Classics.

Admission

Applicants must have a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university and a minimum of two years of language study (two years of Latin or two years of Greek, or one year of each). In unusual circumstances, students with less language preparation may be admitted.

Applicants who are not enrolled in a graduate or professional program may apply to The University of Iowa as undergraduate transfer students; they must state on their application that they are applying to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences for admission to the classics postbaccalaureate certificate program. They must submit transcripts confirming preparation for certificate language study, a statement of purpose, scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation from faculty members at their baccalaureate institution.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy in classics
- Master of Arts in Greek
- Master of Arts in Latin

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in classics, Greek, or Latin requires a minimum of 30 s.h. in courses numbered 101 or above. Students may count a maximum of 12 s.h. earned in courses numbered 101-199 toward the degree. Courses taken to complete the Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics do not count toward the degree.

Students must pass a sight examination in the language(s) studied and an examination on literature and history.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in classics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including the courses listed below (27 s.h.). Students may count no more than 12 s.h. earned in courses numbered 101-199 toward the degree. Courses taken to complete the Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics may not be counted toward the degree.

Students also must take precomprehensive and comprehensive examinations and write a dissertation.

REQUIRED COURSES

- 20G:176 (CLSG:4076) Greek Composition (or equivalent) 3 s.h.
- 20G:204 (CLSG:5001) Archaic Greek Literature 3 s.h.
- 20G:205 (CLSG:5002) Classical and Hellenistic Literature 3 s.h.
- 20L:204 (CLSL:5001) Republican Literature 3 s.h.
- 20L:205 (CLSL:5002) Imperial Literature 3 s.h.
- 20L:272 (CLSL:6076) Advanced Latin Composition (or equivalent) 3 s.h.
- Two graduate-level courses in cognate subjects such as anthropology, art history, linguistics, philosophy, or rhetoric 6 s.h.
- Other interdisciplinary courses (with approval of the graduate advisor)

The remaining course work is made up of Department of Classics and other courses.

PH.D. EXAMINATIONS

Ph.D. students must take precomprehensive exams in Latin sight reading and Greek sight reading and must attempt one sight reading exam by the end of their first year of graduate study. Competence in reading both German and French must be demonstrated by the end of the second year of study.
Students must take the second-year exam at the end of their second year. The remaining exams may be taken in any sequence. Students must file a request for the fourth-year comprehensive exam at least three weeks before the date of the exam.

Sight-reading exam:
- Latin: four hours, written
- Greek: four hours, written

Second-year exam:
- Literature and history: four hours, written

Fourth-year comprehensive exam:
- Greek and Roman history/material culture based on reading list: three hours, written
- Latin literature, based on reading list: three hours, written
- Greek literature, based on reading list: three hours, written

If a student performs unsatisfactorily on either or both of the Latin and Greek reading list exams, the director of graduate studies sets up an oral exam in order to review questions on which the student did not exhibit sufficient knowledge.

Special field or author (Greek): four hours, written
Special field or author (Latin): four hours, written

Facilities

The University of Iowa Libraries’ Main Library and the Art Library house extensive collections of classical texts and uninterrupted runs of classical periodicals from 1850 that facilitate research in the major areas of Greek and Roman civilization. The Department of Classics has a varied collection of slides on classical subjects and a small library of reference works, texts, and issues of classical and archaeological journals. The department’s classical museum contains a small collection of coins, vases, and facsimiles in bronze from Mycenae, Pompeii, and Herculaneum.

The University is a supporting institution of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, the American Academy in Rome, and the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome. Consult the director of undergraduate studies for more information.

The department offers students the opportunity to participate in an archaeological dig during the summer. Contact the Department of Classics in mid-February for details.

Undergraduate major: speech and hearing science (B.A.)

Undergraduate minor: communication sciences and disorders

Graduate degrees: M.A. in speech pathology and audiology; Au.D.; Ph.D. in speech and hearing science

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/comsci/

The courses and degree programs of the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders are planned to meet the needs of students preparing for careers in clinical service, college and university teaching, and research concerned with speech, language, or hearing processes and disorders. The department also offers courses for students with vocational and professional goals in other fields—for example, engineering, psychology, education, speech, theatre arts, dentistry, and medicine—whose preparation may be enriched by the study of speech and hearing processes and their disorders.

Advanced degree holders in communication sciences and disorders provide clinical services for people with speech, hearing, or language problems in hospitals, community clinics, rehabilitation facilities, elementary and secondary schools, and private practice. They teach in colleges and universities and conduct research in laboratories concerned with communication processes and disorders.

The department’s programs leading to the M.A. with professional emphasis and the Au.D. are accredited by the Council on Academic Accreditation of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA).

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in speech and hearing science (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in communication sciences and disorders

Students who intend to pursue professional careers in communication sciences and disorders must complete a graduate program comparable to the department’s Master of Arts in speech pathology and audiology or its Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.). The undergraduate major in speech and hearing science emphasizes the normal processes of speech, hearing, and language and does not qualify an individual to work professionally in the field. Instead, it is designed primarily to prepare students for graduate work. It also may be an appropriate major for students earning College of Liberal Arts and Sciences degrees who are not planning careers in speech pathology and audiology.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in speech and hearing science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 62-63 s.h. of work for the major. Requirements include 11 core courses offered by the department and eight cognate courses offered by other departments. Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. toward the major at The University of Iowa. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major in speech and hearing science requires the following course work.

CORE COURSES

All of these:

- 003:015 (CSD:1015) Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders 3 s.h.
- 003:110 (CSD:2110) Phonetics: Theory and Applications 3 s.h.
- 003:111 (CSD:2111) Basic Acoustics for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.
- 003:112 (CSD:3112) Anatomy and Physiology of Speech Production 4 s.h.
- 003:113 (CSD:3113) Introduction to Hearing Science 4 s.h.
- 003:116 (CSD:3116) Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.
- 003:117 (CSD:3117) Psychology of Language 3 s.h.
- 003:118 (CSD:3118) Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
- 003:145 (CSD:4145) Developmental Speech and Language Disorders 3 s.h.
- 003:185 (CSD:3185) Hearing Loss and Audiometry 3 s.h.
- 003:244 (CSD:4244) Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.

COGNATE COURSES

Students may choose cognate courses that help fulfill the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Both of these:

- 031:001 (PSY:1001) Elementary Psychology 3 s.h.
- 103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 07P:025 (PSQF:1020)/22S:025 (STAT:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
- 07P:143 (PSQF:5143)/22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I 3 s.h.
- 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.
- 029:008 (PHYS:1400) Basic Physics (preferably with lab) 4 s.h.
- 029:011 (PHYS:1511) College Physics I 4 s.h.

One of these:

- 031:013 (PSY:2301) Introduction to Clinical Psychology 3 s.h.
- 031:050 (PSY:2915) Psychology of Aging 3 s.h.
- 031:063 (PSY:2930) Abnormal Psychology: Health Professions 3 s.h.
- 042:108 (SSW:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 07P:106 (PSQF:5106) Child Development 3 s.h.
- 031:014 (PSY:2401) Introduction to Developmental Science 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 002:002 (BIOL:1141) Introductory Animal Biology (with lab) 4 s.h.
- 002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology (with lab) 4 s.h.
- 22M:015 (MATH:1440) Mathematics for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.

This cognate requirement in mathematics may be fulfilled through an acceptable score on Advanced Placement AB or BC Calculus exam; see Credit by Exam on the Office of Admissions web site. Students without AP credit are encouraged to take first-year calculus to satisfy this requirement, particularly those interested in earning a graduate degree in audiology.

CLINICAL OBSERVATION

Students have the opportunity and are encouraged to obtain 25 hours of supervised clinical observation, a prerequisite for participation in clinical practicums at the graduate level. This requirement is satisfied by completion of independent observations or required observations made for elective departmental courses.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: The major requires specific mathematics and science competencies that may be satisfied with courses approved for the General Education Program.

Before the fifth semester begins: three courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: nine courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 12 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

Students majoring in speech and hearing science who have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 may enter the department’s honors program upon recommendation of the departmental honors advisor. Students who intend to graduate with honors in the speech and hearing science major must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in the major, students must complete at least 10 s.h. of course work for the major by the beginning of their junior year and must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.50. They must complete both 003:097 (CSD:3097) Honors Seminar and 003:098 (CSD:4098) Honors Thesis, registering for 003:097 (CSD:3097) in spring of their junior year and for 003:098 (CSD:4098) in both fall and spring of their senior year.

Minor
The minor in communication sciences and disorders requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in University of Iowa Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students must begin the minor with 003:015 (CSD:1015) Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders, which provides a broad overview of all aspects of the normal communication process and of various disorders. Students complete the minor by choosing four of the courses listed below, according to their individual interests.

Graduate Programs of Study
- Master of Arts in speech pathology and audiology
- Doctor of Audiology
- Doctor of Philosophy in speech and hearing science

The Master of Arts program in speech pathology and audiology is offered with two emphases: research (general), and professional (speech-language pathology).

The M.A. with research emphasis and the Ph.D. are designed to train scholar-researchers; they do not provide preparation for professional work as speech-language pathologists or audiologists.

The M.A. with professional emphasis and the Au.D. provide training for individuals who wish to do clinical work in speech-language pathology or audiology. Graduates of the M.A. professional emphasis program meet all academic and practicum requirements for clinical certification by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) and for licensure by the State of Iowa. The Au.D. is required for ASHA national certification in audiology. Students preparing for clinical positions in public schools must meet school licensure or certification requirements of the states in which they plan to work. See "M.A. with Professional Licensure" later in this section.

Master of Arts: Research Emphasis
The Master of Arts program in speech pathology and audiology with research emphasis (general emphasis) requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed for students who intend to pursue a Ph.D. or who seek additional education but do not intend to work professionally in the United States as speech-language pathologists or audiologists. It typically includes a substantial portion of the courses in the M.A. with professional emphasis and Au.D. curricula.

Students in the M.A. research emphasis program are required to complete a thesis and defend their research successfully at a final oral examination.

The program typically requires two years to complete. Specific course work required depends on the student’s background and interests.

Master of Arts: Professional Emphasis
The Master of Arts program in speech pathology and audiology with professional emphasis (speech-language pathology requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit, although students typically earn 60-65 s.h. of credit by the time they complete the degree. The program prepares clinicians in speech-language pathology to be able to function independently in a variety of clinical settings. Graduates of the program meet all academic and practicum requirements for clinical certification by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and for licensure by the State of Iowa. The program is designed to ensure that upon graduation, the student will meet requirements for immediate professional employment.

M.A. students usually have a background of undergraduate courses in speech and hearing science, psychology of language, and human behavior that is equivalent to an undergraduate major in speech and hearing science at The University of Iowa.

Before registering in the program, entering M.A. students receive descriptive materials about basic science core courses considered to be required preparation for the M.A. program, and required M.A. clinical core courses for which the department may accept comparable courses taken at the undergraduate level. Decisions about incorporating background course work in these areas are made by the faculty advisor in consultation with the student and the instructors of the basic science or clinical core courses. Entering students must have completed the following courses or their equivalents.

Behavioral science or social science courses (must include at least one psychology course) | 6 s.h. |

Students pursuing the M.A. with professional emphasis must complete at least 4 s.h. of work related to research. This may be accomplished by any combination of enrollment in seminars (2 s.h. each) and/or research hours. Completion of the research hours may consist of work toward a thesis or preparation of a paper involving one or a combination of the following: literature review, prospectus development, and presentation of data. A paper is required at the end of each semester’s enrollment. An exception to this requirement can be made in the case of research hours leading to a thesis.

Candidates for an M.A. with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology are not required to complete a thesis, although all students demonstrating research aptitude and interest are encouraged to do so. Students who do not elect the thesis option are required to take final written comprehensive examinations.

A typical M.A. professional emphasis program usually takes two calendar years to complete but may take longer, depending on the student’s background and personal interests.

CORE REQUIREMENTS

All students seeking an M.A. with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology must take the following.

- 003:135 (CSD:5135) Foundations of Clinical Practice I 1-3 s.h.
- 003:136 (CSD:5136) Foundations of Clinical Practice II 1 s.h.
- 003:137 (CSD:5137) Foundations of Clinical Practice III 1 s.h.

In addition, they must take the following courses unless they completed equivalent courses as undergraduates.

- 003:114 (CSD:4114) Introduction to Voice Disorders 2 s.h.
- 003:115 (CSD:4115) Structural Disorders 2 s.h.
- 003:116 (CSD:3116) Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.
- 003:140 (CSD:2140) Manual Communication 1 s.h.
- 003:145 (CSD:4145) Developmental Speech and Language Disorders 3 s.h.
- 003:146 (CSD:4146) Neurogenic Disorders of Language 3 s.h.
- 003:147 (CSD:4147) Neurogenic Disorders of Speech 2 s.h.
- 003:183 (CSD:4183) Introduction to Stuttering 2 s.h.
- 003:185 (CSD:3185) Hearing Loss and Audiometry 3 s.h.
- 003:244 (CSD:4244) Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.

Students must take 003:510 (CSD:5510) Seminar: Introduction to Research in Speech and Hearing (0-1 s.h.) during the fall semester of their first year.

They must take 003:515 (CSD:5515) Proseminar (0 s.h.) during the fall and spring semesters of their first year.

Also required are additional semester hours of practicum registration sufficient to meet supervised, direct clinical experience requirements for the Certificate of Clinical Competence of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and the Iowa license, and to provide broad, supervised practicum experience.

In addition to the core requirements listed above, all students preparing to be speech-language pathologists must earn a minimum of 12 s.h. from the following:

- 003:201 (CSD:5201) Principles of Voice Production 3 s.h.
- 003:206 (CSD:5206) Language Disorders in Children 0-18 Years 3 s.h.
- 003:213 (CSD:6213) Voice Habilitation 2 s.h.
- 003:222 (CSD:5222) Speech and Hearing Anatomy (dissection) 2 s.h.
- 003:233 (CSD:5233) Aphasia 2 s.h.
- 003:236 (CSD:5236) Swallowing Disorders 2 s.h.
- 003:237 (CSD:5237) Cleft Palate and Related Disorders 2 s.h.
- 003:260 (CSD:5260) Designing Assistive Devices 1-3 s.h.
- 003:282 (CSD:5282) Phonological Development and Disorders 2 s.h.
- 003:283 (CSD:5283) Stuttering 2 s.h.
- 003:350 (CSD:5350) Preceptorship in Augmentative Comm 1 s.h.
- 07E:104 (EDTL:5104) Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing 2 s.h.

Students also must earn a total of 4 s.h. in 003:590 (CSD:7590) Research or 4 s.h. in a combination of research and seminar courses.

M.A. with Professional Licensure

M.A. with Licensure to Work Outside Public Schools

A number of states, including Iowa, require a state license in speech-language pathology or audiology for persons who work in settings outside the public schools. Students who meet the requirements listed above for the M.A. in speech pathology and audiology with professional emphasis also meet the academic requirements for the license in Iowa as well as in most other states. In 2007 the requirements to earn American Speech-Language-Hearing Association national certification in audiology changed. Certification now requires a clinical doctoral degree (Doctor of Audiology) or the equivalent. Students preparing for careers in audiology should consult their advisors.

M.A. with Public School Licensure

Students preparing for clinical positions in public schools typically must meet school licensure or certification requirements of the states in which they plan to work. The following criteria meet the requirements for endorsement as speech-language pathologists or audiologists in Iowa and most other states:

- a master’s degree with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology or audiology or the equivalent;
- completion of an approved human relations component;
- completion of courses that cover the education of the disabled and the gifted and talented (e.g., exceptional persons, education of the gifted); and
- completion of the requirements in speech-language pathology or audiology and the 20 s.h. professional education sequence, including 07E:104 (EDTL:5104) Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing and 07E:192 (EDTL:4192) Special Area Student Teaching as a speech-language pathologist or audiologist.

The professional education sequence requires course work in the following areas:

Curriculum (e.g., reading, methods, curriculum development)

Foundations (e.g., philosophy of education, foundations of education)

Educational measurement (e.g., tests and measurements, measures and evaluations of instruction)
Educational psychology (e.g., educational psychology, counseling theories and techniques)

Special education (e.g., introduction to special education, exceptional persons, learning disabilities)

Child development (e.g., human growth and development, principles and theories of child development, history and theories of early childhood education)

Note: General Education Program courses (e.g., introduction to psychology, sociology, history, literature, and humanities) do not meet the requirements of the professional education sequence.

Doctor of Audiology

The Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.) requires 95 s.h. of graduate credit. Individuals who wish to work as audiologists in the United States must hold a clinical doctoral degree or the equivalent.

The four-year Au.D. program is designed for students with an undergraduate degree in speech and hearing science. Au.D. students must complete the following courses. They may be excused from taking courses whose equivalents they completed successfully during undergraduate study.

- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences (or one semester of calculus) 5 s.h.
- 003:135 (CSD:5135) Foundations of Clinical Practice I 1-3 s.h.
- 003:145 (CSD:4145) Developmental Speech and Language Disorders 3 s.h.
- 003:219 (CSD:5219) Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation 3 s.h.
- 003:224 (CSD:5224) System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science 3 s.h.
- 003:230 (CSD:6230) Advanced Hearing Science 2 s.h.
- 003:238 (CSD:7238) Capstone Requirement 1 s.h.
- 003:240 (CSD:5240) Hearing Aids I 3 s.h.
- 003:242 (CSD:6242) Hearing Aids II 3 s.h.
- 003:244 (CSD:4244) Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.
- 003:245 (CSD:6245) Pediatric Audiology 3 s.h.
- 003:246 (CSD:5246) Advanced Audiology 3 s.h.
- 003:247 (CSD:6247) Medical Audiology 2 s.h.
- 003:249 (CSD:6249) Cochlear Implants 1-3 s.h.
- 003:255 (CSD:5255) Educational Audiology 2 s.h.
- 003:256 (CSD:5256) Anatomy and Physiology of Hearing 3-4 s.h.
- 003:290 (CSD:6290) Auditory Evoked Potentials 3 s.h.
- 003:291 (CSD:6291) Vestibular Assessment and Rehabilitation 3 s.h.
- 003:292 (CSD:6292) Advanced Rehabilitative Audiology 1 s.h.
- 003:311 (CSD:5311) Clinical Practice in Audiology 2-3 s.h.
- 003:317 (CSD:6317) Audiology Business Practice 1 s.h.
- 003:318 (CSD:6318) Hearing Loss Prevention 2 s.h.
- 003:519 (CSD:6519) Seminar: Evidence-Based Practice 2 s.h.
- 07P:243 (PSQF:6243) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.

Students may select any of the following electives. With their advisors’ consent, they may substitute other University of Iowa course work.

- 003:222 (CSD:5222) Speech and Hearing Anatomy 2 s.h.
- 003:526 (CSD:6526) Seminar: Rehabilitative Audiology 2 s.h.
- 003:538 (CSD:6538) Seminar: Hearing Science 2 s.h.
- 07E:104 (EDTL:5104) Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing 2 s.h.
- 06B:199 (OTO:8199) Basic Otolaryngologic Science 2 s.h.
- 132:180 (NSCI:7180) Fundamental Neurobiology 4 s.h.
- 158:101 (ASL:3200) Topics in Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
- 158:110 (ASLE:3905) Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students 3 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in speech and hearing science requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program provides flexible, comprehensive training for scholar-researchers interested in communication processes and their disorders. Students with diverse backgrounds in the natural and behavioral sciences are encouraged to apply and develop their skills in an atmosphere of interdisciplinary research.

The Ph.D. program reflects the broad interests of its multidisciplinary faculty, whose members have diverse backgrounds in speech, language, hearing, engineering, physiology, physics, psychology, linguistics, and bioengineering. Faculty members are committed to an interdisciplinary approach to questions at every level of the speech and language production/perception system.

The purpose of the doctoral program is to provide the integrated knowledge necessary for a productive career in speech-language pathology and audiology, communication science, and related areas.

The department encourages candidates with special interests, goals, or backgrounds to develop individualized programs of study. There is no standard curriculum for the Ph.D.; rather, a program of study is developed by each student in consultation with a faculty committee. The course of study is developed from courses offered by the department, courses in other areas (e.g., physics, engineering, psychology, mathematics, statistics, physiology, neurology, anatomy, and others), and special reading and research experiences.

The following courses are offered by the department of Communication Sciences and Disorders primarily for Ph.D. students. (Students interested in specific areas of research and selected publication citations of the faculty are encouraged to write to the department.)

- 003:201 (CSD:5201) Principles of Voice Production 3 s.h.
- 003:218 (CSD:6218) Psycholinguistics 3 s.h.
- 003:219 (CSD:5219) Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation 3 s.h.
- 003:224 (CSD:5224) System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science 3 s.h.
- 003:230 (CSD:6230) Advanced Hearing Science 2 s.h.
- 003:256 (CSD:5256) Anatomy and Physiology of Hearing 3-4 s.h.
- 003:290 (CSD:6290) Auditory Evoked Potentials 3 s.h.
- 003:291 (CSD:6291) Vestibular Assessment and Rehabilitation 3 s.h.
- 003:292 (CSD:6292) Advanced Rehabilitative Audiology 1 s.h.
- 003:311 (CSD:5311) Clinical Practice in Audiology 2-3 s.h.

In addition, seminars offered by the department cover a broad range of topics relevant to doctoral study.

Students in the Ph.D. program usually are expected to register for research credit (003:590 (CSD:7590) Research) during each semester of residence and to register for and participate in 003:515 (CSD:6515) Proseminar.

Knowledge in each of the areas of hearing, speech, language, mathematics, statistics, computer science, and instrumentation is required of all students. Decisions regarding the extent of this knowledge and how it is obtained (e.g., course work or independent study) are made jointly by the student and the student's faculty committee.

Doctoral students who have not written a master's thesis must complete the equivalent of a master's thesis project as well as the comprehensive examination. They also must successfully complete and submit a dissertation based on original research.

Joint Au.D./Ph.D.
The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders and the Graduate College offer the joint Doctor of Audiology/Doctor of Philosophy in speech and hearing science. The joint Au.D./Ph.D. program is especially appropriate for students who would like to practice audiology and hold a faculty position at a university. The program requires 137 s.h., permitting students to count 30 s.h. of the 95 s.h. required for the Au.D. degree toward the 72 s.h. required for the Ph.D. degree. Students complete all of the course work required for the Au.D.; the course of study for the Ph.D. is developed by each student in consultation with a faculty committee (see "Doctor of Philosophy" above). Consult the department to learn more about the joint degree program.

Admission
Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Each of the department's graduate programs requires that applicants take the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test before they apply for admission.

Admission to the M.A. and Au.D. programs is competitive; applicants' credentials are considered in relation to those of others in the applicant pool, and a limited number of individuals are admitted to each program. Applicants whose undergraduate g.p.a. is below 3.00 or whose GRE General Test scores are lower than 450 in any area (verbal, quantitative, and analytic) rarely are admitted to either program. Admission is for fall; the application deadline is January 1. All applications to the M.A. and Au.D. programs must be submitted through CSDCAS (Central Application Service for Communication Science and Disorders).

Admission to the Ph.D. program is based on each individual's aptitudes and interests in research areas rather than on admitting a certain number of students. Applicants should be enrolled in a master's degree program or should have completed a master's degree or equivalent graduate work. They should have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and should have GRE General Test scores no lower than 500 in any area (verbal, quantitative, and analytic). For best consideration, applications should be received by January 1. All applications to the Ph.D. program must be submitted through the University of Iowa Biosciences Centralized Application System.

For detailed information regarding evaluation of applicants, applications materials and requirements, and other matters, see Admissions on the department's web site.

Financial Support
The following information applies to all financial appointments administered by the department. For more detailed information, contact the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders director of graduate studies.

Graduate appointments usually begin only in fall semester. Students beginning study in the fall semester or summer session are considered for appointments for the following fall semester.

Appointment applications must be received by January 15 to ensure consideration for an appointment beginning the following fall semester. Initial appointment offers generally are made between April 1 and June 1; however, the department continues to make offers after this time.

Scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test are required for consideration for financial assistance.

Facilities
Clinical Facilities
The clinical training program benefits greatly from Iowa City's standing as the most comprehensive health sciences center in Iowa and from the ready availability of health service facilities for clinical training of students in speech-language pathology and audiology.

The University of Iowa Affiliated Speech and Hearing Services include the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic; the division of speech and hearing in the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics (UIHC) Department of Otolaryngology—Head and Neck Surgery; UIHC Consolidated Speech and Swallowing Services, which provides services to the Departments of Neurology, Child Psychiatry, and Otolaryngology—Head and Neck Surgery; speech and hearing services in the Center for Disabilities and Development; Pediatrics Regional Child Health Specialty Clinics; and the audiology and speech pathology service in the Iowa City Veterans Affairs Medical Center. Directors of these programs form the Council on Speech Pathology and Audiology at The University of Iowa.

The Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic serves the University and the general public. Included in its services are outpatient evaluation and rehabilitation programs for speech, hearing, and language problems; one-week intensive summer programs in stuttering, language development, reading, and aural rehabilitation; and a six-week summer preschool program for hearing-impaired children. These clinical programs give students supervised clinical experience with a wide variety of speech, hearing, and language disorders.

In addition to the clinical training in the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic, training also may be acquired in supervised clinical practice with elementary school children through various state area education agencies; and in supervised clinical practice in speech, language, and hearing services provided by the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics Consolidated Speech and Swallowing Services, the Regional Child Health Specialty Clinics, Center for Disabilities and Development, and the Veterans Affairs Iowa City Health Care System.

Public and private departments and programs in addition to those mentioned above often contribute to the cooperative professional training, research, and service programs.

Research Facilities
Facilities in the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Center include audiometric testing suites, diagnostic and remediation suites, equipment for diagnosis and therapy, a closed-circuit television system, and laboratories and equipment for acoustic, physiologic, and perceptual studies of speech, and for audiologic, psychoacoustic, and neurophysiologic studies of hearing. Mechanical and electronic shops and trained technical personnel are available for assistance in research instrumentation.

Cooperation with departments in the Carver College of Medicine, the Department of Psychology (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences), and the University of Iowa DELTA Center makes additional laboratory facilities available for research on problems in speech and hearing. The participation and cooperation of specialists from varied fields, including psychology, child development, education, engineering, statistics, and medicine, further broaden the scope of research activities in speech and hearing.

Courses
For Undergraduates

003:015 (CSD:1015) Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders 3 s.h.
Speech, language, auditory behavior as fields of scientific study; major types of speech, hearing, language disorders. Offered fall and spring semesters.

003:029 (CSD:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

Individual or small group participation in faculty research projects.

003:097 (CSD:3097) Honors Seminar 2 s.h.
Research topics and procedures in speech and hearing sciences; ongoing faculty research, research opportunities, possible research projects. Requirements: honors standing with intent to complete an honors thesis.

003:098 (CSD:4098) Honors Thesis 2 s.h.
Close work with a faculty mentor. Prerequisites: 003:097 (CSD:3097).

Basics of hearing intervention (e.g., hearing aids, cochlear implants, assistive devices) particularly important to classroom teachers at a level appropriate for that group; meets requirements for endorsement for teaching hearing impaired.

003:110 (CSD:2110) Phonetics: Theory and Applications 3 s.h.
Basic concepts: articulatory and acoustic description of speech, sound production, dialect variations, language differences; development of phonetic transcription skills with emphasis on English phonetics, clinical applications to developing and disordered speech. Offered fall semesters.

003:111 (CSD:2111) Basic Acoustics for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.
Principles of sound, simple harmonic motion, sound pressure and intensity, decibels, complex waves, Fourier analysis, resonance and filters, distortion, transmission of sound. Requirements: completion of department math requirement.

003:112 (CSD:3112) Anatomy and Physiology of Speech Production 4 s.h.
Normal anatomy, physiology of structures used to produce speech; principles, methods for instrumental study of speech production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110 (CSD:2110). Corequisites: 003:111 (CSD:2111), if not taken as a prerequisite.

003:113 (CSD:3113) Introduction to Hearing Science 4 s.h.
Normal auditory process; anatomy and physiology of auditory system; subjective correlates of auditory stimuli. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:111 (CSD:2111).

003:114 (CSD:4114) Introduction to Voice Disorders 2 s.h.
Basic foundations for management of voice disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112 (CSD:3112).

003:115 (CSD:4115) Structural Disorders 2 s.h.
Therapy approaches used to treat speech production and swallowing disorders associated with disorders that affect structure and physiology of the speech and swallowing mechanism; basic knowledge necessary for clinical practice by clinicians who do not specialize in management of patients with head and neck cancer, cleft palate, or neurological disorders. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110 (CSD:2110) and 003:112 (CSD:3112).

003:116 (CSD:3116) Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.
Basic anatomy, physiology of central nervous system; emphasis on neural systems involved in normal and disordered communication. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: biology, zoology, or physiology course. Same as 103:177 (LING:3116).

003:117 (CSD:3117) Psychology of Language 3 s.h.
Theoretical, empirical investigations of linguistic behavior; behaviorist, rationalist models in context of formal linguistic structure and context of models of speech perception and production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001). GE: Social Sciences. Same as 103:172 (LING:3117).
003:118 (CSD:3118) Language Acquisition

003:120 (CSD:4120) Clinical Observations in Communication Disorders
Diagnosis and treatment of a wide range of speech, language, or hearing disorders in a variety of settings; basic understanding of the evaluation process, goal setting, behavior management, pacing of therapy, shaping of behavior, tracking performance/learning, and professional and ethical behavior through observation of clinical interactions; completion of 25 hours of observation as required by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association for obtaining national certification. Recommendations: senior or graduate standing in communication sciences and disorders.

003:122 (CSD:3122) Speech Production: Anatomy and Physiology
Anatomy and physiology of the respiratory, phonatory, and articulatory systems and the systems' roles during speech production; approaches to instrumental assessment of speech physiologic events.

003:126 (CSD:3126) Neuroscience for Communication Science
Basic anatomy, physiology of central nervous system, emphasis on neural systems involved in normal and disordered communication.

003:127 (CSD:3127) Introduction to Psycholinguistics
Theoretical and empirical investigations of linguistic behavior in the context of formal linguistic structure, models of speech perception and production; readings of text and research papers; audio-visual demonstrations of classical speech perception and production phenomena.

003:140 (CSD:2140) Manual Communication
Training in use of sign systems in manual communication.

003:145 (CSD:4145) Developmental Speech and Language Disorders
The nature of developmental disorders—basic concepts, including behavioral characteristics, developmental patterns, etiology theories; assessment and intervention principles in phonology, semantics, morphology, syntax. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015 (CSD:1015), 003:110 (CSD:2110) or 103:110 (LING:3005), 003:112 (CSD:3112), and 003:118 (CSD:3118).

003:146 (CSD:4146) Neurogenic Disorders of Language
Overview of communication disorders secondary to acquired brain damage in adults; focus on aphasia, communication disorders arising from dementia, right-hemisphere stroke, traumatic brain injuries; general principles of diagnosis and intervention. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015 (CSD:1015), 003:110 (CSD:2110) or 103:110 (LING:3005), 003:112 (CSD:3112), and 003:116 (CSD:3116).

003:147 (CSD:4147) Neurogenic Disorders of Speech
Speech disorders secondary to acquired brain damage in adults; clinical intervention issues. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:116 (CSD:3116).

003:156 (CSD:4156) Communication Disorders and Aging
Introduction to speech, language, and hearing processes and disorders among older adults; survey of characteristics of communication and communication breakdown, remediation, and strategies for improving communication with older adults with communication disorders; primarily for nonmajors and service providers other than speech-language pathologists and audiologists. Offered spring semesters of even years. Same as 153:165 (ASP:4165).

003:183 (CSD:4183) Introduction to Stuttering
Theoretical perspectives on the nature of stuttering, including onset and development, basic phenomena, beginning treatment principles. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112 (CSD:3112).

003:185 (CSD:3185) Hearing Loss and Audiometry
Introduction to profession of audiology; overview of hearing disorders, evaluation, treatment; basic pure-tone and speech audiometry. Offered fall semesters. Corequisites: 003:113 (CSD:3113), if not taken as a prerequisite.

003:186 (CSD:4186) Problems: Speech/Hearing Processes and Disorders

003:187 (CSD:3187) Early Literacy Instruction for Young Children
Service-learning involving lecture, class discussion, and student participation in an early literacy program for preschoolers; concepts and skills necessary to conduct story time groups with young children that target development of print knowledge; application of learning by reading to small groups of preschool children. Corequisites: 031:014 (PSY:2401) or 07P:106 (PSQF:5106).

For Graduate Students

003:135 (CSD:5135) Foundations of Clinical Practice I
Basic concepts of clinical practice, including models of diagnosis, fundamentals of clinical data collection and measurement, treatment planning, professional writing. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015 (CSD:1015), 003:110 (CSD:2110) or 103:110 (LING:3005), 003:112 (CSD:3112), 003:118 (CSD:3118), and 07P:025 (PSQF:1020). Corequisites: 003:145 (CSD:4145). Requirements: graduate standing.

003:136 (CSD:5136) Foundations of Clinical Practice II
Advanced concepts of clinical practice, including principles of human behavior change, clinical decision making, generalization, transfer and maintenance, models of service delivery, ethical practice, advanced professional writing. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:135 (CSD:5135). Requirements: graduate standing.

003:137 (CSD:5137) Foundations of Clinical Practice III 1 s.h.
Advanced principles of clinical practice, including risk management, public policy and models of third-party reimbursement, professional issues. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:136 (CSD:5136). Requirements: graduate standing.

003:201 (CSD:5201) Principles of Voice Production 3 s.h.
Basic physical, physiological, pedagogical principles in understanding professional, nonprofessional, impaired voice production; vocal anatomy, voice classification; control of loudness, pitch, register, quality; efficient, inefficient use of voice; instrumentation for voice analysis, synthesis. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Same as 025:201 (MUS:5220).

003:202 (CSD:6202) Methods of Teaching Voice 3 s.h.
Attitude, musicianship, foreign language aptitude, physical and emotional characteristics; mental images used to modify respiratory, phonatory, articulatory behavior; vocal hygiene; performance anxiety; student-teacher relationships; administration in vocal schools, professional organizations. Offered spring semesters. Same as 025:202 (MUS:6250).

003:203 (CSD:5203) Counseling in Communication Disorders 1 s.h.
Collection and integration of case history information from clients/patients, family, caregivers, teachers, relevant others; providing counseling to clients/patients, family, and caregivers regarding communication and swallowing disorders. Prerequisites: 003:135 (CSD:5135).

003:204 (CSD:6204) Voice for Performers 2 s.h.
Comparison of kinesthetic techniques for singing and acting voice; relaxation, posture, breathing, tone quality, diction, interpretation. Same as 025:216 (MUS:6250), 049:201 (THTR:6255).

003:206 (CSD:5206) Language Disorders in Children 0-18 Years 3 s.h.
Disorders resulting from phonological, semantic, pragmatic, and morphosyntactic deficits; receptive, expressive problems; special assessment and intervention procedures. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 003:145 (CSD:4145).

003:213 (CSD:6213) Voice Habilitation 2-3 s.h.
Application of methods of intervention in development, training, rehabilitation of vocal behavior; motor learning, efficacy of treatment strategies, factors affecting compliance with recommended therapy. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:114 (CSD:4114) or 003:201 (CSD:5201). Requirements: enrollment in Summer Vocology Institute, Salt Lake City, Utah. Same as 025:356 (MUS:6555).

003:218 (CSD:6218) Psycholinguistics 3 s.h.
Theoretical, empirical issues in psycholinguistics; models demonstrating relation of formal language structure to psychological operations used in speech perception and production; laboratory emphasis on paradigmatic research in psycholinguistics. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001). Same as 103:218 (LING:6218).

003:219 (CSD:5219) Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation 3 s.h.
Electrical circuits, emphasis on application to instrumentation used in speech and hearing; laboratory focus on instrumentation. Offered spring semesters.

003:221 (CSD:6221) Instrumentation for Voice Analysis 2 s.h.
Glottographic, videostroboscopic, electromyographic, and acoustic analysis for assessment of vocal and respiratory function; using these techniques in conjunction with perceptual evaluation of voice; through the Vocology Institute in Utah. Offered summer sessions of even years. Requirements: enrollment in Summer Vocology Institute, Salt Lake City, Utah. Same as 025:357 (MUS:6556).

003:222 (CSD:5222) Speech and Hearing Anatomy 2 s.h.
Laboratory course in anatomy of speech and hearing mechanisms; instruction in dissection techniques. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 003:112 (CSD:3112).

003:224 (CSD:5224) System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science 3 s.h.
Principles of linear-systems theory applied to speech and auditory research, including system functions, filter properties, convolution, Fourier Series, Fourier transform. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: introductory calculus.

003:230 (CSD:6230) Advanced Hearing Science 2 s.h.
Basic properties of auditory perception or psychoacoustics from material covered in 003:256 (CSD:5256); perception of loudness, masking frequency selectivity, temporal processing, and spatial perception; basic perceptual properties, methods of measurement, and physiological basis for performance; properties of perception in normal ears, hearing impairment, and auditory prostheses (e.g., cochlear implants). Prerequisites: 003:113 (CSD:3113) and 003:256 (CSD:5256).

003:232 (CSD:6231) Speech Perception in Listeners with Hearing Loss 2 s.h.
Introduction to study of speech perception in listeners with normal hearing and those with hearing loss; overview of speech acoustics; theories of speech perception; contributions of auditory, visual, and indexical (talker-specific) information in speech signal; assessment techniques; benefits of hearing aid and/or cochlear implant use; factors influencing speech perception by children and adults with hearing loss. Prerequisites: 003:230 (CSD:6230).

003:233 (CSD:5233) Aphasia 2 s.h.
Assessment, diagnosis, and treatment of aphasia and other acquired language and cognition-based communication disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:117 (CSD:3117) and 003:146 (CSD:4146). Corequisites: 003:136 (CSD:3136).

003:234 (CSD:5234) Acquired Cognitive-Communication Disorders
Cognitive, neuropsychological, and social aspects of communication and the management of acquired cognitive-communication disorders associated with traumatic brain injury, right hemisphere damage, and neurodegenerative diseases. Prerequisites: 003:116 (CSD:3116) and 003:146 (CSD:4146).

003:236 (CSD:5236) Swallowing Disorders 2 s.h.
Physiology of normal, abnormal swallowing; assessment, treatment of swallowing disorders in adults, children. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112 (CSD:3112), 003:115 (CSD:4115), and 003:116 (CSD:3116).

003:237 (CSD:5237) Cleft Palate and Related Disorders 2 s.h.

003:238 (CSD:7238) Capstone Requirement 1 s.h.
Individual work with a faculty member on audiology topics; final Au.D. project. Offered spring semesters.

003:240 (CSD:5240) Hearing Aids I 3 s.h.
Hearing aids, diagnostic procedures; laboratory emphasis on measurement procedures. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185).

003:242 (CSD:6242) Hearing Aids II 3 s.h.
Evaluation, verification procedures; emphasis on advanced technologies, strategies. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:240 (CSD:5240).

003:244 (CSD:4244) Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment, rehabilitation of speech, hearing, language deficits of people with hearing impairment. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:145 (CSD:4145) and 003:185 (CSD:3185).

003:245 (CSD:6245) Pediatric Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment, rehabilitation of pediatric populations; laboratory emphasis on test administration. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185).

003:246 (CSD:5246) Advanced Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment of hearing loss in adult and pediatric populations; experience in test administration through supervised laboratory sessions. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185).

003:247 (CSD:6247) Medical Audiology 2 s.h.
Genetic, acquired, traumatic pathologies that affect auditory systems; nature, etiology, principles of assessment, treatment. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185).

003:249 (CSD:6249) Cochlear Implants 1-3 s.h.
Introduction to cochlear implantation; history of cochlear implantation, introduction to cochlear technology, basics of device programming and trouble shooting, candidacy issues, outcomes in children and adults, auditory rehabilitation specific to cochlear recipients, the auditory brainstem implant, future trends in cochlear implantation. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185) and 003:244 (CSD:4244).

003:255 (CSD:5255) Educational Audiology 2 s.h.
Training in skills necessary for working with the school-age population; case management and aural rehabilitation, amplification and classroom hearing technology, identification and assessment practices, federal legislation that affects services. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 (CSD:3185) and 003:244 (CSD:4244). Requirements: 003:240 (CSD:5240) for Au.D. students.

003:256 (CSD:5256) Anatomy and Physiology of Hearing 3-4 s.h.
Anatomy of auditory system, cochlear mechanics, electrophysiology of peripheral and central auditory nervous system; laboratory emphasis on physiological techniques for study of ear. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:113 (CSD:3113) and 003:224 (CSD:5224).

003:260 (CSD:5260) Designing Assistive Devices 1-3 s.h.
System design (hardware and software) useful in building augmentative and alternative communication devices for the profoundly impaired; opportunity to build systems for theoretical and/or applied purpose; interdisciplinary, clinical perspectives. Offered summer sessions.

003:282 (CSD:5282) Phonological Development and Disorders 2 s.h.
Advanced topics in phonological development and disorders; current theoretical approaches to phonological analysis and typical phonological acquisition applied to assessment and intervention with children who have phonological disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110 (CSD:2110) or 003:110 (LING:3005), 003:118 (CSD:3118), 003:135 (CSD:5135), and 003:145 (CSD:4145).

003:283 (CSD:5283) Stuttering 2 s.h.

003:290 (CSD:6290) Auditory Evoked Potentials 3 s.h.
Introduction to evoked potentials for assessing audiologic function. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:219 (CSD:5219).

003:291 (CSD:6291) Vestibular Assessment and Rehabilitation 1-3 s.h.
Introduction to otoacoustic emissions, vestibular theory, and testing techniques. Offered fall semesters.

003:292 (CSD:6292) Advanced Rehabilitative Audiology 1 s.h.
Current and developing procedures for assessment, habilitation of adults and children with hearing losses. Offered spring semesters.
003:301 (CSD:5301) Practicum: Speech-Language Pathology

003:303 (CSD:5303) Evidence Based & Emerging Practices in Communicatin & Social Interaction for Individuals with Autism
Evidence-based practices and emerging practices for promoting communication and social interaction skills in individuals with autism spectrum disorders; emphasis on intervention strategies specific to receptive and expressive language development, functional communication, social interaction, emotional regulation, play, structured learning environments, and opportunities.

003:304 (CSD:5304) Speech Pathology Outplacement: School
Supervised teaching and observation in speech-language pathology in an elementary school setting.

003:305 (CSD:5305) Speech Pathology Outplacement: Non-School
Supervised clinical work and observation in speech-language pathology in a non-school setting.

003:310 (CSD:5310) Scientific Writing
Principles of writing for scientific posters, journal articles, grant proposals; effective communication of concepts and data.

003:311 (CSD:5311) Clinical Practice in Audiology
Varied topics relevant to professional issues in audiology clinical practice; presentations by clinical faculty members and guest speakers. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis or Au.D. enrollment.

003:312 (CSD:5312) Practicum: Hearing Measurement
Evaluation of individuals for hearing impairment and its impact; clinical practice. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis.

003:314 (CSD:5314) Audiology Student Teaching
Supervised teaching and observation in an area of audiology in the elementary schools.

003:315 (CSD:5315) Clinical Rotations in Audiology

003:316 (CSD:6316) Advanced Externship in Audiology

003:317 (CSD:6317) Audiology Business Practice Management
Introduction to the development and management of an audiology practice; topics include short and long range business planning, general accounting, budgeting, establishing fees for service, coding and third party reimbursement, marketing, professional liability, certification and licensure; business and professional ethics. Requirements: Au.D. second-year or higher enrollment and 3.00 cumulative g.p.a.

003:318 (CSD:6318) Hearing Loss Prevention
Incidence and prevalence of hearing loss; risk factors and assessment; noise exposure guidelines; hearing protection devices; education and motivation. Prerequisites: 003:219 (CSD:5219).

003:350 (CSD:5350) Preceptorship in Augmentative Comm
Approaches to development of alternate modes of communication for individuals with limited oral communication. Offered fall semesters.

003:510 (CSD:5510) Seminar: Introduction to Research in Speech and Hearing
Philosophy of science; basic principles of research; issues in conducting research; review of research opportunities in the department. Offered fall semesters.

003:511 (CSD:5511) Introduction to Doctoral Research
Topics related to development and execution of research; doctoral program, use of library, human and animal subject issues, philosophy of science, use of common research tools, reading and writing research papers, research grant preparation. Offered fall and spring semesters.

003:515 (CSD:6515) Proseminar
Presentation of research ideas, results by faculty, students.

003:519 (CSD:6519) Seminar: Evidence-Based Practice
Introduction to design and conduct of research and evidence-based clinical practice, observation and measurement, population sampling, group and single-subject research designs, treatment research, data organization and analysis, and presenting research results in graphic and written form; issues concerning research ethics and the protection of human subjects in research. Recommendations: clinical graduate standing in audiometry or speech-language pathology.

003:520 (CSD:6520) Seminar: M.A. Language
Research literature related to language. Offered spring semesters of odd years.

003:522 (CSD:6522) Clinical Speech Physiology
Current approaches to the study of speech physiology and application in clinical practice; focus on providing hands-on experiences with common instrumental approaches to studying speech physiology, developing an appreciation of the factors and limitations that must be considered in applying and interpreting the findings of these approaches clinically, and developing abilities to critically evaluate the literature in this area.

Undergraduate major: communication studies (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: communication studies
Graduate degrees: M.A. in communication studies; Ph.D. in communication studies
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/commstudies/

The Department of Communication Studies focuses on the study of human communication as a social practice. Scholarship and teaching in the department center on the role that human communication processes play in the construction, maintenance, reinforcement, and reformation of various aspects of social, professional, and institutional life.

The department provides a liberal-arts-based undergraduate education that prepares students to meet the complex communication challenges of the 21st century. It provides top-ranked doctoral education and is a national and international leader in research and knowledge dissemination.

The department has three areas of specialization. The rhetoric and discourse specialization focuses on how citizens use public argumentation and other rhetorical processes to bring about cultural, social, and political changes. The media studies specialization focuses on modern media in their cultural, economic, historical, political, and social contexts to understand how society and social relations shape and are shaped by media practices. The interpersonal communication and relationships specialization focuses on how the communicative practices of relating in everyday life construct, shape, sustain, and change who people are as individuals, as well as the quality of their lives.

The Department of Communication Studies encourages exploration of the practical, political, social, and aesthetic dimensions of symbolic exchange and awareness of the relationships among these dimensions. The department has produced many influential scholars and artists and has been a hub for the intersection of programs and projects of the University and other institutions.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in communication studies (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in communication studies

First-year students interested in completing a major in communication studies are advised at the Academic Advising Center. Students who have earned 24 s.h. or more and have declared the communication studies major are advised in the department by the communication studies academic advisor.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in communication studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). The curriculum is designed to encourage learning that progresses from foundation courses that teach the basics of communication to intermediate and advanced (capstone) courses. Students may choose to build creative combinations of course work that suit their individual learning and career goals.

Students may count up to 50 s.h. of communication studies course work toward credit required for the Bachelor of Arts degree. Guided Independent Study and transfer courses may be applied toward the requirements of the major, with the department’s approval. A maximum of 15 s.h. of transfer credit may be counted toward the major.

Students must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in most communication studies courses.

Students work with the communication studies academic advisor to develop study plans that meet the requirements of the major. Students may check their progress toward the degree on ISIS.

Students are encouraged to discuss their career goals and interests with faculty members.

The 36 s.h. required for the communications studies major consists of foundation courses (15 s.h.), intermediate courses (12 s.h.), a capstone course (3 s.h.), and an additional 6 s.h., which may be earned in courses listed under “Intermediate Courses,” “Capstone Experience,” and/or “Additional Courses,” below. Students may not use a course to satisfy more than one requirement of the major.

FOUNDATIONS OF COMMUNICATION

Foundation courses cover introductory concepts in the field of communication. Students must complete five foundation courses (15 s.h.) and should take them early in their studies.

The following foundation courses are appropriate for first-year students. They do not require a minimum grade-point average for enrollment and do not have prerequisites, except 036:017 (COMM:1117), which requires fulfillment of the General Education Program’s Rhetoric requirement for enrollment. Students complete the first three foundation courses as follows.

One of these:

The fourth and fifth foundation courses are appropriate for second-year students. Enrollment in these courses requires completion of 30 s.h. and a g.p.a. of at least 2.50 for University of Iowa and transfer course work.

INTERMEDIATE COURSES

Intermediate courses cover detailed aspects of the study of communication. Students must complete four intermediate courses (12 s.h.), usually during their third and fourth years of study. They must have completed four of five foundation courses listed above and must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in intermediate courses.

At least four of these (12 s.h.):

CAPSTONE EXPERIENCE

Students must complete one capstone course (3 s.h.), a faculty-led experience in which they participate directly in producing knowledge, research, or creative work about communication. The capstone experience gives students a chance to synthesize what they have learned about the study of communication.

In order to enroll in a capstone course, students must have completed at least two of the required intermediate courses and must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. Most students take the capstone course during their senior year.

ADDITIONAL COURSES
Students earn an additional 6 s.h. to complete the 36 s.h. in communication studies courses required for the major. They may choose from the courses listed below and/or from the lists of intermediate and capstone courses above. However, students may not use one course to fulfill more than one requirement for the major, so in selecting the additional 6 s.h. of course work, they may not choose a course they already used to fulfill the intermediate or capstone course requirement.

The following courses are open to all students; they do not have prerequisites or require a minimum grade-point average requirement for enrollment.

036:013 (COMM:2813) Practicum in Debate 1 s.h.
036:014 (COMM:1814) Elements of Debate 3 s.h.
036:018 (COMM:1818) Leadership and Organizational Procedures 2 s.h.
036:019 (COMM:1819) Organizational Leadership 2-3 s.h.

The following courses have prerequisites, a minimum grade-point average, or other requirements for enrollment.

036:002 (COMM:1002) Workshop in Debate and Forensics 3 s.h.
036:028 (COMM:2828) Communication Studies Internship 1-3 s.h.
036:097 (COMM:2897) Independent Study arr.
036:098 (COMM:2898) Honors Workshop 1 s.h.
036:099 (COMM:2899) Honors Thesis 3 s.h.

Internships
Internships enable students to supplement their course work with professional experiences relevant to careers in communication-related fields. The department’s internship program is open only to communication studies majors.

To earn academic credit for internships, students must obtain approval for their internship experience and coursework before they register for 036:028 (COMM:2828) Communication Studies Internship (arr.). Internship academic credit is awarded for an analytical paper and daily log submitted at the end of the internship and for the number of hours worked. Internships can be completed during fall semester, spring semester, or summer session.

Visit the department’s web site for information on communication studies internships.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. Students who have signed the four-year graduation agreement should consult the department for details.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major
Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major
During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major
The department offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the communication studies major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to have a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

To graduate with honors in the communication studies major, students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and must complete the following courses.

036:098 (COMM:2898) Honors Workshop 1 s.h.
036:099 (COMM:2899) Honors Thesis 3 s.h.

In special cases, an independent study course may be substituted for 036:098 (COMM:2898), with the honors advisor’s permission. Additional course work may be required by the student’s honors advisor.

To begin work toward graduation with honors in the major, students choose a faculty member to supervise their honors project and to act as their honors advisor.

Departmental honors students are eligible to take courses offered through the University of Iowa Honors Program and to add an honors designation to any other departmental course by completing an agreement with the course instructor for special work in that course.

For detailed information, see Honors Program in Communication Studies on the department’s web site.

Minor
The minor in communication studies requires a minimum of 18 s.h. in communication studies courses, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include the five courses (15 s.h.) listed under "Foundations of Communication" above and one (3 s.h.) listed under "Intermediate Courses" above. Although students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in courses taken for the minor, they must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in some of the courses required for the minor.

Forensics/Debate
Students in the forensics/debate program have the opportunity to participate in on-campus debates, in developmental programs designed to improve speech activities in the state, and as members of competitive intercollegiate debate teams. Forensics scholarships are available. Students interested in debate should enroll in 036:013 (COMM:2813) Practicum in Debate or 036:014 (COMM:1814) Elements of Debate.
Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in communication studies
- Doctor of Philosophy in communication studies

The Doctor of Philosophy program in communication studies includes specializations in interpersonal communication and relationships, media studies, and rhetoric and discourse.

Graduate education in communication studies focuses on the Ph.D., but doctoral students may choose to earn a Master of Arts on their way toward the Ph.D. A terminal master’s degree may be an option for some students already admitted to the doctoral program.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in communication studies requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. It may be granted to students working toward the Ph.D.; it also may be granted as a terminal degree for doctoral students who decide not to complete the Ph.D. All master’s students take 036:200 (COMM:5200) Introduction to Research and Teaching (1 s.h.) and at least two courses numbered 200 or above. They also prepare a graduate seminar paper that involves significant original research. To learn more about M.A. requirements, see the Graduate Student Handbook (2011) on the department’s Current Graduate Students page.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in communication studies requires a minimum of 82 s.h. of graduate credit, including dissertation credit. All students take 036:200 (COMM:5200) Introduction to Research and Teaching and earn at least 10 s.h. of dissertation credit in 036:399 (COMM:6399) Ph.D. Dissertation.

Ph.D. students must take a 3 s.h. course in each of the program’s three areas of specialization; successfully complete a qualifying examination during their second or third semester and a comprehensive (pre)dissertation examination in their major research area during their fifth or sixth semester; and write a substantial scholarly dissertation. Students must maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 throughout the graduate program.

Admission usually is for fall semester entry. Applicants whose materials are received at the department by January 1 receive preference for admission and financial support. Admission decisions are based on undergraduate achievement, letters of reference, Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test scores, the statement of purpose, and samples of scholarly work.

Interpersonal Communication and Relationships

The communication and relationships program is centered on theory complemented by strength in quantitative and qualitative research methods. It focuses on scholarly issues that arise from face-to-face, everyday communication practices. It emphasizes personal relationship and family processes, identity construction, persuasion, and culture.

The goal of the program is to produce scholars who possess sophisticated knowledge of theory and methodology, who are careful consumers of theories and methods, and who can develop their own approaches to communication phenomena. The program emphasizes systematic analysis of the forms, functions, and meanings of messages within various contexts. Its broad social-scientific orientation springs from the belief that many methodological approaches are appropriate to studying and building theoretical explanations of communication.

Graduate students typically enter the program to earn a Ph.D. Advisors and committee members work closely with individual students to select courses from communication studies and other University departments and plan teaching and research experiences that will prepare students well for the employment they seek after graduation.

Media Studies

The graduate program in media studies focuses on the interplay of institutions, texts, and audiences in mediated communication systems. Its central aim is to examine modern media—radio, television, advertising, music, new media, and a wide range of other popular cultural expressions—with their historical, social, political, economic, and cultural contexts. It also uses the mass media as sites for asking basic questions about culture, society, politics, and modernity.

Like the department’s other graduate programs, media studies has a strong interdisciplinary flavor. Students draw not only on allied areas in the Department of Communication Studies but on fields across the University.

Rhetoric and Discourse

The program in rhetoric and discourse is built on foundation courses in classical and 20th-century rhetorical theory and in an overview of 20th-century rhetorical criticism. Courses from a rhetorical perspective include rhetorical theory, rhetorical criticism, visual rhetoric and politics, public address and public culture, studies in argumentation and freedom of speech, work in science and technology as well as academic inquiry, and historical methods. Cognate work of interest to rhetoricians also can be found in interpersonal communication and relationship studies as well as media studies.

The Ph.D. in rhetoric and discourse is designed to give students a mature grasp of the specialties and perspectives embraced by the field and to develop research competence essential to a life of productive scholarship.

Work in related disciplines—political science, history, sociology, English, cinema and comparative literature, anthropology, American studies, and journalism—complements rhetorical studies course offerings. Faculty from the Departments of Rhetoric, Political Science, and American Studies cross-reference their courses on rhetorical topics in this program.

The Project on Rhetorics of Inquiry (p. 948) (POROI) offers a certificate program, offering doctoral students the opportunity to specialize in the study of how academic fields use argumentative and linguistic strategies to generate and control knowledge. Many doctoral students also do extensive work in media studies or interpersonal communication to improve their range of teaching opportunities and their research skills.
Admission
Applicants to graduate programs in communication studies must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Facilities
The Samuel L. Becker Communication Studies Building is designed to meet the department’s research and technological needs.

Courses
Courses numbered below 200 are intended primarily for undergraduates; those numbered 200 and above are for graduate students. Graduate students may take courses numbered 100-199 for credit, with their committee’s approval.

Not all courses are offered each semester.

For Undergraduates
To register for most undergraduate communication studies courses, students must have earned 30 s.h. and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. However, registration for the following General Education courses is open to all undergraduates, regardless of their grade-point average.

036:017 (COMM:1117) Theory and Practice of Argument 4 s.h.
036:070 (COMM:1170) Communication Theory in Everyday Life 3 s.h.
036:074 (COMM:1174) Media and Society 3 s.h.

Registration in 036:029 (COMM:1000) First-Year Seminar is open to first- and second-semester students regardless of grade-point average.

Introduction to communication topics: face-to-face interaction, public speaking, globally-distributed film, music, and television; ways of thinking, vocabulary, and overview of concepts used in other communication studies courses. Requirements: g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and 30 s.h. of credit.

036:002 (COMM:1002) Workshop in Debate and Forensics 3 s.h.
Public argument on questions of value and policy; opportunities for demonstration and practice in discussion and debate. Requirements: concurrent enrollment in the National Summer Institute in Forensics.

036:005 (COMM:1305) Studying Communication: Methods and Critiques 3 s.h.
Social scientific methods used to generate knowledge about communication processes; basic tools necessary to conduct and evaluate communication research; epistemological perspectives, research procedures, and data analysis; readings and hands-on activities. Requirements: g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and 30 s.h. of credit.

036:011 (COMM:2011) Group Communication 3 s.h.
Study of relevant theory, research, and application to increase understanding of communication in small groups; critical thinking and communication skills; individual roles in groups, creativity, leadership, decision making, problem solving, and conflict resolution. Prerequisites: 036:001 (COMM:1301), 036:005 (COMM:1305), 036:012 (COMM:1112) or 036:070 (COMM:1170), 036:017 (COMM:1117) or 036:030 (COMM:1130), and 036:074 (COMM:1174) or 036:068 (COMM:1168). Requirements: cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and completion of Foundations of Communication requirement.

036:012 (COMM:1112) Interpersonal Communication 3 s.h.
Introduction to face-to-face communication in social and personal relationships; maximizing communicative effectiveness in relationships with knowledge about how communication functions; analysis of one’s own and others’ communication practices and experiences.

036:013 (COMM:2813) Practicum in Debate 1 s.h.
Practice of skills in research, reasoning, argument development, and argumentative performance in debate undertaken by members of the A. Craig Baird Debate Forum in preparation for and participation in intercollegiate debate competition. Requirements: participation in A. Craig Baird Debate Forum.

036:014 (COMM:1814) Elements of Debate 3 s.h.
Debates that occur everyday in a wide variety of situations and settings; how to recognize when a debate is occurring and different procedures by which people conduct debates; emphasis on development of personal advocacy skills and how one goes about teaching those same skills to others by example and practice; examination of role of debate in achieving collective economic and political purposes in contemporary societies.

036:016 (COMM:2016) Business and Professional Communication 3 s.h.
Introduction to business and professional communication at individual and corporate levels; individual-level topics cover organizational communication, business vocabulary, speaking and writing, professionalism and interviewing; corporate-level topics focus on marketing, advertising, public relations, corporate communications, crisis communication management, business and communication plans, proposals; guest speakers from for-profit and not-for-profit organizations. Prerequisites: 036:001 (COMM:1301), 036:005 (COMM:1305), 036:012 (COMM:1112) or 036:070 (COMM:1170), 036:017 (COMM:1117) or 036:030 (COMM:1130), and 036:068 (COMM:1168) or 036:074 (COMM:1174). Requirements: cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and completion of Foundations of Communication requirement.

036:017 (COMM:1117) Theory and Practice of Argument 4 s.h.
Public arguments as practiced in law, politics, science, and other public arenas; improvement of skills in researching, constructing, organizing, and presenting arguments on disputed subjects; analyzing and refuting arguments of others; developing a better understanding of how scholars apply tools of formal and informal logic in a variety of disciplines to improve quality of academic argument. Requirements: completion of General Education Program rhetoric component. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

036:018 (COMM:1818) Leadership and Organizational Procedures 2 s.h.
Use of organizational procedures to facilitate discussion, from by-laws to full parliamentary procedure; how knowledge of effective organizational procedures enhances ability to participate in meetings and organizational business to run more smoothly; benefit to instructors of speech communication with inclusion of parliamentary procedure/debate units. Offered only through Guided Independent Study.

The Program in Comparative Literature addresses culture across regions and languages in relation to literature, social theory and philosophy, history, and other disciplines. Students combine resources from a variety of programs, including film studies; the International Writing Program; the Department of English; the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures; and other arts and humanities units. Study of comparative literature prepares students to engage with critical concepts of tradition, identity, and expression in an interdisciplinary and multilingual environment.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in comparative literature (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in comparative literature

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in comparative literature requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete 21 s.h. of course work at The University of Iowa and may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from another major, minor, or certificate toward the major in comparative literature. Students majoring in comparative literature with a second major in cinema may count a maximum of 12 s.h. of credit toward both majors. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major is designed to promote cultural awareness, to increase speaking and writing skills, and to develop capacities for systematic reasoning about literature. The program offers two tracks: language and literature, and literature and arts. Students work with faculty advisors close to their track to develop coherent, individualized programs of study that reflect their interests and developing skills.

Students share a common set of basic courses in the literatures of widely divergent cultures and historical periods, in translation, and in interaction among the arts. All students are expected to gain an international perspective on literature and the arts and to become acquainted with interdisciplinary approaches to cultural study.

The successful pursuit of comparative literature requires study of at least one foreign cultural tradition, with appropriate emphasis on language, literature, and the arts in historical context. Familiarity with the literatures and cultures of other nations goes hand-in-hand with theoretical inquiry and reflection on basic issues, such as the nature and value of storytelling in literature and other arts—for instance, film, song, and painting. Translation between languages and among different arts represents another basic center of theory and practice. Individual courses of study may extend into other disciplines, including history, philosophy, linguistics, anthropology, law, and psychology.

In conjunction with an appropriate overall curriculum, the major in comparative literature can offer effective preparation for professional studies in fields such as law and business, or for employment in fields that value critical thinking and international understanding. It also offers excellent preparation for graduate work in the humanities.

The major in comparative literature requires the following course work.

COMMON COURSES

Tracks

Students take a total of 15 s.h. of work in one track.

LITERATURE AND ARTS TRACK

To complete this track, students take 12 s.h. of advanced work (100-level or above) in a single fine arts area. They may count one course in advanced performance, practice, or production toward the major, with consent of the director of undergraduate studies.

One additional 3 s.h. course must focus explicitly on arts and literature in comparative perspective.
WORLD LANGUAGES AND LITERATURE TRACK
To complete this track, students take 9 s.h. of courses in one foreign literature, read in the original language. One course in composition and conversation may count toward the major. (Language courses taken to complete the General Education Program do not count toward the major.)

Students take an additional 6 s.h. of course work in cinema and comparative literature or a related area (e.g., English and American literature, film, linguistics, anthropology, philosophy, history) or in a second foreign literature.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Because the major in comparative literature may require competency in a language in which the student will take advanced work, the student may need to acquire this language competency through course work early in the plan. Such course work is not reflected in these checkpoints.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major
Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major
During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major
The program offers undergraduate students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the comparative literature major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

To graduate with honors in the comparative literature major, students must complete an honors thesis. Once they have earned 75 s.h., they submit a written proposal for the thesis. The proposal must be approved by the faculty member who heads the student's honors thesis committee; the committee must be composed of at least two faculty members from the Comparative Literature Program. The student must complete the honors thesis over the next two consecutive semesters. For specific honors thesis requirements in the comparative literature major, contact the Comparative Literature Program office.

Minor
The minor in comparative literature requires 15 s.h. of University of Iowa comparative literature courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses numbered 048:040 and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students must choose courses with a primary emphasis in comparative literature. Contact the Comparative Literature Program office for a list of approved courses.

Graduate Program of Study
• Doctor of Philosophy in comparative literature

Admission to the Doctor of Philosophy program in comparative literature is suspended; for degree requirements, see the 2010-11 General Catalog. For information about the Master of Fine Arts in comparative literature—translation, see Translation (p. 616) in the Catalog.

Courses
The Comparative Literature Program offers courses for undergraduate and graduate students; for a list of courses with descriptions, see Cinema and Comparative Literature (p. 140) in the Catalog.

Undergraduate majors: computer science (B.A., B.S.); informatics (B.A., B.S.)
Undergraduate minors: computer science; informatics
Graduate degrees: M.C.S.; M.S. in computer science; Ph.D. in computer science
Web site: http://www.cs.uiowa.edu/

The Department of Computer Science offers undergraduate programs in computer science and in informatics as well as graduate degree programs in computer science. It also offers courses that students in all majors may use to satisfy the General Education Program (p. 306)’s Quantitative or Formal Reasoning requirement and a First-Year Seminar designed for entering undergraduate students.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in computer science (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Major in informatics (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Minor in computer science
- Minor in informatics

The majors in computer science and informatics provide students with the necessary training for employment in careers such as software development and information management. Both majors provide good preparation for graduate study in a variety of disciplines. The minor in each discipline helps students acquire fundamental knowledge of the use and applications of computers.

The department encourages students majoring in computer science or informatics to consider earning a second major, certificate, or minor.

Students may declare a major in computer science or in informatics when they are admitted to the University or afterward. All students begin the majors as Bachelor of Arts students but may switch to the Bachelor of Science programs at any time.

Undergraduates majoring in computer science develop competence in programming principles and methodologies, problem-solving techniques, mathematics, and computer systems. Computer science training is critical for many careers in science, engineering, business, and health care.

The informatics major combines fundamental and practical computing knowledge with a choice of cognate areas from the liberal arts and sciences, providing students with the necessary background and specialized skills to work at the interface of computing and another discipline. Informatics students may begin the major without a chosen cognate area; they may declare a cognate at any time. Some cognates are available only with the Bachelor of Arts, others are available only with the Bachelor of Science. So a student’s choice of cognate determines whether he or she will earn a B.A. or a B.S.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all course work in order to graduate. They also must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the major.

All students are advised at the Academic Advising Center until they have completed 22C:019 (CS:2210) Discrete Structures (computer science students) or 22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics (informatics students). Students being advised at the Academic Advising Center are welcome to consult with a computer science or informatics faculty advisor, as well.

Transfer students who have taken a course approved as equivalent to a required computer science or informatics course are exempt from that course. Transfer course grades are included in the computer science or informatics grade-point average.

Students should consult the Department of Computer Science web site or visit the department’s office for information about general policies, elective areas, and internships, scholarships, and student groups, such as the University’s chapter of the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM) and Women in Informatics and Computer Science (WICS).

ADVANCED PLACEMENT

The Department of Computer Science offers credit for study in an approved course taken in high school or an approved course taken during the summer session. See Advanced Placement Credit Policy under Prospective Students on the Department of Computer Science web site.

JOINT BACHELOR’S/MASTER’S DEGREE PROGRAMS

Qualified computer science undergraduate students who plan to earn the Master of Computer Science degree may apply for the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Computer Science program or the joint Bachelor of Science/Master of Computer Science program. The joint programs allow students to earn both degrees in five years. See "Joint B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S." later in this section.

EARLY ADMISSION TO THE GRADUATE COLLEGE

Undergraduate computer science or informatics students who have 6 s.h. or less to earn toward graduation may apply for early admission to the Graduate College. Early admission allows students in their final undergraduate semester to take courses for graduate credit in addition to the courses they need to complete their bachelor’s degrees.

B.A. and B.S.: Computer Science

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in computer science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 41 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science with a major in computer science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 64 s.h. of work for the major.

The computer science major for the Bachelor of Arts is designed for students who would like to gain considerable knowledge in computer science and have flexibility in choosing electives. Students preparing for careers in the computing field are encouraged to supplement the base requirements with additional computer science courses. The program’s flexibility makes it suitable for combination with other majors.

The computer science major for the Bachelor of Science is more rigorous than the B.A. major; it is designed to provide in-depth training for students who would like to acquire strength in math and science in order to enhance their skills and job prospects. It also is appropriate for those who plan to pursue graduate work in computer science, although it is not required for graduate study at most universities.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). Bachelor of Science students and Bachelor of Arts students considering a switch to the B.S. program should choose their General Education Natural Sciences courses carefully, since they may be able to use the same courses to satisfy the Bachelor of Science major’s natural science requirement; see “Natural Science Sequences (B.S.)” under "Additional Bachelor of Science Requirements" below.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all course work in order to graduate. They also must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all work for the major, including Department of Computer Science courses and supporting courses offered by other departments and programs. Work for the major may not be taken pass/nonpass.

The major in computer science (B.A. and B.S.) requires the following work.

ADVANCED TECHNICAL ELECTIVES (B.S.)

Bachelor of Science students must earn at least 12 s.h. (four courses) in advanced technical electives; at least 6 s.h. must be from the following list.

22C:072 (CS:3700)/22M:072 (MATH:3800) Elementary Numerical Analysis 3 s.h.
22C:099 (CS:3990) Honors in Computer Science or Informatics (maximum of 3 s.h.) arr.
Any computer science course [prefix 22C (CS)] numbered 112 through 190 3 s.h.
22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II 3 s.h.
A computer science course [prefix 22C (CS)] numbered 200 or above, with department approval 3 s.h.

Advanced elective courses offered by the Department of Computer Science or by other departments and programs may be counted toward the advanced technical electives requirement, with Department of Computer Science approval.

NATURAL SCIENCE SEQUENCES (B.S.)

Bachelor of Science students take two or more courses in a sequence (totaling at least 7 s.h.) in a cognate area of natural science. The natural science sequence is intended to enhance the student’s perspective by providing a deeper understanding of the scientific method. Typically, it consists of a sequence of courses taken in the same science department. Students often choose courses that also fulfill the General Education Program (p. 306) Natural Sciences requirement. Some possible choices are listed below; the department chair may approve others.

CLEP/APP credit may be used to satisfy part or all of the natural science requirement only if the appropriate science department at The University of Iowa accepts the credit as equivalent to one or more of the specific courses listed below.

B.A. and B.S.: Informatics

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in informatics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 42-49 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science with a major in informatics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 51-55 s.h. of work for the major. Required credit for the major depends on the choice of cognate area. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Both programs (B.A. and B.S.) combine foundational informatics course work with course work in a cognate discipline. The Bachelor of Arts major in informatics offers the cognate areas of art, economics, geoinformatics, health informatics, human-computer interaction, linguistics, music, social informatics, and individualized cognates. The Bachelor of Science major in informatics offers the cognate areas of bioinformatics, medical informatics, and individualized cognates.

All informatics students complete the informatics core, one (B.A.) or two (B.S.) electives, a statistics course, and a set of courses in their chosen cognate area. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all course work in order to graduate. They also must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the informatics core, the elective(s), and the statistics course. Work for the major may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students are expected to possess an appropriate high school background in mathematics.

The informatics major (B.A. and B.S.) requires the following course work.

INFORMATICS CORE

The informatics core consists of six required computing courses (at least 18 s.h.) that emphasize data manipulation, databases, and networking. It provides more applications-oriented content than the traditional computer science curriculum yet is designed to offer students a sound basis in underlying computer sciences themes and techniques.

One of these:
22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics 4 s.h.
22C:104 (CS:3110) Introduction to Informatics 3 s.h.

One of these:
22C:084 (CS:2420) Databases for Informatics 3 s.h.
06K:182 (MSCI:3200) Database Management 3 s.h.

All of these:
22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.
22C:082 (CS:2520) Human-Computer Interaction 3 s.h.
22C:086 (CS:2620) Networking and Security for Informatics 3 s.h.
22C:094 (CS:3910) Informatics Project 3 s.h.

INFORMATICS ELECTIVES

B.A. students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) and B.S. students must complete at least two (6 s.h.) from a list of approved computing informatics electives. Course selection must be approved by an advisor or by the informatics program director. In addition to the courses listed below, students may have additional choices from the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering and the Department of Management Sciences; consult an informatics faculty advisor for additional choices.

- 06K:186 (MSCI:4220) Database Management II: 3 s.h.
- 22C:096 (CS:3980) Topics in Computer Science I: 3 s.h.
- 22C:109 (CS:3210) Programming Languages and Tools: 3 s.h.
- 22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II: 3 s.h.

Any computer science course (prefix 22C) numbered 111 through 190

STATISTICS COURSE

B.A. and B.S. students must complete one introductory statistics course. Some cognates require a specific statistic course. Students should consult with their advisors to choose a statistics course appropriate for their cognate area.

One of these:

- 22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business: 4 s.h.
- 22S:025 (STAT:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference: 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics: 3 s.h.
- 22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods: 3 s.h.
- 034:010 (SOC:2160) Quantitative Data Analysis: 3 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts Cognates

Students must complete all requirements listed below one of the cognate areas below: art, economics, geoinformatics, health informatics, human-computer interaction, linguistics, music, social informatics, or an individualized cognate.

ART

The informatics major with the art cognate requires a minimum of 46 s.h. of work for the major, including 22 s.h. in cognate courses. Students learn about the design and maintenance of web services, applications of modern computerized artistic tools, and benefits and limitations of computers as a digital medium. They also gain insight into computerized tool design that is guided by knowledge of an artist’s requirements. The art cognate may lead to careers in web development, technology coordination for artistic productions, development of digital artistic tools, and artistic or technical development for entertainment companies. Cognate courses are primarily in art history, design, elements of art, and photography.

Note: Some courses listed below are open only to students majoring in art, so they are appropriate choices only for students with a double major in art and informatics. Non-art majors should work with an informatics faculty advisor to develop an individual set of art cognate courses.

All of these:

- 01A:003 (ARTS:1510) Basic Drawing: 3 s.h.
- 01D:090 (DSGN:2110) Graphic Design I: 3 s.h.
- 01D:100 (DSGN:3120) Typography: 4 s.h.

Two of these:

- 01H:001 (ARTH:1010) Art and Visual Culture: 3 s.h.
- 01H:002 (ARTH:1040) Arts of Africa: 3 s.h.
- 01H:004 (ARTH:1020) Masterpieces: Art in Historical and Cultural Perspectives: 3 s.h.
- 01H:005 (ARTH:1050) From Cave Paintings to Cathedrals: Survey of Western Art I: 3 s.h.
- 01H:006 (ARTH:1060) From Mona Lisa to Modernism: Survey of Western Art II: 3 s.h.
- 01H:008 (ARTH:1030) Themes in Global Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:016 (ARTH:1070) Asian Art and Culture: 3 s.h.
- 01H:026 (ARTH:2320) Introduction to Ancient Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:031 (ARTH:2220) Introduction to the Art of China: 3 s.h.
- 01H:033 (ARTH:2250) Introduction to the Art of Japan: 3 s.h.
- 01H:040 (ARTH:2420) Introduction to Medieval Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:047 (ARTH:2520) Introduction to Italian Renaissance Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:053 (ARTH:2620) Introduction to Baroque Visual Culture: 3 s.h.
- 01H:062 (ARTH:2730) Introduction to Nineteenth-Century Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:066 (ARTH:2920) Introduction to American Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:073 (ARTH:2820) Introduction to Modern/Contemporary Art: 3 s.h.
- 01H:084 (ARTH:2020) Introduction to Western Architecture: 3 s.h.
- 01H:090 (ARTH:2040) Introduction to Art and Religion: 3 s.h.
- 01H:099 (ARTH:2975) Undergraduate Seminar in the History of Art: 3 s.h.

At least 6 s.h. from these, with a minimum of one course (3 s.h.) numbered 100 or above:

- 01D:110 (DSGN:3130) Web Site Design I: 3 s.h.
- 01D:120 (DSGN:3110) Graphic Design II: 4 s.h.
- 01D:128 (DSGN:3122) Computer Graphic Design: 3 s.h.
- 01D:140 (DSGN:4130) Web Site Design II: 4 s.h.
- 01L:040 (PHTO:2513) Digital Photographic Imaging: 3 s.h.
- 01L:140 (PHTO:4555) Advanced Digital Imaging: 4 s.h.
- 01T:064 (TDSN:2240) Introduction to Computer-Aided Design for 3-D Design: 3 s.h.

ECONOMICS

The informatics major with the economics cognate requires a minimum of 48 s.h. of work for the major, including 24 s.h. in cognate courses, which are primarily from economics. The economics cognate is intended for students interested in working with economic, financial, or demographic data. It may lead to careers in administration, business, or government or to graduate study in management or policy areas.

All of these:

- 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business: 4 s.h.
- 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics: 4 s.h.
- 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics: 4 s.h.
- 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory: 3 s.h.
- 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics: 3 s.h.

At least two of these, to complete 24 s.h. for the cognate:

- 06E:111 (ECON:3160) Personnel Economics: 3 s.h.
- 06E:113 (ECON:3180) Health Economics: 3 s.h.
- 06E:117 (ECON:3200) Money, Banking, and Financial Markets: 3 s.h.
- 06E:119 (ECON:3220) Policy Analysis: 3 s.h.
- 06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business: 3 s.h.
- 06E:129 (ECON:3260) Economic Growth and Development: 3 s.h.
GEONFORMATICS
The informatics major with the geoinformatics cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including 21 s.h. in cognate courses. The geoinformatics cognate is intended for students interested in geographic information systems (GIS) and spatial aspects of data. It may lead to careers in business, government, or public health or to graduate study in geographic information systems (GIS) and spatial geoinformatics. The informatics major with the geoinformatics cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including 21 s.h. in cognate courses, which are primarily from geographical and sustainability sciences. The geoinformatics cognate is intended for students interested in geographic information systems (GIS) and spatial aspects of data. It may lead to careers in business, government, or public health or to graduate study in geography, public health, or policy areas.

All of these:
044:001 (GEOG:1010) Introduction to Human Geography 3 s.h.
044:003 (GEOG:1020) The Global Environment 3 s.h.
044:004 (GEOG:1021) The Global Environment Lab 1 s.h.
044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

One of these:
044:010 (GEOG:1090) Globalization and Geographic Diversity 3 s.h.
044:011 (GEOG:2110) Population Geography 3 s.h.
044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
044:030 (GEOG:2910) The Global Economy 3 s.h.
044:055 (GEOG:2130) World Cities 3 s.h.

One of these:
044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.
044:112 (GEOG:3530) Mapping American Cities and Regions 3 s.h.
044:180 (GEOG:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography 2-4 s.h.
044:181 (GEOG:4020) Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing 3 s.h.

Two of these:
044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing 3 s.h.
044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.
044:112 (GEOG:3530) Mapping American Cities and Regions 3 s.h.
044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis 4 s.h.
044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications 3 s.h.

HEALTH INFORMATICS
The informatics major with the health informatics cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including 21 s.h. in cognate courses. The health informatics cognate is intended for students interested in applications of computing to health care, especially in public health. It may lead to careers in medical or health-related areas or to graduate and professional degree programs in public health, health informatics, and medical informatics. Cognate courses are selected primarily from public health, geography, and global health studies. Once students complete the required courses in each of the four sets below, they must select additional courses from the sets to complete 21 s.h. of credit for the cognate.

One of these:
152:160 (GHS:3720) Global Health Seminar 3 s.h.
170:099 (MPH:3000) Fundamentals of Public Health 3 s.h.

At least two of these:
044:136 (GEOG:3920) Planning Livable Cities 3 s.h.
044:137 (GEOG:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
044:139 (GEOG:4570) Spatial Analysis and Location Models 3 s.h.
044:145 (GEOG:4500) Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

HUMAN-COMPUTER INTERACTION
The informatics major with the human-computer interaction cognate requires a minimum of 43 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 19 s.h. in cognate courses. The human-computer interaction cognate is intended for students interested in designing useful and usable technologies. It can lead to careers in interaction design, web design, implementation of user interfaces, and evaluation of human-computer interactions as well as provide valuable skills for graduate study in human-computer interaction.

The cognate’s courses are drawn largely from psychology, sociology, and industrial engineering. Four required courses include foundational aspects of psychology or sociology, an examination of basic human abilities and performance relevant to information technology use, and an introduction to research topics in human-computer interaction.

This course:

22C:148 (CS:4500) Research Methods in Human-Computer Interaction  3 s.h.

Either these three psychology courses:

031:001 (PSY:1001) Elementary Psychology  3 s.h.
031:010 (PSY:2810) Research Methods in Psychology  4 s.h.
031:016 (PSY:2601) Introduction to Cognitive Psychology  3 s.h.

Or these three sociology courses:

034:001 (SOC:1010) Introduction to Sociology Principles  3-4 s.h.
034:009 (SOC:2130) Sociological Theory  3 s.h.
034:011 (SOC:2170) Research Methods  3 s.h.

At least two of these, to complete 19 s.h. for the cognate:

031:002 (PSY:2701) Biological Psychology  3 s.h.
031:014 (PSY:2401) Introduction to Developmental Science  3 s.h.
031:015 (PSY:2501) Introduction to Social Psychology  3 s.h.
031:123 (PSY:3040) Psychology of Learning  3 s.h.
031:133 (PSY:3060) Visual Perception and Cognition  3 s.h.
034:020 (SOC:3210) Principles of Social Psychology  3 s.h.
034:125 (SOC:4210) Small Group Analysis  3 s.h.
056:144 (IE:3400) Human Factors  3 s.h.
056:147 (IE:3450) Ergonomics  3 s.h.

Most courses in this list have prerequisites, which students must complete before they may register for the course. The psychology courses (prefix PSY) require 031:001 (PSY:1001) Elementary Psychology and/or 031:002 (PSY:2701) Biological Psychology as prerequisite(s); the sociology course 034:125 (SOC:4210) requires 034:001 (SOC:1010) Introduction to Sociology Principles or 034:002 (SOC:1020) Social Problems as a prerequisite. Students should choose courses from this list carefully.

LINGUISTICS

The informatics major with the linguistics cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 21 s.h. in cognate courses. Linguistics, the scientific study of human languages, is directly related to psychology, anthropology, and computer science as well as to more applied fields such as second language acquisition or speech and hearing science. The cognate focuses on computational representations of syntax and semantics for processing natural language. Cognate courses are drawn primarily from linguistics.

All of these:

103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics  3 s.h.
103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics  3 s.h.
103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis  3 s.h.
103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis  3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:146 (CS:4460) Introduction to Computational Linguistics  3 s.h.
22C:149 (CS:4440) Web Mining  3 s.h.

Linguistics

103:131 (LING:3080) History of the English Language  3 s.h.
103:139 (LING:3301)/039:139 (CHIN:3301) Chinese Historical Phonology  3 s.h.

One of these:

008:140 (ENGL:3256) Elementary Old English  3 s.h.
008:141 (ENGL:3257) Old English Beowulf  3 s.h.
20E:110 (CLSA:2901)/039:110 (SOAS:2901) First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester  4 s.h.
20E:122 (CLSA:3902)/039:113 (SOAS:3902) Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester  3 s.h.
20G:001 (CLSG:1001) Classical and New Testament Greek I  5 s.h.
20G:002 (CLSG:1002) Classical and New Testament Greek II  5 s.h.
20G:011 (CLSG:2001) Second-Year Greek I  3 s.h.
20G:012 (CLSG:2002) Second-Year Greek II  3 s.h.
20L:001 (CLSL:1001) Elementary Latin I  5 s.h.
20L:005 (CLSL:1005) Accelerated Latin  3-5 s.h.
20L:002 (CLSL:1002) Elementary Latin II  5 s.h.
20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry  3 s.h.

MUSIC

The informatics major with the music cognate requires a minimum of 47 s.h. of work for the major, including 23 s.h. in cognate courses. The music cognate is intended for students interested in audio recording, manipulation of sound, and digital media. It may help students prepare for careers in the entertainment industry. Cognate courses are primarily from music, with some from cinema and comparative literature and from theatre arts. Entering students must possess basic musicianship skills; an audition may be required for admission.

All of these:

025:001 (MUS:1200) Fundamentals of Music for Majors  3 s.h.
025:002 (MUS:1201) Musicianship and Theory I  4 s.h.
025:003 (MUS:1202) Musicianship and Theory II  4 s.h.
025:071 (MUS:2111) Group Instruction in Piano I  1 s.h.
025:072 (MUS:2112) Group Instruction in Piano II  1 s.h.
025:149 (MUS:3780) Audio Recording I  3 s.h.
025:152 (MUS:3781) Audio Recording II  3 s.h.

Students who plan to take 025:002 (MUS:1201) Musicianship and Theory I or 025:003 (MUS:1202) Musicianship and Theory II must take the music theory diagnostic examination, which is administered on the Sunday before fall semester classes begin. See Musicianship and Theory Placement on the School of Music web site for more information. Advanced placement in School of Music courses does not reduce the number of semester hours required for the cognate.

One of these:

025:103 (MUS:3310) World Music  3 s.h.
025:104 (MUS:3311) Music of Latin America and the Caribbean  3 s.h.
025:141 (MUS:3720) History of Jazz  3 s.h.
025:144 (MUS:3301) History of Music I  3 s.h.
025:146 (MUS:3302) History of Music II  3 s.h.
At least one of these, to complete 23 s.h. for the cognate:

INDIVIDUALIZED COGNATES
Students interested in developing individualized cognates may work with an informatics faculty advisor. Individualized cognates may be drawn primarily from one department or an appropriate mix of departments. For the Bachelor of Arts, individualized cognates require an approved set of cognate courses totaling 18-25 s.h.

Bachelor of Science Cognates
Students must complete all requirements listed under one of the cognate areas below: bioinformatics, medical informatics, or an individualized cognate.

BIOINFORMATICS
The informatics major with the bioinformatics cognate requires a minimum of 52 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 30 s.h. in cognate courses. The bioinformatics cognate is intended for students interested in applications of computing to the biological sciences. It may lead to careers in laboratory research, biotechnology, data management, and other related areas. It also may prepare students for graduate programs in bioinformatics or genetics. The cognate offers a choice of two areas: genome bioinformatics, and phylogenics and evolution. Cognate courses are drawn primarily from biology and chemistry.

MEDICAL INFORMATICS
The informatics major with the medical informatics cognate requires a minimum of 52 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 30 s.h. in cognate courses. The medical informatics cognate is intended for students interested in applications of computing to health care, especially in a clinical setting. It may lead to careers in medical or hospital settings, graduate programs in medical informatics, or professional degree programs in medicine, dentistry, nursing, or other allied health professions. Cognate courses are drawn from biology, chemistry, health and human physiology, and public health.

Students who choose the medical informatics cognate must satisfy the major's statistics requirement with 225:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics.

INDIVIDUALIZED COGNATES

Individualized cognates may be drawn primarily from one department or an appropriate mix of departments. For the Bachelor of Science, individualized cognates require an approved set of cognate courses totaling 27-31 s.h. Students interested in developing individualized cognates should contact the Department of Computer Science for the name of an informatics faculty advisor.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Beginning fall 2014, the four-year plan will no longer be offered for the Computer Science major (B.A. and B.S.).

B.A.: Computer Science

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, three courses in the major [e.g., 22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals, 22C:019 (CS:2210) Discrete Structures, and 22C:021 (CS:2230) Computer Science II: Data Structures], and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: math through calculus II, two more courses in the major [e.g., 22C:022 (CS:2820) Object-Oriented Software Development and 22C:060 (CS:2630) Computer Organization], and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least two more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least one more course in the major

During the eight semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S.: Computer Science

These checkpoints do not include the required natural science sequence, which students usually complete as part of the General Education Program’s Natural Sciences requirement.

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, three courses in the major [e.g., 22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals, 22C:019 (CS:2210) Discrete Structures, and 22C:021 (CS:2230) Computer Science II: Data Structures], and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: math through calculus II, at least two more courses in the major [e.g., 22C:022 (CS:2820) Object-Oriented Software Development and 22C:060 (CS:2630) Computer Organization], and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least three more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. and B.S.: Informatics

Note: Much of the work in informatics and in the cognate area needs to be taken in sequence, so students must begin fulfilling requirements for the major as early as possible.

Beginning fall 2014, the four-year plan will no longer be offered for the informatics major (B.A and B.S.).

Before the third semester begins: 22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science, 22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics, one or two courses in the cognate area, the statistics course, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the fifth semester begins: three mid-level informatics courses [22C:082 (CS:2520) Human-Computer Interaction, 22C:084 (CS:2420) Databases for Informatics, and 22C:086 (CS:2620) Networking and Security for Informatics], the statistics course (if not already completed), two or three more courses in the cognate area, and at least one-half of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the seventh semester begins:
22C:094 (CS:3910) Informatics Project, an informatics elective course, two or three more courses in the cognate area, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the eighth semester begins: a second informatics elective course (for B.S. students) and courses in the cognate area

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the computer science major or the informatics major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in the computer science or informatics major, students must complete 4-6 s.h. of 22C:099 (CS:3990) Honors in Computer Science or Informatics and submit an acceptable honors thesis. Students are responsible for finding a faculty member willing to supervise their honors project. The faculty member must approve the proposed project and a timetable for the work. Students register for 22C:099 (CS:3990) Honors in Computer Science or Informatics under the thesis supervisor’s instructor number. See Honors on the department’s web site for details.

Honors students may count 3 s.h. of 22C:099 (CS:3990) Honors in Computer Science or Informatics toward an advanced or technical elective for the B.S. in computer science. Students in the joint bachelor’s/master’s degree program may register for 4-6 s.h. of 22C:199 (CS:5990) Individualized Research or Programming Project instead of 22C:099 (CS:3990). This will allow them to receive graduate credit for the course while satisfying the course requirements to graduate with honors.

Minor: Computer Science

The minor in computer science requires a minimum of 17 s.h. in computer science, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students excused from courses required for the minor may substitute other computer science electives. The minor requires the following courses.

All of these:

- 22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.
- 22C:019 (CS:2210) Discrete Structures 3 s.h.
- 22C:021 (CS:2230) Computer Science II: Data Structures 4 s.h.

At least one of these:

- 22C:022 (CS:2820) Object-Oriented Software Development 4 s.h.
- 22C:031 (CS:3330) Algorithms 3 s.h.
- 22C:060 (CS:2630) Computer Organization 3 s.h.

Students choose one additional computer science course [prefix 22C (CS)] to complete the 17 s.h. required for the minor. The following courses do not count toward the minor.

- 22C:001 (CS:1020) Principles of Computing 3 s.h.
- 22C:002 (CS:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
- 22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.
- 22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics 4 s.h.
- 22C:084 (CS:2420) Databases for Informatics 3 s.h.
- 22C:086 (CS:2620) Networking and Security for Informatics 3 s.h.
- 22C:094 (CS:3940) Informatics Project 3 s.h.
- 22C:096 (CS:3980) Topics in Computer Science I 3 s.h.
- 22C:104 (CS:3110) Introduction to Informatics 3 s.h.

Students may declare the computer science minor on ISIS; the application triggers an audit for the minor that is available on ISIS the next day of the academic session.

Minor: Informatics

The minor in informatics requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students earning a major in computer science or in management information systems (Tippie College of Business) may not earn the minor in informatics.

The informatics minor requires the following course work.

22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics 4 s.h.
- 22C:104 (CS:3110) Introduction to Informatics 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 22C:084 (CS:2420) Databases for Informatics 3 s.h.
- 06K:182 (MSCI:3200) Database Management 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 22C:082 (CS:2520) Human-Computer Interaction 3 s.h.
- 22C:086 (CS:2620) Networking and Security for Informatics 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.
- 22S:025 (STAT:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 22S:120 (STAT:3120) Probability and Statistics 4 s.h.

Students may declare the informatics minor on ISIS; the application triggers an audit for the minor that is available on ISIS the next day of the academic session.

Joint B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S.

The joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Computer Science and Bachelor of Science/Master of Computer Science programs allow qualified students to obtain an undergraduate and a graduate degree in computer science in five years. The B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S. each require a total of 140 s.h., which is 12 s.h. less than the sum of the requirements for both degrees earned separately.

Students in the joint programs must complete all requirements for each degree. They may count a maximum of 12 s.h. (four courses) toward both degrees. The four courses must be taken during the fourth year of undergraduate study, after admission to the joint program, and must satisfy degree requirements of both the B.A. or B.S. and the M.C.S.
When a student withdraws from the joint program before completing his or her bachelor's degree, credit earned in the four courses is counted only toward the undergraduate degree.

Students are granted a B.A. or B.S. when they complete all requirements for the undergraduate degree.

Students apply for admission to the joint program during their third year as undergraduates and enter the program at the beginning of their fourth year. They usually complete the joint program comfortably in one year after completing the B.A. or B.S. requirements.

Applicants to the joint program must:
- be enrolled as B.A. or B.S. students majoring in computer science at The University of Iowa;
- have completed a minimum of 80 s.h. at the time of admission to the joint program, with at least 30 s.h. earned at The University of Iowa; and
- have a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.25 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.25 in the computer science major (computed on math prerequisites and core computer science course work taken at The University of Iowa).

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Applicants must submit an application for admission to the program, a statement of purpose, three letters of recommendation, and transcripts from all colleges attended; they also must apply to the Graduate College. Graduate Record Examination scores are not required. For more detailed information, see Prospective Students on the Department of Computer Science web site.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Computer Science
- Master of Science in computer science
- Doctor of Philosophy in computer science

The Master of Computer Science (M.C.S.) is a course-based, nonresearch program for students who wish to enhance their careers with advanced knowledge of computer science. The Doctor of Philosophy program emphasizes preparation for research, teaching, and scholarly work in academic settings or private, industrial, or government laboratories. The Master of Science is granted only to students working toward the Ph.D.

Admission decisions are based on prior academic performance, letters of reference, the applicant’s statement about background and purpose, and for Ph.D. applicants, scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. Students need not have a master’s degree to begin the Ph.D. program or to be granted the doctoral degree. A student admitted without a master’s degree may choose to be granted an M.S. or the M.C.S. while working toward the doctorate.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Current and prospective graduate students should consult the Computer Science Graduate Handbook, available from the department’s office and its web site. The handbook provides detailed information about specific degree requirements, such as required courses, examinations, and dissertation requirements. For general information about the department, faculty, and research activities, contact the Department of Computer Science or visit its web site.

Master of Computer Science

The Master of Computer Science (M.C.S.) requires a minimum of 32 s.h. of graduate credit, including at least 24 s.h. earned at The University of Iowa.

Basic M.C.S. requirements are as follows. Consult the Computer Science Graduate Handbook for detailed information about M.C.S. requirements and graduate study policies.

FOUNDATIONS

One of these:

- 22C:131 (CS:4340) Limits of Computation 3 s.h.
- 22C:135 (CS:4330) Theory of Computation 3 s.h.
- 22C:231 (CS:5350) Design and Analysis of Algorithms 3 s.h.

SYSTEMS

One of these:

- 22C:160 (CS:5610) High Performance Computer Architecture 3 s.h.
- 22C:166 (CS:5620) Distributed Systems and Algorithms 3 s.h.
- 22C:185 (CS:5850) Programming Language Foundations 3 s.h.

COLLOQUIUM

M.C.S. students must earn at least 2 s.h. in 22C:399 (CS:6000) Research Seminar: Colloquium Series.

ELECTIVES

M.C.S. students complete the remaining 24 s.h. with a combination of computer science graduate courses, reading and project courses, and non-computer science graduate courses approved by their advisor. They must complete at least six computer science graduate courses (18 s.h.) numbered above 120, which may not include the following courses.

- 22C:199 (CS:5990) Individualized Research or Programming Project arr.
- 22C:399 (CS:6000) Research Seminar: Colloquium Series 1 s.h.

The remaining 6 s.h. of electives may include technical or quantitative graduate courses outside of computer science, with the advisor’s approval. Students also may include up to 3 s.h. earned in independent study courses [22C:199 (CS:5990) Individualized Research or Programming Project or 22C:290 (CS:6990) Readings for Research].

Master of Science

The Master of Science in computer science is offered only to students working toward a Ph.D. in computer science. Students who are interested primarily in a master’s degree and do not intend to pursue a more advanced degree should apply to the M.C.S. program.
Doctor of Philosophy
The Doctor of Philosophy program in computer science requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, three examinations (qualifying, comprehensive, and final), and a written dissertation.

Basic Ph.D. requirements are as follows. Consult the Computer Science Graduate Handbook for detailed information about Ph.D. requirements and graduate study policies.

CORE REQUIREMENT
Both of these:
- 22C:135 (CS:4330) Theory of Computation 3 s.h.
- 22C:231 (CS:5350) Design and Analysis of Algorithms 3 s.h.

BREADTH
Ph.D. students must complete at least three of the following courses, with at least one course selected from each area (9 s.h.).

Systems and software:
- 22C:160 (CS:5610) High Performance Computer Architecture 3 s.h.
- 22C:169 (CS:4640) Computer Security 3 s.h.
- 22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II (section approved by advisor) 3 s.h.

Networks and distributed systems:
- 22C:166 (CS:5620) Distributed Systems and Algorithms 3 s.h.
- 22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II (section approved by advisor) 3 s.h.

Programming languages and compilers:
- 22C:185 (CS:5850) Programming Language Foundations 3 s.h.
- 22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II (section approved by advisor) 3 s.h.

PRACTICE
Ph.D. students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) with significant practical or implementation-oriented content. Each semester the department designates courses that satisfy this requirement. The following are typical selections.
- 22C:144 (CS:4400) Database Systems 3 s.h.
- 22C:145 (CS:4420) Artificial Intelligence 3 s.h.
- 22C:146 (CS:4460) Introduction to Computational Linguistics 3 s.h.
- 22C:151 (CS:4520) Computer Graphics 3 s.h.
- 22C:149 (CS:4440) Web Mining 3 s.h.
- 22C:174 (CS:4720) Optimization Techniques 3 s.h.
- 22C:177 (CS:4700) High Performance and Parallel Computing 3 s.h.
- 22C:180 (CS:5800) Fundamentals of Software Engineering 3 s.h.
- 22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II (section approved by advisor) 3 s.h.
- 22C:199 (CS:5990) Individualized Research or Programming Project 3 s.h.

COGNATE AREA
Ph.D. students are required to select, in consultation with their advisor, graduate course work totaling 9 s.h. that constitutes coherent coverage of an external cognate area; the courses need not be offered by the same department. Choices include, but are not limited to, mathematics, statistics, genetics, biology, and engineering disciplines.

COLLOQUIUM
Ph.D. students must earn at least 4 s.h. in 22C:399 (CS:6000) Research Seminar: Colloquium Series.

ELECTIVES
Ph.D. students fill their remaining semester hours with a selection of computer science graduate courses numbered above 120 and graduate courses outside of computer science, approved by their advisor.

QUALIFYING EXAM
Ph.D. students are required to pass a qualifying examination by the end of their second year of graduate study. Once students select a topic in consultation with their advisor, they are assigned a three-member faculty examination panel by the department. Then they prepare a written prospectus for review by the committee, followed by an oral presentation.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAM
The comprehensive examination is an evaluation of the student’s mastery of a research area near completion of formal course work, and before preparation of the dissertation. The exam may be written, oral, or both, at the department’s discretion, and is administered by a faculty committee. The comprehensive exam typically should be completed by the end of the student’s third year and no later than the end of the fourth year in the Ph.D. program.

DISSERTATION
Each Ph.D. student must write a dissertation, a significant, original contribution to the field of computer science. Once students obtain some preliminary results and can identify and describe the boundaries of their dissertation, they prepare a written proposal for their committee’s review. The dissertation must be prepared in accordance with the format specified in the Graduate College Thesis Manual.

FINAL ORAL EXAMINATION
Once the dissertation is complete and has been reviewed by the student’s committee, a final oral examination is administered on campus. This examination must take place no sooner than the semester following successful completion of the comprehensive examination and no later than five years after completion of the comprehensive exam.
Courses

For Undergraduates

22C:001 (CS:1020) Principles of Computing 3 s.h.
Introduction to computing; broad overview of discipline; necessary skills and concepts for effective application of computing resources in student's profession. Prerequisites: 22C (CS:2230). GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22C:002 (CS:1100) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.
Introduction to computer science and the study of algorithms; foundational ideas, computer organization, software concepts (e.g., networking, databases, security); programming concepts using Python. Prerequisites: 22C (CS:2230) or 06K:070 (MSCi:2000) or 06K:170. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.
Introduction to programming using Python; programming constructs, data types, problem-solving strategies, data structures, object-oriented programming. Prerequisites: 22M:009 (MATH:1020) or 22M:013 (MATH:1340) or 22M:015 (MATH:1440) or math placement to a calculus course. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22C:019 (CS:2210) Discrete Structures 3 s.h.
Mathematical methods used in computer science, including logic, proof techniques (with induction), functions, relations, algorithm analysis, recurrence relations, counting methods, combinatorics, graphs, trees. Corequisites: 22C:016 (CS:1210), if not taken as a prerequisite. Recommendations: calculus I.

22C:021 (CS:2230) Computer Science II: Data Structures 4 s.h.
Design, implementation, and application of data structures (e.g., linked lists, stacks, queues, hash tables, trees); complexity analysis; recursion; introduction to object-oriented programming concepts; abstract data types and their realization using generic interfaces and classes; software design patterns (e.g., iterators, comparators). Prerequisites: 22C:016 (CS:1210). Corequisites: 22C:019 (CS:2210), if not taken as a prerequisite.

22C:022 (CS:2820) Object-Oriented Software Development 4 s.h.
Object-oriented design and software development methodology; team programming projects; GUIs, event handling, network programming, concurrency, data representation, IO programming. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230).

22C:031 (CS:3330) Algorithms 3 s.h.
Algorithm design techniques (e.g., greedy algorithms, divide-and-conquer, dynamic programming, randomization); fundamental algorithms (e.g., basic graph algorithms); techniques for efficiency analysis; computational intractability and NP-completeness. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230), and 22M:025 (MATH:1850) or 22M:031 (MATH:1550).

22C:060 (CS:2630) Computer Organization 3 s.h.
Computer building blocks: representing data, computer arithmetic, instruction sets, assembly language, digital logic, control units, ALU design, register operations, memory organization, IO. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230).

22C:072 (CS:3700) Elementary Numerical Analysis 3 s.h.
Computer arithmetic, root finding, polynomial approximation, numerical integration, systems of linear equations, ordinary differential equations; use of higher-level computer language such as Matlab, Maple, Mathematica. Prerequisites: 22M:026 (MATH:1860) or 22M:032 (MATH:1560). Same as 22M:072 (MATH:3800).

22C:080 (CS:2110) Programming for Informatics 4 s.h.
Computing fundamentals for informatics students, including practical programming skills (e.g., in Perl, other scripting languages) and introduction to algorithms, data structures, databases. Prerequisites: 22C:005 (CS:1110). Corequisites: 22M:005 (MATH:1010) or 22M:009 (MATH:1020) or 22M:010 (MATH:1240) or 22M:013 (MATH:1340) or 22M:015 (MATH:1440), if not taken as a prerequisite.

22C:081 (CS:2111) Programming Practice 2 s.h.
Review of introductory Python programming concepts taught in 22C:016 (CS:1210) and 22C:080 (CS:2110); enhance mastery of introductory programming. Prerequisites: 22C:016 (CS:1210) or 22C:080 (CS:2110).

22C:082 (CS:2520) Human-Computer Interaction 3 s.h.
Basic theories, principles, and guidelines for design and evaluation of human-computer interactions; design methodologies (e.g., participatory design, low- and high-fidelity prototyping), user interface technologies (e.g., input and output devices, interaction styles), quantitative and qualitative evaluation of user interfaces (e.g., expert reviews, usability testing). Corequisites: 22C:080 (CS:2110), if not taken as a prerequisite.

22C:084 (CS:2420) Databases for Informatics 3 s.h.
Design and implementation of relational database systems; introduction to the relational model, database design, database normalization, use of database query and manipulation languages such as SQL. Prerequisites: 22C:080 (CS:2110).

22C:086 (CS:2620) Networking and Security for Informatics 3 s.h.
Introduction to computer networking, overview of network organization and management; basic understanding of encryption and network security; practical experience in network programming. Prerequisites: 22C:080 (CS:2110).
22C:094 (CS:3910) Informatics Project 3 s.h.
Experience designing, implementing, documenting, and testing a system using appropriate software tools (e.g., a project working with an information management tool consisting of a database system with a Web-based front end); typically done in small groups; capstone project for informatics majors. Prerequisites: 22C:082 (CS:2520), 22C:084 (CS:2420), and 22C:086 (CS:2620).

22C:096 (CS:3980) Topics in Computer Science I 3 s.h.
Complement to material in other courses. Prerequisites: 22C:080 (CS:2110) or 22C:021 (CS:2230) or 22C:022 (CS:2820) or 22C:104 (CS:3110).

22C:097 (CS:3990) Honors in Computer Science or Informatics arr.
Individual projects. Requirements: computer science or informatics major, and honors standing.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

22C:109 (CS:3210) Programming Languages and Tools Varied programming languages and tools. Prerequisites: 22C:016 (CS:1210) or 22C:080 (CS:2110) or 22C:104 (CS:3110).

22C:111 (CS:3820) Programming Language Concepts 3 s.h.
Imperative, functional, and logical programming languages, and differences between them; syntax specification, types, control structures, recursion, data abstraction. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230), and 22C:022 (CS:2820) or 22C:104 (CS:3110).

22C:112 (CS:3620) Operating Systems 3 s.h.
Introduction to modern operating systems, including device control, memory management and addressing, process scheduling, interprocess communication, interrupts, synchronization, security. Prerequisites: 22C:060 (CS:2630).

22C:118 (CS:3640) Introduction to Networks and Their Applications 3 s.h.
Introduction to networks and the development of network applications; basic concepts of network communication common to applications such as simulation and web services. Prerequisites: 22C:060 (CS:2630).

22C:131 (CS:4340) Limits of Computation 3 s.h.
Turing machines, undecidability and complexity: reductions, Cook’s theorem and NP-completeness, approximation algorithms and randomized algorithms. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330).

22C:135 (CS:4330) Theory of Computation 3 s.h.
Finite automata; regular sets and expressions; context-free and context-sensitive grammars, their properties; push-down automata; standard, universal, and linear-bounded Turing machines; relationships between formal languages and automata; undecidability and its consequences. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330).

22C:141 (CS:6421) Knowledge Discovery 3 s.h.
Knowledge discovery process, including data reduction, cleansing, transformation; advanced modeling techniques from classification, prediction, clustering, association; evaluation and integration. Same as 06K:275 (MSCI:6421).

22C:144 (CS:4400) Database Systems 3 s.h.
Introduction to database systems including querying using SQL, design using ER diagrams, developing relational databases, programming web applications using PHP or JDBC. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230) and 22C:031 (CS:3330).

22C:145 (CS:4420) Artificial Intelligence 3 s.h.
Introduction to artificial intelligence covering problem-solving methods, heuristic search, knowledge representation, automated reasoning, planning, game playing, machine learning, and neural networks. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330).

22C:146 (CS:4460) Introduction to Computational Linguistics 3 s.h.
Introduction to computational linguistics; focus on theory and practice of natural language processing and syntactic and semantic analysis. Same as 103:140 (LING:4030).

22C:148 (CS:4500) Research Methods in Human-Computer Interaction 3 s.h.
Survey of recent research in the field of human-computer interaction; research methods and current readings. Prerequisites: 22C:082 (CS:2520).

22C:149 (CS:4440) Web Mining 3 s.h.
Core methods underlying development of applications on the Web; examples of relevant applications, including those pertaining to information retrieval, summarization of Web documents, and identifying social networks. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230) and 22C:022 (CS:2820). Recommendations: 22C:144 (CS:4400) strongly recommended.

22C:151 (CS:4520) Computer Graphics 3 s.h.
Introduction to computer graphics algorithms and techniques, with emphasis on interactive 3-D graphics; coordinate systems and frames, modeling and viewing transformations, rendering, shading, lighting, texture, bump, environment mapping, animation, ray tracing, radiosity. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330) and 22M:027 (MATH:2700).

22C:160 (CS:5610) High Performance Computer Architecture 3 s.h.
Problems involved in designing and analyzing current machine architectures using hardware description language (HDL) simulation and analysis, hierarchical memory design, pipeline processing, vector machines, numerical applications, multiprocessor architectures and parallel algorithm design techniques; evaluation methods to determine relationship between computer design and design goals. Prerequisites: 22C:112 (CS:3620) or 055:035 (ECE:3350); Same as 055:132 (ECE:5320).

22C:166 (CS:5620) Distributed Systems and Algorithms 3 s.h.
Models of distributed systems, program correctness—safety and liveness properties, causality, logical and vector clocks, mutual exclusion, distributed snapshot, leader election, distributed algorithms for graph-theoretic problems, fault-tolerance—masking versus nonmasking types, checkpointing, stabilization, consensus—byzantine generals problem, fault-tolerant broadcast and multicast, management of replicated data. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330) and 22C:112 (CS:3620). Requirements: some interest in networking.

22C:169 (CS:4640) Computer Security 3 s.h.
Mechanism versus policy; authentication, access control, security domains; perimeter security, defense in depth; cryptographic protocols; key management and distribution; security assessment. Prerequisites: 22C:060 (CS:2630).

Root finding for nonlinear equations; polynomial interpolation; polynomial approximation of functions; numerical integration. Prerequisites: 22M:027 (MATH:2700) and 22M:028 (MATH:2850), or 22M:037 (MATH:3550). Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22M:170 (MATH:5800).

22C:171 (CS:5720) Numerical Analysis: Differential Equations and Linear Algebra 4 s.h.
Numerical methods for initial value problems for ordinary differential equations; direct and iterative methods for linear systems of equations; eigenvalue problems for matrices. Prerequisites: 22M:027 (MATH:2700) and 22M:028 (MATH:2850), or 22M:037 (MATH:3550); and 22M:100 (MATH:3600). Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22M:171 (MATH:5810).

22C:174 (CS:4720) Optimization Techniques 3 s.h.

22C:177 (CS:4700) High Performance and Parallel Computing 3 s.h.
Parallel scientific computing methods such as parallel algorithms for dense and sparse matrices; implementation using libraries such as MPI; current topics such as grid computing. Prerequisites: 22C:060 (CS:2630) and 22M:027 (MATH:2700). Same as 22M:178 (MATH:4860).

22C:180 (CS:5800) Fundamentals of Software Engineering 3 s.h.
Problem analysis, requirements definition, specification, design, implementation, testing/maintenance, integration, project management; human factors; management, technical communication; design methodologies; software validation, verification; group project experience. Prerequisites: 22C:022 (CS:2820) or 055:033 (ECE:3330). Same as 055:180 (ECE:5800).

22C:181 (CS:5810) Formal Methods in Software Engineering 3 s.h.
Models, methods, and their application in all phases of software engineering process; specification methods; verification of consistency, completeness of specifications; verification using tools. Prerequisites: 22C:022 (CS:2820) or 055:033 (ECE:3330). Recommendations: 22C:188 (CS:4350). Same as 055:181 (ECE:5810).

22C:182 (CS:5820) Software Engineering Languages and Tools 3 s.h.
Modern agile software development practices for cloud and web-based applications, using state-of-the-art software engineering languages, tools, and technologies; agile software development practices, software-as-a-service (SAAS), and the Ruby on Rails Development Framework. Prerequisites: 22C:180 (CS:5800) or 055:180 (ECE:5800). Requirements: solid understanding of object-oriented design and programming, and facility with at least one object-oriented programming language. Same as 055:182 (ECE:5820).

22C:183 (CS:5830) Software Engineering Project 3 s.h.
Team software development project using concepts and methodologies learned in earlier software engineering classes; practical aspects of large-scale software development. Prerequisites: 22C:180 (CS:5800) and 22C:182 (CS:5820). Same as 055:183 (ECE:5830).

22C:185 (CS:5850) Programming Language Foundations 3 s.h.
Introduction to formal foundations of programming languages using a variety of models, including attribute grammars, operational, axiomatic, denotational, and algebraic techniques; proofs of program equivalence, correctness, termination. Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330) and 22C:111 (CS:3820).

22C:188 (CS:4350) Logic in Computer Science 3 s.h.
Applications of symbolic logic in computer science; symbolic logic as a powerful tool for modeling computation and computational devices and reasoning formally about them; introduction to several logics (i.e., propositional, predicate, temporal, modal) differing in their expressive power and focus, their uses in computer science; how to represent knowledge in these logics, what represents a valid argument, and how to prove or disprove, possibly automatically, the validity of a logical statement. Prerequisites: 22C:019 (CS:2210). Recommendations: computer science, math, or engineering major.

22C:196 (CS:4980) Topics in Computer Science II 3 s.h.
Complements material in other courses. Prerequisites: 22C:021 (CS:2230) or 22C:022 (CS:2820) or 22C:080 (CS:2110) or 22C:104 (CS:3110).

22C:199 (CS:5990) Individualized Research or Programming Project 3 s.h.
Individualized research and/or programming projects in computer science, guided by a faculty member.

For Graduate Students

Competence and exposure to computer science are not only useful, they often are prerequisite to advanced study and research in many disciplines. For most graduate students from other disciplines, an appropriate first course is 22C:104 (CS:3110) Introduction to Informatics.
22C:104 (CS:3110) Introduction to Informatics 3 s.h.
Fundamentals of computer science: algorithms, complexity, relational databases, systems concepts, programming in Perl. Requirements: 22C:005 (CS:1110) or graduate standing.

22C:231 (CS:5350) Design and Analysis of Algorithms 3 s.h.
Review of design and analysis techniques; advanced data structures (binomial and Fibonacci heaps, disjoint sets); graph algorithms (network flows, matching, min-cut); NP-completeness, randomization and approximation algorithms; special topics (string matching, computational geometry, number theoretic algorithms). Prerequisites: 22C:031 (CS:3330) or 22C:131 (CS:4340).

22C:251 (CS:5520) Advanced Computer Graphics 3 s.h.
Topics such as global illumination and rendering; volume rendering; animation; curves and surfaces, advanced modeling and mapping techniques; graphics hardware; real-time graphics for virtual environments. Prerequisites: 22C:151 (CS:4520).

Requirements: Ph.D. standing in computer science.

22C:296 (CS:5980) Topics in Computer Science III arr.
Complements material in other courses.

Requirements: Ph.D. candidacy (postcomprehensive exam) in computer science.

22C:399 (CS:6000) Research Seminar: Colloquium Series 1 s.h.
Graduate colloquium. Requirements: graduate standing in computer science.
Creative Writing (Iowa Writers' Workshop)

Director
- Lan Samantha Chang

Professors
- Ethan Canin (Creative Writing/English), Lan Samantha Chang (Creative Writing/English), James Galvin (Creative Writing/English), James Alan McPherson (Creative Writing/English), Marilynne Robinson (Creative Writing/English)

Associate professor
- Mark Levine (Creative Writing/English)

Graduate degree: M.F.A. in English
Web site: http://www.uiowa.edu/~iww/

The Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop) is a world-renowned graduate program for fiction writers and poets. It was the first creative writing program in the United States to offer a degree, and it became a model for many contemporary writing programs. In addition to its Master of Fine Arts program, it also offers writing courses for undergraduates.

Creative writing classes at The University of Iowa began in the 1890s, and in 1922 the university became the nation's first institution of higher education to accept creative work as theses for advanced degrees. The Iowa Writers' Workshop began in 1936, drawing distinguished fiction writers and poets who would lecture and stay to discuss students' work; some came for a full year of teaching.

Today the program's faculty and alumni include nationally and internationally prominent poets, novelists, and short story writers; many have won Pulitzer Prizes, National Book Awards, and other major literary honors. In 2003 the Iowa Writers' Workshop received a National Humanities Medal from the National Endowment for the Humanities—the first awarded to a university and only the second given to an institution rather than an individual.

To learn more about the Creative Writing Program's history and faculty, visit the Iowa Writers' Workshop web site.

Graduate Program of Study
- Master of Fine Arts in English

  The Program in Creative Writing offers a master's degree program. However, unusually well-qualified Ph.D. students in the Department of English may obtain permission to submit a creative dissertation for the doctoral degree; the Program in Creative Writing assumes responsibility for granting permission for the option of the creative dissertation and for approving the dissertation once it is completed. Contact the director of graduate studies in the Department of English for more information.

Master of Fine Arts

The Master of Fine Arts degree in English (creative writing) requires 48 s.h. of graduate credit taken over four semesters in residence at The University of Iowa. Students specialize in fiction or poetry.

The program is flexible and individualized. Approximately half of the credit required for the degree is earned in writing courses; the rest may be earned in other graduate courses. Up to 18 s.h. of graduate transfer credit may be counted toward the degree, but transfer credit does not change the residency requirement.

Students must enroll in 08C:251 (CW:7870) Fiction Workshop or 08C:252 (CW:7875) Poetry Workshop during each semester of residence in the program. In each course, groups of 10-15 students read and critique each others' work.

The program's seminars provide students with a thorough knowledge of their chosen literary form and related aspects of craft. Seminars include 08C:270 (CW:7810) Form of Fiction, 08C:275 (CW:7820) Form of Poetry, 08C:490 (CW:7830) Seminar: Problems in Modern Fiction, and 08C:495 (CW:7840) Seminar: Problems in Modern Poetry. Each focuses on a single aspect of modern poetry or fiction, such as a single writer’s work or a body of work with a common theme or purpose.

In addition to taking Creative Writing Program courses, many M.F.A. students choose courses offered by other University of Iowa departments and programs, such as the Interdisciplinary Center for the Book (p. 915) (Graduate College), the Department of Theatre Arts (p. 605), the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature (p. 140), and the Department of English (p. 246).

During the second year of the program, each student must take the M.F.A. examination, an essay exam that may be written outside of the classroom. Students submit their graduate thesis during the last semester, 08C:590 (CW:7895) M.F.A. Thesis; the thesis is a fiction or poetry manuscript of substantial length.

Admission

Applicants to the Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop) must meet the program's admission requirements as well as those of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

A creative writing manuscript is the most important element of the application for admission to the workshop. Submissions for poetry should include 10-12 poems. Submissions for fiction should include two or three short stories or a section of a novel, or both, usually 30-38 double-spaced pages (may not exceed 100 double-spaced pages).

Other application materials include a personal statement, official transcripts from all universities and colleges attended, the graduate application form, three letters of recommendation, an application for graduate awards, and an application to the Graduate College. Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test scores are optional, but they may make applicants more competitive for a wider range of financial assistance.

For detailed information on application materials and procedures, see Graduate Admissions/Admission to the Workshop on the Iowa Writers' Workshop web site.

Financial Support

Financial assistance is available to Creative Writing Program students in the form of teaching assistantships, research assistants, and fellowships. See Applying for Financial Aid on the Iowa Writers’ Workshop web site.

Courses

The Creative Writing Program offers courses for undergraduates as well as graduate students. Enrollment in some graduate-level courses requires admission to the M.F.A. program.

For Undergraduates

See "Courses" in the Department of English (p. 246) section of the Catalog for course descriptions and prerequisites to enrollment.

Critical Cultural Competence

Coordinator

• Motier Haskins

Undergraduate certificate: critical cultural competence

Web site: http://www.uiowa.edu/~socialwk/certificateinccc/

The Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence is administered by the School of Social Work (p. 555).

Undergraduate Program of Study

• Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence

The certificate program helps students develop an appreciation for their own cultural identities. It also helps them become critically self-reflective in their orientation to differences in other people’s cultural identities as defined by matters such as race, ethnicity, gender, class, and sexual orientation.

Certificate

The Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence requires 18 s.h. of course work. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

Ideally, students begin the certificate during their second year of undergraduate study.

Certificate students build the knowledge, skills, and attitudes they will need in order to increase their effectiveness in relating to others across cultural differences and in domestic and international environments that are increasingly diverse. Students who complete the certificate program develop:

• greater appreciation of cultural differences;
• increased ability to interact with individuals of diverse backgrounds;
• a philosophy of treating people fairly, equitably, and thoughtfully;
• critical self-reflection and awareness of their own culture;
• ability to assess and understand culture-related privilege and disprivilege; and
• concern with issues of power and privilege, and social justice.

The Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence requires the following course work.

Students begin the certificate with 208:120 (CCCC:2220) Foundations of Critical Cultural Competence, which is offered spring semesters and is prerequisite to the course work that follows. They complete a minimum of three elective courses (9 s.h.) that cover at least two diversity categories; a maximum of two electives may be taken from the same department, and two of the three electives must be numbered 100 or above. An additional experiential elective (3 s.h.) with an immersion-learning or service-learning component is required. Students complete the certificate’s requirements with the capstone course, 208:190 (CCCC:4490) Integrative Seminar in Critical Cultural Competence, which is offered spring semesters.

In collaboration with the certificate program’s coordinator, students establish study plans while completing the foundation course. The coordinator works with the academic advisor in the student’s major to ensure that the study plan complements the student’s academic program and career interests. The program coordinator approves the final study plan, recommends the sequence in which course work should be taken, schedules required courses, and keeps a record of each student’s approved program and progress.

For more information, contact the School of Social Work.

Undergraduate major: dance (B.A., B.F.A.)

Undergraduate minor: dance
Graduate degree: M.F.A. in dance
Web site: http://dance.uiowa.edu/

The Department of Dance offers degree programs for undergraduates and graduate students. The undergraduate major in dance provides a liberal arts and sciences education and thorough preparation for careers in professional dance, choreography, and education as well as preparation for graduate studies.

The department offers as many as 14 concerts every year, providing dance students with numerous opportunities for performance and choreography. Each year the University of Iowa Dance Company performs Dance Gala on campus, and since 1986, the department's touring company, Dancers in Company, has given students an opportunity to perform in Iowa and surrounding states.

Dance faculty members regularly present their choreography in national and international venues, giving University student performers the opportunity to further develop their performance skills. Periodic master classes with noted guest teachers, choreographers, and touring companies add diversity to the dance experience.

The department is one of three academic units in the Division of Performing Arts (p. 221). It participates in offering the division's Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship (p. 483).

Undergraduate Programs of Study
• Major in dance (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts)
• Minor in dance

Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to a degree program or the minor in dance, as well as for placement in advanced dance classes.

B.A. WITH SECOND MAJOR IN MUSIC OR THEATRE

Bachelor of Arts students majoring in dance may enhance their preparation for the challenge of working in the performing arts by earning a second B.A. major in music or theatre; they also may add course work from the third discipline. The curriculum for earning two majors in the performing arts is rigorous. Students must complete all requirements for both majors; see Music (p. 460) and Theatre Arts (p. 605) in the Catalog. For the dance major’s B.A. requirements, see "Bachelor of Arts" below.

Students must audition for entry to the dance and music majors. No audition is required for entry to the theatre arts major, but students must audition to progress from basic to advanced acting courses. Contact the head of acting in the Department of Theatre Arts to learn more about earning more than one major in the performing arts.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in dance requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 53 s.h. of work for the major (50 s.h. in dance and 3 s.h. in a required anatomy course). The program is designed for students who want to acquire a strong liberal arts and sciences background while pursuing a comprehensive undergraduate dance education. The dance major for the Bachelor of Arts stresses performance and choreography as well as dance theory courses, including dance history, dance kinesiology, and dance production.

Students must audition on campus, during the semester before they enter the University, in order to be admitted to a degree program in dance. They must audition for placement in dance classes before they register for classes. Nonmajors may register only for beginning and continuing levels of ballet and modern dance, but they may register for all levels of jazz and Afro-Cuban dance. Contact the Department of Dance, its undergraduate program coordinator, or the University's Office of Admissions for additional information.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

All B.A. students must complete 027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy (3 s.h.). The required 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses must include two semesters of 137:113 (DANC:3530) Major Ballet II or 137:114 (DANC:3540) Major Modern Dance I with a grade of B-minus or higher. Two semesters of 137:124 (DANC:4040) Major Modern Dance II, 137:123 (DANC:4030) Major Ballet III, or 137:130 (DANC:4540) Major Modern Dance IV also satisfy this requirement. At least half of all semester hours in the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. No more than 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses may be counted toward the 120 s.h. required for the B.A.

Students who select cross-referenced, non-dance department courses to satisfy the core course requirements must take additional dance electives to complete the required 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses.
CORE COURSES
027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
137:040 (DANC:1060) Introduction to Dance Studies 1 s.h.

137:174 (DANC:3085) Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance 1 s.h.

DANCE ELECTIVES
Credit earned in Department of Dance courses [prefix 137 (DANC)] that is not used to satisfy core, studio, or dance technique degree requirements is counted toward the dance elective requirement. Dance electives complete the 50 s.h. of dance courses required for the Bachelor of Arts.

The required number of semester hours in dance electives varies depending on whether the student completes the core with dance courses or with cross-referenced courses from another department, or has a core requirement waived.

Bachelor of Fine Arts
The Bachelor of Fine Arts with a major in dance requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 78 s.h. of work for the major (75 s.h. in dance and 3 s.h. in a required anatomy course). In contrast to the B.A. program, the dance major for the Bachelor of Fine Arts emphasizes choreography and performance through an additional 25 s.h. of choreography, performance, and technique. Students may be admitted to the B.F.A. program after they have completed a minimum of 30 s.h. at The University of Iowa. Students who have achieved the equivalent of major II technique and who show academic and professional promise are selected by department faculty for admission to the program.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). All B.F.A. students must complete 027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy (3 s.h.). The required 75 s.h. in Department of Dance courses must include three semesters of 137:123 (DANC:4030) Major Ballet III or 137:130 (DANC:4540) Major Modern Dance IV with a grade of B-minus or higher. B.F.A. students are required to maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in dance department courses. They also must earn at least half of the semester hours in the major at The University of Iowa. No more than 75 s.h. in Department of Dance courses may be counted toward the 120 s.h. required for the B.F.A.

The department encourages B.F.A. students to register for cross-referenced core courses under the Department of Dance course number [prefix 137 (DANC)].

CORE COURSES
B.F.A. students should register for cross-listed courses under the Department of Dance course number [prefix 137 (DANC)].

027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
137:040 (DANC:1060) Introduction to Dance Studies 1 s.h.
137:050 (DANC:1090) Dance Production 3 s.h.
137:051 (DANC:2220) Production Run Crew (2 s.h. required) 1-2 s.h.
137:060 (DANC:1080) Music Essentials for Dance 2 s.h.
137:080 (DANC:2060)/188:080 (DPA:2060) Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Global and Critical Contexts 3 s.h.
137:147 (DANC:3070)/049:108 (THTR:3070) Dance Kinesiology 3 s.h.
137:181 (DANC:3060) Dance History 3 s.h.

STUDIO COURSES
137:070 (DANC:3150) Choreography I 2 s.h.
137:071 (DANC:3250) Choreography II 2 s.h.
137:134 (DANC:2050) Improvisation I 2 s.h.

DANCE TECHNIQUE
Students must complete 32 s.h. from the following courses. They must include 14 s.h. of ballet, 14 s.h. of modern dance, and three semesters of either 137:123 (DANC:4030) or 137:130 (DANC:4540). All courses may be repeated.

137:057 (DANC:1150) Brazilian Culture and Carnival 3 s.h.
137:103 (DANC:3030) Major Ballet I 1-3 s.h.
137:104 (DANC:3040) Major Modern Dance I 1-3 s.h.
137:113 (DANC:3530) Major Ballet II 1-3 s.h.
137:114 (DANC:3540) Major Modern Dance II 1-3 s.h.
137:123 (DANC:4030) Major Ballet III 1-3 s.h.
137:124 (DANC:4040) Major Modern Dance III 1-3 s.h.
137:130 (DANC:4540) Major Modern Dance IV 1-2 s.h.
137:133 (DANC:4035) Ballet Pointe II 1 s.h.
137:174 (DANC:3085) Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance 1 s.h.

DANCE ELECTIVES
B.F.A. students choose advanced-level elective course work by selecting one of the following three options.
Option 1 (pedagogy)—one of these:
137:143 (DANC:4535) Elementary Ballet Pedagogy 3 s.h.
137:144 (DANC:4545) Teaching of Modern Dance 3 s.h.

Option 2 (advanced history or theory)—one of these:
137:202 (DANC:5060) Theories of Dance and the Body 3 s.h.
137:182 (DANC:4060) The Contemporary Dance Scene 3 s.h.

Option 3 (choreography)—both of these:
137:171 (DANC:4450) Choreography IV 2 s.h.
137:172 (DANC:4991) Independent Choreography 1 s.h.

Credit earned in Department of Dance courses [prefix 137 (DANC)] that is not used to satisfy core, studio, or dance technique degree requirements is counted toward the dance elective requirement. Dance electives complete the 75 s.h. of dance courses required for the Bachelor of Fine Arts.

The required number of semester hours in dance electives varies depending on whether the student completes the core with dance courses or with cross-referenced courses from another department, or has a core requirement waived.

SENIOR PROJECT
B.F.A. students culminate their experience with senior projects in choreography or performance. Students may earn honors credit for this project by enrolling in 137:140 (DANC:4999) Honors Project in Dance (enrollment requires membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program or special permission from the instructor). Other students must complete 137:141 (DANC:4998) BFA Senior Project in Dance.

One of these:
137:140 (DANC:4999) Honors Project in Dance arr.
137:141 (DANC:4998) BFA Senior Project in Dance arr.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Department of Dance course work beyond 50 s.h. for B.A. students and 75 s.h. for B.F.A. students does not apply toward semester hours required for graduation.

Bachelor of Arts
Before the third semester begins: 16 s.h. of courses in the major
Before the fifth semester begins: 25-40 s.h. of courses in the major
Before the seventh semester begins: 45-60 s.h. of courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
Before the eighth semester begins: 57-75 s.h. of courses in the major
During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Fine Arts
Before the third semester begins: 16 s.h. of courses in the major
Before the fifth semester begins: 25-40 s.h. of courses in the major
Before the seventh semester begins: 45-60 s.h. of courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
Before the eighth semester begins: 57-75 s.h. of courses in the major
During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major
The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the dance major. The honors program in dance serves and recognizes outstanding students in choreography, performance, and special projects. Departmental honors students must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in UI dance department courses. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in dance, students must complete 8-10 s.h. of honors work, taking two courses for honors credit and completing an honors project. All honors projects must be approved by the dance department faculty.

Minor
The minor in dance requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in University of Iowa Department of Dance courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to the minor and for placement in dance classes. Auditions are held four times each year. Contact the Department of Dance for more information.

The minor requires the following course work.
137:080 (DANC:2060) Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Global and Critical Contexts 3 s.h.
Advanced dance courses 12 s.h.

The advanced dance courses must include at least one of these:
137:057 (DANC:1150) Brazilian Culture and Carnival 3 s.h.
137:134 (DANC:2050) Improvisation I 2 s.h.
137:160 (DANC:3850) Introduction to Laban Movement Studies 2-3 s.h.
137:174 (DANC:3085) Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance 1 s.h.

Students may choose their remaining advanced dance courses from these:
137:103 (DANC:3030) Major Ballet I 1-3 s.h.
137:104 (DANC:3040) Major Modern Dance I 1-3 s.h.
137:106 (DANC:4880) Dance Performance 0-1 s.h.
Graduate Program of Study

- Master of Fine Arts in dance

The Master of Fine Arts is offered with a choice of choreography emphasis or performance emphasis. Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to the M.F.A. program.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Master of Fine Arts

The Master of Fine Arts program in dance requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed to be completed in four to six semesters in residence. Students who demonstrate accomplishment in dance performance and/or choreography may apply for admission to the M.F.A. program. Applicants select the choreography or the performance emphasis before they are admitted.

Admission is based on a review of videotaped choreographic and performance work; letters of recommendation; application materials; and an on-campus audition, in which applicants perform a solo dance, teach one or more classes, and take advanced classes in ballet and modern technique to determine class placement level.

Advanced technique (ballet and/or modern) and demonstrated accomplishment in performance or choreography are prerequisites for admission to the M.F.A. program.

The M.F.A. requires the following course work.

DANCE CORE

A total of 19 s.h. of core course work is required for both the performance emphasis and the choreography emphasis.

One of these:

- 137:133 (DANC:4035) Ballet Poinette II 1-2 s.h.
- 137:137 (DANC:3039) Partnering Class 1 s.h.
- 137:147 (DANC:3070) Dance Kiniesiology 3 s.h.
- 137:165 (DANC:3521) Acting for Singers and for Dancers 2 s.h.
- 137:175 (DANC:3086) Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Performance 1 s.h.
- 137:181 (DANC:3060) Dance History 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 137:200 (DANC:6060) Graduate Seminar in Dance 2 s.h.
- 137:201 (DANC:6080) Graduate Production Practicum 1 s.h.

EMPHASIS COURSES

A total of 14 s.h. is required for both the choreography emphasis and the performance emphasis.

Choreography Emphasis

Both of these:

- 137:206 (DANC:6880) Graduate Dance Performance (1-2 s.h. each performance) 4-12 s.h.
- 137:274 (DANC:6990) Graduate Independent Choreography (1 s.h. each project) 4 s.h.

All of these:

- 137:272 (DANC:6350) Graduate Choreography III 2 s.h.
- 137:273 (DANC:6450) Graduate Choreography IV 2 s.h.
- 137:275 (DANC:5550) Collaborative Performance 4 s.h.

Performance Emphasis

All of these (total of at least 12 s.h.):

- 137:107 (DANC:3885) Repertory Dance Company (up to 4 s.h. per year) 0-8 s.h.
- 137:206 (DANC:6880) Graduate Dance Performance (1 s.h. each performance) 4 s.h.

One of these:

- 137:274 (DANC:6990) Graduate Independent Choreography (1 s.h. each project) 2 s.h.

ELECTIVES

M.F.A. candidates in performance must earn a total of 9 s.h. in elective courses numbered 100 or above. A minimum of 6 s.h. must be earned in non-dance department courses. The remaining 3 s.h. must be earned in 137:147 (DANC:3070) Dance Kinesiology, 137:181 (DANC:3060) Dance History, or 137:182 (DANC:4060) The Contemporary Dance Scene.

M.F.A. candidates in choreography must earn a total of 15 s.h. in elective courses numbered 100 or above. A minimum of 6 s.h. must be earned in non-dance department courses; 6 s.h. must be earned in a course or courses that provide research material for the thesis. The remaining 3 s.h. must be earned in 137:147 (DANC:3070) Dance Kinesiology, 137:181 (DANC:3060) Dance History, or 137:182 (DANC:4060) The Contemporary Dance Scene.

DANCE TECHNIQUE

The performance emphasis requires 18 s.h. from the following, and the choreography emphasis requires 12 s.h.

- 137:103 (DANC:3030) Major Ballet I 1-3 s.h.
- 137:104 (DANC:3040) Major Modern Dance I 1-3 s.h.
- 137:213 (DANC:5530) Graduate Majors Ballet II 1-3 s.h.
- 137:214 (DANC:5540) Graduate Majors Modern II 1-3 s.h.
- 137:222 (DANC:7560) Graduate Ballet Technique Practicum arr.
- 137:223 (DANC:6030) Graduate Majors Ballet III 1-3 s.h.
- 137:224 (DANC:6040) Graduate Majors Modern III 1-3 s.h.
- 137:230 (DANC:6540) Graduate Major Modern IV 1-2 s.h.
- 137:231 (DANC:7550) Graduate Modern Dance Technique Practicum arr.

Facilities
The Department of Dance houses six technique studios, a movement training lab, a media classroom and library, a media laboratory, an audio recording laboratory, and its own theater for dance concerts.

137:113 (DANC:3530) Major Ballet II 1-3 s.h.
High intermediate training in ballet technique and performance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body.
137:114 (DANC:3540) Major Modern Dance II 1-3 s.h.
High intermediate technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body; consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range.

137:120 (DANC:3031) Floor Barre 2 s.h.
Introduction to Beamish-based floor barre technique. Prerequisites: 137:023 (DANC:2030).

137:123 (DANC:4030) Major Ballet III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced training in ballet technique and performance; physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body.

137:124 (DANC:4040) Major Modern Dance III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range; may include partnering exercises for investigation of weight exchange, timing, expressivity.

137:126 (DANC:3190) Lighting for Dance and Entertainment 3 s.h.
How to research, conceptualize, and express ideas through light plots; design paperwork; dance lighting design projects.

137:130 (DANC:4540) Major Modern Dance IV 1-2 s.h.
Professional technique and performance training in modern dance.

137:133 (DANC:4035) Ballet Pointe II 1-2 s.h.
Intermediate/advanced techniques and training for ballet pointe work; repetition and analysis of steps and combinations, assimilation of new material; barre and center exercises, pirouettes and turns commonly performed en pointe, learning and performing variations drawn from repertory.

137:134 (DANC:2050) Improvisation I 2 s.h.
Introduction to movement as research; experimental process as vehicle for invention, creative freedom, aesthetic range; development of kinesthetic imagination, awareness, creative problem solving; introduction to issues of artistic originality and authenticity; practical integration of improvisation and composition through spontaneous manipulation of time, space, and energy; knowledge of creative process supported by reading and individual research.

137:135 (DANC:4050) Improvisation II 2 s.h.
Advanced concepts in compositional improvisation; in-depth individual exploration, spontaneous ensemble composition; increasing authenticity, depth, and range; integrity in relating to the whole ensemble; connecting creative process to other bodies of knowledge; making contact with emerging premise; reading and discussion as integration of conceptual and experiential; speaking and writing as improvisational process. Prerequisites: 137:134 (DANC:2050).

137:137 (DANC:3039) Partnering Class 1 s.h.
The art of partnering in dance, from salsa to Swan Lake; power sharing on the dance floor, including supported poses, balance, musical and physical timing, unity of movement, eloquence of gesture; for advanced dancers with strong coordination skills.

137:139 (DANC:3034) Acting for Dancers 3 s.h.
Beginning acting for dancers; spontaneity and expression, sources of action and reaction through theater games; emotional journey in effective drama and comedy; drama, comic structure, and tension through character and script analysis.

137:140 (DANC:4999) Honors Project in Dance arr.
Research, choreographic, reconstruction, or performance project under guidance of a faculty advisor. Requirements: senior standing.

137:141 (DANC:4998) BFA Senior Project in Dance arr.
Senior year choreographic/performance capstone to complete B.F.A. in dance under supervision of faculty advisor; culminates in public showing or produced concert. Requirements: admitted to B.F.A. program in dance and senior standing.

137:143 (DANC:4535) Elementary Ballet Pedagogy 3 s.h.
Methods, materials, concepts for teaching ballet techniques.

137:144 (DANC:4545) Teaching of Modern Dance 3 s.h.
Practices of teaching modern dance; information and experience for developing an individualized approach to teaching; educational methodology for defining essential elements of a modern class, approaches for planning and structuring classes.

137:147 (DANC:3070) Dance Kinesiology 3 s.h.
Body science related to demands of dance; structural and muscular analysis for efficient, effective dance training and prevention of injuries; investigation of skeletal and ligamentous structure for working knowledge of how the body produces movement; joint actions and restrictions, common injuries to those sites; attachments of the voluntary muscles, pathways and potential actions; neuromuscular analysis of an action; functional skeletal alignment; how individual differences may affect movement performance. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100). Same as 049:108 (THTR:3070).

137:149 (DANC:4995) Honors Studies in Dance arr.
Choreography, performance, production, Labanotation, dance history, or pedagogy. Requirements: g.p.a. of 3.33 or higher.

137:160 (DANC:3850) Introduction to Laban Movement Studies 2-3 s.h.
Introduction to Bartenieff Fundamentals (BF) and Laban Movement Analysis (LMA) as methods of organizing and integrating movement to support artistic goals and expanding expressive range; BF teaches body awareness, breath support, developmental patterns, ergonomically-efficient alignment, balancing of muscular strength and stretch, and coordination; LMA teaches vocabulary of expressive movement and nonverbal communication, including effort (use of energy/dynamics for expression, stamina, stress relief) and shape (how posture and gesture communicate); quality of movement that supports individual goals in artistic expression, sound production, and wellness. Same as 025:167 (MUS:3850), 049:105 (THTR:3850), 188:167 (DPA:3850).

137:165 (DANC:3521) Acting for Singers and for Dancers
2 s.h.
Fundamentals of acting technique, with attention to demands on performers in opera, musical theater, and dance. Same as 025:175 (MUS:3521), 049:102 (THTR:3521).

137:170 (DANC:4350) Choreography III
2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:071 (DANC:3250); increased emphasis on invention, clarity, sophistication, and development of complete works; creation of sharply defined mature movement worlds; increasingly thorough consideration of sources and methods, responsibility for applying course work to self-defined artistic concerns and emerging individual aesthetic; advanced theories and methods through video, reading, choreographic research.

137:171 (DANC:4450) Choreography IV
2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:170 (DANC:4350); advanced theories and practices of choreography; complex concepts, methods, applications; analytical and creative connections with bodies of knowledge across the liberal arts and sciences; complete development of multiple works; advanced practice in critical feedback and articulation of ideas about process and product; development through reading, video, extensive creative research.

137:172 (DANC:4991) Independent Choreography
arr.
Credit for creation of independent choreographic project, developed under guidance of faculty advisor, that results in production of a dance work.

137:173 (DANC:3851) Introduction to the Alexander Technique
3 s.h.
The Alexander Technique and “self-use”—how our movement choices affect the results we achieve; improving physical skills and presence; principles from the Alexander Technique in support of performing arts (e.g., speaking, singing, playing an instrument, dancing, acting) and applied to skills in daily life, addressing the underpinnings of movement; physical participation, including laying, rolling, sitting, standing, and locomotion. Same as 188:168 (DPA:3851), 025:176 (MUS:3851), 049:170 (THTR:3851).

137:174 (DANC:3085) Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance
1 s.h.
Introduction to the dance, drumming, and songs of the Afro-Cuban folkloric traditions; emphasis on dance. May participate in UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance ensemble. Same as 188:174 (DPA:3085).

137:175 (DANC:3086) Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Performance
1 s.h.
Dance repertory for the UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Ensemble. Performance pieces based on dance, drumming, songs of the Afro-Cuban folkloric traditions. May participate in UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Ensemble. Same as 188:175 (DPA:3086).

137:181 (DANC:3060) Dance History
3 s.h.
Dance history in the 19th and 20th centuries; changes in dance training and technique, theory, composition, performance practices in context of broader social, political, and cultural trends; how dance and choreographic practices have changed over time, relationships between social ideas about embodiment and production of dance forms, precedents for contemporary dance practices in past forms. Prerequisites: 137:080 (DANC:2060).

137:182 (DANC:4060) The Contemporary Dance Scene
3 s.h.
Historical, theoretical, and practical elements of contemporary dance; the term “postmodern” and its associations with dance, performing arts, contemporary culture; relationships between process and product, identity and subjectivity, artistic intent and authorship, meaning and intertextuality; possibility of art as a form of dissent; theory and practice placed in a dialectic; analysis and synthesis of previous research. Same as 188:182 (DPA:4060).

137:190 (DANC:4990) Independent Study
arr.
Credit for an individual student-designed project coordinated with a faculty advisor. Requirements: sophomore or higher standing.

Primarily for Graduate Students

137:200 (DANC:6060) Graduate Seminar in Dance
2 s.h.
Research, careers, administrative, educational, professional, artistic topics.

137:201 (DANC:6080) Graduate Production Practicum
1 s.h.
Scenery and costume design, lighting, audio/video, publicity.

137:202 (DANC:5060) Theories of Dance and the Body
3 s.h.
Theoretical trends in studies of dance and physical bodies; performative and choreographic aspects of being. Same as 188:202 (DPA:5060).

137:206 (DANC:6880) Graduate Dance Performance
0-3 s.h.
Credit for rehearsal hours and performance of dance works in produced dance concerts. Requirements: audition and/or concert adjudication.

137:213 (DANC:5530) Graduate Majors Ballet II
1-3 s.h.
High intermediate technique and performance training; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body.
137:214 (DANC:5540) Graduate Majors Modern II 1-3 s.h.
High intermediate technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range.

137:222 (DANC:7560) Graduate Ballet Technique Practicum arr.
Advanced, in-depth understanding of teaching dance technique at the college level; emphasis on studio practice of technique through active participation in technique class; individualized research on technical and pedagogical approaches to dance; class taken with a faculty member during student’s teaching rotation to gain understanding of the teacher’s pedagogical approach across three levels of the majors-level technique curriculum. Requirements: completion of one semester of MFA program and good standing.

137:223 (DANC:6030) Graduate Majors Ballet III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced ballet technique and performance training for proficient dancers; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, understanding of basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body.

137:224 (DANC:6040) Graduate Majors Modern III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work—physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, understanding of basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range.

137:230 (DANC:6540) Graduate Major Modern IV 1-2 s.h.
Professional technique and performance training in modern dance.

137:231 (DANC:7550) Graduate Modern Dance Technique Practicum arr.
Advanced, in-depth understanding of teaching dance technique at the college level; emphasis on studio practice of technique through active participation in technique class; individualized research on technical and pedagogical approaches to dance; class taken with a faculty member during student’s teaching rotation to gain understanding of the teacher’s pedagogical approach across three levels of the majors-level technique curriculum. Requirements: completion of one semester of MFA program and good standing.

137:234 (DANC:5050) Graduate Improvisation I 1-2 s.h.
Dance improvisation.

137:235 (DANC:6050) Graduate Improvisation II 2 s.h.
Advanced improvisation.

137:269 (DANC:6992) Graduate Independent Performance Project arr.
Credit for creative participation as a performer in a choreography project, developed under guidance of a faculty advisor, that results in the performance of a dance work.

137:272 (DANC:6350) Graduate Choreography III 2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:271; advanced choreographic concepts, methods, and applications with focus on the creative mind and choreographic process; concepts and experiences that support development of advanced choreographic skills and innovative dances.

137:273 (DANC:6450) Graduate Choreography IV 2 s.h.
Advanced choreography concepts, methods, applications.

137:274 (DANC:6990) Graduate Independent Choreography arr.
Credit for creation of an independent choreographic project, developed under guidance of faculty advisor, that results in production of a dance work.

137:275 (DANC:5550) Collaborative Performance 1-4 s.h.
Collaborative experience with advanced artists from varied disciplines that culminates in a final performance: emphasis on sharing and investigating ideas, artistic intent, personal vision, and creating collaborative projects. Same as 049:275 (THTR:5610), 188:275 (DPA:5550).

137:290 (DANC:6991) Graduate Independent Study arr.
Credit for individually designed project coordinated with a faculty advisor.
Disability Studies

Coordinators

Undergraduate certificate: disability studies
Disability studies examines disability as a social, cultural, historical, and political phenomenon rather than focusing on its clinical, medical, or therapeutic aspects. It is an interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary field that draws on scholarship from diverse disciplines, including anthropology, architecture, the arts, communication and media studies, cultural studies, economics, gender studies, geography, global studies, history, law, literature, medicine, nursing, philosophy, policy studies, political science, religious studies, social work, and sociology.

Its multidisciplinary nature makes disability studies a good complement to a broad range of undergraduate majors.

The certificate program in disability studies is administered by the music therapy program in the School of Music (p. 460).

Undergraduate Program of Study

• Certificate in Disability Studies

Certificate

The Certificate in Disability Studies requires a minimum of 19 s.h. of credit. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor's degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student's transcript.

The certificate program helps students expand their knowledge and awareness of disability issues and prepare for careers in public life. Students who complete the certificate develop:

• understanding of the history of disabilities in America;
• awareness of how culture and society define disability;
• the ability to interact with individuals from diverse backgrounds;
• a personal philosophy of treating people fairly, equitably, and thoughtfully; and
• greater understanding of and concern with public policy issues and active citizenship.

The Certificate in Disability Studies requires the following course work.

CORE COURSES

Students earn 7-9 s.h. by taking the following three core courses.

16A:106 (HIST:4203) Disability in American History 3 s.h.
07U:140 (EDTL:4940) Characteristics of Disabilities 3 s.h.
07U:167 (EDTL:4967) Diversity, Career Exploration, and Transition I 1-3 s.h.

FOCUSED ELECTIVES

Students earn a minimum of 9 s.h. in focused electives, which they select from courses in at least two of the following lists (maximum of 6 s.h. from any one list).

They may count a maximum of 3 s.h. earned in courses numbered below 100 toward this requirement.

Aging Studies

153:135 (ASP:3135) Global Aging 3 s.h.
153:150 (ASP:3150) Psychology of Aging 3 s.h.
153:165 (ASP:4165) Communication Disorders and Aging 2 s.h.

American Sign Language

158:100 (ASL:4201) History of the American Deaf Community 3-4 s.h.
158:101 (ASL:3200) Topics in Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
158:102 (ASL:3300) American Deaf Culture 3 s.h.
158:103 (ASL:3600) American Sign Language Literature 3 s.h.
158:104 (ASL:3400) Issues in ASL and Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
158:105 (ASL:3500) Deafness in the Media 3 s.h.
158:110 (ASL:3905) Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students 3-4 s.h.

American Studies

045:025 (AMST:2025) Diversity and American Identities 3 s.h.

Anthropology

113:185 (ANTH:3102) Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.

Communication Sciences and Disorders

003:015 (CSD:1015) Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders 3 s.h.
003:145 (CSD:4145) Developmental Speech and Language Disorders 3 s.h.
003:147 (CSD:4147) Neurogenic Disorders of Speech 2 s.h.
003:165 (CSD:4165) Communication Disorders and Aging 2 s.h.
003:185 (CSD:3185) Hearing Loss and Audiology 3 s.h.
003:206 (CSD:5206) Language Disorders in Children 0-18 Years 3 s.h.
003:233 (CSD:5233) Aphasia 2 s.h.
003:234 (CSD:5234) Acquired Cognitive-Communication Disorders 1 s.h.
003:203 (CSD:5303) Evidence Based & Emerging Practices in Communicatn & Social Interaction for Individuals with Autism 1 s.h.
07U:348 (EDTL:7948) Contemporary Research in Behavioral Disorders 3 s.h.

Education

Division of Performing Arts

Director

- Alan MacVey

Undergraduate certificate: performing arts entrepreneurship

Web site: http://dpa.uiowa.edu/

The Division of Performing Arts includes the Department of Dance (p. 210), the School of Music (p. 460), and the Department of Theatre Arts (p. 605). The division fosters interdisciplinary collaboration among these units, coordinates artistic and academic activities, and sponsors a full array of performances and symposia. Performances are supported by professional staff in the division’s Performing Arts Production Unit.

Each of the division’s individual academic units offers undergraduate and graduate courses and degree programs in creative, performance, scholarly, and theoretical areas. Together they present an extensive schedule of dance productions, faculty and student recitals, ensemble concerts, and mainstage and gallery theater productions.

The division offers the undergraduate Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship in partnership with the Tippie College of Business’s John Pappajohn Entrepreneurial Center. The certificate program combines courses in accounting, marketing, and financial management with those focused on arts management and leadership practices in commercial as well as nonprofit arts organizations. See Performing Arts Entrepreneurship (p. 483) in the Catalog.

The division also is home to an arts outreach program, Arts Share.

For information about the division and its programs and events, visit the Division of Performing Arts web site.
Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures

Director
- Russell Ganem

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/dwllc

The Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures includes several academic units: the Departments of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures, French and Italian, German, and Spanish and Portuguese and the American Sign Language, Second Language Acquisition, and Translation Programs. In addition to providing administrative leadership for all of its units, the division fosters interdisciplinary scholarship in languages, literatures, and cultures. It encourages synergy and collaboration among its faculty members and enhances opportunities for cross-cultural course development and research.

Undergraduate and graduate programs in the division serve students with varied interests and career aspirations, educating them to become global citizens who understand and are understood by diverse populations. Students are trained to be critical thinkers and problem solvers, capable scholars, lucid writers, and proficient speakers.

The division offers instruction in a wide array of languages and in the cultures associated with them:

- American Sign Language (p. 38) Program: American Sign Language and deaf studies;
- Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93): Chinese, Czech, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Russian, Sanskrit;
- Department of French and Italian (p. 285): Arabic, French, Italian, Swahili;
- Department of German (p. 330): German; and
- Department of Spanish and Portuguese (p. 577): Portuguese, Spanish

In addition to providing language instruction, the division focuses on theoretical and applied linguistics; non-Anglophone literatures and cultures, including those of bilingual, deaf, postcolonial, and heritage communities; and aesthetics, cultural theory, and creative writing in languages other than English.

The division’s Second Language Acquisition (p. 549) Program brings multidisciplinary resources together to examine the processes that underlie non-native language learning. The Translation (p. 616) Program explores the literary, cultural, and historical contexts of work and their linguistic, aesthetic, and ideological dimensions while it builds skills for translating works from one language to another. The Comparative Literature (p. 190) Program addresses culture across regions and languages in relation to literature, social theory and philosophy, history, and other disciplines.

The division also administers the Language Media Center, which provides facilities for traditional language laboratory work as well as for language video and computer-based activities. The center sponsors a multimedia development studio, where faculty members and graduate students produce and test media-based materials for language instruction.

Courses

World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures

- 218:005 (WLLC:1355) Approaches to Global Cultural Studies
  Framework for thinking about global perspectives on culture; examination of themes within a transnational context; analysis of cultural expression from national and linguistic contexts.

- 218:160 (WLLC:3700) Topics in Global Cinema
  Identification of new models and methods to investigate cinema's relationship to current global issues beyond traditional scholarly focus in Western Europe and the United States; exploration of an emerging field, moving away from the paradigm of national cinema and bringing together shared theoretical frameworks while acknowledging different historical and cultural contexts. Same as 39J:162 (JPNS:3700), 039:164 (ASIA:3700).

- 218:172 (WLLC:4512) Topics in Global and Transnational Culture
  In-depth look at a theme in cultural expression arising from interactions between countries and regions; focus on contemporary or historical issues; use of materials ranging from literature and the visual arts to music, mass media, and more; general processes through which cultures are formed in mutual and uneven relationships; research project. Recommendations: completion of an international and global issues GE course.

- 218:185 (WLLC:3185) Global Women's Cinema
  Introduction to contemporary women's cinema and feminist filmmaking from around the world; emphasis on post-1968 period and cinema produced outside the United States. Same as 048:185 (CCL:3185), 131:185 (GWSS:3185).

- 218:191 (WLLC:3191) International Literature Today
  English majors may apply this course to the following area and/or period requirement. AREA: Transnational Literature and Culture. PERIOD: 20th/21st-Century Literature. Same as 008:191 (ENGL:3595), 181:191 (IWP:3191).

- 218:195 (WLLC:4800) Topics in Global and Transnational Culture
  In-depth look at a theme in cultural expression arising from interactions between countries and regions; focus on contemporary or historical issues; material from literature, visual arts, music, mass media, and more; general process through which cultures are formed in mutual and uneven relationships; original research project. Requirements: a general education course in international and global issues.

  Readings in pedagogical theory and practice, second language acquisition; experience designing activities for teaching and assessment with critiques based on current theories and approaches; development of reflective practices toward one's language teaching. Same as 164:200 (SLA:5000).
218:210 (WLLC:6320) Topics in Contemporary Critical Theory 3 s.h.
Focused discussion of critical discourses and paradigms that have contributed to development of contemporary literary and cultural theory.

Translation

218:017 (TRNS:1017) Workshop in Literary Magazine Publishing 1 s.h.
Hands-on introduction to literary magazine publishing; major differences between print and digital publishing, the processes of design, layout, soliciting work, editing copy, proofing, promotion, and distribution; University of Iowa and Iowa City community resources; editors and writers share their expertise through a series of informal question-and-answer sessions and task-based assignments.

218:018 (TRNS:1018) Workshop in Literary Review Writing 1 s.h.
Hands-on introduction to literary review; process of selecting books (poetry, fiction, creative nonfiction) for review; writing, revising, and submission of work; University of Iowa and Iowa City community resources; editors and writers share their expertise through a series of informal question-and-answer sessions and task-based assignments.

218:078 (TRNS:2499) Undergraduate Translation Seminar 3 s.h.
Translation studies for undergraduates; topics related to practice of literary translation.

218:079 (TRNS:2179) Undergraduate Translation Workshop 3 s.h.
Translation exercises, discussion of translation works in progress; alternative strategies for translation projects. Requirements: working knowledge of a language other than English. Same as 08W:079 (ENGL:2810).

218:130 (TRNS:3201) Workshop in Japanese Literary Translation 3 s.h.

218:131 (TRNS:3202) Workshop in Chinese Literary Translation 3 s.h.
Translation from Chinese to English with emphasis on literary translation; issues in theory and practice of translation; special features of Chinese as a source language for translation. Prerequisites: 039:116 (CHIN:3102). Same as 039:143 (CHIN:3201).

218:180 (TRNS:3480) Literature and Translation 3 s.h.
Translation in the broadest sense; originality, authority, authorship, accuracy, ownership, audience; issues problematizing differences between medium and message. Same as 041:180 (SLAV:3480), 160:180 (PORO:3480).

218:181 (TRNS:4481) Introduction to Computer-Assisted Translation 1 s.h.

Undergraduate major: geoscience (B.A., B.S.)
Undergraduate minor: geoscience
Graduate degrees: M.S. in geoscience; Ph.D. in geoscience
Web site: http://geoscience.clas.uiowa.edu

Earth and environmental sciences faculty and students study the physical, chemical, and biological systems of Earth. Using modern observational, analytical, and computational methods, they examine how the planet's interior, surface, hydrosphere, and atmosphere have evolved since Earth was born in the solar system 4.6 billion years ago. Topics commonly studied in the department include how plate movements cause earthquakes, volcanoes, and mountain building; global climate change and how climate change and catastrophic events cause changes in biodiversity; how and where economic resources are generated on Earth; and how these resources are located and used in modern society.

The earth and environmental sciences curriculum provides students with hands-on experience analyzing rocks, minerals, fossils, soils, and waters, generally in a small classroom setting. Much of this experience is obtained in laboratory and field courses. Field courses include travel to other states or countries to view Earth's materials and fossils in the context of their natural surroundings.

The master's degree in geoscience is regarded by most hiring agencies as the working degree, but an undergraduate degree is fully satisfactory in certain teaching, government, and industry situations. The doctoral degree is required for college and university teaching positions.

Many of The University of Iowa's geoscience graduates find employment with resource companies, environmental corporations, and educational institutions. Others continue in graduate school or take jobs with government or conservation agencies. Some intend to enter law, business, or fields such as urban planning, environmental studies, engineering, archaeology, science education, or oceanography as advanced areas. Geoscience provides skills useful for all of these fields.

The department offers a variety of courses appropriate for nonmajors, including several approved for the Natural Sciences requirement of the General Education Program (p. 306). See "Courses for Nonmajors" below.

Many of the department's faculty members are involved in the interdisciplinary Environmental Sciences (p. 275) Program, and a number of the department's courses satisfy requirements of the Certificate in Sustainability (p. 1242).

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in geoscience (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in geoscience

Students majoring in geoscience take at least an academic year's work in three allied scientific areas—physics, chemistry, and mathematics—and a semester of biology in addition to a course in each major area of geology.

Geoscience students may elect to pursue an additional major or a minor in a related discipline, usually chemistry, physics, biology, engineering, environmental sciences, or anthropology. See Majors, Minors & Certificates under For Students on the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science with a major in geoscience requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 69 s.h. (19 courses) of work for the major (38 s.h. in earth and environmental sciences courses and at least 31 s.h. in supporting disciplines). The program is designed to prepare students for immediate employment after graduation or to enter a graduate program in geology.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). The department recommends that they fulfill the World Languages requirement with French, German, Russian, or Spanish and the Social Sciences requirement with approved course work in economics, geography, or anthropology.

Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. of course work in the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences.

The geoscience major for the Bachelor of Science requires the following course work.
One of these:
012:003 (GEOS:1030) Introduction to Earth Science 4 s.h.
012:005 (GEOS:1050) Introduction to Geology (preferred) 4 s.h.

All of these:
012:004 (GEOS:1040) Evolution and the History of Life 4 s.h.
012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy 4 s.h.
012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093) 3 s.h.
012:113 (GEOS:4832) Geologic Field Analysis 3 s.h.
012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology 4 s.h.
012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology (previously 012:092) 4 s.h.
012:150 (GEOS:3500) Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology (previously 012:052) 4 s.h.
At least two geoscience electives 6-7 s.h.

One of these:
012:121 (GEOS:3210) Principles of Paleontology 3 s.h.
012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry 3 s.h.
012:166 (GEOS:4630) Hydrogeology 3 s.h.
012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology 3 s.h.
012:180 (GEOS:4800) Survey of Geophysical Methods 3 s.h.
At least 8 s.h. of calculus, including one of these:
22M:026 (MATH:1860) Calculus II 5 s.h.
22M:032 (MATH:1560) Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus 4 s.h.

Bachelor of Science students complete an additional course in mathematics such as 22M:027 (MATH:2700) Introduction to Linear Algebra or a higher-level course or computer science course such as 22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science or a higher-level course or a statistics course such as 22S:030 (STAT:2010) Statistical Methods and Computing or a higher-level course.

They also complete the following course work in chemistry, physics, and biology (these are minimum requirements).

At least 8 s.h. of college-level chemistry is required, including the following sequence or equivalent courses or more advanced courses. Chemistry courses numbered below 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I do not count toward the chemistry requirement for Bachelor of Science students majoring in geoscience.

At least 8 s.h. of college-level physics is required, as follows. Physics courses numbered below 029:011 (PHYS:1511) College Physics I do not count toward the physics requirement for Bachelor of Science students majoring in geoscience.

One of these sequences:
029:011 (PHYS:1511)-029:012 (PHYS:1512) College Physics I-II 8 s.h.
029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.

At least one biological science course that includes a laboratory (4 s.h.) is required. Students with an interest in paleontology are encouraged to take 002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology and 002:032 (BIOL:1412) Diversity of Form and Function.

RECOMMENDED OPTIONS

All B.S. students should take elective courses from the following groups in order to broaden their undergraduate experience and prepare themselves for graduate study or professional employment. Students who have clear career goals are advised to take three or more elective courses from the group that fits their needs most closely. Students also may seek a broad education in geoscience by choosing elective courses from a number of groups.

Quaternary Geology
012:102 (GEOS:3020) Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.

INDEPENDENT RESEARCH OPTION FOR GEOSCIENCE MAJORS
A junior or senior who is ready to pursue independent research for credit in geoscience may assist a faculty member or graduate student with a current research project in 012:019 (GEOS:2190) Directed Study or may initiate a small-scale project involving a combination of field, laboratory, and library investigation with 012:119 (GEOS:3190) Directed Study. Independent study is encouraged and may result in an honors thesis with 012:010 (GEOS:4999) Honors Thesis in Geoscience or a senior thesis with 012:011 (GEOS:4990) Senior Thesis in Geoscience that may be published subsequently.

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in geoscience requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 51 s.h. of work for the major (at least 35 s.h. in earth and environmental sciences courses and at least 16 s.h. in supporting disciplines). The program is designed to provide students with a varied background in geology and a broader choice of electives than is practical in the Bachelor of Science program. The major for the Bachelor of Arts is intended for students who are interested in the fundamentals of geology or earth science teaching (see "B.A. or B.S. with teacher Licensure" below). Completing the minimum requirements for this degree may not adequately prepare a student for an entry-level professional job in geology.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). The department recommends that they fulfill the World Languages requirement with French, German, Russian, or Spanish and the Social Sciences requirement with approved course work in economics, geography, or anthropology.

Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. of course work in the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences.

The geoscience major for the Bachelor of Arts requires the following course work.
012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy 4 s.h.
One of these:
012:003 (GEOS:1030) Introduction to Earth Science 4 s.h.
012:005 (GEOS:1050) Introduction to Geology 4 s.h.
One or both of these:
012:004 (GEOS:1040) Evolution and the History of Life 4 s.h.
012:121 (GEOS:3210) Principles of Paleontology 3 s.h.

At least three of these:
012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology 4 s.h.
012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology (previously 012:092)
012:136 (GEOS:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology 3 s.h.
012:138 (GEOS:3380) Fluvial Geomorphology 3 s.h.
012:150 (GEOS:3500) Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology 4 s.h.
012:166 (GEOS:4630) Hydrogeology 3 s.h.

Geoscience electives 12 s.h.
Bachelor of Arts students must complete the following course work in mathematics and chemistry (these are minimum requirements).

College-level mathematics (may include computer science and statistics) 10 s.h.
At least two college-level chemistry courses (either Option 1 or Option 2) are required. Chemistry courses numbered below 004:007 (CHEM:1070) General Chemistry I do not count toward the chemistry requirement for Bachelor of Arts students majoring in geoscience.

One of these sequences:
004:007 (CHEM:1070)-004:008 (CHEM:1080) General Chemistry I-II 6 s.h.

FIELD REQUIREMENT
To complete the major, students must have field experience. They may take two semesters of 012:018 (GEOS:1180) Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks or 012:116 (GEOS:3160) Field Trip or one semester of each of the two courses (total of 4 s.h.). Or they may take one semester of 012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods or the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207) session.

012:018 (GEOS:1180) Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks 2 s.h.
012:116 (GEOS:3160) Field Trip 2 s.h.
012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093) 3 s.h.
One natural science session at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory for a minimum of 3 s.h.

INDEPENDENT RESEARCH OPTION FOR GEOSCIENCE MAJORS
A junior or senior who is ready to pursue independent research for credit in geoscience may assist a faculty member or graduate student with a current research project in 012:019 (GEOS:2190) Directed Study or may initiate a small-scale project involving a combination of field, laboratory, and library investigation... with 012:119 (GEOS:3190) Directed Study. Independent study is encouraged and may result in an honors thesis with 012:010 (GEOS:4999) Honors Thesis in Geoscience or a senior thesis with 012:011 (GEOS:4990) Senior Thesis in Geoscience that may be published subsequently.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Geoscience majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: These checkpoints show the range of required course work; the major for the Bachelor of Arts requires a minimum of 17 courses; the major for the Bachelor of Science requires 19.

The geoscience major requires field trip experiences, many of which take place during breaks in or between semesters or during the summer session. These checkpoints do not include the field trip requirements.

- Before the third semester begins: competence in math through trigonometry, first required chemistry course
- Before the fifth semester begins: three to five courses in the major (including the remainder of the chemistry requirement and continuation of the mathematics requirement)
- Before the seventh semester begins: 7-11 courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
- Before the eighth semester begins: 10-14 courses in the major
- During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers qualified students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the geoscience major. Departmental honors students must maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all University of Iowa course work and in all geoscience courses. To graduate with honors in geoscience, students must complete a senior thesis, registering in 012:010 (GEOS:4999) Honors Thesis in Geoscience. They must obtain approval of their honors thesis contract from their advisor and the department’s undergraduate committee, and they must earn a grade of B or higher in 012:010 (GEOS:4999).

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor

The minor in geoscience requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in geoscience courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced-level courses offered by the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences at The University of Iowa; 012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy and all earth and environmental sciences courses numbered 100 and above are considered advanced for the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

College-level courses in mathematics, physics, chemistry, and biology usually are required as collateral work for geology students. Those seeking a minor in geoscience should be sufficiently prepared in the areas of supporting sciences before they take advanced courses in geoscience.

Recommended advanced courses in geoscience that deal with important areas of earth materials and earth processes are as follows.

- 012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy                     4 s.h.
- 012:102 (GEOS:3020) Earth Surface Processes      3 s.h.
- 012:107 (GEOS:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.
- 012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanography    2 s.h.
- 012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093) 3 s.h.
- 012:114 (GEOS:3140) Energy and the Environment     3 s.h.
- 012:121 (GEOS:3210) Principles of Paleontology     3 s.h.
- 012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology            4 s.h.
- 012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology (previously 012:092) 4 s.h.
- 012:136 (GEOS:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology 3 s.h.
- 012:138 (GEOS:3380) Fluvial Geomorphology          3 s.h.
- 012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis  3 s.h.
- 012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry       3 s.h.
- 012:150 (GEOS:3500) Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology (previously 012:052) 4 s.h.
- 012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology            3 s.h.
- 012:180 (GEOS:4800) Survey of Geophysical Methods  3 s.h.
- 012:191 (GEOS:5820) Tectonics                     3 s.h.

Courses for Nonmajors

Each year more than 1,800 students enroll in Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences introductory courses that are approved for General Education; look for courses with the prefix 012 (GEOS) under "Natural Sciences" in the General Education Program (p. 306) section of the Catalog.

The department also offers the following intermediate courses with few prerequisites.

- 012:102 (GEOS:3020) Earth Surface Processes      3 s.h.
- 012:107 (GEOS:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.
- 012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanography    2 s.h.
National Honor Society
The department sponsors a chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon National Honor Society for the Earth Sciences. Students with an overall g.p.a. of at least 2.80 and at least 3.20 in geoscience courses are considered for membership after they have completed a minimum of 16 s.h. of course work in geoscience. Consult the departmental honors advisor for more information.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Science in geoscience
- Doctor of Philosophy in geoscience

The Master of Science program in geoscience prepares students for employment in industry or for doctoral study. The Doctor of Philosophy program is designed to prepare students for future employment in higher education or research and to bring them to the forefront of a specialized area of geoscience.

All geoscience graduate students must meet the admission and degree requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College (particularly sections IX, X, and XII) or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog. They also should acquaint themselves with the University calendar, for deadline dates and so forth.

All entering graduate students are required to enroll in 012:207 (GEOS:5070) Geologic Orientation during the fall semester of their first year in the graduate program.

The department provides detailed information about current graduate degree requirements and timelines for making satisfactory progress toward a degree in the document "The University of Iowa Guidelines for Graduate Study in Geoscience"; see Graduate Student Guidelines under Academics/Geoscience Graduate Program/Information on the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences web site.

Throughout their graduate study, all M.S. and Ph.D. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 on all course work required for their degree and on all graduate-level geoscience course work. Students whose grade-point average drops below 3.00 are placed on academic probation.

Geoscience graduate students are encouraged to present their research at local, regional, national, or international meetings. The department provides partial funding for travel to such meetings.

Master of Science

The Master of Science degree in geoscience requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed primarily to prepare students for employment in industry or for study toward a Ph.D. degree. M.S. students may count up to 8 s.h. of research credit toward the 30 s.h. required for the degree. They must earn at least 24 s.h. toward the degree in University of Iowa courses taken after they enroll in the program. M.S. students also must complete 012:201 (GEOS:5010) Geoscience Seminar Series each semester until they defend their thesis.

M.S. thesis students are responsible for obtaining their advisory committee's approval of a suitable program of course work and for satisfactory development of research plans as outlined in a thesis proposal, which should be completed and approved by the department chair before the end of the second semester of full-time study. The thesis typically has depth and breadth similar to those of one published research paper. Thesis students must deliver a half-hour public presentation of their thesis, followed by an oral defense. They also are required to present their research at a local, regional, national, or international meeting approved by the department chair before they may graduate.

Individuals interested in pursuing the M.S. without thesis must obtain the department chair's permission. The program is designed for students with extensive geological background and experience. Requirements for the nonthesis option are similar to those for the M.S. with thesis, except that in place of the thesis, nonthesis students submit a manuscript that their thesis committee deems acceptable for submission for publication. The student may choose to submit a previously published manuscript. Nonthesis students also must take a final examination that covers course work and the work done in place of the thesis.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy degree in geoscience requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed to prepare students for future employment in higher education or research and to bring them to the forefront of a specialized area of geoscience.

The Ph.D. requires a dissertation, which has the approximate research content of three published papers.

Ph.D. students usually enter the program with established fields of interest and a research advisor already selected. Under exceptional circumstances, a student may be admitted to the Ph.D. program without an established field of interest.

Entering Ph.D. students must consult with a research advisor or the department's director of graduate study before they enroll in courses. By the first month of their second semester of doctoral study, all Ph.D. students must select an advisor. Each student also must select a thesis topic and forward it to the department chair for approval by the end of the first month of the second semester of doctoral study.

Within broad limits, Ph.D. students should select courses that reflect their individual needs, interests, and talents; their advisor and advisory committee must approve their course selections.

During the second semester of doctoral study, each Ph.D. student should propose an advisory committee of at least five faculty members. Before the end of the second semester of doctoral study, each student must obtain his or her committee's approval of a suitable plan of study, which is then submitted to the department chair for approval. In consultation with the advisor and other faculty members, each doctoral candidate prepares a formal dissertation proposal, which must be submitted to the department chair by the end of the candidate's third semester of doctoral study.

Students are required to include in their plan of study at least 18 s.h. of regular course work taught by tenured or tenure-track faculty members of the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences. Students must earn the 18 s.h. after being admitted to and enrolling in the Ph.D. program. Directed study and research credit do not count toward the required 18 s.h.

Ph.D. students must enroll in 012:201 (GEOS:5010) Geoscience Seminar Series each semester they are registered until they successfully defend their dissertations, or for two consecutive semesters after the semester in which they pass their comprehensive examination, whichever comes first.

After earning their first 24 s.h. of graduate credit, Ph.D. students must either be enrolled at least two consecutive semesters in full-time study (at least 9 s.h. per semester) at The University of Iowa, or be enrolled three consecutive semesters for at least 6 s.h. per semester at the University, during which time they hold at least a one-quarter-time assistantship that is certified by the department as contributing to their doctoral program.

Students should complete most of their course work before taking the comprehensive examination, which consists of both written and oral portions and which must be passed before the end of the fourth semester of doctoral study.

Once Ph.D. candidates have passed the comprehensive examination, they are required to register each semester until they receive the degree. Candidates who have completed their plan of study may register for 000:002 (GRAD:6002) Doctoral Continuous Registration or 000:003 (GRAD:6003) Doctoral Final Registration.

Students must submit their written dissertation to the committee at least two weeks before the final examination. All Ph.D. candidates must deliver a one-hour public presentation associated with the dissertation defense. They also are required to submit a manuscript presenting the results of their graduate research to a refereed journal or other publication approved by the department chair before they may defend their dissertation.

Facilities

Resources and equipment available for research in the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences include the following.

Computer facilities: three teaching classrooms with 10-12 networked PC workstations; a computing classroom with 20 PCs and 10 Macs with GIS, GMS, remote sensing, image analysis, and specialized computational software packages; a student computer room with 6 PCs and 2 Macs; and a number of multiprocessor workstations in research laboratories.

Environmental and Hydrogeology Laboratory: permeameters and tensionometers; pumping and slug/bail test units with transducers and data-loggers; water-quality analysis facility; advanced groundwater modeling and geostatistics software; advanced data logging systems for field research; 3-D sensor arrays (wind and water systems); and facilities for field instrumentation design and construction.

Environmental Instrumentation Laboratories: storage, testing, and teaching facility focusing on field instrumentation; assembly, housing, and testing of climatic, meteorological, fluvial, water quality and associated environmental instrumentation data recording systems and sampling systems.

Geomorphic Computing Laboratory: high-end visualization, digitizing, remote sensing and GIS systems; and high-end multiprocessor workstations.

Morphometric laboratories: reflex microscope and microscribe for capturing 3-D data; high-resolution digital cameras and microscopes for 2-D image analysis; and laboratories for micro- and macro-fossil preparation.

Paleontological Repository: more than a million specimens, including some 25,000 type and referred specimens, with 6,000-7,000 primary types; invertebrate, vertebrate, and plant fossils of all geologic ages, and more than 90 percent Paleozoic invertebrates; the fifth-largest university collection in North America (CONARIP 1977).

Petrology and geochemistry laboratories: laser-ablation inductively coupled plasma mass spectrometer (LA-ICPMS); clean laboratory for preparation of samples for elemental and isotopic analysis; alpha- and gamma-spectrometry laboratories; image analysis; heating freezing stage; petrographic microscopes; photo microscopy; wet-chemistry facilities; rock preparation and mineral separation; UNIX, Windows, and Mac workstations for data analysis and modeling; and one atm gas-mixing furnace for melt inclusion homogenization.

Quaternary Materials Laboratory: pipette grain-size analysis apparatus; chittick apparatus; Sedigraph 5100 X-ray particle-size analyzer; Horiba Camsizer L digital image particle analyzer; wet-chemistry facilities; CH-N element analyzer; a Flotech flotation system; and a Giddings drill rig.

Scanning Electron Microscope: Hitachi S-3400N, a variable-pressure scanning electron microscope (SEM) equipped with a motorized stage, large chamber, and digital image capture; capable of imaging specimens with no metal coating, or specimens that are slightly hydrated or porous, as well as conventionally processed specimens; equipped with a Bruker AXS Quantax 400 X-ray microanalysis system; XFlash silicon drift detector with excellent energy resolution and light element detection, providing ultra-fast acquisition of line scans and elemental maps.

Sedimentary geology laboratories: water ion chromatograph; image analysis; Sedigraph X-ray particle-size analyzer; Horiba Camsizer L digital image particle analyzer; and a soil/sediment characterization laboratory.

Thin-section and rock preparation laboratory: diamond saws and specialized grinding equipment used to prepare ultrathin slices (30 microns thick) of rocks and fossils for microscopic and electron microprobe analysis.

Cooperative Activities

The department does collaborative work with the Iowa Geological & Water Survey and the Office of the State Archaeologist of Iowa. Earth and environmental sciences students sometimes work on projects for the survey.

The Departments of Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Earth and Environmental Sciences, and Geography share services, expertise, joint instruction, and equipment. The earth and environmental sciences department is an important participant in the Iowa Quaternary Studies group, an interdisciplinary program that promotes projects combining work in anthropology, biology, geography, geology, and statistics. Course work, degree programs, and facilities are shared among departments. The earth and environmental sciences department and its faculty also support and actively participate in the interdisciplinary Environmental Sciences (p. 275) Program, which offers an undergraduate major (Bachelor of Science), and a number of a department's courses satisfy requirements of the Certificate in Sustainability (p. 1242).

Field Trips

Field trips are integral parts of several courses in earth and environmental sciences, with frequent weekend general-interest events. The geology of the Iowa City region is characterized by Quaternary glacial sediments on a largely Paleozoic sedimentary section a few hundred meters thick, overlying a Precambrian crystalline basement. Marine and terrestrial fossil assemblages, extensive reefs, and unique geode sites are located within a few hours' drive. Numerous Pleistocene glaciations are represented in Iowa, and field studies of landforms, exposures, and cores continue to yield information on sedimentology, stratigraphy, soil formation, paleopedology, and fossil biotas from both glacial and interglacial deposits. Spring break provides time for longer trips, which are open to all geoscience students. In recent years, students have traveled to the southern Appalachians, Arizona, China, Death Valley, Dominican Republic, the Florida Keys, Hawaii, New Mexico, the Ozarks, Puerto Rico, and Texas. Advanced classes have visited California, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, and Ontario, Canada.

Courses

Not all courses are offered every year.

Primarily for Undergraduates

012:003 (GEOS:1030) Introduction to Earth Science
3-4 s.h.
Relationships between plate tectonics, geologic time, and the rock cycle with volcanoes and igneous, sedimentary, metamorphic rocks; fossils; radioactive isotopes; landscape evolution; mountain building; natural resources; their impacts on civilization. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab; Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 053:003 (CEE:1030).

012:004 (GEOS:1040) Evolution and the History of Life
3-4 s.h.
Fossils over the past 3.5 billion years, origin and evolution of life, evolutionary radiations and mass extinctions, the invasion of land, dinosaurs, the age of mammals, relationship between biological systems and environmental change in earth history. Offered spring semesters. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab; Natural Sciences with Lab.

012:005 (GEOS:1050) Introduction to Geology
4 s.h.
Minerals, rocks, and rock-forming processes (including volcanoes and sedimentary environments); surface processes (rivers, groundwater, glaciers, deserts, ocean shorelines), major earth processes (continental drift, plate tectonics, earthquakes, mountain building); impact on civilization. Offered fall semesters. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

012:007 (GEOS:1070) Age of Dinosaurs
4 s.h.
Origin and evolutionary history of dinosaurs; diversity of dinosaurian groups, their geographic distributions and paleoecology; origins of flight among dinosaurs; environmental context, including other animals and plants that lived alongside dinosaurs; the so-called extinction of dinosaurs and radiation of modern forms; the role dinosaurs play in the interaction between science and the popular media. Offered fall semesters. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab.

012:008 (GEOS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science 3-4 s.h.
Biological and physical character of the Earth; interaction of humans with the environment, including impacts on ecosystems, climate, natural processes, resources; alternative options, including sustainability, waste management, energy, land reform. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab; Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 159:008 (ENVS:1080).

012:009 (GEOS:1090) Introduction to Environmental Sciences Laboratory
1 s.h.
Laboratory component of 012:008 (GEOS:1080). Requirements: completion of 3 s.h. in 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080); or 3 s.h. of transfer equivalent. GE: Natural Sciences Lab only. Same as 159:009 (ENVS:1090).

012:010 (GEOS:4999) Honors Thesis in Geoscience
arr.
Independent research resulting in an honors thesis. Requirements: honors standing.

012:011 (GEOS:4990) Senior Thesis in Geoscience
arr.
Independent research resulting in a senior thesis. Requirements: senior standing.

012:015 (GEOS:2115) History and Science of Oil
3 s.h.
History, politics, and science of oil and oil industry. Same as 159:015 (ENVS:2115).

012:017 (GEOS:1170) Geology of the U.S. National Parks
2 s.h.
Geologic features, geologic history, important biological and archaeological characteristics, with emphasis on features that caused certain areas to be included in national park system. Offered spring semesters.

012:018 (GEOS:1180) Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks
2 s.h.
Observation, interpretation of prominent geologic, geomorphic, biological features; semester-break or semester-end visits to different parks or groups of parks each year. Offered spring semesters.

012:019 (GEOS:2190) Directed Study
arr.
Special topics, independent research.

012:020 (GEOS:1020) Loess Hills Service Learning Trip
1 s.h.
Special topics, directed research.

012:021 (GEOS:1021) Spring Break Service Learning Trip
1 s.h.
Special topics, directed research.

012:029 (GEOS:1000) First-Year Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy 4 s.h.
Physical, chemical, and optical properties of minerals; phase relations; structures; associations; diagnostic features for identification. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050), 22M:001 (MATH:0100) or 22M:003 (MATH:0300) or 22M:005 (MATH:1010), and 004:007 (CHEM:1070) or 004:011 (CHEM:1110).

012:045 (GEOS:1060) Origins of Life in the Universe (Part 1) 3 s.h.
Fundamental questions (How old is the universe? What is the nature of life? How has life evolved on Earth? What are our human origins? Are there other habitable planets in the universe?) that revolve around understanding origins from different perspectives (i.e., astronomy, physics, geoscience, biology, chemistry, anthropology); work with faculty from several departments to investigate these questions; inquiry-based activities to build success in critical thinking, teamwork, effective written and oral communication; origin of the universe, biochemistry of life, and origin of life on Earth; first of a two-part sequence. Recommendations: first-year or sophomore standing. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab. Same as 029:040 (ASTR:1060), 002:050 (BIOL:1060).

012:046 (GEOS:1061) Origins of Life in the Universe (Part 2) 4 s.h.
Fundamental questions (How old is the universe? What is the nature of life? How has life evolved on Earth? What are our human origins? Are there other habitable planets in the universe?) that revolve around understanding origins from different perspectives (i.e., astronomy, physics, geoscience, biology, chemistry, anthropology); work with faculty from several departments to investigate these questions; inquiry-based activities to build success in critical thinking, teamwork, and effective written and oral communication; second of a two-part sequence. Prerequisites: 029:040 (ASTR:1060) or 002:050 (BIOL:1060) or 012:045 (GEOS:1060). Recommendations: first-year or sophomore standing. GE: Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 029:041 (ASTR:1061), 002:051 (BIOL:1061), 113:041 (ANTH:1061).

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

012:100 (GEOS:3000) Geologic Training Assignment 1-3 s.h.
Practical experience. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 012:150 (GEOS:3500) and geology g.p.a. of at least 3.00.

012:102 (GEOS:3020) Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.
Basic geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth’s surface; emphasis on erosion, transport, deposition by land mass movement (creep, landslides, earth flow), fluid agents (wind, water, ice); methods used to study these processes. Prerequisites: 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080). Same as 159:102 (ENVS:3020), 044:102 (GEOG:3020).

012:104 (GEOS:2310) Climatology 3 s.h.
Boundary layer processes that drive atmospheric dynamics; exchanges of energy and water at simple and complex surfaces; global climate change records, theories, models; impacts of climate on society. Prerequisites: 044:003 (GEOG:1020). Same as 044:101 (GEOG:2310).

012:107 (GEOS:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.
Introduction to ocean ecosystems, including coral reefs, mangroves, estuaries and salt marshes, sandy and rocky shores, seagrass and kelp beds, the deep sea, plankton; biodiversity of each ecosystem; interrelationships of biota and physical/chemical environment; interactions among organisms, including food webs and symbiosis; local and global threats such as overfishing, pollution, ocean acidification, global warming, sea level change; ongoing biodiversity crisis, solutions for conservation problems.

012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanoigraphy 2 s.h.
Descriptive, chemical, physical, biological, geological aspects of oceans; impact on weather, climate, shorelines, food supply, other aspects of civilization. Offered spring semesters. Recommendations: knowledge of basic chemistry, biology, physics, earth science.

Remote sensing of the earth’s surface from aircraft, satellites; aerial photograph interpretation; remote sensing systems, methods, data analysis using electromagnetic spectrum and digital processing techniques, including visible, infrared, microwave radiation; remote sensing applied to geologic and environmental problems. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080). Same as 159:110 (ENVS:3100).

012:111 (EES:3110) Chemical Evolution of the Oceans 3 s.h.
Investigation of various physico-chemical states oceans have assumed over the past four billion years of Earth history; use of isotope geochemistry as a proxy for ancient ocean conditions; focus on integrated Earth system science, paleoceanographic and paleoclimatic modeling, role of chemical stratigraphy in deciphering past climate states of ocean-atmosphere system; relationship between chemical changes in ocean/atmosphere and biological systems of the Earth. Same as 159:111 (ENVS:3110).
012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods
Introduction to basic methods of geologic field work in southwest Montana using topographic maps and GPS to locate oneself, identifying geologic map units (including superficial deposits), recognizing geologic contacts, constructing stratigraphic sections, measuring planar structures, and making geologic maps complete with a legend and cross-section. Offered summer session. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 012:140 (GEOS:1400).

012:113 (GEOS:4832) Geologic Field Analysis
Structural, stratigraphic, and regional analysis of geology in the Rocky Mountains of Montana; emphasis on making reasonable geologic interpretations from field relationships; mapping projects in vicinity of Dillon, Montana that build on experience gained in 012:112 (GEOS:4831); capstone experience dedicated to synthesizing the geology of a fold-and-thrust belt near Glacier National Park. Offered summer session. Prerequisites: 012:112 (GEOS:4831) and 012:132 (GEOS:3840).

012:114 (GEOS:3140) Energy and the Environment
Scientific concepts related to potentially significant energy sources of the 21st century; environmental impacts, positive and negative, of each energy source as well as geologic and geographical distributions and applications. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

012:116 (GEOS:3160) Field Trip
Field trip to an area of geologic interest, such as carbonate area of Florida, Grand Canyon (Arizona), Rio Grande Rift (New Mexico), Death Valley (California, Nevada), Appalachian Mountains (Virginia); preceded by weekly discussions of destination's geology. Offered spring semester.

012:119 (GEOS:3190) Directed Study
Special topics, independent research.

012:120 (GEOS:3200) Collection Care and Management
How a museum's management policy relates to its administrative, legal, and ethical obligations to its collections; acquisitions, deaccessions, collection use, data standards, storage environment, health, safety, documentation. Same as 024:120 (MUSM:3200).

012:121 (GEOS:3210) Principles of Paleontology
Patterns of evolution in fossil record; species and analysis of their evolutionary relationships; paleoecology, paleocommunity evolution; evolutionary radiation and mass extinctions; large-scale relationships between biodiversity and climatic change. Offered fall semesters.

012:122 (GEOS:3220) Evolution of the Vertebrates
Evolutionary history of vertebrates revealed by fossils and information from living animals; biogeographic, stratigraphic, paleoecological aspects of selected groups, especially mammals and dinosaurs; transitions from aquatic to terrestrial life, origins of flight, major events in vertebrate history (including mass extinctions and explosive radiations). Requirements: introductory course in geoscience or bioscience.

012:126 (GEOS:3260) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management
Hydrological, geomorphological, and ecological processes and their interaction in wetlands; geographic differences in wetlands based on climate and hydrology; wetlands, lakes, and rivers; role of wetlands in drainage basin hydrology and flooding; values and valuation of wetlands; wetland law and wetland delineation; wetlands and water resources. Prerequisites: 044:101 (GEOG:2310) or 044:103 (GEOG:2374). Same as 044:126 (GEOS:3320).

012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology
Basic concepts of sedimentology, stratigraphy, depositional environments, sedimentary petrology; hands-on analyses of sediments and sedimentary rocks, including thin-section petrography; lecture/laboratory. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050).

012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology
Rock deformation; description, classification of geologic structures such as faults and folds; processes that generate geologic structures; solution of structural problems; interpretation of geologic maps. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050).

012:136 (GEOS:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology
Introduction to soil genesis, soil geomorphology, and classification including the basics of soil profile description and soil-landscape, soil-vegetation, and soil-climate relationships; emphasis on study of soils as the interface between living and non-living Earth systems and the role of soils in sustaining ecosystems and human societies; short field excursions and a weekend field trip. Requirements: college earth science and chemistry. Same as 044:186 (GEOG:3360).

012:138 (GEOS:3380) Fluvial Geomorphology
Hydrologic principles, stream channel processes, and fluvial geomorphology within drainage basin systems; spatial and temporal variations in water distribution, analysis of hydrological data, flow mechanisms, sediment transport, forecasting procedures, hydrograph construction, modeling. Requirements: 012:102 (GEOS:3020) or another 100-level geology or hydraulics course. Same as 053:128 (CEE:3328).

012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis
Integration of existing knowledge of physical, hydrological, and environmental processes with management issues and challenges in water resources and environmental management; aspects of water quantity and quality, water use and treatment; basin management issues related to forestry, agriculture, urbanization, floods, droughts.

012:140 (GEOS:1400) Natural Disasters
How earth-atmosphere-hydrosphere-space systems produce events catastrophic to humans on the scale of individual lives to civilizations; root causes of earthquakes, landslides, volcanic eruptions, floods, hurricanes, tsunami, tornadoes, and asteroid impact, and their local, national, and global impact; spatial and temporal occurrences of these hazards; methods and processes for hazard preparedness, response, and recovery; social, economic, and policy aspects that affect and compound the magnitude of disasters associated with natural phenomena; case studies drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.
012:141 (GEOS:3410) Analytical Methods  2 s.h.
Theory and practice of analyzing the chemical, isotopic, and mineralogical compositions of rocks, organic materials, and waters; use of modern analytical instruments. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 004:007 (CHEM:1070), 012:150 (GEOS:3500), and 029:012 (PHYS:1512) or 029:082 (PHYS:1612).

012:142 (GEOS:4420) Vertebrate Osteology and Phylolgy  3 s.h.
Anatomy of the vertebrate skeleton from developmental, functional, and phylogenetic perspectives; relationship between skeletal, muscular, and nervous systems; history of the skeleton through modern forms; lecture and laboratory. Prerequisites: 012:122 (GEOS:3220) or 213:190 (ANTH:3305).

012:144 (GEOS:4440) Phylogenetics and Biodiversity  3 s.h.
Methods available for reconstructing evolutionary history and measuring biodiversity, including distance, parsimony, likelihood, and taxic approaches; applications to molecular and morphological systematics, historical biogeography, study of diversity through time. Prerequisites: 02:031 (BIOL:1411) and 002:032 (BIOL:1412), or 012:004 (GEOS:1040) or 012:121 (GEOS:3210).

012:145 (GEOS:4450) Morphometrics  1-3 s.h.
Quantitative methods for collection and analysis of morphologic data, including 2-D and 3-D geometric morphometrics and use of multivariate statistical methods to study of size and shape; applications of morphometric techniques to study development, adaptation, variation within and among species, related topics in paleontology and evolutionary biology. Offered alternate years. Prerequisites: 012:004 (GEOS:1040) or 012:121 (GEOS:3210).

012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry  3 s.h.
Introduction to application of chemical principles to solution of geologic problems concerning earth and environmental processes; origin of elements, chemical differentiation of Earth and the solar system, geochronology, application of radiogenic and stable isotopes, chemical equilibrium, elementary thermodynamics and kinetics, carbonate and silicate stability relationships, chemical weathering, adsorption, trace element behavior, oxidation-reduction reactions, characterization of surface and ground waters, and ocean chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:008 (CHEM:1080) and 012:005 (GEOS:1050).

012:150 (GEOS:3500) Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology  4 s.h.
Nature, origin, and petrography of igneous and metamorphic rocks in hand specimen and thin-section. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050), 22:001 (MATH:0100) or 22M:003 (MATH:3030) or 22M:005 (MATH:1010), 004:007 (CHEM:1070) or 004:011 (CHEM:1110), and 012:041 (GEOS:2410).

012:152 (GEOS:4520) Isotope Geochemistry  3 s.h.
Radiogenic and stable isotope systematics, applications to geological, cosmological, and environmental problems.

Microscopy methods for research; all aspects of research, from sample preparation to imaging to data analysis; when to use a particular microscopy procedure; theory, operation, and application of scanning electron microscopy, scanning probe microscopy, laser scanning microscopy, X-ray microanalysis. Requirements: a physical science course. Same as 052:156 (CBE:4156), 060:156 (ACB:4156).

012:159 (GEOS:3090) Topics in Museum Studies  1 s.h.
Systematic and analytic methods used for research in physical collections; tutorials in collection building, curation, and preservation; designed by members of the University of Iowa Collections Coalition. Same as 024:190 (MUSM:3090).

012:160 (GEOS:4200) Advanced Collection Care and Management  3 s.h.
Builds on 024:120 (MUSM:3200); types of museum objects and materials, their care and management; care, storage, and use of paper, books, photographs, works of art, electronic information media, textiles, furniture, archaeological artifacts, natural history specimens, archives; digitization projects, integrated pest management, risk assessment, museum security, museum construction and renovation, grant writing; for students planning museum careers or for professions that require care of collections. Prerequisites: 012:120 (GEOS:3200) or 024:120 (MUSM:3200). Same as 024:140 (MUSM:4200).

012:166 (GEOS:4630) Hydrogeology  3 s.h.
Role of groundwater in water cycle, subsurface water profile, aquifers and aquitards, basic principles and laws of physical and chemical processes of groundwater flow and contaminant transport in geological formations for sustainable development and protection of groundwater resources; groundwater geology and hydrology, regional aquifer systems, well hydraulics and pumping test and their analyses, groundwater contamination and remediation, management and sustainability of groundwater resources.

012:168 (GEOS:4680) Field Methods in Hydrologic Science  3 s.h.
Collection and interpretation of physical hydrology and hydraulics field measurements; basic data quality assurance and quality control; hands-on experience with field equipment and data collection; may lead to Hydrologic Technician Certification by American Institute of Hydrology. Prerequisites: 012:102 (GEOS:3020) or 012:112 (GEOS:4831) or 012:138 (GEOS:3380) or 012:139 (GEOS:3390) or 012:166 (GEOS:4630) or 012:172 (GEOS:4720) or 012:179 (GEOS:4790) or 012:180 (GEOS:4800) or 053:071 (CEE:3371) or 057:020 (ENGR:2510) or 035:071 (CEE:3371) or 057:020 (ENGR:2510) or 159:102 (ENVS:3020).

012:170 (GEOS:4700) Evolution of Ecosystems  3 s.h.
Evolutionary history of terrestrial and marine ecosystems; ecological processes from population to ecosystem levels; community assembly, trophic levels, networks, biodiversity dynamics; practical aspects of paleoecological data collection, statistical analysis, modeling. Requirements: two courses in geoscience, biology, environmental sciences, anthropology, or geography. Same as 159:170 (ENVS:4700).
012:171 (GEOS:4710) Evolution of Plants 3 s.h.
Evolutionary history of plants over geologic time: relationships, morphology, and fossil record of major plant lineages; patterns and processes in evolution of plant morphology and diversity; ecological innovations and evolution of terrestrial ecosystems; relationships between biotic and environmental change; paleobotanical tools in stratigraphy, paleoclimatology, sedimentology; practical aspects of paleobotanical data collection, statistical analysis, modeling; field trip. Requirements: two courses in geoscience, anthropology, biology, environmental science, or geography.

012:172 (GEOS:4720) Glacial and Pleistocene Geology 3 s.h.
Introduction to glaciers and glacial and interglacial Earth systems; linkages among glacial, oceanic, and atmospheric systems and their effects on landscapes and biota over the past two million years; how oceans, atmosphere, and glaciers interact and landscape effects of past glacial and interglacial cycles. Requirements: physical geology or physical geography or anthropology.

012:174 (GEOS:3206) Seminar: Taphonomy 3 s.h.
Taphonomy (study of fossil record in paleontology and archaeology); processes for accumulation, modification, and deposition of remains in prehistory; instruction by archaeologist and paleontologist. Requirements: graduate standing. Same as 113:174 (ANTH:3206).

012:175 (GEOS:4750) Mineral and Petroleum Exploration Geology 3 s.h.
Fundamentals of resource exploration philosophy and methods, with project-based presentation of techniques and strategies for mineral exploration and petroleum exploration; integration and evaluation of geological, geochemical, and geophysical techniques for mineral exploration; hydrocarbon systems and seismic interpretation for petroleum exploration. Corequisites: 012:132 (GEOS:3840) and 012:150 (GEOS:3500).

012:177 (GEOS:3770) Global Stratigraphy 3 s.h.
Types of stratigraphy (e.g., biostratigraphy, lithostratigraphy, sequence stratigraphy, chronostratigraphy, magnetostratigraphy, cyclostratigraphy) that share a number of procedures and practices and how differences cloud understanding of Earth history; central role of stratigraphy in modern geoscience pursuits; issue of time in stratigraphic record as an organizing theme for investigation of comparative stratigraphy.

012:178 (GEOS:4870) Applied Geostatistics 3 s.h.
Applications of geostatistical methods to geology, geography, hydrology, environmental sciences, and engineering: variogram, Kriging, analysis of spatial-variated data with varied computer software in participants’ specialties. Same as 044:188 (GEOS:4870).

012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology 3 s.h.
Application of geology, water, and earth processes to civil and environmental engineering practice; physical properties of rock and soil, geologic mapping and surveying, ground water supplies and wells, stream engineering, watershed management, site investigations for environmental assessment, and geologic hazards. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080).

012:180 (GEOS:4800) Survey of Geophysical Methods 3 s.h.
Geophysical methods used to address geological and engineering problems (e.g., finding petroleum and mineral deposits, studying groundwater resources, tracing contaminant plumes, evaluating archaeological sites); methods including gravity, magnetics, radiometrics, refraction and reflection seismography, geophysical well logging, and geoelectrical methods (direct current, frequency- and time-domain electromagnetics, induced polarization, magnetic resonance surveying, ground-penetrating radar); capabilities, drawbacks, costs; planning and budgeting surveys, processing the resulting digital data. Requirements: introductory geology or physics.

012:184 (GEOS:4660) Groundwater Modeling 3 s.h.
Groundwater flow and contaminant transport modeling; numerical methods, applications of groundwater modeling to water supply, groundwater resources evaluation, remediation design using software; GMS (MODFLOW, MODPATH, and MT3D). Prerequisites: 012:166 (GEOS:4630) or 053:103 (CEE:4103), and 22M:026 (MATH:1860). Same as 053:104 (CEE:4104).

012:185 (GEOS:4620) Approaches to Geoarchaeology 3 s.h.
Geoarchaeology as multidisciplinary contextual framework for human paleoecology; natural processes that create the archaeological record, approaches to reconstructing landscapes of the past as a context for archaeological deposits; weekend field trip. Prerequisites: 012:136 (GEOS:3360) or 012:172 (GEOS:4720) or 113:161 (ANTH:3205) or 113:164 (ANTH:4205). Same as 113:189 (ANTH:4620).

012:189 (GEOS:5120) Global Change Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Current global change issues, including climate change, ecosystems changes and conservation, energy; seminar format with student presentations.

012:191 (GEOS:5820) Tectonics 3 s.h.
Dynamic processes responsible for crustal genesis, plate movements, mountain building; plate boundary zones; sedimentologic, structural, petrologic, geophysical characteristics of major tectonic settings; multidisciplinary approach; week-long field trip. Prerequisites: 012:132 (GEOS:3840).

012:193 (GEOS:3150) Sustainability Project arr.
Individual or collective project related to sustainability by a student or students under the direction and supervision of a faculty member; involves regularly scheduled meetings, data collection and interpretation, and a final project report.

012:197 (GEOS:5370) American Association of Petroleum Geologists Fall Field Trip 1 s.h.
Resource-related topics in mineral and hydrocarbon exploration; joint field trip with Iowa State University. Requirements: AAPG student chapter member or graduate standing, and basic understanding of mineralogy, petrology, and structural geology.

Primarily for Graduate Students

012:201 (GEOS:5010) Geoscience Seminar Series 1 s.h.
Scholarly work and research in geoscience.

012:207 (GEOS:5070) Geologic Orientation 1 s.h.
Department degree requirements, programs; field survey of local geology; tips for TAs; introduction to specialized facilities; for new graduate students.

012:215 (GEOS:5015) American Association of Petroleum Geologists Fall Field Trip 1 s.h.
Resource-related topics in mineral and hydrocarbon exploration; joint field trip with Iowa State University. Requirements: AAPG student chapter member or graduate standing, and basic understanding of mineralogy, petrology, and structural geology.
012:225 (GEOS:6250) Paleontology Seminar 1-3 s.h.

012:233 (GEOS:5330) Carbonate Petrology 2 s.h.
Identification of constituents and interpretation of genesis, structures, environments of formation, and patterns and processes of diagenesis in limestones; laboratory-based. Requirements: familiarity with optical microscope and sedimentation principles.

012:235 (GEOS:5350) Depositional Environments 3-4 s.h.
Modern patterns of sedimentation; emphasis on interpreting depositional environments of ancient sedimentary rocks and deciphering resulting stratigraphic patterns. Requirements: knowledge of basic sedimentary geology and paleontology.

012:238 (GEOS:5380) Process Geomorphology 1-3 s.h.
Topics in process geomorphology ranging from fluvial dynamics to mass movement to sediment transport and related environmental processes.

012:239 (GEOS:6390) Advanced Watershed Analysis Seminar 1-3 s.h.
Integration of existing knowledge of physical, hydrological, and environmental processes with management issues and challenges in water resources and environmental management; aspects of water quantity and quality, water use and treatment, and basin management issues related to forestry, agriculture, urbanization, floods, droughts.

012:250 (EES:5250) Environmental Seminar 1 s.h.
Environmental topics selected by student and instructor.

012:253 (GEOS:5530) Geochronology 3 s.h.
How to evaluate published ages, and assumptions/errors involved; how to select and sample suitable materials for dating, and choose a suitable dating method and analytical technique; opportunity to develop skills for research and professional careers. Prerequisites: 012:149 (GEOS:4490) or 012:152 (GEOS:4520).

012:257 (GEOS:6570) Tectonics and Petrology Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Topics in tectonics, structural geology, petrology.

012:293 (GEOS:6920) Advanced Structural Geology 3 s.h.
Kinematic and dynamic analysis of deformed rocks; microstructural analysis; strain analysis, field investigations of highly deformed rocks. Prerequisites: 012:132 (GEOS:3840).

Independent research related to theses or dissertations in geoscience.

Undergraduate major: B.A., B.S., B.B.A. in Economics
Undergraduate minor: Minor in Economics
Graduate degree: M.A., Ph.D. in Economics
Web site: http://www.tippie.uiowa.edu/economics

Economics is the study of how societies allocate limited resources to achieve competing ends. Using both empirical and deductive methods, economics analyzes incentives, constraints, organizational forms, and market forces to understand patterns of production, exchange, and consumption of goods and services. It treats diverse issues such as wealth and poverty, government expenditures and taxation, prosperity and depression, inflation and unemployment, relations between management and labor, economic growth, environmental protection, health care delivery, the war on drug abuse, free trade versus protectionism, U.S. competitiveness in international markets, and the quality of American education.

The Department of Economics offers degree programs for undergraduates and for graduate students. It also partners with the Departments of Philosophy and Sociology to offer the undergraduate major in ethics and public policy, an interdisciplinary program administered by the Department of Philosophy (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences); see Ethics and Public Policy (p. 282) in the Catalog.

Undergraduate Programs
• Major in economics (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Business Administration)
• Minor in economics

The Tippie College of Business and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offer the major in economics. Students may complete the major with their choice of three degrees. The Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science are awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; the Bachelor of Business Administration is awarded by the Tippie College of Business.

The B.A. in economics is designed to achieve a balance of economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications. The B.S. maintains a similar balance but emphasizes development of analytical tools; it prepares students for graduate work in economics or related business and technical fields. The B.B.A. emphasizes economic foundations of business fields: accounting, finance, marketing, business law, and management.

Each program provides an excellent educational background for a variety of positions in business and government. Graduates find employment in banking, financial institutions, industrial firms, and trade organizations and in federal, state, and local government agencies dealing with economic policy, regulation, and analysis. Economics also provides excellent preparation for the study of law and for graduate study in fields such as business management, public administration, hospital and health administration, urban and regional planning, transportation, journalism, political science, and statistics.

All students majoring in economics choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

The major for each degree (B.A., B.S., and B.B.A.) has three sets of requirements: mathematics and statistics courses that provide the skills needed for understanding economic theory and data; economic theory courses that provide the tools needed for analyzing economic issues; and field courses that apply economic tools to business, social, or specialized analytical issues. The applied field course requirement varies, depending on the student’s choice of track.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 32 s.h. of work for the major. The program provides a balance of economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications. It offers good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics (11 s.h.), a set in economic theory (6 s.h.), and a set of applied field courses (15 s.h.). Students must choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student’s choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

All B.A. students majoring in economics must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The economic theory courses (06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 (ECON:3140) Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics) and three of the five applied field courses in each track must be taken at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 (ECON:3160) - 06E:189 (ECON:3900)

Prerequisites

Prerequisites for most 100-level courses in economics:

- 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics

Prerequisites for 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for courses numbered 06E:171 and above: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory or 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics, or both, depending on the course

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science with a major in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33-35 s.h. of work for the major. The program addresses economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications, with an emphasis on developing skill using analytic tools. It offers good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics (15-17 s.h.), a set in economic theory (6 s.h.), and a set of applied field courses (12 s.h.). Students must choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student’s choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.
All B.S. students majoring in economics must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The economic theory courses (06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 (ECON:3140) Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics) and three of the four applied field courses in each track must be taken at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

Bachelor of Business Administration

The Bachelor of Business Administration with a major in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 18 s.h. of work for the major. The program emphasizes economic foundations of business fields: accounting, finance, marketing, business law, and management. It provides good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.
All students must complete the B.B.A. common requirements: the General Education courses, the prerequisites to the business core, and the business core; see "Common Requirements" in the Bachelor of Business Administration (p. 632) section of the Catalog.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics, which students take as part of the B.B.A. common requirements; a set in economic theory (6 s.h.); and a set of applied field courses (12 s.h.). Students majoring in economics choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student’s choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

Students may request permission to apply a limited amount of transfer credit or correspondence credit toward requirements for the major, but they should take the economic theory courses (06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 (ECON:3140) Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics) at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

The economics major for the Bachelor of Business Administration requires the following course work.

MATHEMATICS AND STATISTICS COURSES
Students take these courses as part of the B.B.A. common requirements.

06E:071 (ECON:2800) Statistics for Strategy Problems 3 s.h.
22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business 4 s.h.
22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.

ECONOMIC THEORY COURSES
06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory 3 s.h.
or
06E:106 (ECON:3140) Advanced Microeconomics 3 s.h.
06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics 3 s.h.

APPLIED FIELD COURSES
Four courses are required; course selection is determined by the student’s choice of track.

Business Economics Track
Four of these:

06E:111 (ECON:3160) Personnel Economics 3 s.h.
06E:117 (ECON:3200) Money, Banking, and Financial Markets 3 s.h.
06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business 3 s.h.
06E:141 (ECON:3350) Industry Analysis 3 s.h.
06E:160 (ECON:3370) Household Analysis 3 s.h.

Policy Economics Track
Three of these:

06E:113 (ECON:3180) Health Economics 3 s.h.
06E:119 (ECON:3220) Policy Analysis 3 s.h.
06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business 3 s.h.
06E:129 (ECON:3260) Economic Growth and Development 3 s.h.
06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
06E:135 (ECON:3340) Regional and Urban Economics 3 s.h.
06E:145 (ECON:3750) Transportation Economics 3 s.h.
06E:165 (ECON:3390) Sports Economics 3 s.h.
06E:169 (ECON:3410) Topics in Policy Economics arr.
06E:171 (ECON:4100) Antitrust Economics 3 s.h.
06E:172 (ECON:3440) Law and Economics 3 s.h.

One additional economics course numbered

06E:111 (ECON:3160) - 06E:189 (ECON:3900)

Analytical Economics Track
Three of these:

06E:173 (ECON:3500) International Economics 3 s.h.
06E:174 (ECON:3400) Monetary Economics 3 s.h.
06E:175 (ECON:3320) Labor Economics 3 s.h.
06E:176 (ECON:3420) Public Sector Economics 3 s.h.
06E:177 (ECON:3310) Industrial Organization 3 s.h.
06E:183 (ECON:3320) Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
06E:187 (ECON:3850) Mathematical Economics 3 s.h.
06E:189 (ECON:3900) Topics in Analytical Economics arr.

One additional economics course numbered

06E:111 (ECON:3160) - 06E:189 (ECON:3900)

Prerequisites
Prerequisites for most 100-level courses in economics:
06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics

Prerequisites for 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for courses numbered 06E:171 and above: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory or 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics, or both, depending on the course

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)
Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation, 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics, and the math component of quantitative courses required for major

Before the seventh semester begins: three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation, 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics, and one 100-level economics course

Before the eighth semester begins: three 100-level economics courses and the statistics component of the quantitative course requirement

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Business Administration

The following checkpoints are designed for students who enter the University as first-year pre-business students. In order to stay on the plan, students must maintain the grade-point average required for guaranteed admission to the Tippie College of Business and must apply for admission to the college by the established deadline.

Students must take 06B:100 (BUS:3000) Business Communication and Protocol during their first year after admission to the Tippie College of Business.

Before the third semester begins:
06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics or 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics, 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business, and 22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business, or equivalents; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins:
06A:001 (ACCT:2100) Introduction to Financial Accounting, 06A:002 (ACCT:2200) Managerial Accounting, and 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics or 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics (whichever has not already been taken), or equivalents; all General Education requirements; and at least half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: business core requirements, approximately half of the course work in the major (varies by major), and three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: approximately three-quarters of course work in the major

During the eighth semester: all remaining course work in the major, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences students majoring in economics are encouraged to take part in the economics honors program, which provides opportunities for high-achieving students to pursue special research interests. To enter the economics honors program, students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). They also must complete 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics before the senior year. Interested students should consult the department’s honors advisor by the second semester of their junior year.

Honors students typically register for 06E:194 (ECON:3999) Honors Seminar in the fall of the senior year. To graduate with honors in the major, they define and complete a research project under the guidance of a supervising faculty member, earning up to 6 s.h. in 06E:195 (ECON:4999) Honors Thesis in Economics. They present the thesis orally to a committee of three faculty members, typically the undergraduate honors advisor, the student’s research supervisor, and a third faculty member agreed upon by the student and the honors advisor.

Bachelor of Business Administration

The Tippie College of Business offers qualified B.B.A. students the opportunity to pursue honors study. For more information, contact the Undergraduate Program Office or see “B.B.A. with Honors” in the Bachelor of Business Administration (p. 632) section of the Catalog.

Minor

The minor in economics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in economics courses, including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa in courses numbered above 06E:100. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Courses for Nonmajors

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may wish to use economics courses as part of other majors or the General Education Program (p. 306). The introductory courses 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics are approved for the Social Sciences area of General Education; they introduce the field of economics and the specialized topics of upper-division courses. The intermediate theory courses 06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics provide a deeper foundation in the core theories and methods of the discipline. They serve as preparation for upper-division field courses or as terminal courses in an economics study plan.

Undergraduate Economics Forum

Students are invited to join the undergraduate Economics Forum. The group sponsors programs to help students plan for careers or graduate study and holds social events, special lectures, and round-table discussions. It provides opportunities for students to meet other economics majors and department faculty members.

Graduate Programs

- Master of Arts in economics
- Doctor of Philosophy in economics

The department partners with the College of Law to offer a joint degree program; see "Joint Ph.D./J.D." later in this section. It also participates in the M.B.A. program, which is offered by the Tippie School of Management; see Master of Business Administration Program (p. 677) in the Catalog.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts is offered only to students working toward a Ph.D. in economics.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in economics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program provides rigorous training in economic theory, econometrics, and applied economics. It has six components: a coordinated sequence of core courses, a qualifying examination, a research paper, a set of major field courses, a dissertation proposal and comprehensive examination, and a dissertation. Requirements are as follows.

CORE SEQUENCE

First semester:
- 06E:200 (ECON:5000) Economic Analysis I 3 s.h.
- 06E:203 (ECON:5100) Microeconomics I 3 s.h.
- 06E:204 (ECON:5200) Macroeconomics I 3 s.h.

Second semester:
- 06E:201 (ECON:5010) Economic Analysis II 3 s.h.
- 06E:205 (ECON:5110) Microeconomics II 3 s.h.
- 06E:206 (ECON:5210) Macroeconomics II 3 s.h.

Third semester:
- 06E:221 (ECON:5800) Econometrics 3 s.h.

Fourth semester:
- 06E:222 (ECON:5810) Applied Econometrics 3 s.h.

QUALIFYING EXAMINATION

The qualifying examination is normally taken the summer after the first year.

RESEARCH PAPER

The research paper is normally completed the summer after the second year.

MAJOR FIELD COURSES

Each student chooses a major study area in addition to the core courses. The requirement for the major area is a minimum of 24 s.h. of intensive study in a field and in courses that enable students to understand the relationship between their specialty and related fields.

DISSERTATION PROPOSAL AND COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Students must defend a dissertation proposal in a comprehensive examination within one year of completing the research paper requirement.

DISSERTATION

Submission of the completed dissertation and an oral defense of the dissertation research completes the Ph.D. program.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog. Application deadline for admission and financial support is January 15 for fall semester entry.

Applicants must take the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and have their scores sent to the University. Those whose first language is not English and who do not hold a baccalaureate or advanced degree from an accredited college or university in the United States must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and have their scores sent to the University.

Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must submit a completed Application for Graduate Admission, official transcripts from all institutions they have attended, and all official test scores to the University of Iowa Office of Admissions. They may upload unofficial transcripts, statements of purpose, résumés, and reference information to the Tippie College of Business Ph.D. applicant portal.

Joint Ph.D./J.D.

The Department of Economics and the College of Law offer a joint Doctor of Philosophy/Juris Doctor program; for information about the J.D. degree, see "Juris Doctor" in the College of Law (p. 962) section of the Catalog. Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they may be admitted to the joint degree program.

Special Seminar

Each year the department offers a seminar program that brings eminent economists from other universities and from government agencies to The University of Iowa campus. Presentations by Department of Economics faculty members and students also are featured.

Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

Students may take 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics in either order or simultaneously. They are approved for the Social Sciences area of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.
06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics 4 s.h.
Organization, workings of modern economic systems; role of markets, prices, competition in efficient allocation of resources and promotion of economic welfare; alternative systems; international trade. Requirements: B.B.A. students cannot use this course for General Education social sciences. GE: Social Sciences.

06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics 4 s.h.
National income and output, employment and inflation; money, credit; government finance; monetary, fiscal policy; economic growth, development; international finance. Requirements: B.B.A. students cannot use this course for General Education social sciences. GE: Social Sciences.

06E:029 (ECON:1300) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities).

06E:071 (ECON:2800) Statistics for Strategy Problems 3 s.h.
Continuation of 22S:008 (STAT:1030); working knowledge of statistical techniques, scientific data-based approach to problem formulation and solution, statistical techniques in the context of real data analysis, assessment of defects in statistical analyses, using data for making business decisions, choosing appropriate statistical procedures, developing skill in communicating statistical results to audiences without knowledge of statistics. Prerequisites: 22M:017 (MATH:1380) and 22S:008 (STAT:1030).

06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory 3 s.h.
Economic theory of the behavior of consumers, producers, and other economic agents; role of markets in coordinating economic activity, conditions that markets require for efficient allocation of resources; market imperfections; strategic behavior of economic actors. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 22M:017 (MATH:1380).

06E:105 (ECON:3120) Macroeconomics 3 s.h.
Measurement of macroeconomic indicators; economic growth and business cycles; use of macroeconomic models to study the role of government fiscal and monetary policies. Prerequisites: 06E:002 (ECON:1200) and 22M:017 (MATH:1380).

06E:106 (ECON:3140) Advanced Microeconomics 3 s.h.
Mathematical treatment of the economic theory of the behavior of consumers, producers, and other economic agents; the role of markets in coordinating economic activity and the conditions required by those markets for an efficient allocation of resources; market imperfections; and the strategic behavior of economic actors. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100), and 22M:017 (MATH:1380) or 22M:025 (MATH:1850). Recommendations: 22M:025 (MATH:1850).

06E:111 (ECON:3160) Personnel Economics 3 s.h.
Microeconomic analysis of labor markets, related institutions; labor supply decisions made by workers, labor demand decisions made by firms, market equilibrium; economic analysis of unions; returns to education; family decisions. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:113 (ECON:3180) Health Economics 3 s.h.
Structure of America's health care industry, economic analysis applied to its problems of production, pricing, distribution; cost-effectiveness, financing of medical costs, role of government. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:117 (ECON:3200) Money, Banking, and Financial Markets 3 s.h.
Role of money, institutions in determination of income, employment, prices in domestic and world economy. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:119 (ECON:3220) Policy Analysis 3 s.h.
Economic functions of government in modern economies; economic decision making; budgetary processes; effects of government expenditures, taxation on allocation of resources, distribution of income, economic growth, stability. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business 3 s.h.
Modern theories of international trade and investment; role of tariffs and other restrictions of international trade; foreign exchange markets, international monetary arrangements, international economic policy. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:129 (ECON:3260) Economic Growth and Development 3 s.h.
Determinants of rising living standards; accumulation of physical and human capital; predictions of economic growth models compared to observed changes in living standards. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
Environmental and resource use problems; efficient mechanisms and other policies for environmental protection, management of common property resources. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200). Same as 102:135 (URP:3135).

06E:135 (ECON:3340) Regional and Urban Economics 3 s.h.
Theory of location and regional development; central place theory; why cities exist and trade with one another; models of land use patterns, rents; empirical tests of models; policy applications. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200). Same as 102:134 (URP:3134).

06E:141 (ECON:3350) Industry Analysis 3 s.h.
Structural evolution; imperfect competition, resource allocation; development of public policy on monopoly; selected industries. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:145 (ECON:3750) Transportation Economics 3 s.h.
Overview of transportation markets—intercity, rural, urban; transportation modes—rail, highway, air, water, pipeline, transit; issues in finance, policy, planning, management, physical distribution, and environmental, economic, and safety regulation. Recommendations: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200). Same as 044:133 (GEOG:3940), 102:133 (URP:3350).
06E:158 (ECON:3360) American Economic History 3 s.h.
Requirements: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200) for economics majors; 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 16A:061 (HIST:2261) for nonmajors. Same as 16A:144 (HIST:3360).

06E:160 (ECON:3370) Household Finance 3 s.h.
Micro- and macroeconomic theory applied to economic decisions of families, households; practical and theoretical issues in income generation, spending and saving decisions, risk management and asset allocation, investments, and intergenerational wealth transfers. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:165 (ECON:3390) Sports Economics 3 s.h.
Theory and literature of economic issues in professional sports; issues such as relative advantages of large-and small-market teams, city subsidies for baseball and football stadiums, star players' true value to their teams; ideas from introductory economics (such as demand and cost curves) combined with additional economic theory, statistical evidence, and information about particular sports. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:169 (ECON:3410) Topics in Policy Economics arr.
Topics vary. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200).

06E:171 (ECON:4100) Antitrust Economics 3 s.h.
Topics in federal antitrust policy; merger policy, monopolization, predatory pricing, collusion, vertical restrictions, resale price maintenance, enforcement; case law, economics literature. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) or 091:208 (LAW:8146).

06E:172 (ECON:3440) Law and Economics 3 s.h.
Law examined through analytic tools of microeconomics; impact of legal rules on resource allocation, risk bearing, distribution of economic well-being. Prerequisites: 06E:001 (ECON:1100).

06E:173 (ECON:3500) International Economics 3 s.h.
Neoclassical model of international trade, imperfect competition and international trade and investment, role of trade barriers; regional trade agreements and the World Trade Organization. Requirements: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120), or graduate standing.

06E:174 (ECON:3400) Monetary Economics 3 s.h.
Demand for and supply of money; money's role in economy; empirical studies of money's impact; problems with monetary control. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

06E:175 (ECON:3300) Labor Economics 3 s.h.
Labor supply and demand; investments in human capital, compensating wage differentials, discrimination, long-term contracts, occupational choice, family decisions, unions, immigration. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100).

06E:176 (ECON:3420) Public Sector Economics 3 s.h.
Economic functions of government; budgetary processes; effects of government expenditures, taxation on resource allocation, income distribution, economic growth and stability. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

06E:177 (ECON:3310) Industrial Organization 3 s.h.
Market structure; effects of business practices, informational problems on market structure; appraisal of antitrust policies, government regulation of business. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100).

06E:183 (ECON:3320) Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
Economics of natural resources; interaction between economic theory, empirical evidence, and public policy; land, water, fish, trees, minerals; externalities. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100).

06E:184 (ECON:4800) Introduction to Econometrics 3 s.h.
Single equation linear statistical models, estimation and hypothesis testing; serial correlation, heteroscedasticity, generalized least squares estimation; specification analysis; errors in variables; emphasis on interpretation, application of econometric models, methods, use of computers. Prerequisites: 225:120 (STAT:3120).

06E:185 (ECON:3330) Dynamic Macroeconomics 3 s.h.
Topics vary. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

06E:186 (ECON:3850) Mathematical Economics 3 s.h.
Mathematical structure of economic principles, problems, systems; may include constrained optimization, choice under uncertainty, general equilibrium and welfare economics, dynamical systems and control theory, game theory. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

06E:187 (ECON:3850) Mathematical Economics 3 s.h.
Topics in federal antitrust policy; merger policy, monopolization, predatory pricing, collusion, vertical restrictions, resale price maintenance, enforcement; case law, economics literature. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) or 091:208 (LAW:8146).

06E:189 (ECON:3900) Topics in Analytical Economics arr.
Topics vary. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

06E:190 (ECON:3870) Federal Reserve Challenge 3 s.h.
Experience doing what Federal Reserve economists do every day: study the real U.S. economy, make forecasts and policy recommendations, defend their views to academic and professional economists; development of analytical skills, teamwork, how to build presentations. Prerequisites: 06E:104 (ECON:3100) and 06E:105 (ECON:3120).

For Advanced Undergraduates

06E:194 (ECON:3999) Honors Seminar 1-3 s.h.

06E:195 (ECON:4999) Honors Thesis in Economics 3 s.h.
Independent student project directed by faculty or staff advisor; culminates in thesis that conforms to University Honors Program guidelines; may include empirical research, library research, applied projects. Prerequisites: 06E:194 (BUS:3999) or 06E:195 (ECON:3999). Requirements: admission to the Tippie College of Business honors program.

06E:196 (ECON:4050) Readings and Independent Study in Economics arr.
06E:199 (ECON:4900) Academic Internship
Participation in approved internship program (e.g., Washington Center Internships).

Primarily for Graduate Students
Qualified undergraduates may enroll in graduate-level courses with consent of the department chair.

06E:200 (ECON:5000) Economic Analysis I
Basic metric topology, convex analysis, function spaces, measure theory and integration.

06E:201 (ECON:5010) Economic Analysis II
Behavior under uncertainty, macroeconomic models; dynamic programming, asset pricing, saving, consumption.

06E:203 (ECON:5100) Microeconomics I
Consumer choice theory, producer theory, choice under uncertainty, basic game theory. Offered fall semesters.

06E:204 (ECON:5200) Macroeconomics I
Economic growth, business cycles, money and inflation. Offered fall semesters.

06E:205 (ECON:5110) Microeconomics II
General equilibrium and welfare analysis, adverse selection, the principal-agent problem, social choice, mechanism design. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 06E:203 (ECON:5100).

06E:206 (ECON:5210) Macroeconomics II
Dynamic macroeconomic models; stochastic macroeconomics; time consistency equilibrium business cycle theory. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 06E:204 (ECON:5200).

06E:211 (ECON:6850) Mathematical Economics I
Convex analysis in economic theory: ordinal and cardinal preference relations; quasiconcave, concave numerical representations; separation principle for convex sets—linear programming, concave programming; Brouwer fixed point theorem; existence of competitive equilibrium. Prerequisites: 06E:205 (ECON:5110).

06E:221 (ECON:5800) Econometrics
Statistical inference in single and multiple equation stochastic models, models with nonindependent or nonidentically distributed error structure, dynamic models; OLS, GLS, IV, ML estimation; asymptotic distribution theory; exact, asymptotic hypothesis tests. Prerequisites: 22S:154 (STAT:4101).

06E:222 (ECON:5810) Applied Econometrics
Empirical problems; multiple linear regression, nonlinear regression, maximum likelihood, hazard functions, univariate and multivariate time series, flexible functional forms. Prerequisites: 06E:221 (ECON:5800).

06E:223 (ECON:6800) Econometric Theory I
Inference from data and theory in economic models; emphasis on decision making and simulation methods. Prerequisites: 06E:222 (ECON:5810).

06E:235 (ECON:6500) International Trade Theory
The theory of international trade, including basic models of international trade; capital and labor mobility and trade; protection of international trade; the political economy of international trade; empirical applications of international trade.

06E:241 (ECON:6420) Macroeconomics III
Current research in macroeconomics; development of research topics with emphasis on theoretical and empirical analysis. Prerequisites: 06E:205 (ECON:5110) and 06E:221 (ECON:5800).

06E:245 (ECON:6400) Monetary Theory
Research at the frontier of monetary theory and policy; overlapping generations models, search models of money, representative agent monetary models, intermediation and banking theory, and financial contracts.

06E:250 (ECON:6300) Labor Economics
Problems and models, including intertemporal models of labor markets; uncertainty and labor market activity; retirement decisions, economic theories of fertility; economics of discrimination; job search models; economic models of unions; bargaining and strikes, public sector labor markets; determinants of income distribution; emphasis on empirical verification of theory. Prerequisites: 06E:205 (ECON:5110), and 06E:184 (ECON:4800) or 06E:221 (ECON:5800).

06E:271 (ECON:6310) Industrial Organization
The firm, monopolistic competition, oligopoly and workable competition; industrial organization, nature of equilibrium under uncertainty. Prerequisites: 06E:205 (ECON:5110) and 06E:211 (ECON:6850).

06E:299 (ECON:6900) Contemporary Topics in Economics
Topics not offered in other courses.

06E:300 (ECON:7950) Readings in Economics
arr.

06E:301 (ECON:7975) Thesis in Economics
arr.

Advanced Graduate Seminars

06E:310 (ECON:7000) Seminar in Economic Theory
arr.

06E:311 (ECON:7010) Seminar in Economic Theory II
arr.

Elementary Education

Undergraduate major: elementary education (B.A., B.S.)
Web site: http://www.education.uiowa.edu/teach

Undergraduate Program of Study

• Major in elementary education (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)

The College of Education offers the major in elementary education. The major is available with a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Science; both degrees are awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The College of Education also offers endorsement for instruction of middle school students (secondary education).

Students interested in pursuing a degree in elementary education must first be admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and then must apply to the College of Education. Admission to the College of Education’s elementary education program is not guaranteed. In order to be considered for admission to the elementary education program, undergraduates must complete a minimum of 30 s.h. of course work and must have a University of Iowa and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00. All students must submit PRAXIS I test scores with their application to the Teacher Education Program (TEP). Students should visit with an advisor or speak with Teacher Education Program staff about complete admission requirements.

The elementary education major prepares students to teach kindergarten through sixth grade. Students complete course work in the foundations and methods of teaching. They also complete requirements for an endorsement, choosing from reading, English/language arts, science, social science, and other areas. Program guides are available from the College of Education’s Office of Education Services.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306) and must satisfy all other requirements for graduation with a bachelor’s degree from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

For information about elementary and secondary education curriculum requirements, student teaching, and teacher licensure, see “TEP: Elementary Education (Undergraduate)” and “TEP: Secondary Education (Undergraduate and Graduate)” in the Teaching and Learning (p. 774) (College of Education) section of the Catalog and contact the Office of Education Services.

Undergraduate major: English (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: English
Graduate degrees: M.A. in English; M.F.A. in English (creative writing, nonfiction writing); Ph.D. in English
Web site: http://english.uiowa.edu/

The Department of English offers courses in literature, cultural studies, language, and writing. In these courses, students read poetry, fiction, essays, criticism, and theory to acquire methods for understanding literature and culture. In addition to providing these essential elements of a liberal arts and sciences education, the department’s courses can augment students’ specialized interests in other fields.

Many undergraduate and graduate students enroll in the department’s degree programs. Most Ph.D. students in English are preparing for careers as teachers and scholars, and many M.F.A. students in the creative writing program and the nonfiction writing program are preparing for lives as storytellers, essayists, and poets. The B.A. and M.A. programs provide valuable training for careers in a variety of fields. Students who have earned English degrees from The University of Iowa write for advertising firms, newspapers, the entertainment industry and book publishers; teach in primary and secondary schools; practice law and medicine; work in business, industry, and nonprofits; and participate in state and federal government. As far as possible, a student’s course of study is arranged to meet his or her individual needs and objectives.

The Department of English participates in several of the University’s interdisciplinary units: the Departments of American Studies, Cinema and Comparative Literature, and Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies; the African American Studies Program; the American Indian and Native Studies Program; the Center for the Book; and the Project on Rhetorics of Inquiry (POROI).

WRITING PROGRAMS

For the past 70 years, The University of Iowa has been a national leader in virtually all areas of teaching writing. It offers graduate degrees in both creative and nonfiction writing, gives undergraduate English majors the opportunity to pursue a track in creative writing or a concentration in nonfiction writing, and makes writing courses available to qualified undergraduates in other majors.

The M.F.A. program in nonfiction writing is one of the few graduate writing programs in the nation that offers a full range of graduate course work in the area. It is presented by Department of English writing faculty and distinguished visitors.

The M.F.A. program in creative writing is conducted at the Iowa Writers’ Workshop. Founded in 1936, the workshop counts scores of distinguished poets and novelists among its alumni. Writers compete for admission to the program, where they work with the outstanding teacher-authors that make up the workshop’s faculty. The workshop also brings numerous prominent authors to campus each year for lectures and readings.

Although it is a graduate program, the workshop offers several courses for undergraduates, including students in majors other than English; see Creative Writing (Iowa Writers’ Workshop) (p. 207) in the Catalog.

Graduate and undergraduate courses in creative writing [prefix 08C (CW)] and nonfiction writing [prefix 08N (CNW)] are listed under “Courses” at the end of this Catalog section. There also are a few undergraduate writing courses intended only for non-English majors [prefix 08A (ENNM)].

To learn more about the department’s undergraduate and graduate writing programs, see “Bachelor of Arts,” “Master of Fine Arts: Creative Writing,” and “Master of Fine Arts: Nonfiction Writing” below.
Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in English (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in English

The Department of English offers undergraduate courses in literature, film, critical theory, cultural studies, language, and writing. In these courses, students study poetry, fiction, essays, criticism, film, and theory to acquire methods for understanding the history and significance of texts in the cultures from which they emerge.

The department challenges students to strive for excellence as writers. It provides instruction in and opportunities for writing in all of its classes and offers students the option of building individual concentrations in creative or nonfiction writing. It also offers a creative writing track, which has selective admission.

Students who plan to teach English in secondary schools should consult with an advisor in the College of Education as early as possible; contact the Office of Education Services. The education endorsement requires that students choose particular courses in the English major in order to meet state requirements. See "B.A. with Teacher Licensure" below.

Students interested in an English major should consult the academic advisor in the English undergraduate advising office. Visit the Department of English web site to learn about the faculty, courses, and upcoming events.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in English requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36 s.h. (12 courses) of work for the major. Students must earn at least 21 s.h. of credit for the major at The University of Iowa. Transfer students may count a maximum of 15 s.h. of approved transfer credit toward the major.

Students may apply to enter the major's creative writing track; admission is selective (see "Creative Writing Track" below). Or they may work with an advisor to plan a concentration in writing, taking courses with the prefix 08C (CW) and 08N (CNW). Students may count up to 6 s.h. of courses with the prefix 08C (CW) toward the English major; additional 08C (CW) courses may be taken as elective credit toward graduation. Students who enroll in 08C:163 (CW:4870) Undergraduate Writers’ Workshop: Fiction or 08C:166 (CW:4875) Undergraduate Writers’ Workshop: Poetry must have the instructor’s consent and must submit samples of their writing before they may register.

Students interested in nonfiction writing may work with an advisor to build a concentration, taking courses with the prefix 08N (CNW); selections include courses in forms of nonfiction writing and literary nonfiction. Enrollment in some nonfiction writing courses, such as 08N:150 (CNW:4631) Undergraduate Essay Workshop, requires the instructor’s consent.

The following courses do not count toward the English major.

- 08C:001 (CW:1800) Creative Writing Studio Workshop 3 s.h.
- 08N:020 (CNW:1620) Introduction to Creative Nonfiction 3 s.h.
- Courses with the prefix 08A (ENNM)
- Courses with the prefix 08G (ENGL:1200-1370)

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). English majors should not use 08G:001 (ENGL:1200) The Interpretation of Literature to fulfill General Education’s Interpretation of Literature requirement; they may substitute a course from the Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts area of General Education, excluding these:

- 025:059 (MUS:1020) Performance Instruction for Nonmajors 1 s.h.
- 137:106 (DANC:4880) Dance Performance 0-3 s.h.
- 137:001 (DANC:1010) through 137:024 (DANC:2040)

All English majors must complete 008:005 (ENGL:2010) Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice.

Other course work for the major is divided into six areas and three historical periods. Students must complete a total of eight area courses (see "Areas" below) and six historical period courses (see "Historical Periods" below). Most courses (except those in the creative writing and nonfiction writing list) satisfy both an area and a historical period requirement, so many students complete the historical period requirements as they complete the area requirements. This allows them to choose additional elective course work to complete the major.

Each course’s area and period designations are included in its course description, which is provided in the comprehensive list of Department of English courses; see "Courses" at the end of this Catalog section. A course’s area and/or period designation may vary by semester; consult ISIS for semester-specific course information. Additional information about courses is available on the Department of English web site and from the academic advisor.

The major in English requires the following course work.

INTRODUCTORY COURSE

All English majors must complete this course and are encouraged to enroll in it as soon as they declare the major.

- 008:005 (ENGL:2010) Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice 3 s.h.

AREAS

Students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) from each of the following six areas. Each student also must choose one of the six areas as a concentration area and take an additional two courses in that area, for a total of three courses (9 s.h.) in one area, and eight area courses in all.

Creative Writing Track

Students majoring in English may be eligible to enter the creative writing track. The track maintains the English major's emphasis on training creative and intelligent readers while providing a focus on creative writing.

The creative writing track requires a minimum of 13 s.h. In addition to fulfilling requirements for the track, students must complete the two prerequisite courses required for admission to the track and satisfy all other admission requirements (see "Admission to the Track" below). They must fulfill all requirements for the English major as stated under "Bachelor of Arts" above, including at least 3 s.h. in 08C:108 (CW:3218) Creative Writing for New Media or introductory-level writing courses. They may include:

- At least 3 s.h. chosen from the following list of University of Iowa literature, depending on course content, which varies by semester. Consult ISIS for semester-specific period designations.
- 008:098 (ENGL:2050) Seminar 3 s.h.
- 008:130 (ENGL:3140) Literature and the Book 3 s.h.
- 008:134 (ENGL:4150) Introduction to Book Studies 3 s.h.
- 008:190 (ENGL:3142) Topics in Book History 3 s.h.

ADMISSION TO THE TRACK

Admission to the creative writing track is selective; students must apply and be admitted to the track. They should apply during the semester before they intend to enter the track. To apply, students must:

- have junior or senior standing effective for the semester in which they intend to begin the track;
- have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in English (based on all English courses taken, including creative writing courses); and
- have completed at least 9 s.h. in University of Iowa English Literature courses, excluding those with prefixes 08N (CNW) and 08C (CW).

Applicants also must have completed two prerequisites for admission to the creative writing track (6 s.h.), chosen from the following list of University of Iowa introductory-level writing courses. They may include:

- 08C:108 (CW:3218) Creative Writing for New Media or
- 08C:110 (CW:3210) Creative Writing and the Natural World as one of their prerequisites, but not both.

- 08C:023 (CW:1810) Creative Writing 3 s.h.
- 08C:097 (CW:2870) Fiction Writing 3 s.h.
- 08C:098 (CW:2875) Poetry Writing 3 s.h.
- 08C:108 (CW:3218) Creative Writing for New Media 3 s.h.
- 08C:110 (CW:3210) Creative Writing and the Natural World 3 s.h.
- 08C:167 (CW:4880) Undergraduate Writers' Seminar 3 s.h.
- 08N:080 (CNW:2680) Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.
- 08N:090 (CNW:2690) Intermediate Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.
- 049:062 (THTR:2301) Playwriting I 3 s.h.
- 049:155 (THTR:3301) Playwriting II 3 s.h.

218:078 (TRNS:2499) Undergraduate Translation Seminar 3 s.h.
218:079 (TRNS:2179) Undergraduate Translation Workshop 3 s.h.

Exceptions may be made for students who have not taken an introductory course but who have taken:

- 08C:166 (CW:4875) Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Poetry or
- 08C:163 (CW:4870) Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Fiction.

Students may apply to the creative writing track each semester during the application period. For information and application forms, visit the creative writing track web page.

Registration in creative writing track courses requires admission to the track.

CREATIVE WRITING TRACK REQUIREMENTS

The creative writing track requires 13 s.h. Students must earn 4 s.h. in genre-based writing seminars. They also must earn 9 s.h. in approved advanced creative writing courses, including at least 3 s.h. in 8WS:170 (ENGL:4720) Creative Writing Track: Advanced Topics.

The creative writing track requires the following course work.

Genre-Based Seminars

Two of these (4 s.h.):

- 8WS:121 (ENGL:3721) Writers' Seminar: Fiction 2 s.h.
- 8WS:122 (ENGL:3722) Writers' Seminar: Poetry 2 s.h.
- 8WS:123 (ENGL:3723) Writers' Seminar: Nonfiction 2 s.h.
- 8WS:124 (ENGL:3724) Writers' Seminar: Literary Translation 2 s.h.
- 8WS:125 (ENGL:3725) Writers' Seminar: Playwriting 2 s.h.

Advanced Courses

At least 3 s.h. in this course:

- 8WS:170 (ENGL:4720) Creative Writing Track: Advanced Topics 3 s.h.

At least 6 s.h. chosen from these:

- 008:198 (ENGL:4040) Undergraduate Honors Project 1-3 s.h.
- 08C:163 (CW:4870) Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Fiction 3 s.h.
- 08C:166 (CW:4875) Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Poetry 3 s.h.
- 08N:104 (CNW:3633) Personal Writing 3 s.h.
- 08N:120 (CNW:3630) Advanced Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.
- 08N:145 (CNW:3660) Multimedia Writing 3 s.h.
- 08N:150 (CNW:4631) Undergraduate Essay Workshop 3 s.h.
- 049:165 (THTR:3300) Advanced Playwriting 3 s.h.
- 049:169 (THTR:3310) Undergraduate Playwriting Workshop 1-3 s.h.

In order to take 008:198 (ENGL:4040) Undergraduate Honors Project (an honors thesis in creative writing), students must be in the creative writing track and must be members of the English Honors Program. They must fulfill all requirements for registration in the course; see "Honors in the Major" below. They also must be on schedule for completing all requirements for the English major and must have departmental approval.
B.A. with Teacher Licensure

English majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the College of Education’s Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Students interested in earning elementary school licensure should contact the Office of Education Services for information about requirements.

The following courses are required for students earning secondary school licensure.

ENGLISH COURSES

Students complete these courses as part of the English major.

A Shakespeare course
A British literature course
08N:141 (CNW:4355)/07S:155 (EDTL:4355) Approaches to Teaching Writing (area: nonfiction and creative writing) 3 s.h.
08P:182 (ENG:3190)/07S:182 (EDTL:3382) Language and Learning (area: literary theory and interdisciplinary studies) 2-3 s.h.
08P:198 (ENG:3191)/07S:193 (EDTL:3393) Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature (area: literary theory and interdisciplinary studies) 3 s.h.
One nonfiction or creative writing course in addition to 08N:141 (CNW:4355)

EDUCATION COURSES

These College of Education courses are required for teacher education.

07B:103 (EPLS:3000) Foundations of Education 3 s.h.
07B:180 (EPLS:4180) Human Relations for the Classroom Teacher 3 s.h.
07E:102 (EDTL:3002) Technology in the Classroom 2 s.h.
07P:075 (PSQF:1075) Educational Psychology and Measurement 3 s.h.
07S:114 (EDTL:4314) Introduction and Practicum: Secondary English 3 s.h.
07S:115 (EDTL:4315) Methods: Secondary English 3 s.h.
07S:187 (EDTL:4087) Seminar: Curriculum and Student Teaching 1-3 s.h.
07S:190 (EDTL:3090) Orientation to Secondary Education 1 s.h.
07S:191 (EDTL:4091) Observation and Laboratory Practice in the Secondary School 6 s.h.
07S:192 (EDTL:4092) Observation and Laboratory Practice in the Secondary School 6 s.h.
07S:194 (EDTL:4394) Methods: Secondary Reading 2-3 s.h.
07U:100 (EDTL:4900) Foundations of Special Education 3 s.h.

One college-level mathematics or statistics course

ADMISSION

Applicants to the Teacher Education Program in English must complete a minimum of 30 s.h., including 008:005 (ENGL:2010) Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice and an additional 12 s.h. in English courses, before they are admitted to the program.

The following courses do not count toward the additional 12 s.h.: all 08G (ENGL:1200-ENGL:1370) courses, 08N:141 (CNW:4355) Approaches to Teaching Writing, 08P:182 (ENG:3190) Language and Learning, and 08P:198 (ENG:3191) Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature.

Admission to the Teacher Education Program is selective; contact the College of Education’s Office of Education Services for information.

Minor Licensure in English

Students who seek licensure for secondary teaching in fields other than English may seek minor licensure in English. First-year courses in rhetoric, speech, or writing do not count toward this requirement.

The English minor licensure program includes the following course work.

An American literature course
A British literature course
A course in creative or nonfiction writing
An additional English course
07S:115 (EDTL:4315) Methods: Secondary English 3 s.h.
07S:194 (EDTL:4394) Methods: Secondary Reading 2-3 s.h.
08N:141 (CNW:4355)/07S:155 (EDTL:4355) Approaches to Teaching Writing 3 s.h.
08P:182 (ENG:3190)/07S:182 (EDTL:3382) Language and Learning 2-3 s.h.
08P:198 (ENG:3191)/07S:193 (EDTL:3393) Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature 3 s.h.

While this program meets minimum requirements for licensure, the department recommends that students who want to teach English have considerably more training in the field.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers talented students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the English major and to enhance their course of study through honors seminars and thesis writing. All students interested in taking honors course work are encouraged to join the English Honors Program as soon as they qualify. Students may join online; visit English Honors Program.
Each year the department offers four honors seminars covering a wide range of subject areas and historical periods. Honors seminars are limited to 18 students, carry 3 s.h. credit, and meet three hours each week. These courses require substantial reading and research and culminate in a 15-20 page essay. Students register for 008:098 (ENGL:2050) Seminar.

To register for a seminar, students must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and must have completed three English courses (not including introductory courses in nonfiction or creative writing) with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in English. The department also recommends that students complete 008:005 (ENGL:2010) Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice before taking an honors seminar.

Students who wish to graduate with honors in the English major must take two honors seminars, complete a two-semester thesis project, and maintain a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in English.

The two-semester thesis project includes
008:120 (ENGL:4020) Honors Thesis Workshop (fall) and 008:198 (ENGL:4040) Undergraduate Honors Project (independent study) for a total of 6 s.h. To enroll in 008:120 (ENGL:4020) Honors Thesis Workshop, students must have completed one honors seminar with a grade of A-minus or higher and must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in English.

The English Honors Program has established careful guidelines for each of the six types of honors theses accepted by the department: literary and cultural studies; nonfiction writing; electronic writing and multimedia production; English education; creative writing; and the interdisciplinary thesis for double honors, which allows a student to earn honors in two departments with one longer project. Information on thesis guidelines is available on the English Honors Program web site and in the handbook A Guide to the English Honors Program, available in the Department of English advising office.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor

The minor in English requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in English courses, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. of approved transfer credit toward the minor. Before taking courses for the minor, students must complete the General Education Program requirement 08G:001 (ENGL:1200) The Interpretation of Literature.

The minor must include at least 6 s.h. in literature courses [prefix 008 (ENGL:2100-4840)]; the remaining 9 s.h. may be selected from additional courses in literature and from most courses in writing [prefixes 08C (CW) and 08N (CNW)]. The following courses do not count toward the minor.

008:003 (ENGL:1410) Sex and Popular Culture in the Postwar U.S.  3 s.h.
008:006 (ENGL:1420) Technologies and Literatures of the Future  3 s.h.
08C:001 (CW:1800) Creative Writing Studio Workshop  3 s.h.
08N:020 (CNW:1620) Introduction to Creative Nonfiction  3 s.h.
Courses with the prefix 08A (ENNM)  3 s.h.
Courses with the prefix 08G (ENGL:1200-1370)  3 s.h.

Students may declare the English minor on ISIS. In order for the minor to be recorded, students must indicate completion of the minor on their Application for Degree.

Students who would like help declaring the minor or in planning how to meet its requirements may stop by the advising office or schedule an appointment with an advisor by contacting the undergraduate English secretary.

Graduate Programs of Study

• Master of Arts in English
• Master of Fine Arts in English (creative writing or nonfiction writing)
• Doctor of Philosophy in English

The Master of Arts program in English introduces students to the professional study of literature: the Doctor of Philosophy program prepares them to serve as faculty members at colleges and universities. The Master of Fine Arts program in creative writing features advanced courses in writing fiction and poetry. Students in creative writing study at the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, renowned as a pioneer in teaching writers since its founding in 1936. The Master of Fine Arts program in nonfiction writing is one of the few programs in the nation that offers a full range of graduate courses in literary nonfiction.

The M.A. is appropriate for students who would like graduate training in English and who may have an undergraduate major in a different field or who may intend to earn a Ph.D. at another institution. Students interested in careers in any area of book studies (professional writing, editing, web design, or publishing) may wish to earn the M.A. as a terminal degree, as may teachers seeking to enhance their credentials or students pursuing intellectual growth unrelated to a specific career.

M.A. and Ph.D. students in English mix freely in graduate courses, share the same access to faculty, and meet the same standards of quality in their work.

EXAM FOR THE MASTER OF ARTS IN TEACHING

The department administers the English component of the exam for the Master of Arts in Teaching (M.A.T.) in coordination with the College of Education. M.A.T. students should contact the Department of Teaching and Learning for information.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in English requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The program’s focus is literary studies. The required 30 s.h. includes 24 s.h. earned in residence at The University of Iowa with a g.p.a. of at least 3.25. Students who wish to transfer to Iowa’s Ph.D. program must complete two semesters or 15 s.h. of course work in literature (whichever they complete first) before applying for admission to the doctoral program.
COURSE WORK

Each student must take the following five courses at the 200 level or above. Applicable transfer courses must be approved by the director of graduate study in English.

One course in criticism and theory

Four courses chosen from the following five areas:
British or American literature and culture before 1500
British or American literature and culture 1500-1600
British or American literature and culture 1660-1800
British or American literature and culture 1800-1900
British or American literature and culture of the 20th and 21st Centuries

Elective courses constitute half of the total credit for the degree and may be chosen from graduate courses both in and outside the English department. Students may wish to explore opportunities for interdisciplinary study, language study, experience in theory and practice of writing, or specialization in a field of literary scholarship.

Department of English graduate courses are repeatable with the written approval of the department’s director of graduate studies.

Completion of the M.A. requires either a thesis or a portfolio. Students submit a written description of their choice to the director of the program before the semester in which they plan to graduate.

M.A. THESIS

Students who choose to write an M.A. thesis must submit a brief prospectus approved by a thesis director before they register for thesis credit and at least one semester before they submit the thesis. The thesis committee consists of the thesis director, the director of the M.A. program, and one other faculty member. The thesis is evaluated by the committee as either satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

A copy of the thesis must be presented to the Graduate College for approval. For detailed information about Graduate College deadlines and policies, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College.

PORTFOLIO

Near the end of their course work, students who do not choose the thesis option must submit a portfolio of work to the M.A. examination committee, which consists of the director of the M.A. program and two other English faculty members. All three read the full portfolio. To pass, the candidate must win a majority vote of the committee members.

Students take the first step toward preparing to submit a portfolio by meeting with the director of the M.A. program to discuss the portfolio, early during the semester in which they plan to graduate. After fulfilling all distribution and eligibility requirements and clearing all incomplete grades, students present the director with a draft of the portfolio’s introductory statement. Students planning to graduate at the end of fall semester should present the statement by the first week of October; those who plan to graduate at the end of spring semester should present the statement by the first week of March. Once the director approves the statement, the student must submit three copies of the full portfolio; the submission deadline is November 1 for students planning to graduate at the end of fall semester and April 1 for those who will graduate at the end of spring semester.

The work in the portfolio should demonstrate the student’s knowledge of literature as a broad historical and theoretical inquiry. Students submit approximately 50 pages (12,500 words) of their best work, along with a self-reflective introductory statement of five to seven pages. The body of the portfolio should contain papers originally produced for classes, revised for a broader audience unfamiliar with the original classes. The introduction should detail the student’s trajectory in the program and the literary-critical or methodological skills he or she has gained. It also should explain the contents of the portfolio; contextualize each paper; and give a brief overview of the writing. Students are expected to describe the research methods used in assembling their portfolios and the critical practices that ground their work.

Master of Fine Arts: Creative Writing

The Master of Fine Arts program in creative writing requires a minimum of 48 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered through the Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers’ Workshop), a two-year residency program that culminates in a creative thesis, such as a novel, a collection of stories, or a book of poetry.

Throughout the program, workshop students craft their manuscripts and engage in an exchange of ideas about writing and reading with each other and with the renowned teacher-authors who make up the workshop’s faculty.

Admission to the program is competitive.

For details about the M.F.A. in creative writing and about the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, see Creative Writing (Iowa Writers’ Workshop) (p. 207) in the Catalog.

Master of Fine Arts: Nonfiction Writing

The Master of Fine Arts program in nonfiction writing requires 48 s.h. of graduate credit. It is designed for accomplished students and writers of literary nonfiction; most complete it in three years. The program culminates in a thesis of at least 75 pages.

M.F.A. students must complete 32 s.h. in residence at The University of Iowa, in courses specified by the program. They may choose electives widely, from courses offered by the English department and by all other University of Iowa departments.

Department of English graduate courses are repeatable with the written approval of the department’s director of graduate studies.

In addition to completing course work, students are required to enroll for at least 2 s.h. and no more than 8 s.h. of thesis credit. The thesis may be a single extended piece of nonfiction, a collection of shorter nonfiction pieces, or a collection of essays. Whatever the project, the thesis is expected to be of publishable quality.

For more information, consult the director of the Nonfiction Writing Program.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in English requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed as preparation for the teaching, publishing, and administrative service required of college and university faculty members.

Concentrations are offered in areas such as literary history and critical theory, as well as interdisciplinary areas such as cultural studies and transnational studies.

Of the required 72 s.h., at least 30 s.h. must be earned in residence at The University of Iowa with a g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

Ph.D. requirements include the following.

Formal admission to candidacy by a vote of the Graduate Steering Committee, usually during the third semester of doctoral study

Course work in any of the following historical periods, as expressed in texts of the English-speaking and -writing world (usually but not always British or American):

- Literature and culture before 1500
- Literature and culture 1500-1660
- Literature and culture 1660-1800
- Literature and culture 1800-1900
- Literature and culture of the 20th and 21st Centuries

Three English department seminars taken at The University of Iowa

Fulfillment of the language requirement, usually by completion of an advanced undergraduate course (100-level or above) in a language other than English

A comprehensive examination that consists of the following: a portfolio of five scholarly questions based on a period of literary history (usually British or American); a review essay and annotated bibliography in a special area of interest; two course syllabi; an article to be submitted for publication; and an introduction to the portfolio that synthesizes its parts in preparation for a two-hour oral exam

A dissertation, beginning with a formal presentation of the prospectus to a faculty committee

A final examination in defense of the dissertation

All doctoral candidates are required to gain some teaching experience, preferably in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Department of Rhetoric and in General Education Program (p. 306) literature courses.

For application forms and a complete description of the Ph.D. program, contact the department’s graduate program academic coordinator.

Admission

Applications for admission must be postmarked by the following deadlines.

- M.A. and Ph.D.: postmark by January 3
- M.F.A. (creative writing): postmark by January 3
- M.F.A. (nonfiction writing): postmark by December 15

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Graduate scholarships, fellowships, and teaching and research assistantships are awarded on a competitive basis. The department strives to provide five years of support for students who enter with an M.A. and six years of support for students who enter with a B.A. Students must be in good standing, which requires a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.50 and full-time enrollment.

Financial aid applications are considered only from students who have applied or been admitted to a degree program in the Graduate College. Applications and all necessary supporting material must be submitted by the end of January for the following academic year. Forms are available from the Department of English and the University’s Office of Admissions.

Facilities and Resources

The University of Iowa Libraries collection is strong in all areas of English and American literature. Partly because of the influence of the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, University Libraries has particular strengths in 20th-century fiction and poetry, including manuscript collections of 20th-century authors.

Several periodicals are published under the department’s aegis. The Iowa Review, Walt Whitman Quarterly Review, and Philological Quarterly offer opportunities for especially qualified graduate students to work as research assistants or editorial associates. The Iowa Journal of Cultural Studies, edited by English department graduate students, features creative and scholarly work by students in English and related areas.

The Department of English and the Iowa Writers’ Workshop sponsor a rich and extensive series of readings and lectures by poets, fiction writers, and scholars, all open to students in the department.

The Association of Graduate Students in English sponsors social and intellectual events during the year and provides a forum for student opinion. All graduate students in the department are members.

English as a Second Language

Director
- Maureen Burke

Lecturers
- Eric Bodin, Craig Dresser, Jennifer Gerbyshak, Susan Isham, Katherine Kasten, Melissa Meisterheim

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/esl/

The University of Iowa offers English as a Second Language (ESL) instruction in three distinct, but related, programs: ESL credit classes, the Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP), and the Teaching Assistant Preparation in English program (TAPE).

These programs meet the needs of students whose first language is not English. ESL credit classes help students raise their English proficiency so they can complete a degree successfully. IIEP provides intensive instruction for students who must raise their English proficiency to gain admission to a university or college. TAPE helps students improve their oral competence in English so they may assume classroom teaching responsibilities.

Programs

ESL Credit Classes

English as a Second Language credit classes bridge the gap between full-time language instruction and full-time academic work, serving students who score a minimum of 530-599 (paper-based) or 80-100 with no subscore below 17 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). ESL courses are offered to help students increase their proficiency in four skill areas: reading, writing, speaking, and listening. A course also is offered in grammar. Each course offers 3 s.h. of credit, which undergraduates may count as elective credit toward graduation. Courses are taught by ESL lecturers and by teaching assistants pursuing advanced degrees in linguistics.

Acceptable TOEFL scores may change. Check with the Office of Admissions for more information.

Courses taken to meet the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences English proficiency requirement must be completed with a grade of C or higher. If a student earns a grade of C-minus or lower in an ESL course, the course must be retaken in order for the student to fulfill the ESL course requirement. An ESL course must be taken for a letter grade and may not be taken pass/nonpass or satisfactory/unsatisfactory. Students are not allowed to drop ESL courses once the semester begins. A student held for ESL courses may not enroll in a rhetoric course until the ESL requirement is completed.

Visit the ESL Credit Classes web site for more information.

Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP)

The Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP) primarily serves students on conditional admission and persons who have not yet been admitted to the University and who score below 530 (paper-based) or 80 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). The program welcomes international students preparing to enter universities and colleges as well as other adults who want to improve their English skills.

IIEP offers intensive English instruction and a cultural, social, and academic orientation to the United States. Instruction emphasizes proficiency in spoken and written English, which is crucial to college and university work. Grammar and the basic language skills of writing, reading, listening comprehension, and speaking are taught each day at all levels, from beginning through advanced. Instruction is by full-time professional ESL instructors.

Each IIEP student receives 20 hours of classroom instruction each week plus individual work in the language laboratory. IIEP students have full access to all University facilities. Field trips and cultural and social experiences are integral parts of the program.

International students admitted to the IIEP receive a certificate of eligibility (Form I-20), which enables them to apply for a student visa at the nearest U.S. consulate or embassy. Application materials are available from the ESL Programs Office and on the Iowa Intensive English Program web site.

Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE)

The Teaching Assistant Preparation in English program (TAPE) is designed for graduate students whose first language is not English, who need additional work on English communication, and who will hold teaching assistantships while enrolled at The University of Iowa. Only students who need the program and who have sufficient competence in English to profit from it are eligible. TAPE courses are open to graduate students who have been evaluated for TA certification and to others if space is available. Students are taught by full-time professional ESL instructors.

Courses

ESL Credit Classes

The following courses are for students whose first language is not English. Courses taken to meet the English as a Second Language (ESL) courses may not be taken S/U. In order to enroll in ESL courses, undergraduates must score 530 (paper-based) or 80 (Internet-based) or higher on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL), or the equivalent; graduate students must score 550 (paper-based) or 81 (Internet-based) or higher on TOEFL, or the equivalent. Consent of ESL director is required for all courses.

212:029 (ESL:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities).

212:183 (ESL:4130) English as a Second Language: Academic Listening Skills

Development of listening skills for students whose first language is not English; focus on listening skills necessary for success in a U.S. academic setting; academic lectures, note-taking skills, fast-paced classroom discussions. Requirements: placement test.

212:184 (ESL:4100) English as a Second Language: Academic Oral Skills
3 s.h.
Speaking skills for the U.S. academic setting and society; pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary; structured opportunity to develop fluency.

212:186 (ESL:4160) ESL Grammar
3 s.h.
English structure; troublesome grammar patterns.

212:187 (ESL:4190) English as a Second Language: Academic Writing
3 s.h.
Complex grammatical constructions, discourse considerations, formal vocabulary use expected of university students; organization styles, types of argumentation, analytic methods used in academic writing. Requirements: undergraduate standing.

212:189 (ESL:4200) English as a Second Language: Academic Reading Skills
3 s.h.
Increasing reading speed and comprehension of university-level writing and vocabulary; exercises, discussion, and note-taking assignments to develop critical analysis skills.

212:190 (ESL:6000) English as a Second Language: Writing Skills for Graduate Students
3 s.h.
Discourse considerations; styles of organization, types of argumentation, methods of analysis expected of graduate students. Requirements: TOEFL score of at least 550 (paper-based) or 80 (Internet-based), and graduate standing.

Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP)

These courses are for students whose first language is not English. The Iowa Intensive English Program primarily serves students on conditional admission, those who have not yet been admitted to the University, and those who score below 530 (paper-based) or 80 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

212:001 (IIEP:0001) Iowa Intensive English Program Orientation
0 s.h.
Acquaint new intensive English students with Iowa City, the University, and the intensive English program; policies and procedures, classroom expectations, and cultural differences. Requirements: enrollment in intensive English program.

212:002 (IIEP:0170) Iowa Intensive English: Communication Skills for Professionals
0 s.h.
Listening and speaking skills for international professionals; conversational fluency, language for professional interactions (e.g., discussions and presentations).

212:010 (IIEP:0010) TOEFL Prep
0 s.h.
Development of students' test-taking skills for the TOEFL examination; emphasis on listening comprehension, grammar, and reading comprehension; test taking skills developed through exercises and practice TOEFL tests. Requirements: IIEP high-intermediate or advanced-level standing.

212:011 (IIEP:0115) Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Beginning
0 s.h.
Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:012 (IIEP:0215) Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Low Intermediate
0 s.h.
Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

0 s.h.
Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:014 (IIEP:0415) Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: High Intermediate
0 s.h.
Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:015 (IIEP:0515) Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Advanced
0 s.h.
Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:031 (IIEP:0135) Iowa Intensive English Reading: Beginning
0 s.h.
Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:032 (IIEP:0235) Iowa Intensive English Reading: Low Intermediate
0 s.h.
Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:033 (IIEP:0335) Iowa Intensive English Reading: Intermediate
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:034 (IIEP:0435) Iowa Intensive English Reading: High Intermediate
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:035 (IIEP:0535) Iowa Intensive English Reading: Advanced
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:041 (IIEP:0145) Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Beginning
Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other’s writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:042 (IIEP:0245) Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Low Intermediate
Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other’s writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:043 (IIEP:0345) Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Intermediate
Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other’s writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:051 (IIEP:0155) Iowa Intensive English Writing: Beginning
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:052 (IIEP:0255) Iowa Intensive English Writing: Low Intermediate
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:053 (IIEP:0355) Iowa Intensive English Writing: Intermediate
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:054 (IIEP:0455) Iowa Intensive English Writing: High Intermediate
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:055 (IIEP:0555) Iowa Intensive English Writing: Advanced
Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:064 (IIEP:0465) IIE Listening Skills: High Intermediate
Listening skills needed for academic success; note taking and listening skills associated with small group discussions and everyday conversations.

212:065 (IIEP:0565) IIE Listening Skills: Advanced
Listening skills needed for academic success; note taking and listening skills associated with small group discussions and everyday conversations.

Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE)
The TAPE program is designed for prospective teaching assistants whose first language is not English and who need additional work on English communication skills. Entry to the program is determined by a test.

212:006 (TAPE:5200) TA Preparation in English: Fluency Building
Pronunciation, fluency building, knowledge of the University of Iowa classroom.

212:007 (TAPE:5220) TA Preparation in English: Pronunciation
0 s.h.
Intensive work toward maximum intelligibility; emphasis on stress, timing, intonation.

212:008 (TAPE:5300) TA Preparation in English: Presentation Skills
0 s.h.
Intelligibility of speech and clarity of expression in presenting and responding; practice in videotaped lectures.

212:009 (TAPE:5330) TA Preparation in English: Orientation
0 s.h.
Student expectations, typical teacher/student relationships, basic classroom management at the University.

212:250 (TAPE:5100) Pronunciation, Fluency Building, and Culture
0 s.h.
Attain greater fluency for teaching by making short presentations and participating in natural interactions about U.S. culture; intensive work on pronunciation to help future teaching assistants attain maximum intelligibility.

Undergraduate major: environmental sciences (B.A., B.S.)

Undergraduate minor: environmental sciences

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/envsci/

The Environmental Sciences Program provides rigorous interdisciplinary training in the scientific study of the environment. It promotes an understanding of the earth as a complex network of interacting organic and inorganic systems. The program’s undergraduate curricula reflect the diversity in the broad field of environmental sciences and draw upon the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences’ disciplinary strengths, giving students the opportunity to develop particular areas of expertise.

Hands-on field experience is a crucial component of the program. Students are strongly encouraged to engage in research and study abroad.

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences (p. 224) is the administrative home for the Environmental Sciences Program.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
• Major in environmental sciences (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in environmental sciences

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science with a major in environmental sciences requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 80-85 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306); some courses required for the major in environmental sciences may be used to satisfy General Education Program requirements.

Bachelor of Science students majoring in environmental sciences must complete requirements in three areas: the science and mathematics foundation, the environmental sciences foundation, and one of four environmental sciences tracks. Each student is assigned an advisor who specializes in his or her track.

The science and mathematics foundation develops fundamental skills and comprehension in biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, and statistics. The environmental sciences foundation includes an introductory course in environmental science and additional courses that focus on remote sensing techniques, design and use of geographic information technologies, the geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth’s surface, and ecological factors that influence the distribution and abundance of organisms.

Each of the program’s four tracks focuses on areas of specialization within environmental sciences:
- biosciences (green) track—biological systems and ecological approaches;
- chemical sciences (yellow) track—environmental systems and chemistry;
- geosciences (brown) track—earth materials and surficial geologic processes; and
- hydrosciencies (blue) track—hydrogeology and hydrogeologic systems, and water chemistry.

The tracks aim to prepare scientists who can tackle problems that require particular areas of expertise, and to help students develop the skills needed for future employment or graduate study.
The environmental sciences major for the Bachelor of Science requires the following course work.

SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 33 s.h. of course work for the science and mathematics foundation, as follows.

All of these:
- 012:005 (GEOS:1050) Introduction to Geology 4 s.h.

One of these:
- 004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements 3 s.h.
- 22S:105 (STAT:4200) Statistical Methods and Computing 3 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 18 s.h. of course work for the environmental sciences foundation, as follows.

All of these:
- 159:008 (ENVS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science 4 s.h.
- 159:100 (ENVS:3000) Environmental Sciences Seminar (taken twice; section 1 for 0 s.h. and section 2 for 1 s.h.) 1 s.h.
- 159:102 (ENVS:3020) Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.
- 159:110 (ENVS:3100) Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.
- 159:134 (ENVS:2673) Ecology 3 s.h.
- 044:005 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.

Tracks for the Bachelor of Science

Bachelor of Science students majoring in environmental sciences must choose one of the following four tracks. Each track includes required general sciences courses, track foundation courses, field study courses, and elective courses.

BIOSCIENCES (GREEN) TRACK

The environmental biosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a good knowledge of biotic systems and the ability to inventory biologic resources. The track’s aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which links and interactions with life sciences are crucial and in which a substantial knowledge of biological/ecological sciences is required. The track also provides a strong foundation for graduate or professional training in disciplines such as ecology, wildlife management, and natural resource management.

Students must complete at least 32 s.h. of environmental biosciences track course work, including one field study course.

Biosciences Track: General Sciences

004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Students are encouraged to take at least one semester of physics.

---

Biosciences Track: Foundation

Both of these:
- 002:128 (BIOL:2512) Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.
- 002:131 (BIOL:3172) Evolution 4 s.h.

At least 7 s.h. from these:
- 002:108 (BIOL:2346) Vertebrate Zoology 4 s.h.
- 012:107 (GEOS:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.
- 012:122 (GEOS:3220) Evolution of the Vertebrates 3 s.h.
- 012:170 (GEOS:4700) Evolution of Ecosystems 3 s.h.
- 012:171 (GEOS:4710) Evolution of Plants 3 s.h.
- 044:103 (GEOG:2374) Biogeography 3 s.h.
- 00L:105 (IALL:3105) Plant Taxonomy 4 s.h.
- 00L:115 (IALL:3115) Field Mycology 4 s.h.
- 00L:117 (IALL:3117) Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms 4 s.h.
- 00L:128 (IALL:3128) Fish Ecology 4 s.h.

Biosciences Track: Field Study

One of these:
- 00L:103 (IALL:3103) Aquatic Ecology 4 s.h.
- 00L:105 (IALL:3105) Plant Taxonomy 4 s.h.
- 00L:109 (IALL:3109) Freshwater Algae 3 s.h.
- 00L:115 (IALL:3115) Field Mycology 4 s.h.
- 00L:117 (IALL:3117) Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms 4 s.h.
- 00L:121 (IALL:3121) Plant Ecology 4 s.h.
- 00L:122 (IALL:3122) Prairie Ecology 4 s.h.
- 00L:126 (IALL:3126) Ornithology 4 s.h.
- 00L:128 (IALL:3128) Fish Ecology 4 s.h.
- 00L:160 (IALL:3160) Restoration Ecology 4 s.h.
- 00L:163 (IALL:3163) Conservation Biology 4 s.h.
- 159:195 (ENVS:3095) Field Ecology 4 s.h.

Biosciences Track: Electives

Biosciences track students must complete at least 10 s.h. of elective course work, with at least 6 s.h. from the following lists. They may include an additional field study course to satisfy 4 s.h. of the elective requirement (see “Biosciences Track: Field Study” above).

- 002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
- 002:143 (BIOL:3244) Animal Behavior 4 s.h.
- 002:162 (BIOL:4273) Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution 3 s.h.
- 002:199 (BIOL:4899) Introduction to Research 3 s.h.
- 004:111 (CHEM:3110) Analytical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
- 004:112 (CHEM:3120) Analytical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
- 012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanography 2 s.h.
- 012:121 (GEOS:3210) Principles of Paleontology 3 s.h.
- 22S:148 (STAT:6513) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 044:101 (GEOG:2370) Climatology 3 s.h.
- 044:123 (GEOG:3310) Landscape Ecology 3 s.h.
- 044:126 (GEOG:3320) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management 3 s.h.

May include one of these policy courses:
- 06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
- 044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
- 044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.
- 044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis 4 s.h.
044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.

CHEMICAL SCIENCES (YELLOW) TRACK

The environmental chemical sciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of chemical principles and a working knowledge of basic chemical concepts as applied in the environment. The track’s aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which chemical and molecular processes play an important role. The track also provides a strong foundation for graduate or professional training in environmental chemistry.

Students must complete at least 35 s.h. of environmental chemical sciences track course work.

Chemical Sciences Track: General Sciences

One of these sequences:

029:011 (PHYS:1511)-029:012 (PHYS:1512) College Physics I-II 8 s.h.
029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.

Chemical Sciences Track: Foundation

This course:

One of these sequences:

One of these:

004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Chemical Sciences Track: Lab and Field Study

Both of these:

004:141 (CHEM:2410) Organic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
004:143 (CHEM:3430) Analytical Measurements 3 s.h.

Chemical Sciences Track: Electives

Chemical sciences track students must complete at least 6 s.h. of elective courses, chosen from the following lists. Students may petition the chemistry department’s environmental sciences advisor to use appropriate Department of Chemistry courses numbered 100 (3000) and 200 (5000) or above as electives.

004:125 (CHEM:3250) Inorganic Chemistry 2 s.h.
004:162 (CHEM:3999) Undergraduate Research 1-3 s.h.
004:173 (CHEM:4873) Atmospheric and Environmental Chemistry 3 s.h.
012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry 3 s.h.
012:152 (GEOS:4520) Isotope Geochemistry 3 s.h.
044:101 (GEOG:2310) Climatology 3 s.h.
053:152 (CEE:5152) Environmental Chemistry I 3 s.h.
053:153 (CEE:4153) Environmental Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.

May include one of these:

004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I (if not taken as a foundation course) 3 s.h.

004:132 (CHEM:4432) Physical Chemistry II (if not taken as a foundation course) 3 s.h.

Geosciences (Brown) Track

The environmental geosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of geologic principles and a working knowledge of basic geologic concepts applied in the environmental industry. The track’s aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which earth materials and surficial geologic processes are of primary importance. The track also lays a strong foundation for graduate study in environmental geology, engineering geology, and natural hazards assessment.

Students must complete at least 30 s.h. of environmental geosciences track course work.

Geosciences Track: General Sciences

029:008 (PHYS:1400) Basic Physics 4 s.h.

Students are strongly encouraged to take additional course work in physics.

Geosciences Track: Foundation

All of these:

012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy 4 s.h.
012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology 4 s.h.
012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology 4 s.h.
012:136 (GEOS:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology 3 s.h.
012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology 3 s.h.

Geosciences Track: Field Study

One of these:

00L:142 (IALL:3142) Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes 4 s.h.
012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods 3 s.h.
012:168 (GEOS:4680) Field Methods in Hydrologic Science 3 s.h.
044:180 (GEOS:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography 3 s.h.
053:103 (CEE:4103) Water Quality 3 s.h.

Geosciences Track: Electives

Geosciences track students must complete at least 6 s.h. of elective courses, chosen from the following lists.

012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanography 2 s.h.
012:114 (GEOS:3140) Energy and the Environment 3 s.h.
012:119 (GEOS:3190) Directed Study 4 s.h.
012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology 4 s.h.
012:138 (GEOS:3380) Fluvial Geomorphology 3 s.h.
012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis 3 s.h.
012:140 (GEOS:1400) Natural Disasters 3 s.h.
012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry 3 s.h.
012:150 (GEOS:3500) Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology 4 s.h.
HYDROSCIENCES (BLUE) TRACK
The environmental hydrosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of geologic principles and a working knowledge of hydrogeology and hydrogeochemistry. The track’s aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems that emphasize hydrogeologic systems and for which substantial knowledge of hydrogeology and water chemistry are essential. The track also lays a strong foundation for graduate education in hydrogeology, hydrology, geochemistry, and aqueous chemistry.

Students must complete at least 34 s.h. of environmental sciences track course work.

Hydrosciences Track: General Sciences
029:011 (PHYS:1511)-029:012 (PHYS:1512) College Physics I-II 8 s.h.

Hydrosciences Track: Foundation
Both of these:
012:166 (GEOS:4630) Hydrogeology 3 s.h.
012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology 3 s.h.

One of these:
012:138 (GEOS:3380) Fluvial Geomorphology 3 s.h.
012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis 3 s.h.

One of these:
012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry 3 s.h.
053:152 (CEE:5152) Environmental Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Hydrosciences Track: Field Study
One of these:
012:168 (GEOS:4680) Field Methods in Hydrologic Science 3 s.h.
00L:142 (IALL:3142) Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes 4 s.h.

Hydrosciences Track: Electives
Hydrosciences track students must complete at least 11 s.h. of elective course, chosen from the following lists.

012:108 (GEOS:3080) Introduction to Oceanography 2 s.h.
012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology 4 s.h.

012:178 (GEOS:4870) Applied Geostatistics 3 s.h.
012:180 (GEOS:4800) Survey of Geophysical Methods 3 s.h.
012:184 (GEOS:4660) Groundwater Modeling 3 s.h.
044:101 (GEOG:2310) Climatology 3 s.h.
044:126 (GEOG:3320) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management 3 s.h.
053:050 (CEE:2150) Natural Environmental Systems 3 s.h.
053:071 (CEE:3371) Principles of Hydraulics and Hydrology 3 s.h.
053:103 (CEE:4103) Water Quality 3 s.h.
053:152 (CEE:5152) Environmental Chemistry I 3 s.h.
053:153 (CEE:4153) Environmental Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.
053:154 (CEE:5154) Environmental Microbiology 3 s.h.
053:178 (CEE:4378) Hydrometeorology 3 s.h.

May include one of these policy courses:
06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.
044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis 4 s.h.
044:175 (GEOG:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in environmental sciences requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including a minimum of 62 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306); some courses required for the major in environmental sciences may be used to satisfy General Education Program requirements.

Bachelor of Arts students majoring in environmental sciences complete requirements in four areas: the science and mathematics foundation, the environmental sciences foundation, environmental sciences field study, and environmental sciences track courses.

The science and mathematics foundation develops fundamental skills and comprehension in biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, and statistics. The environmental sciences foundation includes an introductory course in environmental science and additional courses that focus on the geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the Earth’s surface, the ecological factors that influence the distribution and abundance of organisms, and a choice of one course that deals with remote sensing techniques or with the use of geographic information technologies. The environmental sciences field study gives students hands-on experience with methods of analysis and interpretation of natural systems/organisms.

Each of the program’s four tracks focuses on areas of specialization within environmental sciences:

- biosciences (green) track—biological systems and ecological approaches;
- chemical sciences (yellow) track—environmental systems and chemistry;
- geosciences (brown) track—earth materials and surficial geologic processes; and
Students select one course from each of three of the four tracks in order to develop breadth of understanding and skill in these areas.

The environmental sciences major for the Bachelor of Arts requires the following course work.

SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 33 s.h. of course work for the sciences and mathematics foundation, as follows.

All of these:

- 002:031 (BIOL:1411)-002:032 (BIOL:1412) Foundations of Biology - Diversity of Form and Function (8 s.h.)
- 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I (4 s.h.)
- 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II (4 s.h.)
- 012:005 (GEOS:1050) Introduction to Geology (4 s.h.)

First semester math and calculus—one of these:

- 22M:015 (MATH:1440) Mathematics for the Biological Sciences (5 s.h.)
- 22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I (5 s.h.)

Second semester math and calculus—one of these:

- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences (5 s.h.)
- 22M:026 (MATH:1860) Calculus II (5 s.h.)

One semester of statistics—one of these:

- 004:021 (CHEM:2021) Basic Measurements (3 s.h.)
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics (3 s.h.)
- 22S:039 (STAT:2020) Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences (3 s.h.)
- 22S:102 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics (3 s.h.)

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 17-19 s.h. of course work for the environmental sciences foundation, as follows.

All of these:

- 159:008 (ENVS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science (4 s.h.)
- 159:100 (ENVS:3000) Environmental Sciences Seminar (1 s.h.)
- 159:102 (ENVS:3020) Earth Surface Processes (3 s.h.)
- 159:134 (ENVS:2673) Ecology (3 s.h.)

One of these:

- 044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS (3 s.h.)
- 044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing (3 s.h.)
- 159:110 (ENVS:3100) Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing (4 s.h.)

One of these:

- 06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics (3 s.h.)
- 044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues (3 s.h.)
- 044:030 (GEOG:2910) The Global Economy (3 s.h.)
- 044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation (3 s.h.)
- 044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis (4 s.h.)
- 044:127 (GEOG:3750) Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy (3 s.h.)

044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice (3 s.h.)
044:194 (GEOG:3910) Geographic Perspectives on Development (3 s.h.)
113:139 (ANTH:4130) Religion and Environmental Ethics (3 s.h.)

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FIELD STUDY

Students must complete at least one field study course (at least 3 s.h.) from the following list.

- 012:112 (GEOS:4831) Geologic Field Methods (3 s.h.)
- 012:168 (GEOS:4680) Field Methods in Hydrologic Science (3 s.h.)
- 044:180 (GEOG:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography (2-4 s.h.)
- 053:103 (CEE:4103) Water Quality (3 s.h.)
- 00L:103 (IALL:3103) Aquatic Ecology (4 s.h.)
- 00L:105 (IALL:3105) Plant Taxonomy (4 s.h.)
- 00L:117 (IALL:3117) Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms (4 s.h.)
- 00L:126 (IALL:3126) Ornithology (4 s.h.)
- 00L:142 (IALL:3142) Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes (4 s.h.)
- 00L:163 (IALL:3163) Conservation Biology (4 s.h.)

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES TRACK COURSES

Students must complete 9-12 s.h. (three courses), choosing one course from each of three of the following four lists of environmental sciences track courses.

Biosciences (Green) Track

- 012:107 (GEOS:3070) Marine Ecosystems and Conservation (3 s.h.)
- 002:108 (BIOL:2346) Vertebrate Zoology (4 s.h.)
- 012:122 (GEOS:3220) Evolution of the Vertebrates (3 s.h.)
- 012:170 (GEOS:4700) Evolution of Ecosystems (3 s.h.)
- 012:171 (GEOS:4710) Evolution of Plants (3 s.h.)
- 044:103 (GEOG:2374) Biogeography (3 s.h.)
- 00L:105 (IALL:3105) Plant Taxonomy (4 s.h.)
- 00L:117 (IALL:3117) Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms (4 s.h.)

Chemical Sciences (Yellow) Track

- 004:111 (CHEM:3110) Analytical Chemistry I (3 s.h.)
- 004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I (3 s.h.)
- 004:131 (CHEM:4431) Physical Chemistry I (3 s.h.)
- 053:152 (CEE:5152) Environmental Chemistry I (3 s.h.)
- 099:110 (BIOC:3110) Biochemistry (3 s.h.)

Geosciences (Brown) Track

- 012:041 (GEOS:2410) Mineralogy (4 s.h.)
- 012:114 (GEOS:3140) Energy and the Environment (3 s.h.)
- 012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology (4 s.h.)
- 012:132 (GEOS:3840) Structural Geology (4 s.h.)
- 012:136 (GEOS:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology (3 s.h.)
- 012:138 (GEOS:3380)/053:128 (CEE:3328) Fluvial Geomorphology (3 s.h.)
- 012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis (3 s.h.)
- 012:140 (GEOS:1400) Natural Disasters (3 s.h.)
- 012:149 (GEOS:4490) Elements of Geochemistry (3 s.h.)
- 012:152 (GEOS:4520) Isotope Geochemistry (3 s.h.)
- 012:172 (GEOS:4720) Glacial and Pleistocene Geology (3 s.h.)
- 012:179 (GEOS:4790) Engineering Geology (3 s.h.)
- 012:180 (GEOS:4800) Survey of Geophysical Methods (3 s.h.)

Hydrosciences (Blue) Track

- 012:130 (GEOS:3300) Sedimentary Geology (4 s.h.)
- 012:139 (GEOS:3390) Integrated Watershed Analysis (3 s.h.)
Environmental sciences majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack

B.A. students majoring in environmental sciences who are interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. Designed for undergraduates majoring in biology, chemistry, environmental sciences, or physics, the joint program enables students to earn a B.A. and an M.A.T. in five years by beginning to earn graduate credit during their fourth year of undergraduate study and by counting up to 18 s.h. of qualifying credit toward both degrees. For more information, see "Joint B.A./M.A.T. with Science Education Subtrack" in the Teaching and Learning (p. 774) (College of Education) section of the Catalog. Interested students should consult and advisor.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for the environmental sciences major. Students work with their advisors on individual graduation plans.

Honors in the Major

The Environmental Sciences Program offers qualified students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the major. Honors study in environmental sciences offers students an opportunity to engage in independent research under the guidance of a faculty sponsor chosen from affiliated faculty of the Environmental Sciences Program; the program draws faculty members from the Departments of Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Earth and Environmental Sciences, and Geography. Students also learn how to write the results of their research in the format of a scientific paper, and they have the experience of formally presenting their research as either a short seminar or a poster.

Environmental sciences honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in environmental sciences, students must fulfill the following requirements:

- complete a B.S. or B.A. with a major in environmental sciences with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all work for the major;
- submit a research proposal to the honors director within two months of the beginning of the semester in which the research is initiated;
- complete a minimum of 6 s.h. of honors research taken over two semesters in 002:196 (BIOL:4999) Honors Investigations, 004:162 (CHEM:3999) Undergraduate Research, 012:119 (GEOS:3190) Directed Study, or 044:195 (GEOG:3992) Undergraduate Research, depending on the departmental affiliation of the faculty sponsor;
- prepare a thesis presenting the research in the format of a scientific paper with abstract, introduction, methods, results, discussion, and conclusions; the thesis must include a title page and an abstract formatted according to the specifications of the Honors Program and must be submitted to the honors director at least one week before the Honors Program deadline for submission; and
- present either a short seminar or a poster about the research at a professional meeting and/or at The University of Iowa.

Beginning in their sophomore or junior year, students should identify potential faculty sponsors by conducting a web-based survey of the research interests of the program’s affiliated faculty. The student should contact potential sponsors to determine who would be willing to sponsor an honors student and what research projects the student might undertake. Students who choose a sponsor whose faculty appointment is not in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences must choose a cosponsor who does have a faculty appointment in CLAS.

After the student has identified a sponsor and the two have agreed on a project, the sponsor guides the student in the preparation of a research proposal that identifies the background, goals, methods, and significance of the research project. The proposal serves as the foundation of the honors thesis, which the student prepares under the sponsor’s supervision upon completion of the research. Once the thesis is nearing completion or is completed, the student presents a short seminar or a poster detailing the purpose of the research.

For examples of honors projects in environmental sciences, see Honors Program/Current Projects on the Environmental Sciences Program web site.

Minor

The minor in Environmental Sciences requires a minimum of 16 s.h. in University of Iowa environmental sciences courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The following courses are required.
One environmental sciences foundation course, chosen from these:

- 159:008 (ENVS:1080)/012:008 (GEOS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science (with lab) 4 s.h.

Students also choose 8 s.h. of coursework in one of the four environmental sciences tracks (environmental biosciences, environmental chemical sciences, environmental geosciences, and environmental hydrosciences; see "Tracks" under "Bachelor of Science" earlier in this Catalog section). The courses must include one track foundation course (3-4 s.h.) and one track field study course (2-4 s.h.).

Facilities

Depending on their choice of track and/or courses, students majoring in environmental sciences may have the opportunity to take courses at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory, a field station located on West Lake Okoboji, in northwestern Iowa. Run cooperatively by The University of Iowa, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa, the laboratory offers courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels and provides excellent conditions for summer study in several disciplines. See Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (p. 1207) (University College) in the Catalog or visit the Lakeside Laboratory web site.

Courses

159:008 (ENVS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science 3-4 s.h.

Biological and physical character of the Earth; interaction of humans with the environment, including impacts on ecosystems, climate, natural processes, resources; alternative options, including sustainability, waste management, energy, land reform. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab; Natural Sciences with Lab. Same as 012:008 (GEOS:1080).

159:009 (ENVS:1090) Introduction to Environmental Sciences Laboratory 1 s.h.

Laboratory component of 012:008 (GEOS:1080). Requirements: completion of 3 s.h. in 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080); or 3 s.h. of transfer equivalent. GE: Natural Sciences Lab only. Same as 012:009 (GEOS:1090).

159:015 (ENVS:2115) History and Science of Oil 3 s.h.

History, politics, and science of oil and oil industry. Same as 012:015 (GEOS:2115).

159:100 (ENVS:3000) Environmental Sciences Seminar 0-1 s.h.

Role of sciences in environmental issues and problems; progression from observation to evaluation to design of better questions and experiments. Requirements: environmental sciences major.

159:102 (ENVS:3020) Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.

Basic geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth’s surface; emphasis on erosion, transport, deposition by land mass movement (creep, landslides, earth flow), fluid agents (wind, water, ice); methods used to study these processes. Prerequisites: 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080). Same as 012:102 (GEOS:3020), 044:102 (GEOS:3020).

159:110 (ENVS:3100) Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

Remote sensing of the earth’s surface from aircraft, satellites; aerial photograph interpretation; remote sensing systems, methods, data analysis using electromagnetic spectrum and digital processing techniques, including visible, infrared, microwave radiation; remote sensing applied to geologic and environmental problems. Prerequisites: 012:003 (GEOS:1030) or 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080). Same as 012:110 (GEOS:3100).

159:111 (ENVS:3110) Chemical Evolution of the Oceans 3 s.h.

Investigation of various physico-chemical states of oceans have assumed over the past four billion years of Earth history; use of isotope geochemistry as a proxy for ancient ocean conditions; focus on integrated Earth system science, paleoceanographic and paleoclimate modeling, role of chemical stratigraphy in deciphering past climate states of ocean-atmosphere system; relationship between chemical changes in ocean/atmosphere and biological systems of the Earth. Same as 012:111 (EES:3110).

159:134 (ENVS:2673) Ecology of the Oceans 3-4 s.h.

Adaptations of organisms to their physical and biological environments; organism-environment interactions; population biology; interactions between species; ecology of communities, ecosystems; human impact on ecosystems. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411), 002:032 (BIOL:1412), and 22M:016 (MATH:1460) or 22M:025 (MATH:1850) or 22M:031 (MATH:1550). Recommendations: a basic statistics course. Same as 002:134 (BIOL:2673).

159:170 (ENVS:4700) Evolution of Ecosystems 3 s.h.

Evolutionary history of terrestrial and marine ecosystems; ecological processes from population to ecosystem levels; community assembly, trophic levels, networks, biodiversity dynamics; practical aspects of paleoecological data collection, statistical analysis, modeling. Requirements: two courses in geoscience, biology, environmental sciences, anthropology, or geography. Same as 012:170 (GEOS:4700).

159:195 (ENVS:3095) Field Ecology 4 s.h.

Analysis and interpretation of patterns and underlying physical and biotic basis for regional and local distributions of plants and animals of eastern Iowa; field observation, sampling, and laboratory analysis; conduction of several field research projects requiring collection, statistical analysis, and interpretation of data in short reports; field-oriented course. Prerequisites: 002:031 (BIOL:1411). Recommendations: advanced undergraduate standing or graduate standing in ecology, environmental sciences, or geoscience.
Ethics and Public Policy

Undergraduate major: ethics and public policy (B.A.)
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/ethics/

Ethics and public policy is an interdisciplinary major that presents perspectives on intersecting issues that connect the study of philosophy, economics, law, and sociology. All of these disciplines involve a focus on practical questions concerning how individuals ought to behave and how they ought to regulate the behavior of others.

For example, law exists in order to regulate human behavior, enforce human ideals, and resolve human conflict; most people agree that what society should do depends in part on the actual or potential consequences of its actions; and some of the most important consequences of actions and policies are economic. So it is folly to try to reason clearly about how to rectify injustice without thinking long and hard about the economic impact of one’s plans. But law and social policy affect more than economics; they have a role in constructing the very fabric of society and the nature of the political state in which we want to live.

The major in ethics and public policy provides an ideal background for law school. The study of reasoning, an important component of the major, is useful in preparing for the LSAT, GMAT, and MCAT. The major also prepares students to bring a sophisticated, cross-disciplinary perspective to diverse fields such as government, urban and regional planning, social work, and business.

Students choose one field of specialization for the major and may find it easy to pursue a second major in another of the major’s specialization fields, thus broadening their prospects for choosing graduate schools or beginning professional careers.

The Departments of Economics, Philosophy, and Sociology collaborate to present the major in ethics and public policy; the major is administered by the Department of Philosophy.

Undergraduate Program of Study
• Major in ethics and public policy (Bachelor of Arts)

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts in ethics and public policy requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 37 s.h. of work for the major. Students complete foundation courses and the work for one field of specialization. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in ethics and public policy requires the following course work.

FOUNDATION COURSES
Foundation courses introduce students to each of the disciplines that participate in the major: philosophy, economics, political science, and sociology. These courses provide students with the basic reasoning skills they will need for advanced study. The foundation courses also help students make an informed selection of specialization field.

All students are required to take 026:036 (PHIL:1636) Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate or 026:103 (PHIL:2603) Introduction to Symbolic Logic in order to gain facility with abstract, formal reasoning.

Some courses may be listed in both a foundation area and a specialization field; students may use a course to fulfill only one requirement for the major.

Philosophy Foundation
Reasoning—one of these:
026:036 (PHIL:1636) Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate 3 s.h.
026:103 (PHIL:2603) Introduction to Symbolic Logic 3 s.h.

Value theory—one of these:
026:001 (PHIL:2401) Matters of Life and Death 3 s.h.
026:034 (PHIL:1034) Philosophy and the Just Society 3 s.h.
026:102 (PHIL:2402) Introduction to Ethics 3 s.h.
026:132 (PHIL:3432) Introduction to Political Philosophy 3 s.h.
026:135 (PHIL:3435) Philosophy of Law 3 s.h.
026:136 (PHIL:3436) The Nature of Evil 3 s.h.

Economics Foundation
This course:
06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics 4 s.h.

One of these:
06E:119 (ECON:3220) Policy Analysis 3 s.h.
06E:172 (ECON:3440) Law and Economics 3 s.h.

Political Science Foundation
Foundation—one of these:
030:001 (POLI:1100) Introduction to American Politics 3 s.h.
030:020 (POLI:1001) Introduction to Politics 3 s.h.
030:045 (POLI:1405) Introduction to Comparative Politics 3 s.h.
030:100 (POLI:3000) Understanding Political Research 3 s.h.

Policy course—one of these:
030:061 (POLI:1501) Introduction to American Foreign Policy 3 s.h.
030:126 (POLI:3111) American Public Policy 3 s.h.

Sociology Foundation
Theory—one of these:
034:001 (SOC:1010) Introduction to Sociology Principles 3-4 s.h.
034:002 (SOC:1020) Social Problems 3-4 s.h.

Law and sociology—one of these:
034:066 (SOC:2810) Social Inequality 3 s.h.
034:146 (SOC:3425) Deviance and Control 3 s.h.
034:149 (SOC:4420) Sociology of Criminal Punishment 3 s.h.
034:182 (SOC:4460) Sociology of Law 3 s.h.
034:186 (SOC:3450) Criminal Legal System 3 s.h.
FIELDS OF SPECIALIZATION

Students select one of the following fields of specialization: philosophy, economics, political science, or sociology. They must complete four courses in their field, selected from the appropriate list below. Three of the four courses must be numbered 100 (3000) or above.

Some courses may be listed in both a foundation area and a specialization field; students may use a course to fulfill only one requirement for the major.

Philosophy

026:102 (PHIL:2402) Introduction to Ethics 3 s.h.
026:104 (PHIL:3604) Introduction to Philosophy of Science 3 s.h.
026:130 (PHIL:3430) Philosophy of Human Rights 3 s.h.
026:132 (PHIL:3432) Introduction to Political Philosophy 3 s.h.
026:133 (PHIL:3633) Philosophy of History 3 s.h.
026:135 (PHIL:3435) Philosophy of Law 3 s.h.
026:136 (PHIL:3436) The Nature of Evil 3 s.h.
026:140 (PHIL:3342) Philosophical Controversies: Multiculturalism and Tolerance 3 s.h.
026:180 (PHIL:5480) Analytic Ethics 3 s.h.
026:181 (PHIL:4481) Issues in Philosophy of Law 3 s.h.
026:182 (PHIL:5482) History of Ethics 3 s.h.
026:185 (PHIL:5485) Political Philosophy 3 s.h.
026:196 (PHIL:5696) Philosophy of the Human Sciences 3 s.h.

Economics

06E:104 (ECON:3100) Microeconomic Theory 3 s.h.
06E:113 (ECON:3180) Health Economics 3 s.h.
06E:119 (ECON:3220) Policy Analysis 3 s.h.
06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business 3 s.h.
06E:129 (ECON:3260) Economic Growth and Development 3 s.h.
06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
06E:135 (ECON:3340) Regional and Urban Economics 3 s.h.
06E:171 (ECON:4100) Antitrust Economics 3 s.h.
06E:172 (ECON:3440) Law and Economics 3 s.h.
06E:176 (ECON:3420) Public Sector Economics 3 s.h.

Political Science

030:107 (POLI:3114) Women and Politics in the United States 3 s.h.
030:108 (POLI:3104) Immigration Politics 3 s.h.
030:112 (POLI:3105) Minority Representation in American Politics 3 s.h.
030:115 (POLI:3116) The Presidency 3 s.h.
030:116 (POLI:3101) American Constitutional Law and Politics 3 s.h.
030:130 (POLI:3506) Consequences of War 3 s.h.
030:131 (POLI:3304) Global Justice 3 s.h.
030:137 (POLI:3400) Introduction to Political Economy 3 s.h.

Student-Designed Field

In rare circumstances, a student may be given permission to design his or her own specialization field. The student specifies four courses numbered 100 (3000) or above that are interconnected and that suggest a coherent interest. The student-designed field may not duplicate any of the established specialization fields for the major. It also may not include a course that satisfies another requirement for the major.

Students interested in designing their own specialization field should speak with an advisor as early as possible. They must obtain approval from their advisor and from the steering committee of the major in ethics and public policy as soon as possible after they declare the major and before they complete the designated course work.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.
(Courses in the major are those required to complete the major.)

Before the third semester begins: at least one course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: at least three courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The Ethics and Public Policy Program offers qualified students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the major. Honors students in ethics and public policy must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in work for the major and a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.50. In order to graduate with honors in the major, they must complete all work for the major and write an acceptable honors thesis on a significant topic related to the major. Students who write their honors thesis in philosophy should consider preparing for the thesis by taking 026:148 (PHIL:4048) Readings in Philosophy; students who write in economics should consider taking 06E:194 (ECON:3999) Honors Seminar; students who write in political science should take 030:180 (POLI:4000) Honors Seminar on the Study of Politics; and students who write in sociology should consider taking 034:100 (SOC:4997) Honors Seminar. Contact the coordinator of the Ethics and Public Policy Program for more information.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University's honors program.

The Department of French and Italian introduces students to the cultures of France, the Francophone world, Italy, and parts of the Middle East, providing an understanding of those countries’ historical and contemporary importance. It also facilitates development of proficiency in the French, Italian, Arabic, and Swahili languages and fosters critical appreciation of French, Francophone, Italian, and Arabic literatures and cultures.

Undergraduate students in all majors may satisfy the World Languages requirement of the General Education Program (p. 306) with courses in Arabic, French, Italian, or Swahili; see “Language for General Education” below. The department offers other General Education courses, and entering students may take the department’s First-Year Seminars, one on France, the other on Italy.

The Department of French and Italian is one of the academic units in the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (p. 222).

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in French (Bachelor of Arts)
- Major in Italian (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in Arabic
- Minor in French
- Minor in Italian

Students majoring in French or Italian may combine their studies with courses in education to prepare for jobs in high school teaching. They may go on to graduate study in areas such as French, Italian, comparative literature, and other interdisciplinary areas as preparation for college-level teaching. Or they may combine other skills and studies with their major in French or Italian to prepare for challenging career opportunities in international government, business, finance, travel, communications, and other fields where the knowledge of more than one language is essential.

Bachelor of Arts: French

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in French requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 31-35 s.h. of work for the major. Students complete a set of four foundation courses (10 s.h.) plus the requirements for one of four tracks (21-25 s.h.): the French and Arabic track; the language track; the literature and culture track; or the teaching track. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

FOUNDATION COURSES

- 009:111 (FREN:3060) Introduction to Reading and Writing in Literature 3 s.h.
- 009:112 (FREN:3300) French Grammar 3 s.h.
- 009:136 (FREN:4020) Oral Expression in French III 2 s.h.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all course work for the major, including all University of Iowa course work. Majors must maintain portfolios documenting their progress toward attaining the objectives of the French major.

A maximum of one course taught in English may be counted toward the major; courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French are exempt from this rule. Students should consult with their advisors before registering.

Transfer credit may be accepted, and students are encouraged to participate in study abroad, but the last two courses in the major ordinarily must be completed at The University of Iowa. Transfer credit is evaluated on an individual basis by the faculty in charge of study abroad.

Students choose an emphasis in one of the following four tracks when they declare the major (or later, but before their fourth year).

French and Arabic Track

The French and Arabic track is designed for students interested in combining study of the French and Arabic languages with history, politics, and religions of Middle Eastern cultures and with a major in another area, such as comparative studies, political science, geography, or history.
Requirements for the French and Arabic track include the following seven or eight courses (25 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

All language track students take 009:115 (FREN:3410) Business French and 009:197 (FREN:4890) Techniques of Translation. Of the remaining five courses, only one may be taught in English under the French department prefix [009 (FREN)]. This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. Students must complete at least two courses numbered above 009:150, including the required course 009:197 (FREN:4890) Techniques of Translation.

Courses in French stylistics and textual analysis, another language, economics, political science, and/or business are recommended as adjunct electives.

Language Track

The language track is designed for students with an interest in language and translation, as well as literature and culture. Students work in specific areas such as international business, comparative stylistics, and translation.

Requirements for the language track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

- 009:115 (FREN:3410) Business French
- 009:197 (FREN:4890) Techniques of Translation
- Five courses in French language, or literature and culture

All language track students take 009:115 (FREN:3410) Business French and 009:197 (FREN:4890) Techniques of Translation. Courses in French stylistics and textual analysis, another language, economics, political science, and/or business are recommended as adjunct electives.

Literature and Culture Track

The literature and culture track is designed for students who are interested in combining study of French and Francophone literatures and cultures with a major in another area, such as cinema, communication studies, comparative literature, history, international studies, political science, or journalism.

Requirements for the literature and culture track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

- Five courses in literature and culture
  - Four courses in literature and culture
  - Three courses in French language, or literature and culture

Only one of these courses may be taught in English under the French department prefix [009 (FREN)]. This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. At least two courses must be numbered above 009:150.

Teaching Track

The teaching track is designed for students who intend to earn licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools. Students must successfully complete the requirements for the major in French with the teaching track and must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP), which requires several education courses and student teaching (see "B.A. with Teacher Licensure" below).

Requirements for the French major’s teaching track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

Four courses in literature and culture

Three courses from these areas: language, literature and culture, or pedagogy

Only one of these courses may be taught in English under the French department prefix [009 (FREN)]. This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. At least two courses must be numbered above 009:150.

Bachelor of Arts: Italian

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in Italian requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 31 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. (three courses) of approved upper-level transfer or study abroad credit toward the major in Italian, but they must take either 018:111 (ITAL:3305) Advanced Italian or 018:112 (ITAL:3306) Advanced Italian II at The University of Iowa.

The major in Italian requires the following course work.

- 018:011 (ITAL:2203) Intermediate Italian
- 018:012 (ITAL:2204) Intermediate Italian II
- 018:105 (ITAL:4667) Modern Italian Fiction
- 018:106 (ITAL:4668) Modern Italian Poetry and Drama
- 018:111 (ITAL:3305) Advanced Italian
- 018:112 (ITAL:3306) Advanced Italian II
- 018:119 (ITAL:4633) Medieval Italian Literature
- 018:120 (ITAL:4634) Medieval and Renaissance Italian Literature

An additional course taught in Italian, numbered above 018:103 (ITAL:3002)

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

French or Italian majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements of their major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

French majors who want to earn teacher licensure should choose the French teaching track. See “Teaching Track” under “Bachelor of Arts: French” above.

Italian majors who want to earn teacher licensure should include an additional 2 s.h. in their work for the major, in either 018:013 (ITAL:2013) Everyday Italian I or 018:014 (ITAL:2014) Everyday Italian II.

Students who plan to use their work toward a minor in either French or Italian as academic background for earning teacher licensure should contact the Office of Education Services about requirements.
Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

B.A.: French

Before the third semester begins: competence in first-year French

Before the fifth semester begins: second-year Intermediate French II [009:012 (FREN:2002)]

Before the seventh semester begins: 009:106 (FREN:3020) Oral Expression in French II, two semesters of third-year French, 009:111 (FREN:3060) Introduction to Reading and Writing in Literature and 009:112 (FREN:3300) French Grammar, one or two other courses in the major, and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 009:136 (FREN:4020) Oral Expression in French III and three more courses in the major; for students in the French language track, 009:115 (FREN:3410) Business French and 009:197 (FREN:4890) Techniques of Translation

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Italian

Before the third semester begins: competence in first-year Italian

Before the fifth semester begins: competence in second-year Intermediate Italian II [018:012 (ITAL:2204)]

Before the seventh semester begins: four courses in the major numbered above 018:103 (ITAL:3002) Intensive Elementary Italian and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: a total of at least five courses in the major numbered above 018:103 (ITAL:3002) Intensive Elementary Italian

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The Department of French and Italian offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the French major or the Italian major. Departmental honors students must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 for work done in the department. They also must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

To graduate with honors in the French or the Italian major, students must register for 009:198 (FREN:4995) Honors Research and Thesis (French majors) or 018:198 (ITAL:4998) Honors Research and Thesis (Italian majors) and one honors-designated course numbered above 009:160 (French) or 018:103 (Italian). They must complete an honors thesis or equivalent (for example, translation, comparative stylistics, cultural studies, or research) in French or Italian and must present their work to a faculty committee.

Minor: Arabic

The minor in Arabic requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in intermediate or more advanced Arabic language courses, including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Credit from the University of Iowa Regents Summer Program in Fez, Morocco, earned in courses with prefix 195 (ARAB) counts as University of Iowa credit. All courses for the minor must be taught in Arabic.

Minor: French

The minor in French requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses; 9 s.h. of the 12 s.h. in advanced courses must be taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 009:105 (FREN:3000) and above are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Credit from the University Studies Abroad Consortium (USAC) program in Pau, France, and the Study in Montpellier program, in France, counts as University of Iowa credit; 6 s.h. earned in other study abroad programs may be counted toward the minor. All courses for the minor must be taught in French.

Minor: Italian

The minor in Italian requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in courses numbered above 018:103 (ITAL:3002) and taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students who wish to count 018:132 (ITAL:3550) Images of Modern Italy toward the minor must enroll in the 4 s.h. section, which includes discussion in Italian. All courses for the minor must be taught in Italian.

Language for General Education

The Department of French and Italian provides course sequences in four languages—Arabic, French, Italian, and Swahili—that students in all majors may use to fulfill the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). It also offers a variety of language courses that nonmajors may take to satisfy their own educational goals and interests.

ARABIC

The department is the administrative home for Arabic language and culture courses. It offers elementary and intermediate Arabic as well as conversational Arabic, for which intermediate Arabic is prerequisite. See "Courses" toward the end of this Catalog section. Students without background in Arabic should begin with 195:101 (ARAB:1001) Elementary Modern Standard Arabic I.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with Arabic should complete the following course sequence.

195:102 (ARAB:1002) Elementary Modern Standard Arabic II 5 s.h.

FRENCH

Students who have a background in French should take the online World Languages Placement Test, which helps determine the level at which a student should begin French language study at The University of Iowa. Students without background in French should begin with 009:001 (FREN:1001) Elementary French I.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with French should complete the following sequence.

009:001 (FREN:1001) Elementary French I 5 s.h.
009:002 (FREN:1002) Elementary French II 5 s.h.

Those with previous knowledge of French may be able to fulfill the World Languages requirement with this sequence.

009:010 (FREN:1010) First-Year French Review 5 s.h.

ITALIAN

Students who have a background in Italian should consult with the department before classes begin to determine the level at which they should begin Italian language study at The University of Iowa. Students without background in Italian should begin with 018:001 (ITAL:1101) Elementary Italian.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with Italian should complete the following course sequence.

018:001 (ITAL:1101) Elementary Italian 5 s.h.
018:002 (ITAL:1102) Elementary Italian II 5 s.h.
018:011 (ITAL:2203) Intermediate Italian 4 s.h.
018:012 (ITAL:2204) Intermediate Italian II 4 s.h.

Those with strong language-learning abilities or background in another Romance language may be able to fulfill the World Languages requirement with this sequence.

018:101 (ITAL:3001) Intensive Elementary Italian 4, 6 s.h.
018:011 (ITAL:2203) Intermediate Italian 4 s.h.
018:012 (ITAL:2204) Intermediate Italian II 4 s.h.

SWAHILI

The department is the administrative home for Swahili courses. Students may fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement by taking the following four-semester sequence.

211:125 (SWAH:3001) Elementary Swahili I 3-4 s.h.
211:126 (SWAH:3002) Elementary Swahili II 3-4 s.h.
211:127 (SWAH:3003) Intermediate Swahili I 3-4 s.h.
211:128 (SWAH:3004) Intermediate Swahili II 3-4 s.h.

Study Abroad

The department participates in several study abroad programs. Some of them are the University Study Abroad

Consortium (SUAC) French Studies in Pau; University of Minnesota/Paul Valery University Study Abroad in Montpellier; and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation (CIC) Summer French Program in Quebec at the Université de Laval. For information about these and other programs abroad, contact International Programs Study Abroad and use its Programs by Language search; or see Study Abroad (p. 1228) (University College) in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in French and Francophone world studies (with or without thesis)
- Doctor of Philosophy in French and Francophone world studies

The Master of Arts is offered with an optional French education emphasis.

Faculty expertise enables the department to offer courses in the traditionally recognized historical periods of French literature, various literary genres, and critical theories as well as the Francophone literatures of Canada, North and sub-Saharan Africa, the Caribbean, and the Indian Ocean. The department has particular strengths in interdisciplinary studies, notably in the areas of comparative arts, film studies, history, and second language acquisition.

For more detailed information on graduate degrees in French and Francophone world studies, contact the Department of French and Italian or visit its web site. The department also publishes the Guide for Graduate Students and Assistants.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in French and Francophone world studies requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with or without thesis.

Thesis students may apply up to 6 s.h. of thesis credit toward the 30 s.h. required for the degree. They must take a written and oral examination on their areas of study and must defend their thesis at the time of the comprehensive examination. The thesis prospectus must be accepted one year before the student defends the thesis.

Nonthesis students must pass a written and oral examination. With permission of the director of graduate studies and the department chair, nonthesis students may earn up to 6 s.h. of the required 30 s.h. outside the department or transfer up to 6 s.h. of course work completed at another institution.

All M.A. students must complete the following course work.

- 009:208 (FREN:5001) Introduction to Graduate Study 2 s.h.
- 009:210 (FREN:5020) Comparative Stylistics 3 s.h.
- 009:234 (FREN:5030) Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages 3 s.h.

At least four graduate-level literature or culture courses numbered 200 and above

M.A. with French Education Emphasis

The Master of Arts program with French education emphasis requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit in French. The program is intended primarily for prospective secondary school and junior college teachers. Candidates must pass a final written and oral examination.

All French education emphasis students must complete the following course work.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in French and Francophone world studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including credit earned for the M.A.

The program is designed to prepare students for research, teaching, and professional service normally required of college and university faculty members.

The Ph.D. takes at least three years of graduate study, including at least one year spent in residence at The University of Iowa. Students must pass a comprehensive examination and make a successful oral defense of their dissertation.

Requirements for the Ph.D. include the following.

Ph.D. students must possess fifth-semester or equivalent proficiency in a foreign language other than French.

Students working toward the Ph.D. are required to spend at least one year teaching as graduate assistants in the department.

Admission

Applicants to the M.A. program in French and Francophone world studies must have completed the equivalent of the University of Iowa undergraduate major in French. An M.A. in French is prerequisite to admission to the Ph.D. program in French and Francophone world studies. However, successful completion of an M.A. in French does not necessarily qualify a student for doctoral study.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Applicants for fall semester whose application materials are received in the department by January 15 have the best chance to be admitted and receive financial aid. They must submit academic transcripts, letters of recommendation from three persons familiar with their past academic work, Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test results, a statement of purpose in taking graduate work, and one or more samples of original writing, one of which should be in French, that show their ability to pursue graduate work in French (an honors thesis, term paper, seminar paper, or other course papers).

Financial Support

Teaching assistantships are offered through the department, and University fellowships and scholarships are available through the Graduate College. Contact the Department of French and Italian for details.

Teaching assistants in the department must take 009:234 (FREN:5030) Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages.

Exchange assistantship agreements with the University of Pau and the University of Poitiers provide one year of residence at these Universities in France for graduate students.

Courses

The department offers courses in French, Italian, Arabic, and Swahili. For a detailed description of courses offered each semester, contact the Department of French and Italian. French courses are conducted in French, and Italian courses are conducted in Italian, unless otherwise indicated. Students may not receive credit for a course that is prerequisite to, or whose equivalent is prerequisite to, a higher-level course they have already completed.

French courses numbered 150-199 are intended primarily for advanced undergraduates; graduate students should consult with their advisors before registering for these courses.

Undergraduates may count a maximum of one course taught in English toward requirements for the major in French. This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. Students should consult with their advisors before registering.

Students who have had significant experience with French through living or studying abroad should consult with the department before enrolling in any French course.

Undergraduate Certificate: Fundraising and philanthropy communication
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/sjmc/philanthropy-certificate

The Certificate in Fundraising and Philanthropy Communication is administered by the School of Journalism and Mass Communication (p. 407).

Undergraduate Program of Study
• Certificate in Fundraising and Philanthropy Communication

The certificate program prepares students for careers in the growing field of development, institutional advancement, fundraising, donor relations, and public relations for nonprofit organizations.

Certificate

The Certificate in Fundraising and Philanthropy Communication requires a minimum of 18 s.h. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

All certificate students complete core courses (9-10 s.h.), which provide an overview of communication, writing, and management in nonprofit organizations. Students also choose electives (9 s.h.) from a range of courses that match their particular interests, selecting from social service, politics, the arts, environmental issues, business and communication, and skills useful in fundraising. An optional internship offers practical experience working with development professionals in a nonprofit organization. Students majoring in journalism and mass communication may count toward the certificate a maximum of 7 s.h. of credit that they earn for the major. They also may combine certificate course work with other courses they fit the program’s guidelines and purpose. The certificate program coordinator may add special topics courses that fulfill certificate requirements to this list. The coordinator also may consider other courses for approval if they fit the program’s guidelines and purpose.

Some of these courses have prerequisites, which students must complete before they register for the course. Some require special permission.

Undergraduate major: gender, women's, and sexuality studies (B.A.)

Undergraduate minor: gender, women's, and sexuality studies

Graduate certificate: gender, women's, and sexuality studies

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/gwss/

The Department of Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies (GWSS) is multidisciplinary. It focuses on the ways in which women and men construct themselves as gendered and sexual beings, analyzes how gender and sexuality shape virtually every aspect of our daily lives, and probes the relationship between biological sex differences and the social and cultural roles of women and men.

The department’s major goal is to bring to the University community new research on gender and sexuality—research frequently overlooked by traditional disciplines. By offering core courses as well as those cross-referenced with other departments, GWSS acquaints its students with gender and sexuality scholarship and methodologies in the humanities and the social sciences.

Faculty from across the University participate in the Department of Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies. Some have joint appointments in the department; for a complete list, see the department’s web site. Others occasionally offer courses and participate in the department’s research, study, and interdisciplinary activities.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in gender, women's, and sexuality studies

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36 s.h. of work for the major. It emphasizes breadth, depth, and interdisciplinary study. Through the GWSS major, students acquire knowledge of the field's history, facility with major theoretical debates, knowledge of gender and sexuality issues outside the United States and Western Europe, knowledge of one major related area of scholarly concern, and familiarity with debates in other areas. Students apply this knowledge to an individual research project during their senior year.

Students may declare the major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies at any time. They are advised by the Academic Advising Center until they have earned 24 s.h. of credit. Transfer credit is evaluated case by case; a maximum of 12 s.h. of transfer credit may be counted toward the degree. Students earning more than one major may count toward the GWSS major a maximum of three courses they complete for the other major.

Work for the major consists of the undergraduate core, which includes a practicum and culminates in a research seminar; distribution requirements; and electives. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies requires the following course work.

UNDERGRADUATE CORE

The undergraduate core consists of five courses (minimum of 15 s.h.). Two introductory courses [131:010 (GWSS:1001) Introduction to Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies and 131:055 (GWSS:1002) Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S.] are prerequisites for all other courses in the major; they orient students to the major conceptual areas that constitute GWSS as an interdisciplinary field. The course 131:055 (GWSS:1002) Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. introduces basic issues of race, class, and gender systems in the United States and provides a foundation for the major.

Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies Practicum [131:105 (GWSS:3005)] reflects the importance of community needs and current social issues in framing questions of gender and sexuality studies scholarship and in assessing the usefulness of relevant research. Students earn 3-4 s.h. for 131:105 (GWSS:3005), depending on the semester in which they take it. With approval from the director of undergraduate studies, a student who completes the practicum during a summer session may register for 2 s.h. of 131:179 (GWSS:3990) Independent Readings and Research in Women’s Studies instead of taking 131:105 (GWSS:3005).

Transnational Feminism [131:149 (GWSS:2150)] explores how taking account of colonial history and contemporary globalization reshapes feminist politics in different parts of the world.

Students take 131:199 (GWSS:4090) Senior Research Seminar during their last semester; members of the University of Iowa Honors Program may take 131:198 (GWSS:4095) Honors Senior Thesis instead. Students earn 3 s.h. for the research seminar or honors thesis.

The undergraduate core includes the following course work.

All of these:

131:010 (GWSS:1001) Introduction to Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies 3 s.h.
131:055 (GWSS:1002) Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. 3 s.h.
131:105 (GWSS:3005) Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies Practicum 3-4 s.h.
131:149 (GWSS:2150) Transnational Feminism 3 s.h.

One of these:

131:198 (GWSS:4095) Honors Senior Thesis (open only to honors students) 3 s.h.
131:199 (GWSS:4090) Senior Research Seminar 3 s.h.

DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS

The distribution requirements (total of at least 9 s.h.) include one GWSS theory course, one GWSS course with comparative/non-U.S. focus, and one GWSS or other course with a race/ethnicity focus, all chosen from the following lists. Students may request permission from the director of undergraduate studies to use courses not on these lists; ideally, these courses should be offered by GWSS [prefix 131 (GWSS)]. At least half of the material in comparative/non-U.S. topics courses must have a non-U.S. context.

Theory—one of these:

131:095 (GWSS:2095) Queer Rhetorics 3 s.h.
131:151 (GWSS:3200) Feminist Theory 3 s.h.

Comparative/non-U.S. focus—one of these:

131:060 (GWSS:2052) Women in Islam and the Middle East 3 s.h.
131:107 (GWSS:2108) Gendering India 4 s.h.
131:125 (GWSS:4725) Women and Gender in African History 3 s.h.
131:127 (GWSS:3121) South Asian Sexual Cultures 3 s.h.
131:131 (GWSS:3131) Gender and Sexuality in East Asia 3 s.h.
131:157 (GWSS:3157) Gender, Sexuality, and Human Rights 3 s.h.
131:185 (GWSS:3185) Global Women’s Cinema 3 s.h.

Race/ethnicity—one of these:

16A:112 (HIST:4216) Mexican American History 3 s.h.
16A:113 (HIST:4217) Latina/o Immigration 3 s.h.
16A:147 (HIST:4275) History of Slavery in the U.S.A. 3-4 s.h.
028:079 (SPST:2079) Race and Ethnicity in Sport 3 s.h.
049:185 (THTR:3415) Cultural Diversity and Identity 3 s.h.
129:122 (AFAM:3925) African Americans and the Media 3 s.h.
129:150 (AFAM:3710) African American Women Writers 3 s.h.
129:183 (AFAM:4500) Black Feminist Tradition and Culture 3 s.h.
131:159 (GWSS:4560) Native American Women and Religious Change 3 s.h.
131:162 (GWSS:3360) Latin American Women Writers 3 s.h.
Any African American studies upper-level course [prefix 129 (AFAM)]
Any American Indian and native studies upper-level course [prefix 149 (AINS)]

ELECTIVES

Students choose elective courses from the list below, in consultation with their advisor. They must complete at least four electives (minimum of 12 s.h.), earning at least 6 s.h. in courses numbered 100 (3000) or above. With the instructor’s permission, honors students may count a graduate-level course numbered 200 (5000) or above toward the electives requirement.

In choosing electives, students are encouraged to pursue a course of study that emphasizes both breadth and depth. Students should choose three or four courses in a focus area in which they would like to gain deeper knowledge. The area may be within a specific discipline, such as literature, anthropology, or history. This is especially useful for students pursuing double majors, since they may count toward the GWSS major a maximum of three courses they complete for the other major.

The focus area need not be limited to a traditional discipline. Students may seek more specialized education in fields such as sexuality studies or international issues. Breadth also is important; advisors direct students who have taken several courses in one focus area to take additional electives in another focus area.

Students may request permission to use upper-level courses not listed below. At least half of the course’s content and requirements must focus on gender and/or sexuality. For information on requesting permission to use a course not listed here, contact the GWSS undergraduate advisor.

At least four of these (minimum of 12 s.h.), with at least 6 s.h. in courses numbered 100 (3000) or above:

032:071 (RELS:2771)/131:071 (GWSS:1710) Sexual Ethics 3 s.h.
032:111 (RELS:3711) Religion and Women 3 s.h.
034:135 (SOC:4820)/131:136 (GWSS:4820) Sociology of Sexuality 3 s.h.
049:188 (THTR:3420)/131:187 (GWSS:3420) Sex and Gender in Performance 3 s.h.
131:018 (GWSS:1310)/034:018 (SOC:1310) Gender and Society 3-4 s.h.
131:025 (GWSS:2325) Women, Crime, and Justice 3 s.h.
131:029 (GWSS:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
131:041 (GWSS:2041)/036:041 (COMM:2041) Gender Roles and Communication 3 s.h.
131:052 (GWSS:2193)/008:052 (ENGL:2193) Literature, Culture, and Women 3 s.h.
131:060 (GWSS:2052)/032:052 (RELS:2852) Women in Islam and the Middle East 3 s.h.
131:061 (GWSS:1080)/045:060 (AMST:1060) Sex and Popular Culture in the Postwar U.S. 3 s.h.
131:078 (GWSS:2078)/028:078 (SPST:2078) Women, Sport, and Culture 3 s.h.
131:112 (GWSS:3101) Anthropology of Sexuality 3 s.h.

131:194 (GWSS:3175)/008:194 (ENGL:3175) Introduction to Feminist Criticism 3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the third semester begins:
131:010 (GWSS:1001) Introduction to Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies

Before the fifth semester begins:
131:055 (GWSS:1002) Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S., two required GWSS electives

Before the seventh semester begins: at least two required GWSS electives, one GWSS theory course or one GWSS course with a comparative/non-U.S. focus; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins:
131:105 (GWSS:3005) Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies Practicum, one GWSS theory course or one GWSS course with a comparative/non-U.S. focus, and at least one additional required GWSS elective

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, including one additional required GWSS elective, 131:199 (GWSS:4090) Senior Research Seminar or 131:198 (GWSS:4095) Honors Senior Thesis (for honors students), all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours required for graduation

Honors in the Major

The department offers qualified students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the gender, women’s, and sexuality studies major. Departmental honors students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in GWSS course work and a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. An honors thesis is required.

Soon after beginning work for the major, each honors student should select an upper-level course in which he or she will do preliminary research for the honors thesis; the course must count toward requirements for the GWSS major and may be a classroom experience or the practicum. The student must inform the course’s instructor of his or her intent to develop an honors project in the course so that the instructor may provide guidance to the student and, at the instructor’s discretion, may adjust the student’s course assignments in order to help the student prepare for the honors thesis.

After completing the preliminary research, students enroll in 131:198 (GWSS:4095) Honors Senior Thesis. The course guides them through the process of formulating a topic and a research plan, conducting research for the thesis, writing the results, and responding to peer and instructor critique.

In addition to honors in the major, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; learn about the program by visiting Honors at Iowa.

Minor

The minor in gender, women’s, and sexuality studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in course work associated with the department, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 100 (3000) or above are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/ nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. of work for their major toward the GWSS minor.

The minor must include 131:010 (GWSS:1001) Introduction to Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies. The 12 s.h. of advanced work may include any GWSS course numbered 100 (3000) or above, or it may include 131:055 (GWSS:1002) Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. plus 9 s.h. of courses numbered 100 (3000) or above. The department strongly advises students to include an approved theory course in the minor.

Graduate Program of Study

- Certificate in Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies

The certificate program is open to University of Iowa graduate students working toward a degree; interested students should contact the GWSS director of graduate studies.

Certificate

The Certificate in Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies requires 16 s.h., including a two-course core, several elective courses, and a capstone course (1 s.h.), for which students attend a GWSS conference and present their own research there. Students receive certificate advising from the GWSS director of graduate studies. The certificate requires the following core work. Students may not use one course to satisfy more than one certificate requirement.

General Education Program

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/students/general-education-program-requirements

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program offers courses that develop fundamental skills, providing a foundation in critical thinking, reading, and writing. Advanced General Education courses allow students to pursue a wide range of interests in or outside of their majors.

All students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn an undergraduate degree—Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), or Bachelor of Music (B.M.)—must complete the requirements of the CLAS General Education Program.

General Education Areas and Requirements

The General Education Program has 10 required areas, grouped into three categories. Students must fulfill the requirements in each General Education area.

Communication and literacy:
- Rhetoric: a minimum of 4 s.h.
- World Languages: required credit varies by language; see "World Languages" below.
- Interpretation of Literature: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Natural, quantitative, and social sciences:
- Natural Sciences: a minimum of 7 s.h.; must include one lab.
- Quantitative or Formal Reasoning: a minimum of 3 s.h.
- Social Sciences: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Culture, society, and the arts:
- Historical Perspectives: a minimum of 3 s.h.
- International and Global Issues: a minimum of 3 s.h.
- Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts: a minimum of 3 s.h.
- Values, Society, and Diversity: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Students may count transfer credit and/or credit by exam toward some General Education Program requirements. See General Education Policies for details regarding use of transfer credit, credit by exam, and other policies for how General Education requirements may be fulfilled.

Communication and Literacy

Rhetoric

Rhetoric courses develop speaking, writing, listening, and critical reading skills and build competence in research, analysis, and argumentation.

All entering first-year students are required to complete 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric (4-5 s.h.). Because rhetorical skills lay the foundation for further study at the University, most students register for 010:003 (RHET:1030) during their first year at Iowa. Students in some majors, such as English or journalism and mass communication, enroll in 010:003 (RHET:1030) during their first semester.

Students who must enroll in English as a Second Language (ESL) courses as determined by their English proficiency evaluation must complete all ESL courses before they may register for 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric.

Students who have transfer credit in composition, speech, and argumentation but have not been granted an A.A. degree must complete the equivalent of 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric and often must take 010:004 (RHET:1040) Writing and Reading or 010:006 (RHET:1060) Speaking and Reading in addition to their transfer courses in composition and/or speech.

Each entering student’s degree audit shows the course(s) he or she must complete in order to fulfill the Rhetoric requirement.

The following courses are approved for the Rhetoric area.

- 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric 4 s.h.
- 010:004 (RHET:1040) Writing and Reading 3 s.h.
- 010:006 (RHET:1060) Speaking and Reading 3 s.h.

TRANSFER CREDIT FOR RHETORIC

Transfer students who have been granted an Associate of Arts (A.A.) degree from an Iowa community college, Waldorf College in Iowa, or Black Hawk College in Illinois have satisfied the Rhetoric requirement.

Transfer credit for students without an A.A. degree is evaluated as follows:

- Transfer students who have completed composition I, composition II, and speech at another institution have satisfied the General Education Program’s Rhetoric requirement of 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric;
- Transfer students who have completed only composition I must complete 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric at The University of Iowa;
- Transfer students who have completed composition I and speech must complete 010:004 (RHET:1040) Writing and Reading at The University of Iowa;
- Transfer students who have completed only speech must complete 010:006 (RHET:1060) Speaking and Reading at The University of Iowa;
- Transfer students who have completed composition I and II or only composition II must complete 010:006 (RHET:1060) Speaking and Reading at The University of Iowa;
- For transfer students who have completed any other course at another institution that may be equivalent to 010:003 (RHET:1030) Rhetoric, the University of Iowa Office of Admissions examines the content of the course and decides on equivalency based on the content of that course, conferring with the Department of Rhetoric on the correct equivalency, if necessary.

Interpretation of Literature

Courses in the Interpretation of Literature area focus on the major genres of literature (short and long fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and drama), improving students’ abilities to read and analyze a variety of texts. Small group discussions in these courses challenge students to think critically, to share insights, and to listen thoughtfully to the arguments of others.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Interpretation of Literature area. The following courses are approved for the area.

World Languages

Courses in the World Languages area provide students with speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills in a second language as well as knowledge of the culture in which the language is spoken. To fulfill the World Languages requirement, students must:

- complete the fourth year of a world language in high school; or
- complete the last course in the designated course sequence of an approved world language at The University of Iowa or the equivalent course at another college or university or during study abroad; or
- pass an achievement test or evaluation that measures proficiency in a foreign language equivalent to that usually attained through four semesters of college-level language study.

For information on proficiency examinations and guidelines for taking them, see the World Languages web page. The page also provides information about how students whose first language is not English may fulfill the World Languages requirement.

Once students have completed the World Languages requirement, they may earn up to 8 s.h. of additional credit in language study; see the Furthering Language Incentive Program (FLIP) web page. The page also provides information about how to fulfill the World Languages requirement.

Students with previous knowledge of Arabic should consult the department for appropriate placement.

CHINESE

Courses in Chinese are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). Effective fall 2013, the following sequence fulfills the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement.

- 039:008 (CHIN:1111) First-Year Chinese: First Semester 5 s.h.
- 039:009 (CHIN:1112) First-Year Chinese: Second Semester 5 s.h.
- 039:105 (CHIN:2101) Second-Year Chinese: First Semester 5 s.h.
- 039:106 (CHIN:2102) Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester 5 s.h.

Students may use varied combinations of Chinese language courses approved for General Education to fulfill the World Languages requirement. Heritage learners and students who have studied Chinese abroad may be able to fulfill the requirement by substituting 039:107 (CHIN:2103) Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:114 (CHIN:2104) Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester for 039:105 (CHIN:2101) and 039:106 (CHIN:2102). Consult the department for more information.

CZECH

Courses in Czech are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). Effective fall 2013, the following sequence fulfills the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement.

- 041:141 (SLAV:2211) Conversational Czech I 4 s.h.
- 041:142 (SLAV:2212) Conversational Czech II 3 s.h.
- 041:143 (SLAV:2213) Conversational Czech III 3 s.h.
- 041:144 (SLAV:2214) Conversational Czech IV 3 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Czech should consult the department for proper placement.

FRENCH

Courses in French are offered by the Department of French and Italian (p. 285). For students without previous knowledge of French, the department recommends the following sequence to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement.

- 009:001 (FREN:1001) Elementary French I 5 s.h.
- 009:002 (FREN:1002) Elementary French II 5 s.h.

Students may use varied combinations of French language courses approved for General Education to fulfill the World Languages requirement. Those with previous knowledge of French may be able to fulfill the requirement by substituting 009:010 (FREN:1010) First-Year French Review for 009:001 (FREN:1001) and 009:002 (FREN:1002) in the sequence above. Some students may be evaluated as ready for 009:011 (FREN:2001) or 009:012 (FREN:2002). Consult the department for appropriate placement.

GERMAN

Courses in German are offered by the Department of German (p. 330). For students without previous knowledge of German, the department recommends the following sequence to fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement.

- 013:011 (GRMN:1001) Elementary German I 4 s.h.
- 013:012 (GRMN:1002) Elementary German II 4 s.h.

Students may use varied combinations of German language courses approved for General Education to fulfill the World Languages requirement. Those with previous knowledge of German may be able to fulfill the requirement by substituting 013:014 (GRMN:1010) First-Year German Review for 013:011 (GRMN:1001) and 013:012 (GRMN:1002) in the sequence above. Some students may be evaluated as ready for 013:021 (GRMN:2001) or 013:022 (GRMN:2002). Consult the department for appropriate placement.

The department also offers accelerated intensive courses, 013:013 (GRMN:1020) Intensive Elementary German and 013:025 (GRMN:2020) Intensive Intermediate German, which may be appropriate for students with strong language learning abilities or experience. The intensive courses may be combined with nonintensive courses to create other sequences that may be used to fulfill the General Education World Languages requirement. Consult the department to identify an appropriate course sequence.

GREEK

Courses in Greek are offered by the Department of Classics (p. 149). Students without previous knowledge of Greek should fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement with the following sequence.

- 20G:001 (CLSL:1001) Classical and New Testament Greek I 3-5 s.h.
- 20G:002 (CLSL:1002) Classical and New Testament Greek II 3-5 s.h.
- 20G:011 (CLSL:2001) Second-Year Greek I 3 s.h.
- 20G:012 (CLSL:2002) Second-Year Greek II 3 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Greek should consult the department for appropriate placement.

HINDI

Courses in Hindi are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). Students without previous knowledge of Hindi should fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement with the following sequence. Each of these courses is open to entering first-year students.

- 039:123 (ASIA:2101) First-Year Hindi-Urdu: First Semester 5 s.h.
- 039:124 (ASIA:2102) First-Year Hindi: Second Semester 5 s.h.
- 039:126 (ASIA:3101) Second-Year Hindi: First Semester 4 s.h.
- 039:127 (ASIA:3102) Second-Year Hindi: Second Semester 4 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Hindi should consult the department for appropriate placement.

ITALIAN

Courses in Italian are offered by the Department of French and Italian (p. 285). Students without previous knowledge of Italian should fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement with the following sequence.

- 018:001 (ITAL:1101) Elementary Italian 5 s.h.
- 018:002 (ITAL:1102) Elementary Italian II 5 s.h.
- 018:011 (ITAL:2203) Intermediate Italian 4 s.h.
- 018:012 (ITAL:2204) Intermediate Italian II 4 s.h.

Students with strong language learning abilities or a background in another Romance language may be able to complete the requirement by substituting 018:103 (ITAL:3002) Intensive Elementary Italian for 018:001 (ITAL:1101) and 018:002 (ITAL:1102) in the sequence above. Consult the department for appropriate placement.

JAPANESE

Courses in Japanese are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). For students without previous knowledge of Japanese, the department recommends the following sequence to fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement.

Students may use varied combinations of Japanese language courses approved for General Education to fulfill the World Languages requirement. Those with previous knowledge of Japanese should consult the department for appropriate placement.

KOREAN

Courses in Korean are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). For students without previous knowledge of Korean, the department recommends the following sequence to fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement.

- 039:040 (ASIA:1101) First-Year Korean: First Semester 4 s.h.
- 039:041 (ASIA:1102) First-Year Korean: Second Semester 4 s.h.
- 039:042 (ASIA:2101) Second-Year Korean: First Semester 4 s.h.
- 039:043 (ASIA:2102) Second-Year Korean: Second Semester 4 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Korean should consult the department for appropriate placement.

LATIN

Courses in Latin are offered by the Department of Classics (p. 149). Students without previous knowledge of Latin should fulfill the General Education Program's World Languages requirement with the following sequence.

- 20L:001 (CLSL:1001) Elementary Latin I 3-5 s.h.
- 20L:002 (CLSL:1002) Elementary Latin II 3-5 s.h.
- 20L:012 (CLSL:2002) Golden Age of Roman Poetry 3 s.h.

Some students may be able to fulfill the requirement by substituting 20L:005 (CLSL:1005) Accelerated Latin for 20L:001 (CLSL:1001) and 20L:002 (CLSL:1002) in the sequence above. Students who have taken 20L:001 (CLSL:1001) and 20L:002 (CLSL:1002) should not enroll in 20L:005 (CLSL:1005). Consult the department for appropriate placement.
PORTUGUESE
Courses in Portuguese are offered by the Department of Spanish and Portuguese (p. 577). Only one sequence in Portuguese is approved to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement. Both courses in the sequence are open to entering first-year students.

038:100 (PORT:3010) Accelerated Elementary Portuguese 6 s.h.
038:101 (PORT:3020) Accelerated Intermediate Portuguese 6 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Portuguese should consult the department for appropriate placement.

RUSSIAN
Courses in Russian are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). Students without previous knowledge of Russian should fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with the following sequence.

041:001 (SLAV:1111) First-Year Russian I 5 s.h.
041:002 (SLAV:1112) First-Year Russian II 5 s.h.
041:003 (SLAV:2111) Second-Year Russian I 4 s.h.
041:004 (SLAV:2112) Second-Year Russian II 4 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Russian should consult the department for appropriate placement.

SANSKRIT
Courses in Sanskrit are offered by the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures (p. 93). Students without previous knowledge of Sanskrit should fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement with the following sequence. Each of these courses is open to entering first-year students.

039:110 (SOAS:2901)/20E:110 (CLSA:2901) First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester 4 s.h.
039:113 (SOAS:3902)/20E:122 (CLSA:3902) Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester 3 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Sanskrit should consult the department for appropriate placement.

SPANISH
Courses in Spanish are offered by the Department of Spanish and Portuguese (p. 577). For students without previous knowledge of Spanish, the department recommends the following sequence to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement.

035:001 (SPAN:1001) Elementary Spanish I 5 s.h.
035:002 (SPAN:1002) Elementary Spanish II 5 s.h.
035:011 (SPAN:1501) Intermediate Spanish I 5 s.h.
035:012 (SPAN:1502) Intermediate Spanish II 5 s.h.

Students may use varied combinations of Spanish language courses approved for General Education to fulfill the General Education World Languages requirement. Those with previous knowledge of Spanish may be able to fulfill the requirement by substituting 035:005 (SPAN:1003) Elementary Spanish Review for 035:001 (SPAN:1001) and 035:002 (SPAN:1002) in the sequence above.

The accelerated course 035:013 (SPAN:1503) Accelerated Intermediate Spanish, which combines 035:011 (SPAN:1501) and 035:012 (SPAN:1502), may be appropriate for some students.

Students with previous knowledge of Spanish should take the language placement test in Spanish to help determine proper placement.

SWAHILI
Courses in Swahili are offered by the Department of French and Italian (p. 285). The following sequence fulfills the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement. Each of these courses is open to entering first-year students.

211:125 (SWAH:3001) Elementary Swahili I 3-4 s.h.
211:126 (SWAH:3002) Elementary Swahili II 3-4 s.h.
211:127 (SWAH:3003) Intermediate Swahili I 3-4 s.h.
211:128 (SWAH:3004) Intermediate Swahili II 3-4 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Swahili should consult the department for appropriate placement.

OTHER COURSE SEQUENCES
A student who successfully completes a four-semester world language sequence that has not been approved for General Education may have the sequence substituted for a proficiency test to fulfill the General Education requirement.

Students who complete a world language sequence this way should notify the department that offers the sequence; the department will contact Graduation Analysis, which will update the student’s degree audit to show fulfillment of the World Languages requirement.

Natural, Quantitative, and Social Sciences
Natural Sciences
Courses in the Natural Sciences area explore the scope and major concepts of a scientific discipline. Students learn the attitudes and practices of scientific investigators: logic, precision, experimentation, tentativeness, and objectivity. In courses with a laboratory component, students gain experience in the methods of scientific inquiry.

All students must complete at least 7 s.h. of course work in the Natural Sciences area, including at least one natural science lab component. The following courses are approved for the area; courses with a lab component are noted "(lab)."

002:001 (BIOL:1261) Introduction to Botany (lab) 4 s.h.
002:002 (BIOL:1141) Introductory Animal Biology (lab) 4 s.h.
002:021 (BIOL:1140) Human Biology (lab) 4 s.h.
002:022 (BIOL:1370) Understanding Evolution (formerly Ecology and Evolution) 3 s.h.
002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology (lab) 4 s.h.
002:032 (BIOL:1412) Diversity of Form and Function (lab) 4 s.h.
002:040 (BIOL:1251) How the Brain Works (and Why it Doesn’t) 3 s.h.
002:081 (BIOL:1311)/113:081 (ANTH:1310) Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century 3 s.h.
002:095 (BIOL:1260) Plants and Human Affairs 2-3 s.h.
004:005 (CHEM:1050) Technology and Society 3 s.h.
Quantitative or Formal Reasoning

Courses in the Quantitative or Formal Reasoning area help develop analytical skills through the practice of quantitative or formal symbolic reasoning. Courses focus on presentation and evaluation of evidence and argument; understanding the use and misuse of data; and organization of information in quantitative or other formal symbolic systems, including those used in computer science, linguistics, mathematics, philosophy, and statistics.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Quantitative or Formal Reasoning area. Students may fulfill this requirement of the General Education Program by completing a course that lists an approved course as a prerequisite. The following courses are approved for the area.

22C:001 (CS:1020) Principles of Computing 3 s.h.
22C:005 (CS:1110) Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.
22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.
22M:006 (MATH:1120) Logic of Arithmetic 4 s.h.
22M:009 (MATH:1020) Elementary Functions 4 s.h.
22M:010 (MATH:1240) Finite Mathematics 4 s.h.
22M:012 (MATH:1130) Theory of Arithmetic 3 s.h.
22M:013 (MATH:1340) Mathematics for Business 4 s.h.
22M:015 (MATH:1440) Mathematics for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business 4 s.h.
22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.
22S:002 (STAT:1010) Statistics and Society 3 s.h.
22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.
22S:025 (STAT:1020)/07P:025 (PSQF:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
026:036 (PHIL:1630) Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate 3 s.h.
027:109 (HHP:3005) Scientific Reasoning 3 s.h.
030:072 (POLI:1602) Introduction to Political Analysis 3 s.h.
036:017 (COMM:1117) Theory and Practice of Argument 4 s.h.
103:013 (LING:1050) Language and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.
143:080 (HONR:1800) Honors Seminar in Quantitative and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.
169:030 (LEIS:1030) Introduction to Critical Thinking 3 s.h.

Social Sciences

Courses in the Social Sciences area focus on human behavior and the institutions and social systems that shape and are shaped by that behavior. Courses provide an overview of one or more social science disciplines, their theories, and their methods.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Social Sciences area. The following courses are approved for the area.

003:117 (CSD:3117)/103:172 (LING:3117) Psychology of Language 3 s.h.
003:118 (CSD:3118)/103:176 (LING:3118) Language Acquisition 1-3 s.h.
06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics 4 s.h.
06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics 4 s.h.
Culture, Society, and the Arts

Historical Perspectives

Courses in the Historical Perspectives area help students comprehend the historical processes of change and continuity; develop the ability to generalize, explain, and interpret historical change; and understand the past in its own terms.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Historical Perspectives area. The following courses are approved for the area.

01H:001 (ARTH:1010) Art and Visual Culture 3 s.h.
01H:005 (ARTH:1050) From Cave Paintings to Cathedrals: Survey of Western Art I 3 s.h.

Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts

Courses in the Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts area provide students with opportunities to appreciate the arts and to analyze them within their historical and theoretical contexts. They also help students develop the analytic, expressive, and imaginative abilities necessary for understanding, appreciating, and creating art.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts area. The following courses are approved for the area.

01B:001 (ARTS:1010) Elements of Art 3 s.h.
01B:040 (ARTS:1030) Elements of Jewelry and Metal Arts 3 s.h.
01B:080 (ARTS:1050) Elements of Printmaking 3 s.h.
01B:090 (ARTS:1080) Elements of Sculpture 3 s.h.
01C:060 (CERM:2000) Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.
01H:001 (ARTH:1010) Art and Visual Culture 3 s.h.
01H:002 (ARTH:1040) Arts of Africa 3 s.h.

Values, Society, and Diversity

Courses in the Values, Society, and Diversity area explore fundamental questions about the human experience from a variety of perspectives. Students consider topics in relation to their own values and actions. They gain a deeper appreciation of how cultural differences arise and of the importance of diversity.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work in the Values, Society, and Diversity area. The following courses are approved for the area.

01H:008 (ARTH:1030) Themes in Global Art (GE status only effective through fall 2013) 3 s.h.

Geographical and sustainability sciences are concerned with place, environment, and the ongoing processes of change within and between social and physical systems. Geographical and sustainability sciences’ importance to scholarly inquiry is rooted in the complexity of social and environmental problems. Three concepts at the core of the disciplines—space, place, and scale—provide theoretical constructs and methodological tools for sciences that investigate the complex character of social and environmental phenomena.

Geographical and sustainability scientists examine issues such as distribution and consumption of natural resources, air and water quality, climate changes and ecosystem dynamics, growth and development of urban areas, population dynamics, politics and practice of international development, and social justice. They view society and the environment as a physical/social/cultural system. They apply uniquely geographical and sustainability perspectives and tools, as well as knowledge from other social and scientific disciplines, to analyze the emergent properties of these systems.

Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences graduates find employment opportunities in government, nongovernmental organizations, and business. For example, many geographical and sustainability scientists are employed in resource management, urban and regional development, public health, and market area analysis. They analyze problems in the distribution and interactions among physical, ecological, social, and political systems.

Geographical and sustainability sciences students acquire skills in computer-based cartography and geographic information systems (GIS) software used to investigate and solve many environmental and social problems. Opportunities for graduates with GIS training are growing rapidly in both private and governmental organizations.

The geographical and sustainability sciences faculty has developed an undergraduate instructional program that serves students majoring or minoring in geography as well as students in other disciplines. Courses in geography are commonly required for students preparing to teach at the elementary and secondary school levels and for those who want to pursue careers in urban and regional planning. They also provide a background for many related professions, including law, health care, environmental or transportation engineering, and international business.

Geographical and sustainability sciences students use the University’s Geographic Information System Instructional Lab (GISIL) for GIS instruction and research. The lab is located in the department; see "Facilities and Resources" later in this Catalog section.

The Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences participates in a number of University of Iowa interdisciplinary programs that have international, area studies, urban, or environmental components. It also participates in the University’s internship program for students; see "Internships" later in this Catalog section.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

- Major in geography (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Major in environmental policy and planning (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Minor in environmental policy and planning
- Minor in geographic information science
- Minor in geography

B.A. and B.S.: Geography

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in geography requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36-40 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science with a major in geography requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 44-48 s.h. of work for the major.

Students choose one of four tracks: environmental studies, geographic information science (GIS), health and society, or sustainability. Credit required for the major depends on the student’s choice of track.

Students majoring in geography may not earn the minor in geographic information science. Geography majors who choose the sustainability track may not earn the University’s Certificate in Sustainability (p. 1242).
The major in geography (either B.A. or B.S.) is appropriate preparation for advanced training or careers in geographical and sustainability sciences. Students with strong interest in quantitative analysis and modeling should pursue the Bachelor of Science and are encouraged to master an appropriate computer programming language.

All students majoring in geography complete a common set of foundation courses in addition to the requirements for their choice of track. Bachelor of Science students take additional mathematics course work. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Transfer students majoring in geography must earn a minimum of 15 s.h. for the major in residence at The University of Iowa. Consistent with the CLAS maximum semester hours rule, students may count a maximum of 50 s.h. earned in their major department toward graduation.

Common Requirements (B.A. and B.S.)

All geography majors must complete the following courses. Students may not use a course to fulfill more than one major requirement.

One of these:

- 044:001 (GEOG:1010) Introduction to Human Geography 3 s.h.
- 044:010 (GEOG:1090) Globalization and Geographic Diversity 3 s.h.

All of these:

- 044:003 (GEOG:1020) The Global Environment 3 s.h.
- 044:004 (GEOG:1021) The Global Environment Lab 1 s.h.
- 044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

One of these, in addition to any course required to fulfill a track requirement:

- 044:010 (GEOG:1090) Globalization and Geographic Diversity (if not chosen above) 3 s.h.
- 044:011 (GEOG:2110) Population Geography 3 s.h.
- 044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
- 044:030 (GEOG:2910) The Global Economy 3 s.h.
- 044:055 (GEOG:2130) World Cities 3 s.h.
- 044:060 (GEOG:1060) Geography of Asia: From Japan to Pakistan 3 s.h.
- 044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.

One of these (not required for GIS track students):

- 044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing 3 s.h.
- 044:109 (GEOG:3540) Introduction to Geographic Visualization 3 s.h.
- 044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.
- 044:130 (GEOG:3560) Spatial Analyses of Wind Energy 3 s.h.
- 044:137 (GEOG:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
- 044:140 (GEOG:5129) Information Systems for Resource Management 3 s.h.
- 044:142 (GEOG:4650) Simulation in Environmental Geography 3 s.h.
- 044:146 (GEOG:3570) Light Detection and Ranging (LiDAR): Principles and Applications 3 s.h.
- 044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.

044:180 (GEOG:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography 3 s.h.
044:181 (GEOG:4020) Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 044:150 (GEOG:4030) Senior Project Seminar 3 s.h.
- 044:151 (GEOG:4990) Senior Thesis 3 s.h.

Senior Project Seminar (044:150 (GEOG:4030)) is offered only in spring semesters. Students who choose 044:151 (GEOG:4990) Senior Thesis or 044:199 (GEOG:4995) Honors Thesis must make arrangements with a faculty advisor.

STATISTICS COURSES (B.A.)

Bachelor of Arts students must earn a minimum of 3 s.h. in statistics by completing one of the following courses or a statistics course equivalent to or numbered above one of these.

- 07P:143 (PSQF:5143)/22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.
- 22S:025 (STAT:1020)/07P:025 (PSQF:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.

STATISTICS/MATHEMATICS COURSES (B.S.)

Bachelor of Science students must earn a minimum of 9 s.h. in statistics/mathematics by completing one of the following options or courses equivalent to or numbered above one of these.

Option 1

This sequence:

- 07P:143 (PSQF:5143)/22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.

Or this sequence:

- 171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.

Or this sequence:

- 22S:152 (STAT:3200) Applied Linear Regression 3 s.h.

And one of these:

- 012:178 (GEOS:4870) Applied Geostatistics 3 s.h.
- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business 4 s.h.
- 22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.

Option 2

One of these:
07P:143 (PSQF:5143)/22S:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods  3 s.h.

And one of these sequences:

22M:015 (MATH:1440)-22M:016 (MATH:1460) 10 s.h.
Mathematics for the Biological Sciences - Calculus for the Biological Sciences

22M:031 (MATH:1550)-22M:032 (MATH:1560) 8 s.h.
Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus - Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus

Tracks (B.A. and B.S.)
All geography majors must complete one of the four tracks described below: environmental studies, geographic information science (GIS), health and society, or sustainability. Students should pay close attention to prerequisites for the upper-level courses in each track in order to develop a study plan that allows them to complete their major in a timely way.

Students in the environmental studies, health and society, or sustainability track who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of GIS systems should take GIS-based courses offered by the Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences, as described for each track below.

Students may use 044:197 (GEOG:3001) Special Topics to fulfill a track requirement if the course content is applicable.

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES TRACK
The environmental studies track requires a minimum of 15 s.h. It is designed for students interested in the interrelationships among social and natural processes that affect the environment. The track prepares students for careers or pursuit of personal interests in resource management, physical geography, climatology, environmental policy or law, global environmental change, sustainable development, or other complex environmental issues. Graduates may find employment in an environmental profession such as landscape ecology or climatology; environmental planning and regulation; or environmental law, policy, and politics.

The environmental studies track offers training in field observation, remote sensing, geographical information systems, quantitative analysis/computing, and cartographic representation. It also provides a sound foundation for graduate or professional-level studies in the natural or social aspects of the environment.

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the environmental studies track complete a common track course (3 s.h.) and at least 12 s.h. of upper-level geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Common course—all environmental studies track students take this:

044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues  3 s.h.

Students choose a total of four upper-level courses (at least 12 s.h.) from the following lists, in consultation with their advisors. Those who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of GIS systems should take 044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies and 044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications, or they should earn 6 s.h. in other GIS-based geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Two or three of these:

044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation  3 s.h.
044:101 (GEOG:2310) Climatology  3 s.h.
044:103 (GEOG:2374) Biogeography  3 s.h.
044:104 (GEOG:2410) Environment and Development  3 s.h.
044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing  3 s.h.
044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies  3 s.h.
044:111 (GEOG:2930) Water Resources  3 s.h.
044:120 (GEOG:3780) U.S. Energy Policy in Global Context  3 s.h.
044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice  3 s.h.

One or two of these:

044:123 (GEOG:3310) Landscape Ecology  3 s.h.
044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis  4 s.h.
044:126 (GEOG:3320) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management  3 s.h.
044:127 (GEOG:3750) Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy  3 s.h.
044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications  3 s.h.
044:130 (GEOG:3560) Spatial Analyses of Wind Energy  3 s.h.
044:136 (GEOG:3920) Planning Livable Cities  3 s.h.
044:142 (GEOG:4650) Simulation in Environmental Geography  3 s.h.
044:145 (GEOG:4500) Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing  4 s.h.
044:175 (GEOG:3760) Hazards and Society  3 s.h.
044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems  3 s.h.
044:180 (GEOG:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography  2-4 s.h.
044:186 (GEOG:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology  3 s.h.
044:188 (GEOG:4870) Applied Geostatistics  3 s.h.

GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SCIENCE TRACK
The geographic information science track requires a minimum of 18-19 s.h. It is designed for students preparing for positions in government agencies, nongovernment organizations, international development agencies, and business. It also provides preparation for graduate study in geography, planning, and other disciplines. The track focuses on the design, implementation, and use of geographic information systems. Courses address how geographic data are acquired, stored, accessed, displayed, managed, and analyzed.

Students in the geographic information science track learn to address problems involved in modeling environmental systems, identifying the best locations for service facilities, assessing environmental impacts, and forecasting the populations of small areas. They use the department’s Geographic Information Systems Instructional Lab (GISIL) extensively to develop expertise in using GIS software.

Course work in the track covers methods of spatial analysis and geographical modeling and involves database management and computer programming.
In addition to the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the geographic information science track complete a common track course (3-4 s.h.) and at least 15 s.h. of upper-level geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Common course—all GIS track students take one of these:

Students choose a total of five upper-level courses (at least 15 s.h.) from the following lists, in consultation with their advisors (a total of four courses from the first two lists plus one course from the third list). GIS track students are encouraged to add breadth to their degree by taking additional upper-level courses in the department. Students interested in the application of GIS to environmental issues should select additional courses from the department’s environmental studies area; those interested in socioeconomic issues should select additional courses from the department’s health and society area.

HEALTH AND SOCIETY TRACK

The health and society track requires a minimum of 15 s.h. It is designed for students preparing for positions in government, nongovernmental organizations, international development agencies, and business, especially those whose focus includes health. The track also prepares students for graduate study in geography or planning or for professional programs such as law, business, or policy analysis.

The health and society track provides an understanding of infectious and chronic diseases in the context of health management environments, such as the location of health service facilities. The track also examines the impact of increasing globalization, including processes of urban and regional development or underdevelopment and their effects on health; the role of the natural environment on health in different parts of the world; and the processes of reaching policy decisions. Course work in the track covers social and economic theories of location and regional formation, methods of spatial analysis and geographic modeling, global and regional political economy, and theories of community conflict and social change.

Students develop requisite skills in quantitative analysis and the development, management, and application of geographic information systems and computer methods. They have opportunities to work on applied problems, such as assessing disease hot spots, identifying the best locations for health service facilities, evaluating the impact of major projects, and forecasting health issues for the populations of small areas. The health and society track also provides opportunities for students interested in international development to examine competing theories intended to explain international and regional inequalities, and to investigate and evaluate the patterns and practice of development worldwide.

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the health and society track complete a common track course (3 s.h.) and at least 12 s.h. of upper-level geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Common course—all health and society track students take this:

SUSTAINABILITY TRACK

The sustainability track requires a minimum of 18 s.h. It is designed for students interested in finding ways for people to live that do not threaten the survival of future generations. It includes training in scientific and social scientific methods and requires students to look at the world on scales ranging from local to global. The sustainability track prepares students to be effective leaders and agents of change for sustainability in varied professions, such as academic researcher and teacher, technology specialist, grassroots advocate, government official, or corporate officer.

Geography majors who choose the sustainability track may not earn the University's Certificate in Sustainability (p. 1242).

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the sustainability track complete two common track courses, earning a minimum of 3 s.h. in 057:013 (ENGR:4013) Introduction to Sustainability. They also complete at least 12 s.h. of upper-level geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Common courses—all sustainability track students take both of these:

044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
057:013 (ENGR:4013) Introduction to Sustainability (minimum of 3 s.h.)

Students choose one upper-level course from each of the four groups below (at least 12 s.h.), in consultation with their advisors. Sustainability track students who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of GIS systems should take 044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies or 044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications, or they should earn 6 s.h. in other GIS-based geographical and sustainability sciences courses.

Environment and human health—one of these:

044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.
044:103 (GEOG:2374) Biogeography 3 s.h.
044:123 (GEOG:3310) Landscape Ecology 3 s.h.
044:126 (GEOG:3320) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management 3 s.h.
044:131 (GEOG:3110) Geography of Health 3 s.h.
044:137 (GEOG:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.

Energy, climate, and the built environment—one of these:

044:101 (GEOG:2310) Climatology 3 s.h.
044:111 (GEOG:2930) Water Resources 3 s.h.
044:120 (GEOG:3780) U.S. Energy Policy in Global Context 3 s.h.
044:130 (GEOG:3560) Spatial Analyses of Wind Energy 3 s.h.
044:135 (GEOG:4930) Urban Geography 3 s.h.
044:145 (GEOG:4500) Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

Society and culture—one of these:

044:104 (GEOG:2410) Environment and Development 3 s.h.
044:107 (GEOG:3070) Hungry Planet: Global Geographies of Food 3 s.h.
044:175 (GEOG:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.
044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice 3 s.h.
044:194 (GEOG:3910) Geographic Perspectives on Development 3 s.h.

Environment and public policy—one of these

044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.
044:112 (GEOG:3530) Mapping American Cities and Regions 3 s.h.
044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis 4 s.h.
044:127 (GEOG:3750) Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy 3 s.h.
044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications 3 s.h.

B.A. and B.S.: Environmental Policy and Planning

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in environmental policy and planning requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 40-41 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science with a major in environmental policy and planning requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 47-48 s.h. of work for the major. Students choose one of two tracks: planning or policy. Credit required for the major depends on the student’s choice of track.

The major in environmental policy and planning concentrates on the social science and policy dimensions of environmental problems, which often are caused by people and may have significant economic effects. Environmental issues are embedded in a complex mesh of economics, politics, culture, and behavior. Planners and policy makers must understand the human dimensions of these factors in order to solve environmental problems.

Environmental policy and planning is an interdisciplinary major that draws courses from geographical and sustainability sciences, anthropology, economics, political science, and other disciplines. Work for the major includes introductory courses, methods courses, intermediate courses, and a track. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the major. Transfer students must complete at least 21 s.h. of work for the major in residence at The University of Iowa.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who earn a second major in anthropology, geography, or political science must complete a minimum of 12 s.h. of course work in the second major that they do not double-count toward the major in environmental policy and planning. The 12 s.h. of courses must be offered by the second major’s administrative home: anthropology [prefix 113 (ANTH)], geographical and sustainability sciences [prefix 044 (GEOG)], or political science [prefix 030 (POLI)]. This requirement applies whether students earn the same degree (B.A. or B.S.) with both majors or earn a B.A. with one major and a B.S. with the other. Exception: honors students in environmental policy and planning may count their honors thesis credit toward this 12 s.h. requirement.

The major in environmental policy and planning requires the following course work.
Common Requirements (B.A. and B.S.)

INTRODUCTORY COURSES (B.A. AND B.S.)
All of these:
- 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics 4 s.h.
- 044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
- 113:113 (ANTH:2261) Human Impacts on the Environment 3 s.h.
One of these:
- 012:008 (GEOS:1080)/159:008 (ENVS:1080) Introduction to Environmental Science 3-4 s.h.
- 044:003 (GEOG:1020) The Global Environment 3 s.h.

METHODS COURSES (B.A.)
This course:
- 044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.
One of these:
- 22S:008 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.
- 22S:025 (STAT:1020)/07P:025 (PSQF:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 22S:102 (STAT:5543)/07P:143 (PSQF:5143) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.

METHODS COURSES (B.S.)
Both of these:
- 044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.
- 044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.
And one of these pairs:

INTERMEDIATE COURSES (B.A. AND B.S.)
Both of these:
- 030:126 (POLI:3111) American Public Policy 3 s.h.
- 044:120 (GEOG:3780) U.S. Energy Policy in Global Context 3 s.h.
One of these:
- 113:114 (ANTH:3112) Environmentalisms 3 s.h.
- 113:143 (ANTH:3103) Environment and Culture 3 s.h.

Tracks (B.A. and B.S.)
Students choose either the planning track or the policy track and complete their track’s required course work.

PLANNING TRACK
The planning track requires 12 s.h.; all students complete 06E:133 (ECON:3330) and choose three additional courses from the list below. Some of these courses have prerequisites; students must complete all of a course’s prerequisites before they may register for the course.
This course:
- 06E:133 (ECON:3330)/102:135 (URP:3135) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
Three of these:
- 06E:135 (ECON:3340)/102:134 (URP:3134) Regional and Urban Economics 3 s.h.
- 044:104 (GEOG:2410) Environment and Development 3 s.h.
- 044:111 (GEOG:2930) Water Resources 3 s.h.
- 044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice 3 s.h.
- 044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.
- 102:133 (URP:3350)/06E:145 (ECON:3750)/044:133 (GEOG:3940) Transportation Economics 3 s.h.

POLICY TRACK
The policy track requires 13 s.h.; all students complete 044:125 (GEOG:4750) and choose three additional courses from the list below. Some of these courses have prerequisites; students must complete all of a course’s prerequisites before they may register for the course.
This course:
Three of these:
- 030:111 (POLI:3110) Local Politics 3 s.h.
- 030:113 (POLI:3100) American State Politics 3 s.h.
- 030:120 (POLI:3117) Public Administration and Bureaucratic Politics 3 s.h.
- 030:121 (POLI:3122) Public Choice 3 s.h.
- 030:125 (POLI:3118) Interest Groups 3 s.h.
- 030:150 (POLI:3404) Public Policy Around the World 3 s.h.
- 030:152 (POLI:3102) The U.S. Congress 3 s.h.
- 044:120 (GEOG:3780) U.S. Energy Policy in Global Context 3 s.h.
- 044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis 4 s.h.
- 044:175 (GEOG:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure
Geography majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.
Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.
Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A.: Geography

Before the third semester begins: one introductory course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: five courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: 11 courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 14 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S.: Geography

Before the third semester begins: two introductory courses in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: six courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: 12 courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 15 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A.: Environmental Policy and Planning

Before the third semester begins: one introductory course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: four courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: eight courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S.: Environmental Policy and Planning

Before the third semester begins: one introductory course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: five courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: eight courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: 12 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the geography major or the environmental policy and planning major. Departmental honors students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all work for their major. They must be admitted to the honors program in their major by the first semester of their senior year or earlier.

Honors students in geography or environmental policy and planning pursue study beyond the typical undergraduate level. In order to graduate with honors in their major, they work under the direction of a faculty member to conduct original research and then prepare and present an honors thesis based on their research. The thesis is reviewed by a committee of at least three faculty members.

Students majoring in geography earn credit for their thesis by registering for 044:199 (GEOG:4995) Honors Thesis. They may substitute 044:150 (GEOG:4030) Senior Project Seminar for 044:199 (GEOG:4995), as long as they continue to work on the thesis under the direction of a faculty member.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor: Environmental Policy and Planning

The minor in environmental policy and planning requires a minimum of 18 s.h., including 12 s.h. in University of Iowa courses numbered 100 or above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. For help in selecting courses, students should contact the department secretary to request an advisor for the minor.

Students may apply a maximum of 6 s.h. toward both the minor in environmental policy and planning and any major or minor in the Departments of Anthropology (p. 51), Geographical and Sustainability Sciences (except the major in environmental policy and planning), or Political Science (p. 504).

The minor in environmental policy and planning requires three core courses plus three courses from the student’s choice of track: the planning track or the policy track.
All students complete the following three core courses.

030:126 (POLI:3111) American Public Policy 3 s.h.
044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
113:113 (ANTH:2261) Human Impacts on the Environment 3 s.h.

Students also complete course work in a single track, choosing three courses from either the planning track list or the policy track list below.

Planning track:

044:104 (GEOG:2410) Environment and Development 3 s.h.
044:111 (GEOG:2930) Water Resources 3 s.h.
044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice 3 s.h.
044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.
102:133 (URP:3350)/06E:145 (ECON:3750)/044:133 (GEOG:3940) Transportation Economics 3 s.h.
102:134 (URP:3334)/06E:135 (ECON:3340) Regional and Urban Economics 3 s.h.
102:135 (URP:3335)/06E:133 (ECON:3330) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics 3 s.h.
113:114 (ANTH:3112) Environmentalism 3 s.h.
113:143 (ANTH:3103) Environment and Culture 3 s.h.

Policy track:

030:111 (POLI:3110) Local Politics 3 s.h.
030:113 (POLI:3100) American State Politics 3 s.h.
030:120 (POLI:3117) Public Administration and Bureaucratic Politics 3 s.h.
030:121 (POLI:3122) Public Choice 3 s.h.
030:125 (POLI:3118) Interest Groups 3 s.h.
030:150 (POLI:3404) Public Policy Around the World 3 s.h.
030:152 (POLI:3102) The U.S. Congress 3 s.h.
044:120 (GEOG:3780)/152:178 (GHS:3780) U.S. Energy Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.
044:127 (GEOG:3750) Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy 3 s.h.
044:175 (GEOG:3760)/152:180 (GHS:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.
113:170 (ANTH:3240) Cultural Resources Management Archaeology: Practice and Practicabilities 3 s.h.

Geographic Information Science is the study of geography using digital technology. The field uses geographic information systems (computer-based technologies designed to facilitate the capture, organization, analysis, and display of geographic data), remote sensing (primarily interpretation of satellite imagery), and spatial modeling (viewing, analyzing, and mapping spatial data) to study geographic patterns and processes and to examine research on the nature, development, and use of these tools.

The minor in geographic information science requires one core course, three mid-level specialization courses, and an advanced course that builds on one of the three mid-level courses.

Core course—all students complete this:

044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

Mid-level specialization courses—all of these:

044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing 3 s.h.
044:109 (GEOG:3540) Introduction to Geographic Visualization 3 s.h.
044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies 3 s.h.

Advanced course—one of these:

044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications 3 s.h.
044:137 (GEOG:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
044:139 (GEOG:4570) Spatial Analysis and Location Models 3 s.h.
044:141 (GEOG:4580) Introduction to Geographic Databases 3 s.h.
044:142 (GEOG:4650) Simulation in Environmental Geography 3 s.h.
044:145 (GEOG:4500) Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing 4 s.h.
044:146 (GEOG:3570) Light Detection and Ranging (LiDAR): Principles and Applications 3 s.h.
044:181 (GEOG:4020) Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing 3 s.h.

Minor: Geography

The minor in geography requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in geographical and sustainability sciences courses, including 12 s.h. in University of Iowa courses numbered 100 or above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students are encouraged to concentrate their course work in tracks—environmental studies, geographic information science, health and society, or sustainability (see “B.A. and B.S.: Geography” above). For help in selecting courses, students should contact the department secretary to request an advisor for the minor.

Students majoring in geography may not earn the minor in geographic information science.

Courses for General Education

The Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences offers a number of courses that students in other majors may use to satisfy requirements of College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Look for courses with the prefix 044 (GEOG) under "Natural Sciences," "Social Sciences," and "International and Global Issues" in the General Education Program (p. 306) section of the Catalog.
Nonmajors also may choose geographical and sustainability sciences courses as electives.

Certificate in Wind Energy
The Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) and the Department of Mechanical and Industrial Engineering (College of Engineering) administer the undergraduate certificate program in wind energy; see Wind Energy (p. 887) (College of Engineering) in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs of Study
- Master of Arts in geography
- Doctor of Philosophy in geography

In addition to offering graduate degree programs, the department administers the geoinformatics subtrack of the graduate Certificate in Informatics; see Informatics (p. 929) (Graduate College) in the Catalog.

Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences graduate programs focus on investigating the environmental consequences of human decisions on local, regional, and global scales. Central to the department’s studies are geographical information science and the theories and models of environmental and social sciences. Within this broad domain, the department is developing strengths in environmental justice, environmental modeling, GIScience and GIS, land use and its environmental consequences, and health geography.

The Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy programs prepare students to carry on creative and productive research in selected areas of geography. University of Iowa graduates hold positions on college and university faculties, in private research organizations, and in business and government.

The department provides opportunities for graduate students to gain practical teaching experience through service as departmental teaching assistants or graduate instructors.

Graduate students present research papers at conferences and have regularly won awards. Students are involved in faculty research that leads to coauthored publications; they also publish their own. Graduate students compete successfully for intramural and extramural funding for graduate education and research.

Master of Arts
The Master of Arts program in geography requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis and 32 s.h. of graduate credit without thesis. The program is designed to be completed in four semesters.

Thesis students must earn 15 s.h. of credit in Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences courses numbered 200 (5000) or above; they may count 6 s.h. of thesis credit and 2 s.h. earned in 044:350 (GEOG:7000) Geography Colloquium toward the degree. Students who earn more than 30 s.h. may use the additional work to increase their breadth of knowledge in geography and to tailor their study programs to their individual interests.

Nonthesis students build skills across a range of topics in geographical and sustainability sciences during their first year and develop skills in particular application areas during their second year. Nonthesis students must earn 15 s.h. of credit in Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences courses numbered 200 (5000) or above.

M.A. students demonstrate competence by completing appropriate course work; completing and defending an M.A. thesis (for thesis students) or completing a portfolio of finished work and having it reviewed (nonthesis students); completing an M.A. exam; or completing the Ph.D. comprehensive exams.

More detailed information about M.A. requirements is provided in the department’s Manual for Graduate Degree Requirements; contact the Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences.

Doctor of Philosophy
The Doctor of Philosophy program in geography requires 72 s.h. of graduate credit and is designed to be completed in four or five years. The degree prepares students for college and university teaching and for advanced research. It provides study programs that lead to broad knowledge of a field of geography and its literature and to special expertise in a subfield.

Students may enter the Ph.D. program upon completing an undergraduate degree or with advanced standing corresponding to previous graduate education.

All Ph.D. students take the following courses. They take 044:350 (GEOG:7000) Geography Colloquium (1 s.h.) each semester they are in residence.

Doctoral students complete a set of research milestones as well as written and oral comprehensive examinations. The comprehensive examination covers the student’s concentration area and general field in the discipline. With the approval of his or her dissertation advisor, each student submits a dissertation proposal to the dissertation committee for critical comments and approval; once the dissertation is completed, an oral defense of the dissertation is held.

More detailed information about Ph.D. requirements is provided in the department’s Manual for Graduate Degree Requirements; contact the Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences.

Admission
Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

A bachelor’s degree with a major in geography is not required, but applicants must have an undergraduate background relevant to the field. Strength in social or environmental science and interest in exploring the regional and spatial perspectives that characterize modern geography are important in admission decisions. Depending on their prior training, graduate students may be required to take courses that are prerequisites for course work in their chosen area of graduate study; credit earned in prerequisites does not count toward the graduate degree.

Application materials include an undergraduate transcript with grade-point average, scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test, three letters of recommendation, and an essay in which the applicant states his or her reasons for wanting to study geography at The University of Iowa.

Applicants whose first language is not English must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). Their scores must be sent to the University’s Office of Admissions.

New graduate students whose first language is not English are required to take a speaking proficiency test when they arrive at the University; eventually they take the English Language Performance Test (ELPT). Students must be fully certified by the ELPT before they begin their fourth semester in order to be considered for funding in succeeding semesters. Students who do not pass the tests are required to take Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE) courses until they have achieved proficiency in spoken English.

Financial Support
A number of graduate teaching and research assistantships are available. In addition, outstanding applicants and underrepresented minorities are eligible for several fellowships. Awards are based on merit. In making awards, the department pays particular attention to grade-point average, especially for the junior and senior years; score on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test; letters of recommendation; and fit of the student’s objectives with department specializations. Applications for graduate appointments must be received by February 1. Applications for fellowships are due by January 15.

Internships
The Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences is a participant in the University’s internship program, which provides opportunities for both undergraduate and graduate students to participate in paid and unpaid activities related to their academic programs. The Pomerantz Career Center works with students to develop appropriate internships.

Facilities and Resources
The department houses three geographic information computational laboratories, which support a variety of GIS software packages, including the latest software from ESRI (ArcGIS) and Erdas (Imagine) as well as open-source software.

The University’s Geographic Information Systems Instructional Lab (GISIL) is located in the Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences. The lab is a center for teaching GIS as well as a place where students conduct geographic and GIS-related research. It is equipped with 25 networked student workstations, instructional support technology (e.g., CRT projection), and a suite of peripherals.

Environmental modeling and GIS research laboratories contain state-of-the-art machines. The department provides Windows and Linux platforms, digitizers, scanners, plotters, and printers. Projects requiring massive storage have access to the advanced GIS and modeling facility in the Center for Global and Regional Environmental Research. The University of Iowa is a charter member of Internet2, with a high-performance network link to the Department of Geographical and Sustainability Sciences. The University also is a member of the University Consortium on Geographic Information Science.

To aid studies of water resources and physical geography, the department has a laboratory for analysis of vegetation, sediment, soil, water quality, and tree rings, and a variety of field equipment, including portable meteorological stations and data loggers.

Faculty and graduate students participate in multidisciplinary working groups through the University’s Program in Applied Mathematical and Computational Sciences (p. 908), Center for Global and Regional Environmental Research, Center for Health Effects of Environmental Contamination, International Programs, Institute for Rural and Environmental Health, Iowa Quaternary Studies Group, and Public Policy Center.

The University’s Main Library has a collection of more than 115,500 maps, 3,600 atlases and reference works, and around 100,000 aerial photographs, primarily of Iowa.

Courses
Primarily for Undergraduates

044:001 (GEOG:1010) Introduction to Human Geography 3 s.h.
Geographic examination of how people occupy and shape physical space; examination of global population distribution and migration, language and religion, urban and economic spaces; application of geographic principles to contemporary global issues including social and political conflicts, globalization, and economic development. GE: Social Sciences.

044:003 (GEOG:1020) The Global Environment 3 s.h.
Climate change and interactions between atmosphere and geological, hydrological, and biological systems; response of these systems to climate change and how such responses affect atmospheric processes through feedbacks (e.g., flows of energy, cycles of carbon and water); how geographic differences in such interactions create ecological patterns around the world (e.g., rainforests, prairies). GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

044:004 (GEOG:1021) The Global Environment Lab 1 s.h.
Laboratory complement to 044:003 (GEOG:1020). Corequisites: 044:003 (GEOG:1020), if not taken as a prerequisite. GE: Natural Sciences Lab only.

044:005 (GEOG:1050) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.
Cartography, map analysis, and geographic information systems; map projections and scale; data collection, remote sensing, and GPS; data structures and organization; cartometry; symbolization and visualization.

044:010 (GEOG:1090) Globalization and Geographic Diversity 3 s.h.
Examination of contemporary global society; focus on world regions including physical environment, culture, economy, politics of each region, and relationships between regions; analysis of current conflicts within and between regions including social, religious, political, and economic issues. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

044:011 (GEOG:2110) Population Geography 3 s.h.
Spatial considerations of population growth and distribution; minorities within a population; poverty; housing; social organization and disorganization; social systems, including education, religion, recreation, medical and social services; diffusion of ideas and traits over space. GE: Social Sciences.

044:019 (GEOG:1070) Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.
Political, economic, cultural, technologic, ecological, and ethical issues associated with natural resource and environmental problems, including population, global climate change, food production, tropical deforestation, soil erosion, waste management. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

044:029 (GEOG:1000) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

044:030 (GEOG:2910) The Global Economy 3 s.h.
Examination of contemporary economic geography; types of national economies, uneven development, role of government in shaping economy, multinational corporations; foundation for understanding national economies and economic statistics; contemporary issues including economic globalization, commodification of nature, de-industrialization. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

044:055 (GEOG:2130) World Cities 3 s.h.
Exploration of important urban centers, past and present; focus on why cities exist, how they are organized; key social, economic, and cultural roles played in human societies; examination of different historical eras, including ancient, medieval, and modern; analysis of urban physical structures and spatial organization, how they reflect societies that created them; case study cities include Ancient Rome, medieval Vienna, baroque Versailles, mercantile Amsterdam and London, major contemporary industrial and financial centers.

044:060 (GEOG:1060) Geography of Asia: From Japan to Pakistan 3 s.h.
Varied cultures and environments of Asia; exploration of physical and cultural landscapes of region; processes of development in context of globalization and regionalism; population growth; rise of megacities and urban agglomerations; ethnic, religious and political diversity and tensions; colonial legacies and emerging economies; food and water scarcity; climate change and biodiversity; natural hazards; migration and double burden of disease. GE: International and Global Issues.

044:088 (GEOG:2950) Environmental Conservation 3 s.h.
Scientific foundations of biological conservation; strategies used to better connect conservation practice with needs of a growing human population. Prerequisites: 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080), and 044:019 (GEOG:1070).

044:100 (GEOG:2990) Readings for Undergraduates arr.
Supervised readings in geography.

For Undergraduates and Graduate Students

044:101 (GEOG:2310) Climatology 3 s.h.
Boundary layer processes that drive atmospheric dynamics; exchanges of energy and water at simple and complex surfaces; global climate change records, theories, models; impacts of climate on society. Prerequisites: 044:003 (GEOG:1020). Same as 012:104 (GEOS:2310).

044:102 (GEOG:3020) Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.
Basic geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth’s surface; emphasis on erosion, transport, deposition by land mass movement (creep, landslides, earth flow), fluid agents (wind, water, ice); methods used to study these processes. Prerequisites: 012:005 (GEOS:1050) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080). Same as 012:102 (GEOG:3020), 159:102 (ENVS:3020).

044:103 (GEOG:2374) Biogeography 3 s.h.
Patterns of plant and animal distribution and their interpretation; historical geography including glaciation and plate tectonics; ecological geography, including physical factors (e.g., climate and geology); applications to conservation in diverse regions. Prerequisites: 002:001 (BIOL:1261) or 002:002 (BIOL:1141) or 002:022 (BIOL:1370) or 002:032 (BIOL:1412) or 044:003 (GEOG:1020). Same as 002:103 (BIOL:2374).

044:104 (GEOG:2410) Environment and Development 3 s.h.
Environmental impacts of industrial and rural development explored through Third World case studies (Latin America, Africa, South and East Asia); environmental degradation from perspectives of political economy and ecology; class, gender, and indigenous peoples’ issues; industry-agriculture linkages.

044:105 (GEOG:3500) Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing 3 s.h.
Basic concepts and principles of remote sensing; sources of data; georegistration; digital processing and classification of remotely sensed images for extraction of environmental information; linkage of remote sensing techniques with GIS analysis.

044:106 (GEOG:3505) Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.
Cartography, map analysis, and geographic information systems; map projections and scale; data collection, remote sensing, GPS; data structures and organization; cartometry; stylization and visualization.

044:107 (GEOG:3070) Hungry Planet: Global Geographies of Food 3 s.h.
Societal and environmental implications of past, current, and future global food supply examined from a geographical perspective; focus on questions of who eats what, where, and why; transformative history of agriculture, modern agribusiness and alternative food supplies, geopolitical implications of food production, food scarcity and rising food costs, urban versus rural agriculture, the obesity epidemic versus malnutrition, and the future of food. Same as 152:107 (GHS:3070).
044:109 (GEOG:3540) Introduction to Geographic Visualization
Basic concepts and techniques that underlie cartographic representation and the broader field of geographic visualization; digital cartographic practices; how scientific visualization, information visualization, and user interface design contribute to geographic visualization; map symbolization, scale and generalization, animation and dynamic map design, multimedia, virtual and mixed environments, interfaces for GIS; experience applying cartographic and visualization techniques. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:110 (GEOG:3520) GIS for Environmental Studies
Methods of managing and processing geographic information for environmental analysis; basic concepts, structures, theories of geographic information system (GIS), basic analytical techniques, and hands-on experience in GIS operations. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:111 (GEOG:2930) Water Resources
Introduction to science and policy issues affecting water resources management in the U.S.; how intersection of people, climate, technology, and geography affects quality, availability, and demand for freshwater resources; basic hydrological processes; water needs of people and ecosystems; influence of regulations and management on water quality, availability, and hazards; historical and contemporary developments in management of water, including international conflicts.

044:112 (GEOG:3530) Mapping American Cities and Regions
Foundation concepts for GIS-based analysis of urban, social, and economic data for the United States; geo-referenced sources of U.S. national and state data; application to contemporary social issues. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:116 (GEOG:3350) Urban Ecology
Main theories and concepts of urban ecology; examination of urban ecosystems from an interdisciplinary perspective; how cities function as socioecological systems in their own right and how urban areas function as parts of larger regional and global ecosystems; how urban form and dynamics influence ecological functioning; urban species and nature conservation; urban ecological planning and design. Requirements: junior standing, and 044:103 (GEOG:2374) or 159:134 (ENVS:2673) or introductory course in ecology.

044:117 (GEOG:3400) Iowa Environmental Policy in Practice
How Iowa government addresses environmental policy development and implementation; policy process and current environmental issues; meetings with Iowa state legislators and relevant agency personnel in Des Moines, attendance at legislative sessions and hearings, and observation of how policies move into practice in agency offices; small group work to prepare a presentation on a policy or planning issue. Requirements: junior or higher standing, and 030:126 (POLI:3111) or 044:120 (GEOG:3780) or 113:143 (ANTH:3103) or 113:114 (ANTH:3112) or mid-level or higher course in environmental policy and planning curriculum.

044:120 (GEOG:3780) U.S. Energy Policy in Global Context
Historical and contemporary aspects of U.S. governmental planning and policy on a wide range of energy issues in global context. Prerequisites: 044:019 (GEOG:1070), and 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080). Same as 152:178 (GHS:3780).

044:123 (GEOG:3310) Landscape Ecology
Effects of spatial pattern on spatial processes in ecology; characteristics of matrix, patch, corridor; fragmentation, deforestation, habitat loss; spatial flows of energy, matter, genetic information; relationship to human impact, global climate change. Requirements: 044:103 (GEOG:2374) or a 100-level course in ecology.

044:125 (GEOG:4750) Environmental Impact Analysis
Environmental impact assessment methodologies; emphasis on cost-benefit-risk, cost-effectiveness and incremental analysis, and overlay and graphic techniques; optimal resource use, system simulation; field trips to local environmental control facilities. Prerequisites: 044:019 (GEOG:1070). Same as 102:125 (URP:4750).

044:126 (GEOG:3320) Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management
Hydrological, geomorphological, and ecological processes and their interaction in wetlands; geographic differences in wetlands based on climate and hydrology; wetlands, lakes, and rivers; role of wetlands in drainage basin hydrology and flooding; values and valuation of wetlands; wetland law and wetland delineation; wetlands and water resources. Prerequisites: 044:101 (GEOG:2310) or 044:103 (GEOG:2374). Same as 012:126 (GEOS:3260).

044:127 (GEOG:3750) Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy
Geographical perspectives in the study and interpretation of chemicals in the environment; environmental standards under existing laws; local, regional, national, international case studies in environment and health; socioeconomic and institutional considerations in designing environmental protection strategies. Prerequisites: 225:025 (STAT:1020).

044:128 (GEOG:4520) GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications
Applications of geographic information system (GIS) techniques in environmental change analysis (especially land use/cover change), environmental assessment, hazard/risk analysis, environmental decision making. Prerequisites: 044:110 (GEOG:3520).

044:130 (GEOG:3560) Spatial Analyses of Wind Energy
Introduction to underlying processes, measurement methods, and spatial analyses related to wind energy; siting criteria, techniques for data collection and analysis, GIS-based approaches for suitability studies.

044:131 (GEOG:3110) Geography of Health
Provision of health care in selected countries, with particular reference to the Third World; focus on problems of geographical, economic, cultural accessibility to health services; disease ecology, prospective payment systems, privatization, medical pluralism. Same as 152:131 (GHS:4111).
044:133 (GEOG:3940) Transportation Economics 3 s.h.
Overview of transportation markets—intercity, rural, urban; transportation modes—rail, highway, air, water, pipeline, transit; issues in finance, policy, planning, management, physical distribution, and environmental, economic, and safety regulation. Recommendations: 06E:001 (ECON:1100) and 06E:002 (ECON:1200). Same as 102:133 (URP:3350), 06E:145 (ECON:3750).

044:135 (GEOG:4930) Urban Geography 3 s.h.
Central ideas of modern urban geography, their links to social theory; focus on interrelation between social change, urban environment; evolution of urban systems, emergence of the capitalist city, urban social and residential differentiation, local politics of uneven development.

044:136 (GEOG:3920) Planning Livable Cities 3 s.h.
Development of livable cities in the United States; economic, physical, environmental, and political forces that shape their growth; impact of planning, how it shapes the future of cities. Same as 102:101 (URP:3001).

044:137 (GEOG:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
Applications of GIS and spatial analysis for studying health outcomes and exposure to environmental contaminants at different geographical scales. Same as 152:139 (GHS:4150).

044:139 (GEOG:4570) Spatial Analysis and Location Models 3 s.h.
Application of location models within GIS environments to support decision making; small area demographic forecasting, location-allocation models, regionalization problems, shortest path models, other spatial analysis methods used to support spatial decisions. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:140 (GEOG:5129) Information Systems for Resource Management 3 s.h.
Understanding and managing natural and engineered resources requiring data-reach foundation; management of data; complex data-driven technologies integrated into data and information systems (DIS); hands-on opportunity to develop or use capabilities of DIS for study or research area of interest (science, engineering, industrial operation); wind power generation, an emerging field in Iowa, used as a case study for illustrating key DIS components, links, and functionalities. Same as 056:129 (IE:5129), 058:129 (ME:5129), 053:129 (CEE:5129), 055:129 (ECE:5129).

044:141 (GEOG:4580) Introduction to Geographic Databases 3 s.h.
Introduction to key aspects of database design for GIS applications; major database models that support spatial data; formal models for key spatial relationships that underlie many different GIS applications; basics of SQL for making queries on datasets; design and construction of ArcGIS geodatabases: ArcGIS tools for geoprocessing. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:142 (GEOG:4650) Simulation in Environmental Geography 3 s.h.
How computer simulations are used in environmental studies, with focus on landscape ecology (spatial patterns of organisms and ecosystems); basics of performing simulations; principles and applications of simulation through readings and performing simulations; frontiers of simulation use in the field; hands-on experience writing computer simulations that capture environmental processes (e.g., changing climate, predator-prey relations, nutrient flux), and analyzing the outcomes. Requirements: advanced courses in environmental geography or environmental science and senior standing.

044:145 (GEOG:4500) Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing 4 s.h.
Theory and practice of remote sensing and digital image processing; practical applications to human-environment interactions. Recommendations: 044:105 (GEOG:3900) or 012:110 (GEOG:3100) or 159:110 (ENVS:3100).

044:146 (GEOG:3570) Light Detection and Ranging (LIDAR): Principles and Applications 3 s.h.
Basic principles and applications of Light Detection and Ranging (LIDAR); LIDAR as an essential technology for mapping and analysis of a vast range of surfaces; application examples include floodplain mapping, forestry management, transportation planning, vegetation analysis, urban planning, and 3-D modeling; theoretical understanding and practical experience using different software. Recommendations: 012:110 (GEOG:3100) or 044:105 (GEOG:3500).

044:150 (GEOG:4030) Senior Project Seminar 3 s.h.
Development of a research project and preparation of a research report. Offered spring semesters.

044:151 (GEOG:4990) Senior Thesis 3 s.h.
Original research. Requirements: senior standing.

044:161 (GEOG:2404) African Development 3 s.h.
Problems of economic, political, spatial integration in Africa; patterns and processes of economic development and nation building. GE: International and Global Issues; Social Sciences.

044:164 (GEOG:4960) The Middle East 3 s.h.
Middle East cultures, political economy, conflict; significance of the Middle East in world affairs, vice versa.

Current topics in occupational and environmental health; how the United States protects workers, protects people from environmental agents, and reduces environmental harm. Same as 175:101 (OEH:3210).

044:175 (GEOG:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.
Introduction to social science perspectives on societal responses to natural and technological hazards; risk perception and communication, disaster management, social vulnerability, and risk assessment; case studies of recent major disasters (e.g., Haiti earthquake, Tohoku earthquake/tsunami/nuclear accident, Hurricane Katrina); current directions in hazards research, policy, and practice. Same as 152:180 (GHS:3760).
044:177 (GEOG:4770) Environmental Justice 3 s.h.
Review of theoretical positions for examining environmental justice, application of those theories to environmental controversies around the globe.

044:179 (GEOG:3340) Ecosystem Services: Human Dependence on Natural Systems 3 s.h.
Ecosystem services from an interdisciplinary perspective centering on geographic techniques used to measure, map, and model ecosystem services; methods used to incorporate ecosystem services into decision and policy making; reliance on ecosystem services, valuable goods, and services produced by ecosystems such as flood control, food production, and water purification for well being; how activities alter ecosystems and thus alter these services, reducing quality-of-life or, in some cases, the ability to survive. Prerequisites: 044:105 (GEOG:1050), and 002:134 (BIOL:2673) or 012:008 (GEOS:1080) or 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 044:019 (GEOG:1070) or 044:103 (GEOG:2374) or 044:123 (GEOG:3310) or 159:008 (ENVS:1080) or 159:134 (ENVS:2673).

044:180 (GEOG:4010) Field Methods in Physical Geography 2-4 s.h.
Methods of measuring climate, vegetation, soil, landforms, water; projects in areas including field meteorology, tree-ring sampling, topographic surveying, vegetation sampling, water quality sampling, use of global positioning systems; introduction to research design.

044:181 (GEOG:4020) Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing 3 s.h.
Development and application of mobile geographic information technologies; key issues associated with global positioning systems (GPS), wireless technologies, field-based data collection and analysis, ubiquitous computing, and location-based services; experience using GPS, advanced mobile computing technologies, mobile GIS software to construct geographic datasets, and data sampling techniques.

044:186 (GEOG:3360) Soil Genesis and Geomorphology 3 s.h.
Introduction to soil genesis, soil geomorphology, and classification including the basics of soil profile description and soil-landscape, soil-vegetation, and soil-climate relationships; emphasis on study of soils as the interface between living and non-living Earth systems and the role of soils in sustaining ecosystems and human societies; short field excursions and a weekend field trip. Requirements: college earth science and chemistry. Same as 012:136 (GEOS:3360).

044:188 (GEOG:4870) Applied Geostatistics 3 s.h.
Applications of geostatistical methods to geology, geography, hydrology, environmental sciences, and engineering; variogram, Kriging, analysis of spatial-varied data with varied computer software in participants' specialties. Same as 012:178 (GEOS:4870).

044:194 (GEOG:3910) Geographic Perspectives on Development 3 s.h.
Theoretical and empirical studies of the regional development process, with emphasis on developing countries; alternative regional development theories and changes in development theories in the literature of geography, related disciplines.

044:195 (GEOG:3992) Undergraduate Research arr.
Supervised research in geography.

044:197 (GEOG:3001) Special Topics arr.
Contemporary fields of inquiry, such as political economy, regional/African development, biophysical systems, GIS, locational analysis, water resources, economic geography, demographic analysis, environment, urbanization, transportation.

Original research. Requirements: honors standing.

For Graduate Students

044:200 (GEOG:5001) Readings arr.
Supervised readings by graduate students in topics of their choice.

044:210 (GEOG:5010) Fundamentals of Geography 3 s.h.
Geography as an academic discipline; history, advances, epistemology, common themes.

044:211 (GEOG:5050) Research and Writing in Geography 3 s.h.
Identification of research areas; research questions and hypotheses; responsible conduct of research; methodological decisions; research proposal and paper writing.

044:241 (GEOG:3550) Integrating Time into GIS 3 s.h.
Fundamental concepts for integrating temporal elements into geographic information systems (GIS); conceptual and formal models of time, models of change, event-based modeling, modeling of moving entities; topics related to fundamentals of spatiotemporal databases and query languages. Prerequisites: 044:005 (GEOG:1050).

044:242 (GEOG:5650) Simulations in Landscape Ecology 3 s.h.
Dynamics of land use and land cover change explored through advanced use of computer simulations in landscape ecology; how simulation is used in the field; simulations based on landscape ecology questions, with analysis of results using typical landscape ecology metrics. Prerequisites: 044:142 (GEOG:4650).

044:243 (GEOG:5550) Modeling Space and Time 3 s.h.
How to generate time-space-resolved estimates of sociophysical environmental contexts with the aid of modern geo-spatial technologies; how to model social, behavioral, and health outcomes with reference to multilevel time-space-resolved sociophysical environmental contexts; environmental contexts from air pollution and pesticide concentration to neighborhood diversity; statistical modeling of varied social, behavioral, and health outcomes such as dropping out of college, smoking, excessive weight, asthma, mental and physical disability. Requirements: a course in statistics and good understanding of correlation and regression.

044:265 (GEOG:6264) Planning Sustainable Transportation 3 s.h.
Theories and methods of exerting public control over passenger and freight transportation; social and environmental regulation; effects of changing finance, regulation, and pricing policies, including privatization, tolls, impact fees. Same as 102:265 (URP:6265).

044:286 (GEOG:6635) Crossing Borders Seminar 2-3 s.h.

044:296 (GEOG:5060) Topics in Geographic Information Science 3 s.h.
Current theoretical research issues in geographic information science; intensive readings.

044:297 (GEOG:5070) Special Topics arr.
Contemporary fields of inquiry, such as political economy, regional/African development, biophysical systems, GIS, locational analysis, water resources, economic geography, demographic analysis, environment, urbanization, transportation.

044:315 (GEOG:6500) Seminar in Spatial Analysis and Modeling 1-3 s.h.
Research themes in spatial analysis, GIScience, simulation, remote sensing.

044:316 (GEOG:6300) Seminar in Environment, Conservation, and Land Use 3 s.h.
Research on land use, water resources, conservation.

044:318 (GEOG:6100) Seminar in Health and Environment 3 s.h.
Research on health and environment.

044:319 (GEOG:6900) Seminar in International Development 3 s.h.
Research on GIScience and development.

044:350 (GEOG:7000) Geography Colloquium arr.

044:415 (GEOG:7550) Research in Spatial Analysis and Modeling 1-3 s.h.
Directed research in spatial analysis, GIScience, simulation.

044:416 (GEOG:7350) Seminar: Environment, Conservation, and Land Use 1-3 s.h.
Directed research in land use, water resources, conservation.

044:417 (GEOG:7750) Research in Environmental Policy 1-3 s.h.

Undergraduate major: German (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: German
Graduate degree: M.A. in German
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/dwllc/german

The Department of German provides education in the language, literature, and culture traditionally designated as German, as expressed in the language and cultural heritage of Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Its faculty members focus their research and teaching on German language, literature, and culture, applying disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives.

Graduate study in German builds on the department’s strengths and those of other departments to provide strong, individualized graduate training. The department is committed to helping students identify and pursue their own historical and theoretical interests in the study of German language and literature.

Undergraduate students in all majors may satisfy the World Languages requirement of the General Education Program (p. 306) with courses in German; see "Language for General Education" below. They also may choose from a variety of other courses on German arts and culture that are approved for General Education and taught in English; see "German in Translation" under "Courses" below.

University graduates with degrees in German frequently enter the teaching profession. They also find positions in government, foreign service, and commercial enterprise.

The Department of German is one of the academic units in the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (p. 222).

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in German (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in German

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in German requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students who plan to earn licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools should see "B.A. with Teacher Licensure" below.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who begin a German major with no previous German language experience must complete the following courses or their equivalents.

013:011 (GRMN:1001) Elementary German I 4 s.h.
013:012 (GRMN:1002) Elementary German II 4 s.h.
013:021 (GRMN:2001) Intermediate German I 4 s.h.
013:022 (GRMN:2002) Intermediate German II 4 s.h.

The 30 s.h. required for the major must include at least five upper-level German courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students may count a maximum of two Department of German courses taught in English (see "German in Translation" under "Courses" below) toward requirements for the major if they complete the 4 s.h. section of the course(s). Note: 013:101 (GRMN:3501) Introduction to German Literature (or equivalent) is prerequisite to all other German literature courses.

013:101 (GRMN:3501) Introduction to German Literature 3 s.h.
013:103 (GRMN:3103) Composition and Conversation I 3 s.h.
013:104 (GRMN:3104) Composition and Conversation II 3 s.h.
013:116 (GRMN:4116) Advanced Composition and Conversation 3 s.h.

Linguistics—one of these:
013:107 (GRMN:3807) Introduction to German Linguistics 3 s.h.
013:122 (GRMN:3855) The Sounds of German 3 s.h.
013:165 (GRMN:3865) History of the German Language 3 s.h.

Culture—one of these:
013:105 (GRMN:3405) German Cultural History 3 s.h.
013:115 (GRMN:4315) Contemporary German Civilization 3 s.h.

Electives:
Four 100-level electives offered by the Department of German 12 s.h.

German majors, both undergraduate and graduate, are urged to supplement their degree programs with relevant courses in areas such as German history, philosophy, and business.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

German majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete... the College of Education's Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Students who plan to use their work toward a German minor as academic background for earning teacher licensure should contact the Office of Education Services about requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the third semester begins: language competency equal to first-year German

Before the fifth semester begins: language competency equal to second-year German

Before the seventh semester begins: four courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester: two to three additional courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers exceptional students the opportunity to pursue honors study in the German major. To participate in the department's honors program, students must have completed three years of college-level German, or the equivalent, with a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in upper-division German courses. They also must be members of the University's honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Students working toward graduation with honors in the German major must register for 013:190 (GRMN:4990) Honors Program in German and must meet regularly with their faculty director of studies. They are expected to engage in readings and discussions in German linguistics, literature, or culture and to write essays in German and English. They also must complete honors research and write an honors thesis, registering for 013:191 (GRMN:4991) Honors Research and Thesis. They complete their honors requirements by presenting their honors thesis to a faculty committee of at least three members.

Minor

The minor in German requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in college-level German courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses taken at The University of Iowa; however, students may count up to 6 s.h. earned in study abroad at a university in a German-speaking country toward the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

All Department of German courses taught in German and numbered 013:100 (GRMN:4900) Individual German and above count toward the minor. Students may count one Department of German course taught in English (see “German in Translation” under “Courses” below) toward the minor if they complete the 4 s.h. section of the course.

Language for General Education

The department offers several sequences of German language courses that students in all majors may use to satisfy the World Languages requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Students who have had experience with German should take the online World Languages Placement Test, which helps determine the level at which a student should begin German language study at The University of Iowa. Students with no background in German should begin their study with 013:011 (GRMN:1001) Elementary German I. Students using German to satisfy the World Languages requirement should talk with departmental advisors to determine which of these sequences is best for them.

Joint B.A./M.A.

The joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts program in German permits students to count 12 s.h. of approved course work toward both degrees and to take graduate-level German courses while they are still undergraduates. Students may complete both degrees in five years. They receive the B.A. when they have satisfied all requirements for the bachelor's degree, and they receive the M.A. when they have completed all master's degree requirements.

The joint B.A./M.A. is appropriate for students who enter the University from high school with advanced German language preparation. It is attractive to highly motivated students who plan to study abroad and who plan to pursue a Ph.D. in German or second language acquisition. It may serve as preparation for other programs, such as those related to international studies, library science, business with an international focus, or international relations.
Students seeking careers in teaching or other fields may pursue the joint degree as a credential.

Joint program students must fulfill all requirements for the B.A. They ordinarily spend two semesters in their junior year enrolled in the study abroad program at the University of Freiburg, in Germany (see “Study Abroad” below), unless they have satisfied this requirement another way (e.g., a year abroad during high school or another study abroad program with similar content).

During the last two semesters of their senior year, they may take up to 12 s.h. of graduate-level courses that count toward both degrees (for the B.A., 6 s.h. count as required courses and 6 s.h. count as electives). Once they complete all B.A. requirements, they complete the remaining M.A. requirements.

Students must maintain an undergraduate German g.p.a. of at least 3.50; if they fail to meet this standard for more than one semester, they may be required to leave the program. They must have an overall undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00 when they achieve graduate standing.

Applicants must be admitted to the joint program before the beginning of their seventh semester (senior year). They must be University of Iowa undergraduate students; must have completed 80 s.h. or be in the process of completing 90 s.h. of undergraduate work; and must have completed or be in the process of completing at least 21 s.h. of 100-level course work in the German major. They must have completed or be in the process of completing a study abroad program in a German-speaking country or have satisfied this requirement another way. They also must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in German when they apply to the program or a letter from a Department of German faculty member recommending an exception.

Students pay undergraduate tuition and fees during their first semester in the joint program (normally their seventh semester); beginning with their second semester in the program (normally their eighth semester), they begin paying graduate tuition and fees. Students may hold a graduate appointment beginning with their second semester in the joint program.

Study Abroad

The Department of German participates in an academic year abroad program for undergraduates at the Albert-Ludwigs Universität in Freiburg, Germany. The Freiburg program is offered by a consortium made up of Michigan State University, The University of Iowa, The University of Michigan, and The University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Students arrive during the first week of September and participate in a four-week intensive language program. Then they take a blend of special program classes and regular German university courses. Organized field trips are designed to give students a broader perspective on German culture. Vacation periods permit extensive travel throughout Europe, and students are encouraged to use weekends for shorter trips in the region.

To apply, students must have reached at least sophomore standing by the beginning of the program, must have completed at least the first four semesters of college German or the equivalent with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in German, and must be in good academic standing at a U.S. college or university.

Students earn resident credit in all courses successfully completed in the program. They may count up to 21 s.h. earned at Freiburg toward the major in German. Credit also counts toward the minor in German. Students in other majors should consult with their advisor or their department’s undergraduate director.

Contact the Department of German or International Programs Study Abroad for more information.

Graduate Program of Study

- Master of Arts in German (with or without thesis)

Advanced undergraduate students majoring in German may begin working toward a master’s degree in German while completing their bachelor’s degree; see “Joint B.A./M.A.” above.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts program in German requires a minimum of 33 s.h. of graduate credit. It is offered with or without thesis.

M.A. students choose one of two concentrations: German literature or Germanic linguistics. The German literature concentration requires seven literature courses (21 s.h.) and four linguistics courses (12 s.h.). The Germanic linguistics concentration requires seven linguistics courses (21 s.h.) and four literature courses (12 s.h.).

M.A. students are expected to complete at least 24 s.h. in the Department of German. All M.A. course work taken outside the department requires the graduate advisor’s approval.

Before taking the M.A. exam, students must demonstrate reading knowledge of a foreign language other than German, at a level equivalent to two years of college study or four years of high school study. Students may demonstrate competence by submitting proof that they have taken the required course work with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 or by passing an exam at the fourth-semester college level, as determined by the appropriate language department.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Teaching assistantships, research assistantships, and partial tuition scholarships are available for qualified graduate students. The department awards the Wilson and the Funke prizes to students of distinction.

Facilities and Resources

Students have the opportunity to improve their comprehension and command of German by working with recorded materials in the Language Media Center. They also may benefit from the multimedia courseware and digital video recordings from German television.

An extensive collection of works and periodicals at University of Iowa Libraries facilitates research in all major areas of German literature and Germanic linguistics and at all levels of study.
The Global Mosaic and Spoken Here Living-Learning Communities are two on-campus housing options of special interest to undergraduate world languages students.

Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

013:011 (GRMN:1001) Elementary German I 4 s.h.
Understanding and speaking "everyday German"; reading and writing skills; acquaintance with the German-speaking world through discussion, readings, videos. GE: World Languages First Level Proficiency.

013:012 (GRMN:1002) Elementary German II 4 s.h.

013:013 (GRMN:1020) Intensive Elementary German 4,6 s.h.
Elementary German I and II combined in one intensive course. GE: World Languages Second Level Proficiency.

013:014 (GRMN:1010) First-Year German Review 5 s.h.
Accelerated course in preparation for third-semester German. Requirements: at least two years of high-school German. GE: World Languages Second Level Proficiency.

013:021 (GRMN:2001) Intermediate German I 4 s.h.
Proficiency in spoken and written German; German-speaking cultures of central Europe, their historical background; emphasis on refinement of reading skills. Prerequisites: 013:012 (GRMN:1002) or 013:014 (GRMN:1010). GE: World Languages Second Level Proficiency.

013:022 (GRMN:2002) Intermediate German II 4 s.h.

013:025 (GRMN:2020) Intensive Intermediate German 4-6 s.h.

013:040 (GRMN:1040) German for Travelers 2 s.h.
Basic German skills for tourists; for students with no previous knowledge of German.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

013:100 (GRMN:4900) Individual German arr.
Requirements: German major or minor.

013:101 (GRMN:3501) Introduction to German Literature 3 s.h.
Literary works from various genres. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002).

013:103 (GRMN:3103) Composition and Conversation I 3 s.h.
Active command of German in reading, speaking, writing. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002).

013:104 (GRMN:3104) Composition and Conversation II 3 s.h.
Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002).

013:105 (GRMN:3405) German Cultural History 3 s.h.
Emphasis on mythical historical persons and places. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501) or 013:103 (GRMN:3103) or 013:104 (GRMN:3104).

013:107 (GRMN:3807) Introduction to German Linguistics 3 s.h.
Phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, historical development. Taught in German. Offered spring semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501) or 013:103 (GRMN:3103) or 013:104 (GRMN:3104).

013:114 (GRMN:3214) Business German 3 s.h.
World of German business, role of German-speaking countries in world trade; emphasis on German business protocol, correspondence. Taught in German. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002) or 013:025 (GRMN:2020).

013:115 (GRMN:4315) Contemporary German Civilization 3 s.h.
Government and political structure, economy, mass media, education, social and cultural life of Germany, Austria, Switzerland from the end of World War II to present. Taught in German. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501) or 013:103 (GRMN:3103) or 013:104 (GRMN:3104). GE: International and Global Issues.

013:116 (GRMN:4116) Advanced Composition and Conversation 3 s.h.
Speaking and writing. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:103 (GRMN:3103) and 013:104 (GRMN:3104). Requirements: German undergraduate standing.

013:122 (GRMN:3855) The Sounds of German 3 s.h.
Analysis of sounds and sound system of German; practice in listening and speaking. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002).

013:135 (GRMN:3250) Brief Texts About Big Events 3 s.h.
Twentieth-century German literature in context of major historical events. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:022 (GRMN:2002).

013:140 (GRMN:4540) Literature in Film 3 s.h.
Representative texts of German literature with film adaptations as specific readings. Taught in German. Corequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501), if not taken as a prerequisite.
013:141 (GRMN:3010) Stories in German 3 s.h.
Stories and other relatively short prose by representative authors; discussion and response; varied topics. Taught in German. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501).

Historical construction and fictional representation of women and men persecuted as witches and witchmasters in German-speaking countries. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501).

013:148 (GRMN:4587) Violence and Culture 3 s.h.
Violence viewed with a mixture of fear and fascination in modern German society, source of creation and destruction; how this is treated in literary, cinematic, and critical works from the 19th and 20th centuries; how violence is interpreted and evaluated in these works in social, political, psychological, and philosophical terms. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501).

013:150 (GRMN:4730) Beautiful Souls and Scandalous Writing 3 s.h.
Varied works of and about the 18th century; fairy tales, plays, short novels, poems, and other texts by authors such as Lichtenberg, Goethe, Naubert, Schiller, Schlegel, Sueskind; gender roles ascribed to women and men. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501).

013:152 (GRMN:4630) German Culture Before the Third Reich 3 s.h.
Introduction to self-consciously, avant-garde literature (drama, poetry, prose) and other art forms (film, music, visual arts) produced in Germany between 1910-1930; examination of various styles, including expressionism, Dadaism, new objectivity, surrealism; artistic innovation and cultural resonance. Prerequisites: 013:101 (GRMN:3501).

013:153 (GRMN:4589) Tyrants and Terror 3 s.h.
Introduction to literature and adaptations in film from 1750 to the present; artists’ and writers’ views of appalling events and historical figures; application of creative role playing to better understand structural and psychological components and describing and generating emotions; readings range from Schiller’s classical dramatization of the Wilhelm Tell myth to recent Nobel-prize winner Herta Mueller writing about communist Romania. Global Health Studies

Director
- Christopher Squier

Undergraduate minor: global health studies
Undergraduate certificate: global health studies
Graduate certificate: global health studies

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/global-health-studies

Study, research, and practice in global health places a priority on improving health and achieving equity in health for all people worldwide. Issues in the field include social determinants of health, health care disparities, infectious and noncommunicable diseases, environmental challenges, and human rights as well as economic development, health policy, and health systems.

The University of Iowa’s Global Health Studies Program examines the complex processes influencing health and disease around the world. It considers not only the manifestations of significant diseases and public health and health care systems, but also the underlying forces and institutions—such as technology, politics, culture, legal structure, history, and economics—that collectively influence patterns of health and disease.

The Global Health Studies Program equips its students to:

- identify the nature, magnitude, and distribution of factors that contribute to excess morbidity and mortality, including disparities in health status by gender, race, ethnicity, rural or urban location, and economic status;
- understand how trade, labor, food supply and sustainability, the environment, climate change and natural disasters, pharmaceuticals, international aid, human rights, and conflict may contribute to health status; and
- be aware of and able to assess the appropriateness of intervention strategies to promote health and to address major health problems, particularly in low resource settings, and to be able to evaluate the effectiveness and sustainability of such interventions.

The Global Health Studies Program attracts undergraduate, graduate, and professional students from a wide range of disciplines, including public health, health and pre-health sciences, health economics, nursing, social sciences, environmental engineering, anthropology, history, law, business, journalism, social work, and education.

Undergraduate and Graduate Programs of Study

- Certificate in Global Health Studies (undergraduate and graduate)
- Minor in global health studies (undergraduate)

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants the undergraduate certificate and minor; the Graduate College confers the graduate certificate.

Certificate

The Certificate in Global Health Studies requires 18 s.h. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

The undergraduate certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Undergraduates may earn the certificate or the minor in global health studies, but not both.

The graduate certificate is open to University of Iowa graduate and professional students.

Admission to the certificate program is competitive. Applicants must be in good academic standing and must be able to demonstrate interest in and understanding of the field of global health. For application forms and deadline information, see the Global Health Studies Program web site.

Work for the certificate includes core courses; electives; a health-related study or research project in an international setting, which culminates in a public presentation and report; and study of a language tied to the project. Students must earn at least 15 s.h. of credit for the certificate in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. They may choose courses offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses" below) and those offered by other departments and programs (see "Associated Courses" below).

Students may be granted credit toward the certificate for course work they completed up to two years before beginning the program. Graduate and professional students who would like to count credit from a degree program toward the global health studies certificate should consult their major academic programs.

The Certificate in Global Health Studies requires the following work.

CORE COURSES

All of these:

- 152:150 (GHS:3010) Research Design in Global Health (may be repeated for elective credit) 3 s.h.
- 152:151 (GHS:3020) Proseminar in Global Health 1 s.h.
- 152:152 (GHS:3030) Global Health Conference (may be repeated for elective credit) 1 s.h.
- 152:160 (GHS:3720) Global Health Seminar 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students complete 7 s.h. of approved electives chosen from the lists under "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below. They may petition to use other courses as electives if they can demonstrate that the courses include substantial material related to global health. Students may apply up to 3 s.h. of academic credit earned for research, internship, or study abroad experiences to the elective requirement. Contact the Global Health Studies Program for details.

INTERNATIONAL STUDY OR RESEARCH

Students must complete a study or research project of six to eight weeks’ duration in an international setting. They may develop and conduct a research project, participate in a health-related study abroad program, assist a faculty member with research, or complete an internship on a global/environmental health issue.
Projects require approval by the Global Health Studies Program steering committee and must be supervised by a faculty member. Students may apply for an international travel scholarship ($1,000); other financial support may be available for some projects. Visit the Global Health Studies Program web site for more information.

Language Study

Students should complete four semesters of modern language study or course work that fulfills or is equivalent to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306) World Languages requirement. Language study must be tied to the required international study or research experience in order to count toward the certificate. Students whose first language is not English may waive the certificate’s language requirement.

The Global Health Studies Program steering committee may require students to take additional language study in preparation for a research or internship program. Students interested in learning an infrequently taught language to facilitate their participation in an international experience should investigate International Programs’ Autonomous Language Learning Network (ALLNET).

Public Presentation and Report

During the semester following the international experience, students present their international research project results to a special session of 152:150 (GHS:3010) Research Design in Global Health or to an equivalent public forum, such as a departmental seminar. Students also must submit a two- to three-page project report summarizing their research, study abroad, or internship experiences.

Minor

The minor in global health studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.0 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may earn either the certificate or the minor in global health studies, but not both.

The minor is interdisciplinary, designed for undergraduates who wish to study health issues in a global context. Each student’s plan of study for the minor is developed according to the student’s interests and in consultation with a program advisor. Students may choose courses from those offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses" below) or by other departments and programs (see "Associated Courses" below); they should choose course work from at least two different disciplines. Students are strongly encouraged to include one of the core courses required for the Certificate in Global Health Studies in their plan of study for the minor. The program highly recommends that students complete a period of study abroad focused on global health issues.

Activities and Resources

The Global Health Studies Program organizes both on-campus and international activities and research opportunities for students and faculty members, enabling them to become acquainted with major global health issues. Several scholarships, academic fellowships, international fellowships, and research and study abroad programs supplement the global health studies certificate program. These are sponsored by the University and a variety of agencies. Contact the Global Health Studies Program for details.

Associated Courses

In addition to courses offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses" below), students may use the following courses to complete requirements for the certificate or minor.

AGING STUDIES
153:108 (ASP:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.

ANTHROPOLOGY
113:113 (ANTH:4140) The Anthropology of Women’s Health 3 s.h.

COMMUNITY AND BEHAVIORAL HEALTH
172:130 (CBH:5205) Social Determinants of Health 3 s.h.
172:150 (CBH:5220) Health Behavior and Health Education 3 s.h.

ECONOMICS
06E:113 (ECON:3180) Health Economics 3 s.h.

EDUCATION
07B:195 (EPLS:5195) Research in Cross-Cultural Settings 3 s.h.

OCCUPATIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH
175:197 (OEH:4240) Global Environmental Health 3 s.h.

PUBLIC HEALTH
170:101 (MPH:5100) Introduction to Public Health 3 s.h.

Courses

152:029 (GHS:1029) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Introduction to intellectual life of the University; opportunity to work closely with a faculty member or senior administrator; active participation to ease transition to college-level learning.

152:050 (GHS:2150) Natural Environmental Systems 3-4 s.h.
Environmental chemistry and biology of air, water, and soil quality, air and water pollution, limnology, global atmospheric change, fate and transport of pollutants; hazardous substances, risk analysis, standard setting. Prerequisites: 004:011 (CHEM:1110). Same as 053:050 (CEE:2150).

152:081 (GHS:1181) Ancient Medicine 3 s.h.
Thematic examination of theories and practices of Greco-Roman physicians, which in turn became the medical tradition of medieval Islamic world and European medicine until mid-19th century; historical medical terms, theories, and practices. GE: Historical Perspectives. Same as 20E:081 (CLSA:1181).

152:090 (GHS:2320) Anthropological Perspectives on Human Infectious Disease: Origins and Evolution 3 s.h.
Origin and evolution of important infectious diseases in human history; biological evolution of infectious agents and biocultural responses to emerging infectious diseases; primary focus on viruses and bacteria; selected world problems from an anthropological perspective; current dilemmas and those faced by diverse human groups in recent times and distant past. Same as 213:090 (ANTH:2320).

152:091 (GHS:2164) Culture and Healing for Future Health Professionals 3 s.h.
Health professions increasingly focused on how to best provide health care to culturally diverse populations; introduction to key cultural and social influences on sickness and healing; worldwide examples. Same as 113:091 (ANTH:2164).

152:107 (GHS:3070) Hungry Planet: Global Geographies of Food 3 s.h.
Societal and environmental implications of past, current, and future global food supply examined from a geographical perspective; focus on questions of who eats what, where, and why; transformative history of agriculture, modern agribusiness and alternative food supplies, geopolitical implications of food production, food scarcity and rising food costs, urban versus rural agriculture, the obesity epidemic versus malnutrition, and the future of food. Same as 044:107 (GEOG:3070).

152:111 (GHS:4210) International Health 3 s.h.
Urgent health problems in the developing world and among disadvantaged populations in developed countries; biological, social, cultural, political aspects of international health problems; applications of research methods from epidemiology, environmental health, social sciences. Same as 173:111 (EPID:4210), 175:111 (OEH:4210).

152:112 (GHS:4200) Global Environmental Health Policy 3 s.h.

152:119 (GHS:3040) Health in Mexico 3 s.h.
Use of anthropological perspectives to examine disease, healing systems, and ideas about health and the body in Mexico and its diaspora; relationships between structural conditions and historical and political transformations; ideas about gender and race; chronic and acute disease in Mexico; conquest and disease; racialized bodies; sexual health; biomedicine; shamanism; immigration and health; pollution and narcoviolence; readings in English. Same as 113:119 (ANTH:3111).

152:120 (GHS:4600) Global Health and Human Rights 2-3 s.h.
Requirements: sophomore or higher standing.

152:121 (GHS:3110) Health of Indigenous Peoples 3 s.h.
Health problems and services for indigenous populations worldwide, from perspective of Fourth World postcolonial politics. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101). Same as 113:121 (ANTH:3110), 149:121 (AINS:3110).

152:125 (GHS:4100) Topics in Global Health 1-3 s.h.

Introduction to providing service to a community in a less developed country; student projects intended to improve community life in Xicotepec. Requirements: P3 standing. Same as 046:126 (PHAR:8788), 053:126 (CEE:4788).

152:131 (GHS:4111) Geography of Health 3 s.h.
Provision of health care in selected countries, with particular reference to the Third World; focus on problems of geographical, economic, cultural accessibility to health services; disease ecology, prospective payment systems, privatization, medical pluralism. Same as 044:131 (GEOG:3110).

152:135 (GHS:4340) Global Health and Global Food 3 s.h.
Practices, patterns, and policies that contribute to the epidemics of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease in wealthy populations; environmental degradation, hunger, and malnutrition among impoverished populations; strategies to meet food and agricultural needs for the world; local/global aspects or perspectives on food/health concerns for Iowa and the international community. Same as 027:135 (HHP:4240).

152:137 (GHS:4160) History of Public Health 3 s.h.
State-endorsed measures to avert or control disease in society. Same as 16W:137 (HIST:4160).

152:138 (GHS:4162) History of Global Health 3 s.h.
Foremost problems of health and disease in colonial and postcolonial societies; topical approach. Same as 16W:138 (HIST:4162).

152:139 (GHS:4150) Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.
Applications of GIS and spatial analysis for studying health outcomes and exposure to environmental contaminants at different geographical scales. Same as 044:137 (GEOG:4150).

152:140 (GHS:4605) Disease, Politics, and Health in South Asia 2-4 s.h.
South Asia’s long-term success lengthening lives and stopping disease, weighed against its continuing burden of infection, violence, pollution, and class-based suffering. Same as 16W:140 (HIST:4605).

152:141 (GHS:4141) Design for the Developing World 3 s.h.
Experience working on interdisciplinary teams to solve problems of the developing world; technologies for improving water and sanitation, energy, housing, and health; community building strategies, participatory methods, other techniques essential to good design; service-learning component. Recommendations: junior or higher standing. Same as 053:141 (CEE:4141).

152:145 (GHS:3113) Religion and Healing 3 s.h.
152:147 (GHS:2181) The Anthropology of Aging 3 s.h.
Comparative anthropological perspective on aging; ethnographies from diverse contexts used to examine intersections of kinship, religion, health, and medicine in later life. Same as 113:147 (ANTH:2181), 153:181 (ASP:2181).

152:150 (GHS:3010) Research Design in Global Health 2-3 s.h.
Preparation for an international research project. Offered fall and spring semesters.

152:151 (GHS:3020) Proseminar in Global Health 1 s.h.
Important health problems and issues of a global and interrelated nature that affect the developed and developing world.

152:152 (GHS:3030) Global Health Conference 1 s.h.
Annual research conference on major global health issues.

152:153 (GHS:3050) Global Aging 3 s.h.
Demographic factors that contribute to the world wide phenomena of population aging in context of WHO Active Aging and the United Nation’s Principles for Older Persons frameworks. Same as 042:135 (SSW:3135), 153:135 (ASP:3135).

152:154 (GHS:3060) Studies in Complementary and Alternative Medicine 3 s.h.
Topics vary; may include studies in mind-body medicine; complementary and alternative medicine (CAM); group of medical and health care systems, practices, and products that are not considered to be part of conventional medicine; treatments used instead of standard ones (alternative treatments); nonstandard treatments used together with standard ones (complementary medicine); examples of CAM therapies (acupuncture, chiropractic, herbal medicines); approaches widely used in other parts of the world that may represent an important component of health care in a country (e.g., ayurvedic medicine in India).

152:155 (GHS:3555) Introduction to Africa for Health Sciences 3 s.h.
Cultural, historical, and political framework for the delivery of health care services in African nations. Recommendations: junior or higher standing. Same as 107:155 (IS:3555).

152:156 (GHS:3151) The Anthropology of the Beginnings and Ends of Life 3 s.h.
Examination of diverse understandings of birth and death, drawing on anthropological analysis of personhood, kinship, ritual, and medicine; how social inequality and new technologies shape human experience at life’s margins. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Same as 113:151 (ANTH:3151), 153:151 (ASP:3151).

152:158 (GHS:3850) Promoting Health Globally 3 s.h.
Major global health threats in the United States and abroad; impact of culture, history, economics on health disparities; approaches, programs, policies to remedy them. Requirements: junior or senior standing, or certificate student. Same as 027:176 (HHP:3850).

152:159 (GHS:4240) Media and Health 3 s.h.
Potential and limits of mass media’s ability to educate the public about health; research and theory on the influence of information and entertainment media; theories, models, assumptions of mass communication in relation to public health issues. Same as 019:160 (JMC:4825), 172:140 (CBH:4825).

152:160 (GHS:3720) Global Health Seminar 3 s.h.
Local and global dimensions of health and disease.

152:170 (GHS:3131) Health Care and Health Reforms in Russia 3 s.h.
Societal changes and their continuing effect on the Russian health care system since 1991; guest lectures from public health, nursing, medicine, cultural anthropology. Same as 041:104 (SLAV:3131).

Historical and contemporary aspects of U.S. governmental planning and policy on a wide range of energy issues in global context. Prerequisites: 044:019 (GEOG:1070), and 044:003 (GEOG:1020) or 012:008 (GEOG:1080). Same as 044:120 (GEOG:3780).

152:180 (GHS:3760) Hazards and Society 3 s.h.
Introduction to social science perspectives on societal responses to natural and technological hazards; risk perception and communication, disaster management, social vulnerability, and risk assessment; case studies of recent major disasters (e.g., Haiti earthquake, Tohoku earthquake/tsunami/nuclear accident, Hurricane Katrina); current directions in hazards research, policy, and practice. Same as 044:175 (GEOG:3760).

152:182 (GHS:4230) Health Experience of Immigrants, Migrants, and Refugees 3 s.h.

152:184 (GHS:5415) Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.
Anthropological contributions to and critiques of the international health enterprise; case studies illustrating anthropology and international health’s intersection, and their differences. Offered spring semesters. Same as 113:184 (ANTH:5415), 172:131 (CBH:5415).

152:185 (GHS:3102) Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.
Major theoretical, methodological approaches; international health and development; biomedicine as a cultural system; ethnomedicine; anthropology and AIDS, human reproduction, epidemiology, ethnopsychiatry. Prerequisites: 113:003 (ANTH:1101) or 113:010 (ANTH:2100). Same as 113:185 (ANTH:3102), 172:173 (CBH:5125).

152:191 (GHS:3191) Sustainable Development: India and the Global Context 3 s.h.
Introduction to development in India; critical examination of current discourses on domestic sociological, economic, and ecological environmental effects of the current model of development; taught in Mysore, India.

152:192 (GHS:3192) Environment and Health in Modern India 3 s.h.
Introduction to India’s environmental and health traditions; major contemporary scenarios; taught in Mysore, India.

Undergraduate majors: health and human physiology (B.A.); human physiology (B.S.); athletic training (B.S.)

Undergraduate minor: human physiology, physical activity and nutrition science

Graduate degrees: M.S. in health and human physiology; Ph.D. in health and human physiology

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/hhp/

The Department of Health and Human Physiology offers undergraduate majors and minors and graduate degree programs in health and human physiology and related areas. In addition, the department is home to the Health and Physical Activity Skills Program, which offers courses that provide instruction and practice in lifetime sports, fitness training, and wellness activities aimed at enhancing physical health and well-being. Undergraduates in all majors may use several health and human physiology courses to fulfill requirements of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). The department’s First-Year Seminar is designed for entering undergraduate students.

The department is the administrative home of the Leisure Studies Program, which offers undergraduate and graduate programs; see Leisure Studies (p. 421) in the Catalog.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in health and human physiology (Bachelor of Arts)
• Major in human physiology (Bachelor of Science)
• Major in athletic training (Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in human physiology
• Minor in physical activity and nutrition science

Students may complete a major in health and human physiology (B.A.) or a major in human physiology (B.S.), but not both.

Students majoring in health and human physiology (B.A.) or human physiology (B.S.) or athletic training (B.S.) may not earn the minor in human physiology or the minor in physical activity and nutrition science.

The Department of Health and Human Physiology is the administrative home of the Leisure Studies Program, which offers an undergraduate major and minor; see Leisure Studies (p. 421) in the Catalog.

Bachelor of Arts: Health and Human Physiology

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in health and human physiology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including work for the major, which varies by track. The health promotion track requires a total of 50-52 s.h. of work for the major; the health studies track requires 40-42 s.h. of work for the major; and the exercise science track requires 52-54 s.h. of work for the major. The health promotion track is intended for students seeking careers that promote wellness in the community and the workplace. The health studies track is designed for students who want a more flexible health science curriculum. The exercise science track is intended for students seeking careers as professionals in fitness and in strength and conditioning.

Students majoring in health and human physiology (B.A.) may not earn a second degree in human physiology (B.S.).

Admission to the health promotion track is selective; students must apply and be admitted. Applicants must have completed the three courses listed under "Science and Math Foundation" below (chemistry, biology, and mathematics or statistics) and must have a University of Iowa and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70. Students may apply during the semester in which they will complete the three science and math foundation courses required for application to the track. Application deadlines are October 1 for the following spring semester, March 1 for the following fall semester.
Admission to the health studies track and the exercise science track is open; students may enter either track without applying to it.

Students in all tracks are required to complete a set of common requirements as well as several courses required specifically for their track. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major in health and human physiology requires the following course work.

Common Requirements

Both tracks require the following science and math foundation (minimum of 10 s.h.) and the departmental core (15 s.h.).

SCIENCE AND MATH FOUNDATION

All students complete three foundation courses (minimum of 10 s.h.): one each in chemistry, biology, and mathematics or statistics.

Chemistry—one of these:

- 004:008 (CHEM:1080) General Chemistry II 3 s.h.
- 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.

Biology—one of these:

- 002:002 (BIOL:1141) Introductory Animal Biology 4 s.h.
- 002:021 (BIOL:1140) Human Biology 4 s.h.
- 002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology 4 s.h.

Mathematics or statistics—one of these:

- 07P:143 (PSQF:5143)/22S:145 Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 22M:009 (MATH:1020) Elementary Functions 4 s.h.
- 22M:015 (MATH:1440) Mathematics for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
- 22M:017 (MATH:1380) Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business 4 s.h.
- 22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I 5 s.h.
- 22S:010 (STAT:1030) Statistics for Business 4 s.h.
- 22S:025 (STAT:1020) Elementary Statistics and Inference 3 s.h.
- 22S:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

DEPARTMENTAL CORE

All students must complete the five-course departmental core (15 s.h.).

All of these:

- 027:039 (HHP:2200) Physical Activity and Health 3 s.h.
- 027:040 (HHP:2310) Nutrition and Health 3 s.h.
- 027:050 (HHP:1300) Fundamentals of Human Physiology 3 s.h.
- 027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
- 027:140 (HHP:3400) Fundamentals of Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.

Health Promotion Track Requirements

Health promotion track students complete the following health promotion core courses (16 s.h.) and guided electives (9 s.h.) in addition to the courses listed under "Common Requirements" above (math and science foundation and departmental core).

HEALTH PROMOTION CORE

All of these:

- 027:134 (HHP:4320) Nutrition Interventions 3 s.h.
- 027:136 (HHP:3200) Health Behavior and Health Promotion 3 s.h.
- 027:137 (HHP:3430) Community and Worksite Health Promotion 3 s.h.
- 027:156 (HHP:4420) Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions 3 s.h.

HEALTH PROMOTION GUIDED ELECTIVES

Students must complete at least 9 s.h. selected from the courses below, including at least 6 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above.

- 06A:001 (ACCT:2100) Introduction to Financial Accounting 3 s.h.
- 07C:185 (RCE:4185) Introduction to Substance Abuse 3 s.h.
- 019:160 (JMC:4825) Media and Health 3 s.h.
- 027:044 (HHP:2130) Human Development Through the Life Span 3 s.h.
- 027:110 (HHP:3100) Health Literacy 3 s.h.
- 027:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.
- 027:139 (HHP:4210) Musculoskeletal Exercise Testing and Prescription 3 s.h.
- 027:144 (HHP:3420) College Health Education 3 s.h.
- 027:147 (HHP:3440) Physical Activity and Healthy Communities 3 s.h.
- 027:151 (HHP:4390) Understanding Human Disease 3 s.h.
- 027:153 (HHP:4405) Health Promotion Community and Worksite Practicum (may be taken twice) 1 s.h.
- 027:152 (HHP:4400) Health Promotion Clinical Practicum (may be taken twice) 1 s.h.
- 027:176 (HHP:3850) Promoting Health Globally 3 s.h.
- 027:187 (HHP:4940) Health Promotion Honors Readings Seminar 1-2 s.h.
- 027:188 (HHP:4950) Health Promotion Honors Problems 3-4 s.h.
- 027:190 (HHP:4920) Health Promotion Preinternship Seminar 1 s.h.
- 027:191 (HHP:4930) Health Promotion Internship 6 s.h.
- 027:195 (HHP:4500) Undergraduate Independent Study 1 s.h.
- 153:108 (ASP:3008) Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.

Health Studies Track Requirements

In addition to completing the courses listed under "Common Requirements" above (math and science foundation and departmental core), health studies track students must earn at least 15 s.h. in courses chosen from the list below, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above.

- 027:044 (HHP:2130) Human Development Through the Life Span 3 s.h.
- 027:051 (HHP:1310) Human Physiology Laboratory 1 s.h.
- 027:054 (HHP:1110) Human Anatomy Laboratory 1 s.h.
- 027:076 (HHP:2500) Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.
- 027:117 (HHP:3300) Human Growth and Motor Development 3 s.h.
- 027:120 (HHP:3000) Equity Issues in the Health Sciences 3 s.h.
- 027:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.
- 027:131 (HHP:3030) Coaching for Health and Wellness 3 s.h.
- 027:143 (HHP:4440) Physiology of Nutrition 3 s.h.
Exercise Science Track Requirements

Exercise science track students complete the following exercise science core courses (19 s.h.) and guided electives (8 s.h.) in addition to the courses listed under "Common Requirements" above (math and science foundation and departmental core).

EXERCISE SCIENCE CORE

Bachelor of Science: Human Physiology

The Bachelor of Science with a major in human physiology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 60 s.h. of work for the major (26 s.h. in health and human physiology and 34 s.h. in required cognate courses).

The major in human physiology is designed primarily for individuals who intend to continue their education beyond the B.S. in the health professions, including medicine, dentistry, optometry, physician assistant, physical therapy, and podiatry, and for those who intend to pursue graduate degrees in basic life sciences. The program includes study in anatomy, biomechanics, physiology, neural control of movement, and the cognate areas of biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, and statistics.

Students majoring in human physiology (B.S.) may not earn a second degree in health and human physiology (B.A.).

Admission to the major is selective; students must apply and be admitted. Current University of Iowa students and transfer students may declare an interest in the human physiology major at any time and may apply to the major after completing 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I (one of the major’s required cognate courses). Students typically apply during spring semester of their first year or later; application deadline is February 1. Students are notified of admission in March, in time for early registration for fall semester.

Entering first-year students may be admitted to the major automatically upon their admission to The University of Iowa as College of Liberal Arts and Sciences students if they have an ACT composite score of 27 or higher (or an SAT critical reading and math score of 1210 or higher); have a high school g.p.a. of 3.70 or higher (4.00 scale); and expressed interest in the human physiology major on their application for admission to the University.

Once they have been admitted to the major, students complete required health and human physiology courses as well as cognates—supporting course work in subjects outside human physiology. Transfer credit for course work in the major requires the approval of the undergraduate academic advisor.

Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306). The department recommends that they fulfill General Education’s Natural Sciences requirement by taking 004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I, 004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II, and 002:031 (BIOL:1411) Foundations of Biology. It also recommends that they fulfill the Social Sciences requirement with 031:001 (PSY:1001) Elementary Psychology.

The major in human physiology requires the following course work.

PREREQUISITE TO ADMISSION TO THE MAJOR

Current University of Iowa students and transfer students must complete 004:011 (CHEM:1110) before they may be admitted to the major. The course is a required cognate (see "Courses for the Major: Cognates" below).

COURSES FOR THE MAJOR: HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY

All of these:

027:051 (HHP:1310) Human Physiology Laboratory 1 s.h.
027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
027:054 (HHP:1110) Human Anatomy Laboratory 1 s.h.
027:130 (HHP:3500) Human Physiology 3 s.h.

At least 18 s.h. from these:

002:114 (BIOL:2723) Cell Biology 3 s.h.
002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
002:177 (HHP:3450) Pharmacology 3 s.h.

These additional chemistry courses are highly recommended.

002:124 (BIOL:3343) Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
002:128 (BIOL:2512) Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.
002:143 (BIOL:3244) Animal Behavior 4 s.h.
002:145 (BIOL:2753) Introduction to Neurobiology 3 s.h.
002:150 (BIOL:2254) Endocrinology 3 s.h.
002:180 (BIOL:3253) Fundamental Neurobiology 4 s.h.
002:181 (BIOL:4353) Neurophysiology 3-4 s.h.
061:112 (MICR:3112) Pharmacy Microbiology 4 s.h.
061:147 (MICR:3147) Survey of Immunology 3 s.h.
061:157 (MICR:2157) General Microbiology 5 s.h.
061:164 (MICR:3164) Nursing Microbiology 4 s.h.
099:110 (BIOC:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOC:3120) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.

Students may count the following courses toward the human physiology requirement or the cognate requirement, but not toward both requirements:

Chemistry

Students must complete 004:011 (CHEM:1110) before they may register for 004:012 (CHEM:1120).

004:011 (CHEM:1110) Principles of Chemistry I (unless already taken for admission to the major) 4 s.h.
004:012 (CHEM:1120) Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.

These additional chemistry courses are highly recommended.

004:121 (CHEM:2210) Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.
004:122 (CHEM:2220) Organic Chemistry II 3 s.h.
004:141 (CHEM:2410) Organic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.

Mathematics

One of these:

22M:016 (MATH:1460) Calculus for the Biological Sciences 5 s.h.
22M:025 (MATH:1850) Calculus I (or a mathematics course numbered above 025) 5 s.h.

Physics

One of these sequences:

029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.
029:081 (PHYS:1611)-029:082 (PHYS:1612) College Physics I-II 8 s.h.

Statistics

At least 3 s.h. from these:

07P:143 (PSQF:5143) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
225:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
225:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

RECOMMENDED ELECTIVES

The department recommends that students choose from the following electives in order to complete the minimum of 120 s.h. required for a Bachelor of Science. Additional recommended courses in biology and chemistry are listed under "Courses for the Major: Cognates" above.

Anthropology:
213:190 (ANTH:3305) Human Osteology 3 s.h.

Biochemistry:
099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
099:120 (BIOL:3120) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.
099:130 (BIOL:3130) Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II 3 s.h.
099:140 (BIOL:3140) Experimental Biochemistry 2 s.h.

Chemistry:
004:111 (CHEM:3110) Analytical Chemistry I 3 s.h.
004:112 (CHEM:3120) Analytical Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Bachelor of Science: Athletic Training

The Bachelor of Science with a major in athletic training requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 55-56 s.h. of work for the major plus one prerequisite (1 s.h.) to course work for the major. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The major provides concentrated studies and clinical experiences that lead to national certification in athletic training. The Department of Health and Human Physiology collaborates with the Department of Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation (Carver College of Medicine) to offer the major.

Athletic trainers work with active patients, including athletes, to help prevent injuries, offer advice about appropriate equipment, recognize and evaluate injuries, administer emergency treatment, and determine need for specialized medical care. Athletic trainers also work as members of health care teams involved in postinjury rehabilitation.

Employment opportunities for graduates include work as health care professionals for sports medicine clinics and hospitals; these individuals often work with secondary school athletic teams. Additional education usually is required for employment with professional, college, and university athletic teams and for specialized areas of employment such as corporations and industry. Teacher certification is recommended but not required.

Admission to the major in athletic training is competitive; students must apply. They may be admitted as first-year students and begin clinical experience as sophomores. Applicants must have at least 11 s.h. of graded college credit (pass/fail credit does not count), including 027:096 (ATEP:1010) Exploring Athletic Training. given to applicants with high scholastic standing, strong writing skills, and varied athletic training and health care experience. A personal interview may be required; the athletic training program contacts applicants about interviews.

Fulfillment of admission requirements does not ensure admission to the athletic training major. The program selects candidates who appear to be best qualified for the study and practice of athletic training. Students denied admission to the major may reapply in a subsequent fall semester.

All students admitted to the major in athletic training are required to comply with entrance and periodic health screening history and immunization, which is coordinated through the program’s medical director.

Students who have not formally contacted the athletic training program director before enrolling at The University of Iowa should talk to an athletic training advisor or their academic advisor upon entering the University. Early advising for course selection is vital to ensure that students take prerequisites and sequenced skill development courses in the right order. Students should begin taking prerequisites for required major courses during their first year and should complete their final prerequisites after admission to the athletic training major.

For current information on rules, procedures, and curriculum, contact the athletic training program director.

The major in athletic training requires the following course work.

PREREQUISITE TO APPLICATION TO THE MAJOR

Students must complete this course before they apply for admission to the athletic training major.

027:096 (ATEP:1010) Exploring Athletic Training 1 s.h.

PREREQUISITES TO COURSE WORK FOR THE MAJOR

Students must complete the following courses (34-36 s.h.) as they begin course work for the major.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Students must be admitted to the health and human physiology or athletic training majors on schedule in order to complete a four-year graduation plan.

B.A.: Health and Human Physiology

Before the third semester begins: one foundation course, one other course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: at least five more courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six more courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree
Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S.: Human Physiology

Before the third semester begins: calculus, one other course in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: at least five more courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six more courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S.: Athletic Training

Before the third semester begins: three courses in the major

Before the fifth semester begins: six courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: nine courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester: 12 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the health and human physiology, human physiology, or athletic training major. Departmental honors students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in work for their major. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

In order to graduate with honors in the health and human physiology major, students must successfully complete a health and human physiology honors designation course, research practicum, teaching practicum, or service learning course. They must successfully complete 027:187 (HHP:4940) Health Promotion Honors Readings and 027:188 (HHP:4950) Health Promotion Honors Problems and must write an honors thesis, usually based on original research or creative work. They also must make an oral or poster presentation of the honors thesis in an approved venue, such as a department research seminar or a professional conference.

In order to graduate with honors in the human physiology major, students must complete the honors research course sequence 027:198 (HHP:4800) Honors Research I and 027:199 (HHP:4900) Honors Research II; write an honors thesis that is deposited with the University of Iowa Honors Program and is judged to be of honors quality; and make an oral presentation of their research and thesis that is judged to be of honors quality.

In order to graduate with honors in the athletic training major, students must complete the practicum course sequence 027:186 (ATEP:3030) Practicum in Athletic Training III and 076:187 (ORTH:4187) Practicum in Athletic Training IV. They also must write an honors thesis that is deposited with the University of Iowa Honors Program and is judged to be of honors quality.

Minor: Human Physiology

The minor in human physiology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Department of Health and Human Physiology courses, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 (3000) or above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit does not count toward the minor.

Students majoring in health and human physiology (B.A.), human physiology (B.S.), or athletic training (B.S.) may not earn the minor in human physiology.

Students choose courses for the minor from the following list. Enrollment in 027:132 (HHP:3510) Advanced Human Physiology Laboratory and 027:197 (HHP:4220) Biomechanics of Human Motion requires special permission. Some of these courses have prerequisites; students must complete all prerequisites for the courses they select for the minor.

Minor: Physical Activity and Nutrition Science

The minor in physical activity and nutrition science requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Department of Health and Human Physiology courses, including at least 9 s.h. in courses numbered 100 (3000) or above (intermediate or advanced). Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit does not count toward the minor.

Students majoring in health and human physiology (B.A.), human physiology (B.S.), or athletic training (B.S.) may not earn the minor in Physical Activity and Nutrition Science.

The minor in physical activity and nutrition science is designed in conjunction with the Obesity Research and Education initiative. The minor provides a specialized group of courses that unify concepts underlying the causes, consequences, treatment, and prevention of obesity, with attention to physical activity, nutrition, physiology, psychology, and human disease. Students who earn the minor will be prepared to apply their knowledge in areas such as clinical health professions, public health policy, personal coaching and fitness, health psychology, and health promotion.

For the minor, students complete three core courses plus two elective courses that focus on various facets of obesity and on its treatment and prevention. One of the core courses and both of the elective courses are at the intermediate or advanced level. Students choose electives in consultation with the undergraduate coordinator. Some courses for the minor have prerequisites, which students must complete before they may register for a course.

The minor in physical activity and nutrition science requires the following course work.

Core courses—students complete all of these:
027:039 (HHP:2200) Physical Activity and Health 3 s.h.
027:040 (HHP:2310) Nutrition and Health 3 s.h.
027:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.

Electives—students complete two courses from the following lists:
027:120 (HHP:3000) Equity Issues in the Health Sciences 3 s.h.
027:130 (HHP:3500) Human Physiology 3 s.h.
027:131 (HHP:3030) Coaching for Health and Wellness 3 s.h.
027:133 (HHP:4310) Sport and Exercise Nutrition 3 s.h.
027:135 (HHP:4340) Global Health and Global Food 3 s.h.
027:143 (HHP:4440) Physiology of Nutrition 3 s.h.
027:147 (HHP:3440) Physical Activity and Healthy Communities 3 s.h.
027:151 (HHP:4390) Understanding Human Disease 3 s.h.
027:174 (HHP:3650) Advanced Sport and Exercise Psychology 3 s.h.
027:175 (HHP:3655) Emotional and Psychological Aspects of Health 3 s.h.

Electives may include one of these:
027:140 (HHP:3400) Fundamentals of Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
027:141 (HHP:4410) Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.

The department is the administrative home for the Leisure Studies Program, which offers a Master of Arts program; see Leisure Studies (p. 421) in the Catalog.

Master of Science

The Master of Science program in health and human physiology requires 30-32 s.h. of graduate credit. Required credit varies by track: the athletic training track requires a minimum of 30 s.h. and is offered without thesis; the clinical exercise physiology track requires a minimum of 32 s.h. and is offered without thesis; the health and human physiology track requires a minimum of 30 s.h. and is offered with thesis.

Students interested in pursuing a Ph.D. after earning a master’s degree should choose the M.S. health and human physiology track (with thesis).

Athletic Training Track

The athletic training track provides an advanced clinical education and research area of study for certified athletic trainers. It focuses on a health care team approach to sports medicine, medical care management, wellness, pediatric/adolescent health, and special health populations. The program emphasizes application of established research findings to the wide variety of problems encountered in everyday practice.

In order to be admitted to the program, athletic trainers must have completed the following prerequisite course work and must hold the following certifications:
- anatomy (3-4 s.h.);
- human physiology (3 s.h.);
- athletic training core—prevention (3 s.h.), evaluation and recognition (3 s.h.), modalities (3 s.h.), rehabilitation (3 s.h.), administrative (2 s.h.);
- exercise science core—exercise physiology (3 s.h.), biomechanics (3 s.h.);
- current emergency certification; and
- Board of Certification (BOC) certification and state license.

The Master of Science with the athletic training track requires the following course work.

STATISTICS CORE

One of these:

225:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

EXERCISE SCIENCE CORE

Three of these:

027:133 (HHP:4310) Sport and Exercise Nutrition 3 s.h.
027:141 (HHP:4410) Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
027:143 (HHP:4440) Physiology of Nutrition 3 s.h.
027:145 (HHP:4460) Cardiovascular Physiology 3 s.h.
027:146 (HHP:4450) Genetic Basis of Disease 3 s.h.
027:148 (HHP:4470) Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
027:150 (HHP:4150) Clinical Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
027:154 (HHP:3110) Advanced Anatomy Laboratory 3 s.h.
027:155 (HHP:4130) Skeletal Muscle Physiology 3 s.h.
027:160 (HHP:4300) Neural Control of Posture and Movement 3 s.h.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Science in health and human physiology (with or without thesis)
- Doctor of Philosophy in health and human physiology
Clinical Exercise Physiology Core

All of these:

- 207:240 (HHP:6410) Advanced Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
- 207:245 (HHP:6460) Advanced Cardiovascular Physiology 1-3 s.h.
- 207:250 (HHP:6150) Advanced Clinical Exercise Physiology 1-3 s.h.
- 207:265 (HHP:6480) Advanced Human Pharmacology 3 s.h.

Two enrollments (1 s.h. each) chosen from these:

- 207:231 (HHP:6300) Seminar in Motor Control 1 s.h.
- 207:236 (EPID:6360) Nutrition Intervention in Clinical Trials Research 1 s.h.

Internship

Students complete an individually arranged internship, usually during their second year, earning 3 s.h. of credit.

Electives

Students choose elective courses that enhance their concentration in human and exercise physiology, clinical exercise physiology, prescriptive exercise and training for health and fitness, health maintenance, and understanding human disease. Students complete a minimum of two courses from the following list, with their advisor’s approval.

- 202:192 (BIOL:3743) Basic Biology of Human Disease 2 s.h.
- 207:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.
- 207:139 (HHP:4210) Musculoskeletal Exercise Testing and Prescription 3 s.h.
- 207:152 (HHP:4190) Scientific Basis of Training for Elite Performance 3 s.h.
- 207:174 (HHP:3650) Advanced Sport and Exercise Psychology 3 s.h.
- 207:248 (HHP:6470) Advanced Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
- 207:249 (HHP:6210) Epidemiology of Physical Activity 3 s.h.
- 207:255 (HHP:6130) Advanced Skeletal Muscle Physiology 1-3 s.h.
- 207:260 (HHP:7300) Advanced Neural Control of Posture and Movement 1-3 s.h.

Statistics Core

One of these:

- 225:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 225:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

Advanced Statistics

One of these:

- 225:148 (STAT:6513) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.

Clinical Research Tools

One approved clinical tool course in computer science, counseling, epidemiology, health promotion, leisure studies, nursing, or pathology.

Athletic Training Core

All of these:

- 207:301 (HHP:6010) Non-Thesis Seminar 2 s.h.

One of these:

- 07P:205 (PSQF:6205) Design of Instruction 3 s.h.
- 069:133 (PATH:8133) Introduction to Human Pathology for Graduate Students 4 s.h.
- 173:140 (EPID:4400) Epidemiology I: Principles 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students choose elective courses that enhance their concentration in medical care management, wellness, pediatric/adolescent health, or special health populations. Course selection must be approved by the advisor.

Clinical Exercise Physiology Track

The clinical exercise physiology track provides an advanced scientific and clinical education. It prepares students to be allied health professionals who work in the application of physical activity and behavioral interventions for clinical diseases and health conditions including cardiovascular, pulmonary, metabolic, orthopedic, neuromuscular, immunologic, and hematologic diseases.

In order to be admitted to the program, students must:

- hold a B.S. or B.A. with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00; and
- have completed anatomy and physiology with laboratories (8 s.h.).

The Master of Science with the clinical exercise physiology track requires the following course work.

Statistics Core

One of these:

- 225:101 (STAT:3510) Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 225:102 (STAT:5543) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 171:161 (BIOS:5110) Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

Advanced Statistics

One of these:

- 225:148 (STAT:6513) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.
Health and Human Physiology Track
The health and human physiology track requires a thesis. Students who intend to earn a Ph.D. after the master’s degree should choose this track. In order to be admitted to the program, students must:

- hold a B.S. or B.A. with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00; and
- have completed courses in anatomy and physiology with laboratory (8 s.h.) and basic physics (3 s.h.).

The Master of Science with the health and human physiology track requires the following work.

ADVANCED STATISTICS
One of these:

- 22S:148 (STAT:6513) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 096:338 (NURS:7002) Designing Research 3 s.h.
- 096:344 (NURS:7003) Quantitative Research 4 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.

RESEARCH METHODS
One of these:

- 07X:150 (EALL:5150) Introduction to Educational Research 3 s.h.
- 096:338 (NURS:7002) Designing Research 3 s.h.
- 096:344 (NURS:7003) Quantitative Research 4 s.h.
- 169:205 (LEIS:5205) Research Methods and Leisure Behavior 3 s.h.

SEMINAR COURSES
Four enrollments (1 s.h. each) chosen from these:

- 027:241 (HHP:6400) Integrative Physiology Seminar 1 s.h.
- 027:296 (HHP:6500) Seminar in Health Promotion 1 s.h.
- 027:314 (HHP:6300) Seminar in Motor Control 1 s.h.

THESIS
Both of these:

- 027:404 (HHP:7500) Thesis: M.S. 4 s.h.
- 650:270 (GRAD:7270) Principles of Scholarly Integrity 0 s.h. (takes two semesters to complete)

ELECTIVES
Students choose elective courses that broaden their knowledge in health and human physiology and related disciplines and that enhance their knowledge in their specific areas of interest. Students choose electives with guidance from their advisor/mentor. Electives may include the following:

- 027:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.
- 027:139 (HHP:4210) Musculoskeletal Exercise Testing and Prescription 3 s.h.
- 027:159 (HHP:4190) Scientific Basis of Training for Elite Performance 3 s.h.
- 027:174 (HHP:3650) Advanced Sport and Exercise Psychology 3 s.h.
- 027:201 (HHP:6000) Research arr.
- 027:238 (HHP:6200) Advanced Metabolic Exercise Testing and Prescription 4 s.h.
- 027:240 (HHP:6410) Advanced Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
- 027:245 (HHP:6460) Advanced Cardiovascular Physiology 1-3 s.h.
- 027:248 (HHP:6470) Advanced Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
- 027:249 (HHP:6210) Epidemiology of Physical Activity 3 s.h.
- 027:250 (HHP:6150) Advanced Clinical Exercise 1-3 s.h.
- 027:255 (HHP:6130) Advanced Skeletal Muscle Physiology 1-3 s.h.
- 027:260 (HHP:7300) Advanced Neural Control of Posture and Movement 1-3 s.h.
- 027:265 (HHP:6480) Advanced Human Pharmacology 3 s.h.
- 060:203 (ACB:5203) Gross Human Anatomy for Graduate Students 6 s.h.
- 072:153 (MPB:5153) Graduate Physiology 4 s.h.
- 099:110 (BIOL:3110) Biochemistry 3 s.h.
- 101:212 (PTRS:7812) Biomedical Instrumentation and Measurement 3 s.h.
- 101:275 (PTRS:7875) Analysis of Movement Control Systems in Health and Disease 3 s.h.
- 172:150 (CBH:5220) Health Behavior and Health Education 3 s.h.
- 173:140 (EPID:4400) Epidemiology I: Principles 3 s.h.

- 173:241 (EPID:5241) Statistical Methods in Epidemiology 3 s.h.
- 173:260 (EPID:6600) Epidemiology of Chronic Diseases 3 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program in health and human physiology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit.

Doctoral students should have a strong background in the natural sciences and/or health promotion, and a working knowledge of statistics and research methodology. Students may acquire additional knowledge of statistics and research methodology after entering the program.

All Ph.D. students complete a common core of courses, scientific area courses, courses in their specialization, and 10 s.h. of independent research in addition to the dissertation requirement. They must complete a dissertation in their specialization area and must submit an appropriate manuscript of the dissertation to a refereed professional journal for publication.

Some courses in the program are offered by other departments. Faculty members from those departments frequently serve on comprehensive examination committees and on dissertation committees for the initial presentation of a candidate’s prospectus. They also participate in the final examination.

The Doctor of Philosophy requires the following course work.

COMMON CORE
All of these:

- 22S:148 (STAT:6513) Intermediate Statistical Methods 4 s.h.
- 027:201 (HHP:6000) Research 10 s.h.
- 027:405 (HHP:7900) Thesis: Ph.D. 12 s.h.
- 171:162 (BIOS:5120) Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.
SEMINAR COURSES

Four enrollments (1-2 s.h. each) chosen from these:

SCIENTIFIC AREA COURSES

Students obtain a breadth of knowledge over the key scientific areas that constitute the basis of the major by completing at least three courses outside of their specialization area.

SPECIALIZATION ELECTIVES

Students are expected to obtain broad-based knowledge in their specialization area. This normally entails approximately 30 s.h. of course work. Students choose specialization electives with guidance from their advisor/mentor. Electives may include the following.

Admission

Admission to the department's graduate programs is based on grade-point average and score on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. Applicants to the M.S. program must have an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Applicants to the Ph.D. program must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 on undergraduate work and previous graduate work.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Application deadline is February 1 for admission the following fall semester.

Facilities

Classroom and research laboratories are located in the Field House and in other buildings on campus. They provide excellent facilities for instruction and research at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Cooperative efforts with other units facilitate specialization by allowing health and human physiology students to use additional special facilities and research equipment in other departments on campus (e.g., biology, biochemistry, molecular physiology and biophysics, orthopaedic surgery, internal medicine, pharmacology, and the College of Engineering).

Exercise standards, guidelines for aerobic/exercise instructors; aerobic workout components, contraindicated exercises, injury prevention and treatment. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200).
American Red Cross certification: basic first aid, CPR procedures.

027:036 (ATEP:2010) Practicum in Athletic Training I 2 s.h.
Basic clinical skill instruction, evaluation, and integration for athletic trainers. Requirements: athletic training major.

027:037 (ATEP:2020) Practicum in Athletic Training II 2 s.h.
Integration of basic physical skills and orientation to traditional settings; clinical experience for first-year students arranged through the athletic training program. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:036 (ATEP:2010).

027:039 (HHP:2200) Physical Activity and Health 3 s.h.
Physical activity determinants in society; school, workplace, community-based health promotion interventions to improve activity levels. GE: Values, Society, and Diversity.

027:040 (HHP:2310) Nutrition and Health 3 s.h.
Physiology, biochemistry of human nutrition; appropriate food sources; qualitative and quantitative evaluation of diets using standard references. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

027:044 (HHP:2130) Human Development Through the Life Span 3 s.h.
Overview of human developmental theories across the life-span; aspects of cognitive, physical, and personality development from birth to death; the role of culture, environment, health, and economic factors over the developmental process and life continuum.

027:050 (HHP:1300) Fundamentals of Human Physiology 3 s.h.
Introduction to function and regulation of the human body. Recommendations: high school chemistry and basic biology. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

027:051 (HHP:1310) Human Physiology Laboratory 1 s.h.
Introductory laboratory course illustrating principles of human physiology through fundamental experimental measurements and computer simulation. Recommendations: one semester of biology.

027:053 (HHP:1100) Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
General human anatomy covering most systems of the body. GE: Natural Sciences without Lab.

027:054 (HHP:1110) Human Anatomy Laboratory 1 s.h.
All major systems of the human body, understood through computer-generated images, models, histological slides, anatomical specimens. GE: Natural Sciences Lab only.

027:056 (ATEP:1000) First Aid and CPR 2 s.h.
American Red Cross certification: basic first aid, CPR procedures.

027:057 (ATEP:2030) Basic Athletic Training 3 s.h.
Basic pathology, epidemiology, materials biology for prevention and immediate care of athletic injuries.

027:076 (HHP:2500) Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.
Psychological theory and research related to sport and physical activity; motivation, aggression, attribution, socialization, competitive anxiety, leadership.

Exploration of professional preparation for athletic trainers; application, career opportunities, professional organizations, awareness of basic athletic training principles.

027:109 (HHP:3005) Scientific Reasoning 3 s.h.
Patterns of reasoning useful for understanding and evaluating scientific evidence, theory, controversy; historical and contemporary examples from the physical, biological, behavioral, biomedical sciences. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

027:110 (HHP:3100) Health Literacy 3 s.h.
Community and clinical issues related to health literacy; focus on understanding individual and systemic factors that influence health literacy, including education, context, culture, and health care systems. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:117 (HHP:3300) Human Growth and Motor Development 3 s.h.
Human growth and biological maturation; focus on motor development from birth through puberty. Offered fall semesters. Recommendations: prior course in anatomy, human physiology, or biology.

027:120 (HHP:3000) Equity Issues in the Health Sciences 3 s.h.
 Examination of equity issues in the health sciences, including a review of the historical challenges that led to Human Subjects Review Boards, FDA oversight of drug development and clinical trials, inclusion of women in research; effect of situational ethics in the workplace; potential danger of making assumptions about clients/patients; importance of developing an inclusive communication style; assessing the effectiveness of family-friendly employment policies in providing equitable opportunities for career advancement for both women and men. Recommendations: junior or senior standing. Same as 145:120 (INTD:3020).

027:125 (HHP:3010) Contemporary Nutrition 3 s.h.
Introduction to nutrition; importance of understanding food choices and diet to fit individual needs. Same as 145:125 (INTD:3025).

027:127 (HHP:3020) Nutrition for Health, Fitness, and Sport 3 s.h.
Effects of exercise and nutrition on health- and sports-related fitness; for professionals in health and physical education. Same as 145:127 (INTD:3027).

027:131 (HHP:3030) Coaching for Health and Wellness 3 s.h.
Opportunities to expand knowledge and develop skills to help individuals change behavior and meet health-related goals; general health and wellness principles; principles and techniques for change; experience providing health-coaching services to clients. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310). Same as 145:130 (INTD:3030).

027:134 (HHP:4320) Nutrition Interventions 3 s.h.
Strategies that assist in assessment and evaluation of nutrition behaviors of individuals and groups; interventions to meet nutritional needs of individuals and groups with a variety of health issues. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310). Requirements: admission to health promotion track.

027:135 (HHP:4340) Global Health and Global Food 3 s.h.
Practices, patterns, and policies that contribute to the epidemics of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease in wealthy populations; environmental degradation, hunger, and malnutrition among impoverished populations; strategies to meet food and agricultural needs for the world; local/global aspects or perspectives on food/health concerns for Iowa and the international community. Same as 152:135 (GHS:4340).

027:136 (HHP:3200) Health Behavior and Health Promotion 3 s.h.
Principles of epidemiology and health behavior theories applied to multilevel frameworks for health promotion. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:137 (HHP:3430) Community and Worksite Health Promotion 3 s.h.
Management and organizational theories; assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of clinical and work-setting (targeted) health promotion programs. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

Basic techniques in physical fitness assessment, prescription of exercise for healthy and unhealthy adults, promotion of physical activity within communities; provides knowledge and skill competencies required for certification as American College of Sports Medicine health fitness instructor. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200). Corequisites: 027:140 (HHP:3400) or 027:141 (HHP:4410). Requirements: admission to health promotion program.

027:139 (HHP:4210) Musculoskeletal Exercise Testing and Prescription 3 s.h.

027:144 (HHP:3420) College Health Education 3 s.h.
Foundation of theories and models that guide health behavior change in college settings; how health issues apply to individuals and to communities to which they belong; practical experience in planning, implementing, and evaluating health programs. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:147 (HHP:3440) Physical Activity and Healthy Communities 3 s.h.
Development, implementation, evaluation of effective health communication interventions; identification of health education resources for targeted groups. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:152 (HHP:4400) Health Promotion Clinical Practicum 1 s.h.
Experience in planning and implementing clinical health promotion programs focusing on nutrition, physical fitness, cardiac rehabilitation, and respiratory rehabilitation. Prerequisites: 027:136 (HHP:3200) and 027:138 (HHP:4200).

027:156 (HHP:4420) Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions 3 s.h.
Assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of health promotion programs. Prerequisites: 027:136 (HHP:3200). Requirements: admission to Health and Human Physiology health promotion program.

027:174 (HHP:3650) Advanced Sport and Exercise Psychology 3 s.h.
Application of sport and exercise psychological theory; theoretical and practical experience using psychological skills training for sport and exercise. Corequisites: 027:076 (HHP:2500).

027:176 (HHP:3850) Promoting Health Globally 3 s.h.
Major global health threats in the United States and abroad; impact of culture, history, economics on health disparities; approaches, programs, policies to remedy them. Requirements: junior or senior standing, or certificate student. Same as 152:158 (GHS:3850).

027:187 (HHP:4940) Health Promotion Honors Readings 1-2 s.h.
First step to complete an honors thesis; work with health and human physiology faculty member; comprehensive readings in a specific area (e.g., obesity in children, disabilities and sport); readings include primarily research reviews, popular press, and editorials; production of an annotated bibliography summarizing readings and presentation to faculty member at end of semester; brief research proposal summarizing background, research questions, and methods of selected area.

027:188 (HHP:4950) Health Promotion Honors Problems 3-4 s.h.
Continuation of 027:187 (HHP:4940); original research or creative project supervised by a faculty member.

027:190 (HHP:4920) Health Promotion Preinternship Seminar 1 s.h.
Preparation for internship experience.

027:191 (HHP:4930) Health Promotion Internship 3 s.h.
Directed practical field experience; program planning, implementation, evaluation, administrative procedures. Prerequisites: 027:134 (HHP:4320), 027:138 (HHP:4200), 027:139 (HHP:4210), 027:156 (HHP:4420), and 027:190 (HHP:4920).
027:198 (HHP:4800) Honors Research I 2 s.h.
Research for honors thesis; selection of faculty mentor, preparation of research proposal, written and oral presentations of research proposal, literature review, participation in experiments designed to develop laboratory skills for research, work with an active research tenure-track faculty member in a laboratory; first of a two-semester sequence. Requirements: honors standing.

027:199 (HHP:4900) Honors Research II 3 s.h.
Completion of honors research begun in 027:198 (HHP:4800), analysis of data, writing and oral presentation of honors thesis, work with an active research tenure-track faculty member in a laboratory; second of a two-semester sequence. Requirements: honors standing and grade of B or higher in 027:198 (HHP:4800).

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

027:128 (HHP:3050) Obesity: Causes, Consequences, Prevention, and Treatment 3 s.h.
In-depth overview of biological, behavioral, and societal causes and consequences of obesity epidemic; potential solutions from primary and secondary prevention standpoints; causes of obesity, available treatments, and global impact that obesity epidemic presents to society. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:130 (HHP:3500) Human Physiology 3 s.h.
Organ system approach to physiology; focus on normal function of human body; information on all levels of integration from submolecular to whole organism; emphasis on how intact organism functions. Prerequisites: 002:021 (BIOL:1140) or 002:031 (BIOL:1411) or 027:050 (HHP:1300), and 004:007 (CHEM:1070) or 004:011 (CHEM:1110).

027:132 (HHP:3510) Advanced Human Physiology Laboratory 3 s.h.
Fundamental laboratory measurements; major physiological systems, experimental design, presentation of experimental data. Corequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500), if not taken as a prerequisite.

027:133 (HHP:4310) Sport and Exercise Nutrition 3 s.h.
Relationship between nutrition, fitness and sport performance; basic nutrition, physiology, chemistry, psychology, food preparation. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310).

027:140 (HHP:3400) Fundamentals of Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
Effects of acute exercise and chronic exercise training on different physiological systems (energy, neuromuscular, circulatory, respiratory, endocrine); overview of physiological principles necessary for more advanced study of fitness evaluation and exercise prescription; preparation for ACSM certification. Prerequisites: 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500). Recommendations: at least one prior human physiology course.

027:141 (HHP:4410) Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
Mechanisms responsible for the acute and chronic effects of exercise on the different organ systems of the body. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:142 (HHP:4430) Exercise Physiology Laboratory 2 s.h.
Supplements 027:141 (HHP:4410); principles of scientific investigation used to demonstrate acute and chronic effects of exercise.

027:143 (HHP:4440) Physiology of Nutrition 3 s.h.
Metabolic and biological aspects of human energy production, relationship to energy consumption; systems or integrative approach.

027:145 (HHP:4460) Cardiovascular Physiology 3 s.h.

027:146 (HHP:4450) Genetic Basis of Disease 3 s.h.
Changes in single molecules that lead to systemic physiological alterations in mammals; relationship of these changes to development, aging, exercise, and specific diseases; current methodologies for studying mammalian genetics and physiology. Prerequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:148 (HHP:4470) Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
Aging’s effects on cells, tissues, and organs; how aging influences function of major body organ systems and the whole organism; physiological mechanisms that underlie age-related changes in body function and performance; integrative approach with focus on human aging. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100) and 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:150 (HHP:4150) Clinical Exercise Physiology 3 s.h.
Recent advances in exercise physiology for clinical populations; emphasis on acute and chronic responses to exercise in healthy aged adults and in patients with cardiac, vascular, pulmonary, and metabolic diseases; basic and intermediate electrocardiography (ECG), pathophysiology of disease process, clinical assessment of disease severity, diagnostic testing, acute exercise responses, and exercise rehabilitation. Prerequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500) and 027:141 (HHP:4410). Recommendations: 027:145 (HHP:4460).

027:151 (HHP:4390) Understanding Human Disease 3 s.h.
Introduction to process of human disease at cell, organ, and whole body level throughout the lifespan; pathophysiological changes occurring with disease, including risk factors, disease development, and overall effects of disease on the body; cancer, diabetes, obesity, cardiovascular, neurodegenerative diseases, and aging. Prerequisites: 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:153 (HHP:4405) Health Promotion Community and Worksite Practicum 1 s.h.
Planning and implementing community and worksite health promotion programs. Prerequisites: 027:136 (HHP:3200) and 027:138 (HHP:4200).

027:154 (HHP:3110) Advanced Anatomy Laboratory 3 s.h.
Detailed gross anatomy of all major systems of the body; structure of the human body at organ, tissue, and cellular levels; examination of various human and other mammalian specimens. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100) and 027:054 (HHP:1110).

027:155 (HHP:4130) Skeletal Muscle Physiology 3 s.h.
Skeletal muscle structure, contractile mechanisms, production of movement, biomechanical properties; adaptation to increased use, disuse, injury. Offered spring semesters.

027:158 (HHP:4230) Motor Learning: Theory and Application 3 s.h.
How skilled motor behavior is acquired; behavioral changes that occur during skill acquisition; structural and physiological changes that occur in central nervous system; principles of training and practice that yield efficient and effective motor learning; how this information is helpful to health professionals involved in motor rehabilitation, physical educators and coaches, music instructors and musicians, strength and conditioning professionals, fitness professionals, and athletes, among others. Prerequisites: 027:050 (HHP:1300). Recommendations: familiarity with basic neuroscience (neurons, synaptic transmission, basic anatomical organization of sensory and motor systems).

027:159 (HHP:4190) Scientific Basis of Training for Elite Performance 3 s.h.
Application of scientific principles to goal of improving strength, speed, endurance, and overall human function; general overview of structure and function of muscular, nervous, cardiovascular, and respiratory systems; bioenergetics of exercise; endocrine response to exercise; biomechanics of resistance exercise; adaptations to anaerobic and aerobic training programs; age and sex related considerations on training; nutrition and ergogenic aids. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100), and 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:160 (HHP:4300) Neural Control of Posture and Movement 3 s.h.
Neuroanatomical and neurophysiological bases of human motor control; mechanisms for locomotion and posture, control of arm and hand movements, role of sensory information. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: anatomy or human physiology course.

027:161 (HHP:4250) Human Pathophysiology 3 s.h.
In-depth study of human pathological processes and their effects on homeostasis; etiology, symptoms, and risk factors of various diseases; emphasis on major diseases impacting worldwide disability and death; how pathological processes are manifested and progress in the body. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100) and 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:162 (HHP:4415) Exercise Science Practicum 1 s.h.
Experience in planning and implementing exercise programs related to physical fitness, including strength and conditioning in healthy and diseased/injured populations, and in elite athletes. Prerequisites: 027:138 (HHP:4200) and 027:139 (HHP:4210).

027:165 (HHP:4480) Introduction to Human Pharmacology 3 s.h.
General pharmacology (e.g., administration, distribution, and elimination of drugs, dose response curves, adverse effects, placebos, homeopathy); pharmacotherapy of selected human diseases, pathophysiologic aspects of the disease, how different classes of drugs modify pathophysiologic effects to restore health or reduce disease's impact; focus on mechanisms of drug actions in humans; adverse effects, pharmacokinetic considerations, drug interactions; how to write prescriptions. Prerequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:170 (HHP:3860) Leadership Theory for Health and Fitness 3 s.h.
Theories and applications of current scholarship in group and individual leadership relevant for health, sport, fitness, and exercise leadership; areas of study include group dynamics, humanist leadership, leader-member exchange theory, transformational leadership, contingency/reinforcement leadership models, path-goal leadership, and multi-dimensional leadership models; approaches to leadership contextualized to build skills in cultural competence and ethics of leadership.

027:171 (ATEP:4010) Administration of Athletic Training Programs 2 s.h.
Health care supervision, professional athletic training responsibilities, philosophies in athletic health care. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:057 (ATEP:2030).

027:172 (ATEP:2040) Clinical Sciences I 2 s.h.
Theoretical knowledge base in therapeutic modalities. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:036 (ATEP:2010).

027:175 (HHP:3655) Emotional and Psychological Aspects of Health 3 s.h.
Interfaces among emotional, psychological, and physical aspects of health; examination of how individuals with healthy psychological profiles engage in health behaviors; health-related implications of negative emotional and psychological states; strategies for promoting healthy psychological patterns; designed for health promotion, health studies students, and others interested in health-related careers. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200).

027:177 (HHP:3450) Immunology in Health and Disease 3 s.h.
Overview of immunology, beginning at the molecular level and ending with the role of the immune system in disease: fundamental concepts of the immune system, innate and adaptive immunity, focusing on cell-mediated and humoral immune responses, in addition to effector mechanisms in both of these responses; concepts of immunologic tolerance; autoimmune disease; immunodeficiency syndromes; the inflammatory process in disease. Prerequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:180 (ATEP:2060) Advanced Emergency Care for Athletic Trainers 1-2 s.h.
Coordinated initial professional emergency response certifications for athletic trainers; recertification for those holding valid certifications. Requirements: Red Cross First Aid and CPR certifications.
027:182 (ATEP:3010) Clinical Sciences III 3 s.h.
Theoretical and practical skill development in the areas of musculoskeletal evaluation for ankle, knee, shoulder, and upper extremity. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:172 (ATEP:2040). Requirements: athletic training major.

027:183 (ATEP:3040) Clinical Sciences IV 3 s.h.
Continuation of musculoskeletal evaluation, completion of EENT, chest, abdomen, and dermatologic evaluation; integration of rehabilitation programs. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:182 (ATEP:3010).

027:184 (ATEP:5010) Seminar in Athletic Training 1-4 s.h.
Educational issues faced by approved clinical instructors in athletic training education programs. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: graduate standing.

027:185 (ATEP:3020) Clinical Sciences V: Rehabilitation 2 s.h.

027:186 (ATEP:3030) Practicum in Athletic Training III 3 s.h.
Advanced clinical skill instruction, evaluation, and integration for athletic trainers. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:037 (ATEP:2020).

027:192 (HHP:4490) Diagnosing Diseases: Patient History and Physical Examination 3 s.h.
Different diseases studied by interacting with patients at Meenakshi Mission Hospital and Research Center in Madurai, India; formal lectures in mornings followed by bedside teaching in afternoons and grand rounds in evenings; for pre-health professional students.

027:193 (HHP:4935) Clinical Exercise Physiology Internship 3,6 s.h.
Directed practical field experience; program planning, implementation, evaluation, and administrative procedures.

Library or laboratory research related to a specific topic in human physiology, normally culminating with a written manuscript; work directed by a faculty member.

027:197 (HHP:4220) Biomechanics of Human Motion 3 s.h.
Application of the principles of mechanics to investigation of human motion in two dimensions; system modeling, force system and equilibrium analysis, particle and rigid body kinematics, Newton’s and Euler’s equations of motion, work-energy and impulse-momentum integral principles. Offered spring semesters.

Primary for Graduate Students

027:201 (HHP:6000) Research 1,3 s.h.
Research and interpretation of studies, selection of measures to fit research questions. Same as 173:245 (EPID:6245).

027:202 (HHP:7000) Practicum in College Teaching arr.

027:238 (HHP:6200) Advanced Metabolic Exercise Testing and Prescription 1,4 s.h.
Basic techniques in physical fitness assessment; prescription of exercise for healthy and unhealthy adults; promotion of physical activity within communities; knowledge and skill competencies required for certification as American College of Sports Medicine health fitness instructor. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200), and 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:240 (HHP:6410) Advanced Exercise Physiology 1,3 s.h.
Mechanisms responsible for acute and chronic effects of exercise on different organ systems of the body. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:050 (HHP:1300) or 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:241 (HHP:6400) Integrative Physiology Seminar 1 s.h.
Current topics in cardiovascular physiology, vascular biology, free radical biology.

027:244 (HHP:6220) Seminar in Health and Physical Activity Behavior 3 s.h.
Health behavior theories and their relevance to individual, interpersonal, and community-wide health promotion interventions.

027:245 (HHP:6460) Advanced Cardiovascular Physiology 1,3 s.h.

027:248 (HHP:6470) Advanced Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
Effects of aging on cells, tissues, and organs; how aging influences function of major body organ systems and the whole organism; physiological mechanisms that underlie age-related changes in body function and performance; integrative approach with focus on human aging. Prerequisites: 027:053 (HHP:1100) and 027:130 (HHP:3500).

027:249 (HHP:6210) Epidemiology of Physical Activity 3 s.h.
Physical activity/disease relationships examined through application of epidemiologic methods, including research design, interpretation of studies, selection of measures to fit research questions. Same as 173:245 (EPID:6245).

027:250 (HHP:6150) Advanced Clinical Exercise Physiology 1,3 s.h.
Recent advances in exercise physiology for clinical populations; emphasis on acute and chronic responses to exercise in healthy aged adults and in patients with cardiac, vascular, pulmonary, and metabolic diseases; basic and intermediate electrocardiography (ECG), pathophysiology of disease process, clinical assessment of disease severity, diagnostic testing, acute exercise responses, and exercise rehabilitation. Prerequisites: 027:130 (HHP:3500) and 027:141 (HHP:4410). Recommendations: 027:145 (HHP:4460).

Undergraduate major: history (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: history
Graduate degrees: M.A. in history; Ph.D. in history
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/history

The Department of History’s purpose is to increase knowledge of human experience and provide students with opportunities to gain information about and learn methods for understanding their world in light of its past. In addition to offering these essential elements of a liberal education, the department trains professional historians and teachers of history and serves those who require knowledge of a period or aspect of history as background for their own specialized interests in other fields.

Faculty and students in the department participate in many of the University’s interdisciplinary departments and programs, including American studies, African American studies, ancient civilizations, Asian studies, international studies, Latin American studies, and gender, women’s, and sexuality studies.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in history (Bachelor of Arts)
- Minor in history

Students who major in history work in a variety of positions in business, education, public service, advertising, and journalism after graduation. Many go on to graduate study in history, law, religion, library and information science, or social work.

History majors are encouraged to take courses in other fields that illuminate and expand the meaning of history courses and that introduce information and a variety of approaches to understanding how societies and cultures work.

For example, students majoring in history are encouraged to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306) foreign language requirement by choosing a language that fits their interests in history. The department’s faculty members particularly encourage study abroad programs that complement students’ foreign area interests. Majors also are encouraged to improve their writing and speaking skills.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in history requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. The program is designed for students with a general interest in history.

Requirements for the major include a history colloquium and a portfolio in addition to a range of course work in history. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

College Level Equivalency Program (CLEP) and Advanced Placement Program (APP) credit does not count toward the history major. Transfer work that is equivalent to University of Iowa course work may be accepted toward the major, but at least 18 s.h. of work for the major, including the colloquium, must be taken at The University of Iowa.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the major.

Undergraduate courses in history are divided into four areas: American history (prefix 16A), European history (prefix 16E), non-Western world history (prefix 16W), and courses that have no area designation (prefix 016).

Of the 36 s.h. in history courses required for the major, 30 s.h. must be earned in courses numbered 045 or above. A maximum of 18 s.h. earned in American history courses (prefix 16A) may be counted toward the major.

Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. earned in the following courses toward the major. Courses on this list that are approved for General Education may be counted toward fulfillment of General Education Program requirements as well as toward requirements for the history major.

Films to Global Terror

The major in history requires the following course work.
HISTORY COLLOQUIUM

Students enroll in the colloquium as soon as possible after declaring the major in history. Every colloquium includes assigned papers; students must include at least one of their colloquium papers in their history portfolio (see "Portfolio" below).

One of these:

- 16A:051 (HIST:2251) Colloquium for History Majors (American) 3 s.h.
- 16E:051 (HIST:2451) Colloquium for History Majors (European) 3 s.h.
- 16W:051 (HIST:2151) Colloquium for History Majors (World) 3 s.h.

HISTORY COURSES

In addition to completing the history colloquium (3 s.h.), students must earn a minimum of 33 s.h. in history courses, including geographical area and era courses (American, European, non-Western world, and pre-1700 history). Students may count a maximum of 18 s.h. earned in American history courses toward the major.

Work for the major must include the following geographical area and era courses.

PORTFOLIO

All history majors must complete a portfolio, enrolling in the following course during their final semester or summer session.

- 016:193 (HIST:3193) Undergraduate History Portfolio 0 s.h.

The portfolio must include at least three graded papers written for history courses the student has completed; one of the papers should be from the student’s history colloquium. The papers in the portfolio should show the development of the student’s skills.

Students should submit their portfolios on the University of Iowa ICON page for 016:193 (HIST:3193) early during the semester in which they plan to graduate.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

History majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Course work required for licensure to teach social studies in secondary schools includes a minimum of 15 s.h. in U.S. history (prefix 16A), a minimum of 15 s.h. in non-U.S. history (prefixes 16E and 16W), and 15 s.h. in a related area outside of history chosen from economics, geography, anthropology, psychology, sociology, or American government. Courses taken as part of the history major, including the required history colloquium, may be counted toward the 15 s.h. in U.S. history and 15 s.h. in non-U.S. history required for certification.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the fifth semester begins: three courses in the major (including Colloquium for History Majors)
Before the seventh semester begins: four more courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree.

Before the eighth semester begins: three more courses in the major and submission of the portfolio of written work to the student's advisor.

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major (two courses), all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate.

Honors in the Major
The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the history major. Departmental honors students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. In order to graduate with honors in the major, they must write an honors thesis, which is an extended research paper (30-40 pages). Students usually complete the thesis during the spring semester of their junior year or fall semester of their senior year. Research for the thesis is done under the supervision of a faculty member who specializes in the field in which the student undertakes his or her research. Students register for 3 s.h. of 016:091 (HIST:3995) Honors Seminar and 016:092 (HIST:3996) Honors Thesis in each of two semesters. The 6 s.h. of credit counts toward the credit required for the history major.

In addition to honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University's honors program.

Minor
The minor in history requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in history courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. All Department of History courses numbered 080 or above are considered advanced for the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Graduate Programs of Study
- Master of Arts in history
- Doctor of Philosophy in history

Graduate study in history prepares students for occupations such as high school or college teaching, publishing, commercial research, foundations and nongovernmental organizations, and government or other public service. With additional specialized training, students may become qualified for careers in archival work, library work, museum work, or historical site preparation and display. Some choose to pursue the Joint Master of Arts/Juris Doctor program, which leads to degrees in both law and history (see the College of Law (p. 962) section of the Catalog for information about the J.D. degree).

Students interested in graduate work should obtain a copy of the current Guide to Graduate Study at The University of Iowa from the Department of History office. The guide is revised every summer to include the latest faculty listing, research interests of faculty members, detailed regulations on study toward advanced degrees, and other information for students.

Master of Arts
The Master of Arts program in history requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with two options: one for students who plan to work toward the Ph.D., the other for students who do not. The two plans differ mainly in their concentration in fields: the Ph.D. track emphasizes development of research capabilities culminating in the essay; the non-Ph.D. track stresses breadth of learning.

The M.A. with Ph.D. track requires completion of a research essay. Students must earn at least 24 s.h. of the minimum of 30 s.h. required for the degree in Department of History courses, including at least two seminars, or one seminar and one readings course. One seminar or readings course must be taken in each of the first two semesters of residence. Students must earn 12 s.h. in the area of their essay topic and at least 6 s.h. in a second division, including either a seminar or a readings course.

The essay in the major division must be based on original research and should be approximately 10,000 to 15,000 words long. It usually begins as a term paper for the seminar in the major division and is completed the following semester under the supervisor's guidance. The finished product should emulate the character of articles in learned journals, just as the Ph.D. dissertation takes the form of a full-length scholarly monograph.

Requirements for the M.A. with non-Ph.D. track are similar to those for the Ph.D. track program. Students must earn 24 s.h. of the minimum of 30 s.h. required for the degree in Department of History courses. They earn 12 s.h. in one major division of history and must include at least one readings or seminar course. They earn an additional 12 s.h. in history by taking 6 s.h. in each of two other divisions of history, or by taking 6 s.h. in one other division of history plus 6 s.h. in a related department; the additional 12 s.h. in history must include at least one readings or seminar course.

After completing these requirements, or during the semester in which they will complete them, M.A. students must take an oral and written comprehensive examination in their major division.

Doctor of Philosophy
The Doctor of Philosophy program in history requires at least 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including credit for work done for the master's degree.

Students who earn the M.A. with research essay at Iowa are admitted to the Ph.D. program on the favorable recommendation of the examining committee. Students who earn an M.A. at another university must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College and the Department of History (see “Admission” below). They must submit a writing sample, such as a seminar paper or an M.A. thesis. They also must take a research seminar during their first two semesters in residence at Iowa.

Ph.D. students must complete at least eight graduate-level Department of History courses numbered 200 (6000) or above, earning 4 s.h. of credit for each course. The courses must be research seminars (minimum of three) and graduate readings courses. At least five of the eight courses must be completed before the student takes the comprehensive examination. Courses taken at the M.A. level may be counted toward this requirement. The student also must take a graduate course in the philosophy of history, historiography, or methods of historical research.

The department has no general language requirement for the Ph.D., but the supervising faculty member may require the student to demonstrate a reading knowledge of one or more foreign languages and proficiency in the use of other study tools. Students may not complete the comprehensive examination until these requirements have been met.

The comprehensive written and oral examination covers three distinct fields. Two of the fields must be in a major division chosen from the following divisions:

- Africa
- China
- Europe, early modern
- Europe, modern
- India
- Japan
- Latin America
- Medieval Europe
- Russia and the former Soviet Union
- The ancient world
- The Middle East
- The United States

Students may construct another field, subject to approval by the comprehensive exam committee.

The third field must be a division outside the student’s major division or a field from a related department outside history. The committee may define and delimit the individual fields for examination. It also may set, separately for each field, the character of the written portion of the comprehensive examination, which may take the form of a syllabus, a critical bibliography, a topical paper, or any other form or combination of forms that the committee deems suitable. The oral portion of the comprehensive examination focuses on issues and problems arising from the examination papers.

The candidate must submit to the dissertation committee a written prospectus for the dissertation no later than the semester following completion of the comprehensive exams. The committee consists of at least five members, including at least one member from outside the department. It considers the prospectus and may approve it, reject it, or require its revision. When the dissertation is completed in final form, the committee administers the final examination for the doctorate, a formal oral defense of the dissertation that usually lasts two hours.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Applicants must submit academic transcripts and Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test scores. They also must submit examples of original writing to the history department, such as a term paper, a seminar paper, an honors thesis, or a master’s essay (applicants to the Ph.D. program); letters of recommendation from three persons familiar with the student’s past academic work; and a one- or two-page personal statement of the applicant’s purpose for doing graduate work. All application materials are due by January 15 for entry the following August.

Facilities

University of Iowa Libraries has unusual strength in all aspects of U.S. history. The Main Library houses the Henry A. Wallace papers and related collections, the Iowa Women’s Archives, and other unique materials. In European history, special strengths include the fine collections of French and English materials. The State Historical Society of Iowa in Iowa City and the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum in West Branch also hold valuable research materials.

Courses

Many Department of History courses are approved for the CLAS General Education Program. Look for courses with prefixes 016 (HIST), 16A (HIST), 16E (HIST), and 16W (HIST) under "Historical Perspectives," "International and Global Issues," and "Values, Society, and Diversity" in the General Education Program (p. 306) section of the Catalog. Interdepartmental Studies

Coordinator
• Andrew Tinkham

Undergraduate major: interdepartmental studies (B.A.)
Web site: http://www.uiowa.edu/~indepart/

The Interdepartmental Studies Program (ISP) provides an alternative to traditional undergraduate majors. It gives students the opportunity to design an individualized plan of study or to choose a preapproved plan in applied human services, business studies, or health science. Each track includes course work from a variety of departments.

Since the major in interdepartmental studies affords opportunities outside the traditional degree pattern, students must create or choose study programs that meet their individual educational and career objectives. Those who plan to seek employment immediately after graduation should familiarize themselves with the educational background and qualifications required by employers and should include appropriate courses in their study programs.

Students preparing for advanced study should become familiar with the admissions requirements of graduate or professional schools that interest them. The earlier students decide to pursue graduate or professional study, the easier it is to complete necessary prerequisites.

Undergraduate Program of Study
• Major in interdepartmental studies (Bachelor of Arts)

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in interdepartmental studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36-38 s.h. of work for the major. Students choose one of four tracks: individualized plan of study, applied human services, business studies, or health science. Credit required for the major depends on the student’s choice of track.

Students who choose the individualized plan of study track design their own major. Those who choose the applied human services track, business studies track, or health science track follow a preapproved study plan, which includes foundation courses and a selection of emphasis areas. The applied human services track offers three emphasis areas: aging services, community-based services, and corrections services. The business studies track offers three emphasis areas: workplace practices and perspectives, values and ethics, and arts management. The health science track offers five emphasis areas: multidisciplinary science, entrepreneurship, aging, global health, and cultures of healing.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Interdepartmental studies students who earn a second major may count a maximum of two courses from the second major toward the interdepartmental studies major. This policy applies no matter what degree is earned with the second major (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and so forth).

Students majoring in interdepartmental studies who earn minors in other departments or programs may not count courses from the minors toward the interdepartmental studies major.

The major in interdepartmental studies requires the following course work.

Individualized Plan of Study Track
The individualized plan of study track requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of work for the major, all taken at The University of Iowa. Students who choose this track build their own study plan, creating a unique major that speaks to interests across departments and that integrates varied approaches to a particular topic (e.g., aging studies, international business, children’s studies, environmental issues, health issues).

Students must submit their study plan for approval. The plan must include an essay that provides a clear statement of the area of intellectual focus; the reasons for preferring the ISP to any departmental program; a concrete discussion of how the advanced courses relate to each other, to personal interests, and to the central focus of the study plan; a description of academic goals for the bachelor’s degree; a list of advanced-level course work already completed; and a list of advanced-level course work planned for all remaining semesters.

Each study plan is approved by a faculty advisory committee. Reviews are held once a semester. Deadlines are posted on the Interdepartmental Studies Program web site.

If the advisory committee does not grant approval, the study plan may be returned to the student for revisions and resubmission at the next committee meeting. In some cases, the student may be referred to an appropriate departmental major.

Once the study plan is approved, the student is required to follow the plan, taking the courses approved for it. A limited number of substitutions may be allowed, but only if they are clearly consistent with the area of intellectual focus in the approved study plan, and only if they are approved in advance by the ISP advisor. Unauthorized substitutions may be designated as elective course work.

Significant changes in the focus of a student’s study plan require the submission and approval of a revised study plan. The student’s academic advisor determines whether changes warrant a revised plan.

See the Interdepartmental Studies Program web site for up-to-date information on the individualized plan of study track and rules for submission of study plans.

Students who choose the individualized plan of study track are advised by the Interdepartmental Studies Program coordinator; they work closely with the Interdepartmental Studies Program office while designing the study plan. Students who intend to submit a study plan should contact the Interdepartmental Studies Program coordinator as early as possible.

Applied Human Services Track
The applied human services track requires 37-38 s.h. of work for the major. It provides a preapproved plan of study that combines a generalized psychology background with a choice of three emphasis areas: aging services, community-based services, and corrections services. Students who choose this track also have the option of proposing their own human services-related emphasis area to the faculty advisory committee.

Applied human services track students must complete foundation course work (25-26 s.h.) and one emphasis area (12 s.h.). They must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. of work for the major at The University of Iowa. The Academic Advising Center advises applied human services track students; contact the center for more information about requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan
The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major.)

Note: The Four-Year Graduation Plan is available only to ISP students in the individualized plan of study track.

Before the seventh semester begins: an approved plan of study, at least six courses in the plan of study, and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: a total of at least nine courses in the plan of study

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major
Students who wish to graduate with honors in the interdepartmental studies major usually complete the honors requirements of a particular department or program appropriate to their area of study. They also must be members of the University’s honors program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Students should initiate inquiries about graduating with honors in the interdepartmental studies major by contacting the ISP coordinator; they should inquire early in their junior year to allow time for foundation course work. Students must submit an honors project approval form to the ISP coordinator.

Courses
145:101 (INTD:3001) Creative Writing for Business 3 s.h.
Opportunity to broaden understanding of literature, improve writing, and enhance ability to approach business problems in a creative and inspired manner; close reading and creative writing exercises used to develop appreciation of the written word, improve ability to express thoughts and ideas, and become more conscious of the quality of students' own written work. Requirements: rhetoric. Same as 08C:101 (CW:3001).

145:105 (INTD:3005) Professional and Creative Business Communication 3 s.h.
Solid foundation for creative and professional communication in today’s modern work world; exploration of techniques, strategies, and craft of writing resumes, letters of interest, email and its related etiquette, and organization of ideas into presentable form; semester-long creative project that builds a bridge between office and the world using modern technology and social media; readings and discussions of literature to better understand issues of ethics, leadership, conflict, moral judgment, decision making, and human nature; how to navigate and succeed in business or any professional field. Prerequisites: 010:003 (RHET:1030). Same as 08C:105 (CW:3005).

145:107 (INTD:3107) Creative Writing for the Health Professions 3 s.h.
Same as 08C:107 (CW:3107).

145:108 (INTD:3200) Creative Writing for New Media 3 s.h.
Prepares creative writers for evolving marketplace of electronic text, media; experience writing in varied media such as the Internet, e-books, video games, mobile devices, emergent social narratives. Same as 08C:108 (CW:3218).

Nonprofit performing arts management and administrative principles; practical applications, trends in the field; focus on arts organizations and their key administrative positions. Same as 049:109 (THTR:3510), 188:109 (DPA:3510).

145:110 (INTD:3210) Creative Writing and the Natural World 3 s.h.
How humans tether to their environment through stories; students write stories and through writing explore if there is a new tie to sustainable history. Same as 08C:110 (CW:3210).

145:111 (INTD:3520) New Ventures in the Arts 3 s.h.
Arts administration principles and trends as applied to creation of an arts-related enterprise; case studies; students create business plan for a new arts organization. Duplicates 06j:125 (MGMT:3100) and 06T:120 (ENTR:3100). Corequisites: 06T:050 (ENTR:1000), or 06A:001 (ACCT:2100) and 06M:100 (MGIT:3000). Same as 049:111 (THTR:3520), 06T:125 (ENTR:3520), 188:111 (DPA:3520).

145:115 (INTD:3300) Creative Writing and Popular Culture 3 s.h.
Creative writing through the lens of popular culture; topics include television, film writing, adaptations, commercials, advertising, magazines, newspapers, comic books, song lyrics, billboards, and backs of cereal boxes. Same as 08C:115 (CW:3215).

145:120 (INTD:3202) Equity Issues in the Health Sciences 3 s.h.
Examination of equity issues in the health sciences, including a review of the historical challenges that led to Human Subjects Review Boards, FDA oversight of drug development and clinical trials, inclusion of women in research; effect of situational ethics in the workplace; potential danger of making assumptions about clients/patients; importance of developing an inclusive communication style; assessing the effectiveness of family-friendly employment policies in providing equitable opportunities for career advancement for both women and men. Recommendations: junior or senior standing. Same as 027:120 (HHP:3000).
145:125 (INTD:3025) Contemporary Nutrition  3 s.h.
Introduction to nutrition; importance of understanding food choices and diet to fit individual needs. Same as 027:125 (HHP:3010).

145:127 (INTD:3027) Nutrition for Health, Fitness, and Sport  3 s.h.
Effects of exercise and nutrition on health- and sports-related fitness; for professionals in health and physical education. Same as 027:127 (HHP:3020).

145:130 (INTD:3030) Coaching for Health and Wellness  3 s.h.
Opportunities to expand knowledge and develop skills to help individuals change behavior and meet health-related goals; general health and wellness principles; principles and techniques for change; experience providing health-coaching services to clients. Prerequisites: 027:039 (HHP:2200) and 027:040 (HHP:2310). Same as 027:131 (HHP:3030).

145:195 (INTD:4510) Arts Leadership Seminar  3 s.h.

Individual study of issues or topics related to a specific interdepartmental focus chosen by the student.

Opportunity to relate a student’s chosen area of study to practical application. Requirements: interdepartmental studies student.

Undergraduate Program of Study

- Certificate in International Business

The Tippie College of Business and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offer the undergraduate Certificate in International Business. The program is designed for students who intend to pursue careers in international business as well as those interested in gaining a better understanding of the global economy and a broader awareness of the political, historical, and social environment in which international business operates.

Certificate

The Certificate in International Business requires 29 s.h. and satisfaction of the certificate’s language requirement (total credit depends on which language the student decides to study). The program includes study of international business and economics, international relations and institutions, a language, and the contemporary art, literature, culture, and/or politics of the geographical region in which the language is spoken. The range of courses permits students to tailor areas of specialization suited to their individual interests and to complement majors in business and in liberal arts and sciences.

The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

Students should declare their intention to earn the certificate as early as possible and talk with an advisor about certificate requirements. They must submit an individual plan of study. Tippie College of Business students should talk with the advising staff at the college’s Undergraduate Program Office; College of Liberal Arts and Sciences students should talk with a Certificate in International Business advisor at the Academic Advising Center. Individuals who hold a bachelor's degree from another institution should contact the University’s Office of Admissions.

A minimum of 20 s.h. of certificate course work (other than language courses) must be completed at The University of Iowa or in approved study abroad programs. Students who plan to count study abroad credit toward the certificate should consult a Certificate in International Business advisor before leaving campus. University of Iowa Guided Independent Study Courses are accepted toward the certificate.

Certificate courses may not be taken pass/nonpass. A course may not be used to satisfy more than one certificate requirement.

The Certificate in International Business requires the following course work.

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

These courses provide students with an essential understanding of economics, which is central to all business operation. They also help students develop knowledge of the functional areas of international business.

Both of these:

- 06E:001 (ECON:1100) Principles of Microeconomics 4 s.h.
- 06E:002 (ECON:1200) Principles of Macroeconomics 4 s.h.

Three of these (total of 9 s.h.):

- 06E:125 (ECON:3240) Global Economics and Business 3 s.h.
- 06E:129 (ECON:3260) Economic Growth and Development 3 s.h.
- 06E:173 (ECON:3500) International Economics 3 s.h.
- 06F:130 (FIN:4240) International Finance 3 s.h.
- 06J:146 (MGMT:4500) International Business Environment 3 s.h.

One of these may be counted toward the 9 s.h. requirement above:

- 06J:145 (MKTG:4300) International Marketing 3 s.h.
- 06J:152 (ENTR:4460) Entrepreneurship and Global Trade 3 s.h.
- 091:282 (LAW:8600) International Business Transactions 3 s.h.

AREA STUDIES
These courses help students learn about the culture, contemporary history, art, literature, and politics of the geographic region in which their chosen world language is spoken. Area studies topics are critical to students’ understanding of how society and culture influence the people with whom they share the world and may conduct business.

Students complete 6 s.h. from one geographic area. They should select an area that is appropriate for the world language they have chosen to satisfy the certificate’s language requirement.

International Studies

Chair
• Helena Dettmer (Classics)

Undergraduate major: international studies (B.A.)
Undergraduate minor: international studies
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/international-studies

The International Studies major encourages students to integrate theoretical knowledge about broad global processes and the methods used to study them, requiring an in-depth examination of a particular geographical region or a major theme in international studies. The major affords students the opportunity to integrate the study of history, politics, economics, expressive arts, culture, beliefs, and social systems.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in international studies (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in international studies

The international studies major is interdisciplinary. It is designed to help students learn to appreciate world cultures, focus on themes of global significance, and master varied disciplinary approaches used to study international issues. The program complements a wide range of academic degree programs and is an appropriate choice for many students who plan to pursue a double major.

The major prepares students for careers in business, government, international development agencies, nongovernmental organizations, philanthropic agencies, and the arts. It is excellent preparation for graduate training in the social sciences, the arts, law, business, journalism, international affairs, area studies, and public health.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts with a major in international studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 42 s.h. of work for the major. The program is flexible, drawing on courses across the humanities and social sciences. Students work closely with an academic advisor to plan their program of study.

Work for the major includes two introductory courses, three foundation courses, language study beyond that required by the General Education Program, requirements for one of the major’s three program options (A, B, or C), and required course work in one of the major’s tracks. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

International studies students must complete course work from at least four different departments and/or programs; they may count a maximum of 12 s.h. from any department or program toward the major.

Students may apply up to 12 s.h. of course work from each additional major, minor, or certificate they earn toward the international studies major. Transfer credit approved by the International Studies Program may be applied to the major. Students must complete at least 15 s.h. of work for the major at The University of Iowa.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in order to graduate.

The major in international studies requires the following course work.

INTRODUCTORY COURSES

Both of these:
187:010 (IS:1000) Designing Your International Studies 1 s.h. Major

FOUNDATION COURSES

Students earn a minimum of 9 s.h. in foundation courses chosen from the following lists. Foundation courses provide an overview of global issues and introduce a disciplinary approach to global topics, laying the groundwork for continuing study.

01H:008 (ARTH:1030) Themes in Global Art 3 s.h.
030:045 (POLI:1405) Introduction to Comparative Politics 3 s.h.
113:003 (ANTH:1101) Cultural Anthropology 3 s.h.
137:080 (DANC:2060) Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Global and Critical Contexts 3 s.h.

May include one of these:
016:003 (HIST:2403) Western Civilization III 3-4 s.h.
016:082 (HIST:3255) The World Since 1945 3 s.h.

May include one of these:
032:001 (RELS:1001) The Judeo-Christian Tradition 3 s.h.
032:004 (RELS:1404) Living Religions of the East 3 s.h.
032:015 (RELS:1015) Religions in a Global Context: The Critical Role of Religion in International Affairs 3 s.h.

May include one of these:
044:010 (GEOG:1090) Globalization and Geographic Diversity 3 s.h.
044:030 (GEOG:2910) The Global Economy 3 s.h.

May include one of these:
048:040 (CCL:1240) Major Texts of World Literature, Antiquity to 1700 3 s.h.
048:041 (CCL:1241) World Literature and World Film 3 s.h.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

All students must complete a minimum of two semesters of language study beyond that required by the General Education Program (p. 306). This additional language requirement may be met either by completing two semesters of upper-level study in the same language used to fulfill the General Education Program’s World Languages requirement or by completing two semesters, or the equivalent, of a second world language at any level.

In fulfilling the language requirement, most students are eligible to receive an additional 4 s.h. of ungraded credit under the Furthering Language Incentive Program (FLIP). This credit may be applied to the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation, but it does not count toward requirements for the international studies major.

TRACKS

Students complete their choice of one of the major’s tracks. Each track requires a minimum of 18 s.h. of course work, including at least 12 s.h. earned in upper-level courses. Students may not count their foundation courses toward track requirements.

Students may petition the International Studies Program for permission to include a course that is not on the list of courses approved for their track; they must submit their petition by the semester’s specified deadline date.

With the International Studies Program’s approval, students may develop other tracks for which sufficient courses exist. Students interested in developing a unique track should discuss their ideas with the international studies advisor as soon as possible.

International studies majors completing the Certificate in Global Health Studies, Human Rights, International Business, or Latin American Studies or the minor in global health studies or Latin American studies may not choose an international studies track that corresponds with those certificate(s) or minor(s).

Tracks are listed under “Tracks and Approved Courses” below.

PROGRAM OPTIONS

International studies students complete all of the requirements for one of the major’s three program options: A, B, or C. Program option requirements are not interchangeable.

Program option A: Students complete 6 s.h. of additional upper-level course work chosen from a second international studies track.

Program option B: Students complete a senior project and must take the following two courses.

187:095 (IS:3010) Creating a Proposal for International Research 2 s.h.
187:199 (IS:4990) International Studies Senior Project 3 s.h.

Students prepare for the senior project by completing 187:095 (IS:3010) Creating a Proposal for International Research, in which they learn research methodologies and prepare a project proposal. During their last year of study, they enroll in 187:199 (IS:4990) International Studies Senior Project and complete a semester-long individual research project that culminates in a substantial written or creative work focusing on a topic related to course work in their track. They complete the course and project under the supervision of a faculty mentor.

Program option C: Students complete an experiential learning activity (credit or noncredit), such as study abroad or related volunteer work, and complete two writing courses, one from each list below. They also submit a piece of original creative nonfiction writing during their last year, usually written during their enrollment in the more advanced writing course. Students interested in choosing program option C should speak with the international studies advisor about procedures for the option.

One of these:
08N:020 (CNW:1620) Introduction to Creative Nonfiction 3 s.h.
08N:080 (CNW:2680) Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.

One of these:
08N:090 (CNW:2690) Intermediate Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.
08N:120 (CNW:3630) Advanced Nonfiction Writing 3 s.h.
08N:150 (CNW:4631) Undergraduate Essay Workshop 3 s.h.
035:119 (SPAN:3020) Journalistic Writing in Spanish 3 s.h.
035:120 (SPAN:3060) Taller Basico de Escritura Creativa 3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Note: Students who intend to study abroad in their junior year should schedule an appointment during their fourth semester to meet with an advisor from Study Abroad; those who intend to study abroad in their senior year should schedule an appointment during their sixth semester.

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two introductory courses and one foundation course

Before the seventh semester begins: at least nine courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 12 courses in the major, including the required research preparation course for program option B students or the first writing course for program option C students

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

Students may work toward graduation with honors in the international studies major. Honors students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a p.g.a. of at least 3.33 in all course work for the major and in all course work that may be applied to the major.

To graduate with honors in the international studies major, students must complete a minimum of 45 s.h. for the major (an additional 3 s.h.), including at least 15 s.h. in upper-level course work and at least 6 s.h. in courses designated as honors courses. Students may meet this requirement in one of two ways. They may complete 21 s.h. in a single track, with at least 15 s.h. in upper-level... courses. Or they may select courses from two tracks, completing at least 12 s.h. in the first track, including 9 s.h. in upper-level courses; and completing at least 9 s.h. in the second track, including 6 s.h. in upper-level courses.

Honors students completing the Certificate in Global Health Studies, Human Rights, International Business, or Latin American Studies or the minor in global health studies or Latin American studies may not choose an international studies track that corresponds with those certificate(s) or minor(s). Those who choose the two-track option may not choose a first track that corresponds with those certificate(s) or minor(s).

Honors students must choose program option B for the major. Instead of taking 187:199 (IS:4990) International Studies Senior Project, they take 187:198 (IS:4991) Honors Thesis in International Studies, and they present their research in a poster session.

In addition to pursuing honors in their majors, undergraduate students have a variety of opportunities for honors study and activities through membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program. Learn about the program by visiting Honors at Iowa.

Minor

The minor in international studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in courses approved for the international studies major, including 12 s.h. in upper-level course work taken at The University of Iowa. The minor must include 187:020 (IS:2000) Introduction to International Studies or one of the major’s foundation courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. To preserve the interdisciplinary nature of the minor, students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. from a single department or program, from the Tippie College of Business, or from a major, another minor, or a certificate toward the minor in international studies.

Undergraduate minor: mass communication

Graduate degrees: M.A. in journalism; M.A. in strategic communication; Ph.D. in mass communications

Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/sjmc/

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication offers an undergraduate major and minor as well as graduate degree programs. Undergraduate students in all majors may use approved journalism and mass communication courses to satisfy the General Education Program (p. 306)’s Historical Perspectives, Social Sciences, and Values, Society, and Diversity requirements, and the school’s First-Year Seminar is designed specifically for entering undergraduate students.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Major in journalism and mass communication (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in mass communication

Media writing and visual storytelling form the core of the undergraduate major in journalism and mass communication. Students are required to take both professional and conceptual courses offered by the school; they develop professional skills while studying the historical, legal, cultural, and institutional roles of media in society. They also complete extensive academic work outside the school, consistent with the University’s commitment to the liberal arts and sciences.

The major prepares students for careers in the field. Graduates find employment in a variety of areas, such as public relations, advertising, marketing, political communication, health communication, philanthropy and fundraising communication, newspapers, magazines, radio, television, online communications and social media, publication design, photojournalism, and media research.

The school is accredited by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications.

ADMISSION TO THE MAJOR

Undergraduate students are admitted to the major in journalism and mass communication in one of two ways.

First-year students who enter the University as honors students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or as Presidential Scholars, Old Gold Scholars, or Daily Iowan Scholars are guaranteed admission to the major as long as they have satisfied the necessary prerequisites.

Students who do not enter the University as honors students, Presidential Scholars, Old Gold Scholars, or Daily Iowan Scholars may declare a journalism and mass communication interest and must apply for admission to the major. They typically apply during the semester in which they will complete 019:090 (JMC:1100) Media Uses and Effects and 019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture; the General Education Program’s Rhetoric requirement; and a total of at least 30 s.h. of course work.

The primary considerations for admission to the major are overall academic performance and cumulative grade-point average. Also considered are performance in journalism courses, a statement of interest submitted by the student, and writing ability. All qualified applicants are considered; applications are reviewed with the goal of admitting the most qualified students to the program. The number of students accepted each semester depends on the number of students currently in the program and available resources.

For applications and deadline information, contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

TRANSFER STUDENTS

Transfer students with a declared interest in journalism and mass communication are classified as pre-journalism and mass communication majors. They may apply for admission to the major during the semester in which they will complete at least 30 s.h. of course work at The University of Iowa and other institutions, including the General Education Program’s Rhetoric requirement and the two required premajor foundation courses, 019:090 (JMC:1100) Media Uses and Effects and 019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture. Students must complete 019:090 (JMC:1100) and 019:091 (JMC:1200) at The University of Iowa; they may not substitute courses completed at other institutions for either course.

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication may accept transfer credit in journalism earned at institutions accredited by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications. A maximum of 7 s.h. of approved transfer credit may be applied to the major in journalism and mass communication; a maximum of 3 s.h. of approved transfer credit may be applied to the minor in mass communication. Some journalism courses taken at other schools may be used to fulfill the major’s elective and/or second area of concentration requirements.
Students who wish to apply transfer credit toward School of Journalism and Mass Communication requirements must discuss the proposed transfer credit with a journalism faculty advisor and must have approval from the head of undergraduate studies.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science with a major in journalism and mass communication require a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. in journalism and mass communication courses plus a second major or 24 s.h. in a second concentration area. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the major. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Each student works with an assigned faculty advisor or an educational advisor to develop a study plan that meets the requirements of the major. Students in the major may count a maximum of 48 s.h. earned in School of Journalism and Mass Communication courses [prefix 019 (JMC)] toward the 120 s.h. required for a B.A. or B.S. degree. The remaining credit required for graduation must be earned in courses offered by other University of Iowa departments, programs, and schools.

Requirements for the journalism and mass communication major are consistent with the program’s accreditation requirements; the school cannot make exceptions.

Students are encouraged, but not required, to use the University’s iFolio system to collect and edit their course work. They will find the portfolio useful as they interact with faculty members in preparation for entering the job market and for presentation in job interviews.

The journalism major (B.A. and B.S.) requires the following course work.

PREMAJOR FOUNDATION

Both of these:

019:090 (JMC:1100) Media Uses and Effects 3 s.h.
019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture 3 s.h.

019:169 (JMC:3832) Topics in Mass Communication 3 s.h.

OPTIONAL JOURNALISM ELECTIVES

Students may earn elective credit by completing additional journalism and mass communication course work [prefix 019 (JMC)], but they may not exceed a maximum of 48 s.h. earned in the School of Journalism and Mass Communication toward the 120 s.h. required for the B.A. or B.S. degree. Credit earned in 019:099 (JMC:2100) Journalism Internship counts toward the total journalism and mass communication course work that students may apply to the B.A. or B.S. degree.

SECOND MAJOR OR CONCENTRATION AREA

Every student majoring in journalism and mass communication must complete a second major or a concentration area outside the School of Journalism and Mass Communication. Study in the second major or concentration area enables students to acquire a substantial body of knowledge or expertise in a relevant area, learn how another discipline views the world, and/or develop a companion set of skills to those in journalism and mass communication.

Students who satisfy the requirement by completing a concentration area must choose 24 s.h. of related course work in one or more departments; at least 15 of the 24 s.h. must be earned in advanced courses; in most departments, advanced courses are numbered 100 (3000) or above. Course work in the concentration area must be arranged in consultation with the student’s advisor; each student must have the advisor’s written endorsement of the second major or concentration area before graduation.

Second Major or Concentration Area for the B.A.

Bachelor of Arts students must complete the requirements for the journalism and mass communication major (36 s.h.) and must satisfy the school’s second major or concentration area requirement in one of two ways.

Option 1: complete a B.A. major in another department.

Option 2: complete a 24 s.h. concentration of related courses in one or more departments that offer B.A. degrees; at least 15 s.h. of the required 24 s.h. must be earned in advanced courses.

Second Major or Concentration Area for the B.S.

Bachelor of Science students must complete the requirements for the journalism and mass communication major (36 s.h.) and must satisfy the school’s second major or concentration area requirement in one of two ways.

Option 1: complete a B.S. major in a natural, mathematical, or social science.

Option 2: complete a 24 s.h. concentration of related courses in the social sciences (economics, geography, political science, psychology, or sociology) and/or the natural and mathematical sciences, earning at least 15 s.h. of the required 24 s.h. in advanced courses; and complete all the special math, research methods, statistics, computer science, and/or cognate science requirements required for the B.S. in the department in which the majority of concentration area courses are taken.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Note: Students must be admitted to the journalism and mass communication major by the first semester of their sophomore year in order to be eligible for the Four-Year Graduation Plan. The checkpoints below include the required work in journalism and mass communication plus a second concentration area, but they do not include the requirements of a second major, since the Four-Year Graduation Plan does not apply to second majors.

Before the third semester begins: either 019:090 (JMC:1100) Media Uses and Effects or 019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture or both

Before the fifth semester begins: 019:098 (JMC:2010) Journalistic Reporting and Writing and 019:088 (JMC:2020) Introduction to Multimedia Storytelling; an additional course in the major; and at least one second-area course

Before the seventh semester begins: two required professional skills courses; one advanced, conceptual, or elective course in the major; three additional second-area courses; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: two additional required professional skills courses; one advanced, conceptual, or elective course in the major; and two more second-area courses

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, all remaining courses in the second area, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The school offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the journalism and mass communication major. The school’s honors students must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in work for the major. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in the journalism and mass communication major, students complete 019:191 (JMC:4955) Honors Project, earning 3 s.h. of credit in work guided by a faculty member. The honors project may be a thesis or a professional project and typically is completed during the last semester of the senior year. Students are encouraged but not required to take 019:190 (JMC:4950) Honors Readings or 019:193 (JMC:4993) Honors Workshop to prepare for the project.

All majors with an overall g.p.a. of at least 3.33 are encouraged to take any journalism and mass communication course for honors credit and to make use of other honors opportunities in the school. Visit Journalism Honors Program on the school’s web site or contact the school’s honors advisor for details.

Minor

The minor in mass communication requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in mass communication courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Courses for the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Conceptual courses numbered 019:140 (JMC:3300) Media Law and Communication through 019:169 (JMC:3832) Topics in Mass Communication are considered advanced for the minor. Students are encouraged to take 019:090 (JMC:1100) Media Uses and Effects or 019:091 (JMC:1200) Media History and Culture as a lower-level course.
The minor introduces students to the field of mass communication; it does not prepare them for careers in media.

National Honor Society
The school's chapter of Kappa Tau Alpha, the national society honoring scholarship in journalism and mass communication, was founded in 1936 and is named for former director Leslie G. Moeller. Students are considered for membership if their grade-point average places them in the top 10 percent of their class and they have completed at least five semesters of University work, including a minimum of 9 s.h. in journalism and mass communication skills courses. Contact the school's Kappa Tau Alpha advisor for details.

Graduate Programs of Study
• Master of Arts in journalism
• Master of Arts in strategic communication
• Doctor of Philosophy in mass communications

Master of Arts: Journalism
The Master of Arts program in journalism requires 33 s.h. of graduate credit. Students must complete a creative thesis. The program admits students for fall entry.

The M.A. program in journalism focuses on communication. Its approach is academic and theoretical, balanced with substantial development of professional skills, to prepare students for careers in media education. The program is designed for individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree in journalism and/or mass communication and wish to continue their education in the field; for experienced journalists or communicators who wish to prepare to teach by earning an M.A. and then a Ph.D.; and for persons who hold a bachelor’s degree in another discipline and would like to enter journalism by earning an M.A.

Students in the M.A. program in journalism who wish to enter the school’s Ph.D. program in mass communications must complete all M.A. requirements, including the creative thesis, before they may be considered for admission to the Ph.D. program. Professional course work from the M.A. program cannot be applied to the requirements of the Ph.D. program.

M.A. students gain grounding in concepts, theories, and research methods while they pursue a curriculum that emphasizes technology, innovation and media, creative and collaborative multimedia, design for media, cross-media studies, transformed social interactions, and visual communication. They also hone technical skills in reporting, writing, visual and graphic storytelling, design, and digital imaging.

Students choose courses in consultation with their advisors.

All M.A. students must complete the following course work.

Joint J.D./M.A. and J.D./Ph.D.

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication and the College of Law offer a joint Juris Doctor/Master of Arts in journalism and a joint Juris Doctor/Doctor of Philosophy in mass communications. The joint degree programs allow students to count a limited amount of credit toward both degrees. Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they may be admitted to the joint degree program. Admission for journalism and mass communication graduate programs is for fall entry.

For information about the J.D., see the College of Law (p. 962) section of the Catalog.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.
Facilities and Resources

Adler Journalism and Mass Communication Building

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication moved into the Philip D. Adler Journalism and Mass Communication Building in January 2005. The 65,000-square-foot building has computer laboratories for audio, video, design, writing and web publishing, and a resource center. A photography laboratory is located nearby. The building also is home to offices of the Iowa High School Press Association; the Quill and Scroll Society, an international honor society for high school journalists; the University’s award-winning student newspaper, The Daily Iowan; and Daily Iowan TV, a student-run newscast.

Iowa Center for Communication Study

The Iowa Center for Communication Study encourages and facilitates student and faculty research in communication. It also sponsors publications and provides editorial oversight for the Journal of Communication Inquiry.

Financial Support

More than $170,000 in scholarships and awards is disbursed to journalism and mass communication students each year. Scholarship information and applications are available each fall. Visit Scholarships on the School of Journalism and Mass Communication web site or contact the school.

The school offers research and teaching assistantships for graduate students; preference is given to Ph.D. students. Journalism and mass communication students have been successful in winning competitive fellowships open to all graduate students; applicants must be nominated by the graduate committee.

The school has a program of modest financial support for undergraduate and graduate student research projects.

Professional Enrichment

Internships

The school encourages undergraduate majors and Master of Science professional journalism emphasis students to complete at least one internship. The school’s internship and assessment coordinator helps students find appropriate positions.

Undergraduate students may earn up to 3 s.h. of internship credit, registering with appropriate faculty sponsorship for 019:099 (JMC:2100) Journalism Internship (1-3 s.h.). Internships do not fulfill requirements for the major, but internship credit counts toward the total journalism and mass communication credit that students may apply toward a B.A. or B.S. degree (maximum of 48 s.h. for students who enter the major fall 2013 or later; maximum of 40 s.h. for students who entered the major before fall 2013). Students may take internships for no credit through 409:019 (CCP:1019) Internship in Journalism.

Students also are encouraged to pursue opportunities for journalism experience on campus through student-operated media, including The Daily Iowan, Daily Iowan TV, and KRUI-FM radio.

Job Placement

The school’s internship and assessment coordinator helps students seeking career guidance and employment opportunities. The school compiles and publicizes notices of professional jobs open to JMC students and graduates. It also cooperates with the University’s Pomerantz Career Center in providing career guidance and placement services as well as workshops and programs on seeking jobs.

Activities

The school engages in a variety of activities for the enrichment of students, faculty, and the entire campus. Speakers visit campus each year under lectureships funded by the John F. Murray and Leslie G. Moeller Fund, and the M. Holly McGranahan Lecture. In addition, guest speakers are funded through the Hearst Visiting Professionals Program and the Hageboeck Daily Iowan Visiting Professionals Program. Campus organizations for students include Kappa Tau Alpha (KTA, a national society honoring scholarship in journalism), the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ), the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), the Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ), the Radio and Television News Directors’ Association (RTNDA), Health Beat, and Ed on Campus (EOC).

Latin American Studies

Director
• Joy Hayes (Communication Studies)

Coordinator
• Karmen R. Berger

Undergraduate minor: Latin American studies
Undergraduate certificate: Latin American studies
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/latin-american-studies

The Latin American Studies Program (LASP) is interdisciplinary, focusing on the history, politics, social organization, economy, geography, music, religion, art, and literature of Central and South America, Mexico, and the Caribbean. Faculty members from across the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences participate in the Latin American Studies Program as affiliated faculty members. Other University of Iowa faculty members occasionally offer courses and participate in the program’s research, study, and interdisciplinary activities.

The Latin American Studies Program prepares students for graduate study or for Latin America-related careers in business, communications, government, bilingual/bicultural education, secondary teaching, community organizing, and international work.

In addition to its instructional activity, LASP sponsors a wide variety of activities, brings scholars of Latin America to campus, and fosters institutional linkages.

Undergraduate Programs of Study

• Certificate in Latin American Studies
• Minor in Latin American studies

Certificate

The Certificate in Latin American Studies requires a minimum of 24 s.h. The certificate program is open to current University of Iowa undergraduate students (except those earning a major in international studies (p. 393) with an emphasis in Latin American studies) and to all individuals who hold a bachelor’s degree and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the certificate. Completion of the certificate is noted on the student’s transcript.

A student may earn the certificate or the minor in Latin American studies, but not both.

The 24 s.h. required for the certificate must be earned in LASP-approved courses (see "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below) and must include at least 12 s.h. of credit earned at The University of Iowa. All students develop an individual certificate plan of study in close cooperation with a LASP advisor. They may count a total of 12 s.h. of credit earned for majors, minors, and other certificates toward the Certificate in Latin American Studies. In some cases, students may be able to count certificate courses toward certain General Education Program (p. 306) requirements.

The Certificate in Latin American Studies requires the following course work.

The required Spanish and Portuguese courses (6 s.h.) must be chosen from the lists under "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below.

The required additional courses (12 s.h.) also must be chosen from the lists under "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below. They must include courses from at least two different departments, and they may include a maximum of one (3 s.h.) additional course in Spanish or Portuguese.

STUDY ABROAD

The program highly recommends study abroad in Latin America. Students must have prior approval to apply credit from a study abroad program toward the certificate requirements; contact the Latin American Studies Program.

Minor

The minor in Latin American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in LASP-approved courses (see "Associated Courses" and "Courses" below), including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 100 (3000) or above are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

A student may earn the minor or the certificate in Latin American studies, but not both.

Students may count a total of 6 s.h. earned for majors, certificates, and other minors toward the Latin American studies minor. The minor is interdisciplinary, so it may include a maximum of 6 s.h. of credit from any single department or program.

Students are strongly encouraged to take either or both of these for the minor.

Study Abroad

The Latin American Studies Program highly recommends, but does not require, that students have an in-depth Latin American cultural experience, usually through study abroad, before completing their undergraduate requirements.

In cooperation with International Programs Study Abroad, LASP faculty members facilitate student participation in programs in many Latin American countries. University of Iowa students may enroll in programs in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Honduras, Mexico, and Uruguay. Programs range from intensive language study to group programs with a special focus. The University of Iowa cosponsors these programs through various consortiums.

Study abroad courses may be counted toward requirements for the certificate and the minor with prior approval from a LASP director.
Financial Support

Students are encouraged to apply for a Stanley Undergraduate Scholarship for International Research/Fieldwork through University of Iowa International Programs. The scholarships are awarded to outstanding University of Iowa undergraduates who, in close consultation with a faculty member, propose well-conceived, small-scale research or fieldwork projects that require travel abroad. Students may conduct projects while participating in a study abroad program and may combine the scholarship with other awards and financial assistance. For information regarding other scholarships, contact LASP advisors, International Programs staff, and the LASP director.

Activities

In addition to its instructional activity, LASP organizes a range of public programming activities each semester, including film series, photography and art exhibits, conferences, roundtable discussions, and lectures. Recent events have included an international conference on contemporary Cuba and speakers on cinema, indigenous movements, human rights, and art.

Associated Courses

Undergraduate major: leisure studies (B.S.)
Undergraduate minor: leisure studies
Graduate degree: M.A. in leisure studies
Web site: http://clas.uiowa.edu/hhp/tracks/leisure-studies

The Leisure Studies Program provides students with opportunities to study the phenomenon of leisure and the important role it plays in people’s lives. Its courses help students learn how to use leisure to enhance the quality of life—for themselves as well as others.

Leisure studies offers undergraduate and graduate degree programs that prepare students for professional careers in the expanding fields of child life, recreation and sport business, and therapeutic recreation. These programs prepare professionals to work in community, commercial, campus, and health care environments. The populations served by recreation professionals include the general public; students, colleges, and universities; children; and persons with disabilities or chronic conditions.

The program also offers courses that undergraduate students in all majors may use to fulfill requirements of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

The Leisure Studies Program is administered by the Department of Health and Human Physiology (p. 342).

Undergraduate Programs of Study
• Major in leisure studies (Bachelor of Science)
• Minor in leisure studies

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science with a major in leisure studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including work for the major, which varies by track. Students choose one of three tracks: the child life track, the recreation and sport business track, or the therapeutic recreation track. Admission to the child life and therapeutic recreation tracks is selective; students must apply and be admitted. Admission to the recreation and sport environments track is open; students may enter the track without applying to it.

The child life track requires 60-61 s.h. of work for the major (15-16 s.h. in admission prerequisites plus a total of 45 s.h. in additional leisure studies courses, supporting course work from other departments, and the required internship). Students must complete the admission prerequisites before they may enter the child life track.

The recreation and sport business track requires 45-46 s.h. of work for the major, including leisure studies courses and supporting course work from other departments. Students may complete an optional internship in the major for an additional 9 s.h. of credit.

The therapeutic recreation track requires 64-66 s.h. of work for the major (12-14 s.h. in admission prerequisites plus a total of 52 s.h. in additional leisure studies courses, supporting course work from other departments, and the required internship). Students must complete the admission prerequisites before they may enter the therapeutic recreation track.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

Child Life Track

Child life specialists are professionals with expertise in child development who advance effective coping through play activities, preparation for medical procedures and operations, patient and family education, and self-expressive activities. Child life specialists provide services to support families and to promote children’s mastery of varied experiences, particularly children’s health care events. They may provide care to children’s families by assisting in accurate information processing and helping family members and other caregivers. Child life specialists also help educate other medical staff and community members regarding issues and needs of children involved in health care events or other stressful experiences. For more information about the profession, visit Child Life Council.

Students must apply for admission to the child life track. Before they may be admitted, they must complete 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa (or 12 s.h. for transfer students), including the courses listed under "Child Life: Admission Prerequisites" below. Effective for fall 2013 admission, applicants must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00; students with lower grade-point averages may apply for exceptional admission.

Applicants for admission to the track should use the child life track application form on the Department of Health and Human Physiology web site. Completed applications must be submitted by March 15 for admission the following fall semester (students may enter the child life track only in fall).

The major in leisure studies with the child life track requires the following course work.

CHILD LIFE: ADMISSION PREREQUISITES

Students must complete the following prerequisite course work (15-16 s.h.) before they may enter the child life track.

Child life students must complete an internship; they register for the following course.

169:192 (LEIS:4192) Child Life Internship 12 s.h.

Recreation and Sport Business Track

The recreation and sport business track is designed to prepare students for leadership in meeting the challenges of sport. It offers a comprehensive curriculum with an integrative business approach and provides a collaborative environment for learning how to analyze and resolve challenges in the business and culture of sport locally, nationally, and internationally.

The track is appropriate for students who want to work with sport and club teams, intercollegiate and high school athletic programs, international sport organizations, national and international amateur sport organizations, community recreation, and firms specializing in sport marketing, sport sponsorship, and commercial fitness businesses.

Students interested in recreation management learn skills for organizing, planning, and budgeting in a variety of settings. They prepare for work in positions such as activities director, community recreation specialist, campus recreation professional, and program coordinator in a park or recreation department.

The track also provides a foundation for graduate study in sport or recreation management and related graduate degree programs.

The major in leisure studies with the recreation and sport business track requires the following course work.

Self-Defined Concentration Area

Students may plan self-defined concentration areas in consultation with their academic advisors. They must submit a two-page proposal to the undergraduate recreation and sport business committee; the proposal must provide a rationale for the concentration area and a description of the courses the student plans to include.

RECREATION AND SPORT BUSINESS: OPTIONAL INTERNSHIP

Recreation and sport business track students who decide to complete the optional internship register for both of these.

169:190 (LEIS:4190) Preinternship Seminar 1 s.h.
169:196 (LEIS:4196) Recreation Sport Business Internship 9 s.h.

Therapeutic Recreation Track

Therapeutic recreation is a health-oriented field that involves providing recreation programs designed to improve or maintain the physical, emotional, mental, and social functioning of patients and consumers. Therapeutic recreation services involve a continuum of care that includes treatment using recreation activities to improve functional abilities; leisure education that helps individuals acquire skills, knowledge, and attitudes that facilitate an independent lifestyle; and recreation that uses activities to enhance health, growth, development, and independence through intrinsically rewarding leisure behavior.

Therapeutic recreation professionals are commonly employed in settings such as skilled nursing facilities, community recreation departments, state and community rehabilitation centers, special recreation districts, correctional facilities, senior centers, facilities for persons with mental retardation or mental illness, and substance-abuse programs.

Students must apply for admission to the therapeutic recreation track. Before they may be admitted, they must complete at least 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa (or 12 s.h. for transfer students), including the courses listed under "Therapeutic Recreation: Admission Prerequisites" below. Applicants must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50; students with lower grade-point averages may apply for exceptional admission.

Applicants for admission to the track should use the therapeutic recreation track application form on the Department of Health and Human Physiology web site. Completed applications must be submitted by October 15 for admission the following spring semester or by March 15 for admission the following fall semester.

The major in leisure studies with the therapeutic recreation track requires the following course work.

THERAPEUTIC RECREATION: ADMISSION PREREQUISITES

Students must complete the following prerequisite course work (12-14 s.h.) before they may enter the therapeutic recreation track.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is available only for the recreation and sport business track without the optional internship. Students in the child life and therapeutic recreation tracks and those who choose the internship option in the recreation and sport business track should work with their advisors to develop individual graduation plans.

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Before the third semester begins: 9 s.h. in core courses

Before the fifth semester begins: the remaining 3-4 s.h. in core courses, at least 3 s.h. in foundation courses, at least 3 s.h. in the concentration area

Before the seventh semester begins: an additional 6 s.h. in foundation courses, an additional 6 s.h. in the concentration area; and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: an additional 6 s.h. in foundation courses and the remaining 6 s.h. in the concentration area

During the eighth semester: enrollment in the remaining 3 s.h. of foundation courses, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The Leisure Studies Program offers outstanding students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the major. Honors in leisure studies provides students with research experience and a perspective on some aspects of graduate study. Honors students in leisure studies must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

To graduate with honors in the leisure studies major, students must successfully complete 169:194 (LEIS:4194) Honors Readings and 169:195 (LEIS:4195) Honors Problems, in which they do a reading or research project under the supervision of a leisure studies faculty member and write a paper summarizing the project’s results. They also must continue to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 until they graduate. For more information about honors in the leisure studies major, contact the Leisure Studies Program.

Minor

The minor in leisure studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in leisure studies courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students choose courses according to their interests and the recommendations of their advisor.

Graduate Program of Study

- Master of Arts in leisure studies (with or without thesis)
- Thesis students complete 6 s.h. of 169:398 (LEIS:7398) M.A. Thesis.

Graduate Program of Study

The following requirements apply to the Master of Arts in Leisure Studies.

Core Requirements

All M.A. students must take the following courses:

- 07P:143 (PSQF:5143) Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.
- 169:200 (LEIS:5200) Historical and Philosophical Perspectives on Leisure 3 s.h.
- 169:205 (LEIS:5205) Research Methods and Leisure Behavior 3 s.h.

Therapeutic Recreation Specialization

The therapeutic recreation specialization prepares students to meet the challenges of inpatient- and community-based health care service delivery. The program stresses research and practical skills that enable graduates to find the best jobs in the field.

Therapeutic recreation specialists are increasingly called upon to deliver preventive outpatient services, such as programs designed to prevent secondary impairments in persons with disabilities (e.g., arthritis exercise to manage pain, fall prevention for older adults); education for individuals with negative lifestyle habits (e.g., smoking, substance abuse); programs designed to restore meaning and purpose to life following traumatic events (e.g., following a spinal cord injury); and initiatives to help communities make services accessible to persons with disabilities.

Iowa’s therapeutic recreation program emphasizes skills for delivery of services in clinical or community settings. The program includes related cognate areas, such as child life, aging, developmental disabilities, or counseling.

Students acquire research skills that they may apply directly to therapeutic recreation practice, for example, to assess the effectiveness of specific interventions or the demand for varied services in a specific setting.

In addition to the M.A. core (See "Core Requirements" above), therapeutic recreation specialization students must complete the following course work.

- 169:160 (LEIS:3160) Introduction to Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.
- 169:161 (LEIS:3161) Assessment and Evaluation in Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.
- 169:162 (LEIS:3162) Therapeutic Recreation: Clientele 3 s.h.
- 169:164 (LEIS:3164) Therapeutic Recreation: Rehabilitation 3 s.h.
- Cognate area courses (aging studies, child life, counseling, disability studies) 6-9 s.h.

Thesis students complete 6 s.h. of 169:398 (LEIS:7398) M.A. Thesis.
Therapeutic recreation students must complete a practicum [169:290 (LEIS:7290) Graduate Internship] in order to sit for a national certification examination.

Recreational Sport Management Specialization

The recreational sport management specialization prepares students for positions in public and private recreation and sport management. Students typically find employment in community or municipal recreation programs, campus recreation programs, or commercial recreation and sport operations.

In addition to the M.A. core (see "Core Requirements" above), recreational sport management students must complete the following course work.

169:251 (LEIS:6251) Risk Management 3 s.h.
169:253 (LEIS:6253) Sport Administration 3 s.h.
169:254 (LEIS:6254) Marketing and Sport Promotion 3 s.h.
169:265 (LEIS:5065) The Economy of Experience 3 s.h.

Cognate area courses (sport and athletic administration, business, communications, or cultural studies)

Nonthesis students take an additional 6 s.h. of electives. Thesis students complete 6 s.h. of 169:398 (LEIS:7398) M.A. Thesis.

Internships

Internships, available in several areas, are recommended for graduate students who did not complete comparable internships as undergraduates.

Assistantships

The program offers a limited number of teaching assistantships; applications should be made directly to the Leisure Studies Program. Teaching assistants support General Education Program courses offered by the Leisure Studies Program.

Courses

169:029 (LEIS:1029) First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, readings, visits to research facilities).

169:030 (LEIS:1030) Introduction to Critical Thinking 3 s.h.

Lifestyles and barriers faced by persons with disabilities; basic aspects of the therapeutic recreation profession; skills used to establish therapeutic relationship; techniques used with patients; theoretical and conceptual bases for practice.

169:161 (LEIS:3161) Assessment and Evaluation in Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.
Basic assessment psychometrics (e.g., reliability), standardized instrumentation and data collection (e.g., observation, self-report), construction of instruments, data reduction. Prerequisites: 169:160 (LEIS:3160).

169:162 (LEIS:3162) Therapeutic Recreation: Clientele 3 s.h.
Developmental patterns of special populations; examination of specific interventions and research applied to specific cognitive, emotional, and physical impairments. Prerequisites: 169:160 (LEIS:3160).

Ethical, professional, and theoretical issues in delivery of therapeutic recreation services; impact of legislation, standards of practice, health care reform; application of research to practice and marketing services. Prerequisites: 169:160 (LEIS:3160).

169:164 (LEIS:3164) Therapeutic Recreation: Rehabilitation 3 s.h.
In-depth review of therapeutic recreation techniques used in clinical and community rehabilitation; opportunities to use techniques with patients. Prerequisites: 169:160 (LEIS:3160).

169:165 (LEIS:3165) Child Life: Methods and Materials 3 s.h.
Interventions unique to child life practice (e.g., pain management, coping, preoperative play, terminal illness). Prerequisites: 169:077 (LEIS:1077).

169:166 (LEIS:3166) Child Life: Seminar 3 s.h.

169:167 (LEIS:4167) Child Life Practicum 1-2 s.h.
Experience observing and assisting child life staff members providing services to hospitalized children, under Certified Child Life Specialist supervision.

169:168 (LEIS:3168) Aging and Leisure 3 s.h.
Status of the well elderly in relation to retirement issues, use of free time, and factors that support leisure activity; leisure services in long-term care. Same as 153:168 (ASP:3168).

169:169 (LEIS:4169) Spring Break Child Life Experience 1 s.h.
Practical experience with ill children, including a trip to the "Give Kids the World" village in Florida; documentation and engagement of course materials, experience working with ill children; students are assigned a specific diagnosis and present the diagnosis (appropriate statistics, effects of hospitalization, treatment, etc.) on child and family; coping strategies, appropriate methods of talking to and interacting with children and families, overview of Child Life in hospitals.

169:170 (LEIS:3170) Children and Health Care 3 s.h.
Broad overview of issues and systemic approaches to working with children in a health care setting; practical and clinically-based experiences for pediatric population; provision of health care services to patients and issues that affect them; models of intervention, ethical issues, case studies, and impact of cultural diversity on health care; for undergraduates who are interested in working with children in a health care setting.

169:171 (LEIS:3171) Child Life Practical Application 3 s.h.
Overview of medical conditions and treatments commonly encountered by children and adolescents in health care settings; common pediatric sedation medications; sequence of medical procedures to understand how to provide procedural preparation and support; facilitate medical play with pediatric population.

169:172 (LEIS:3172) Finance in Sport and Recreation 3 s.h.
Capital funding and revenue acquisition for funding public and private sport and leisure service organizations; contemporary sport and leisure service; financial and economic issues. Prerequisites: 169:150 (LEIS:3150) or 169:157 (LEIS:3157). Requirements: leisure studies major.

169:173 (LEIS:3173) Work and Leisure in American Culture 3 s.h.
Methods and insights of American studies and leisure studies applied to work/leisure relationship in American life; patterns and perceptions of work and leisure, leisure’s share and potential; changing American values.

169:174 (LEIS:3174) Cultural Perspectives in Health Care 3 s.h.
Health care beliefs related to various cultures and religions; focus on illness, hospitalization, treatment, death.

169:175 (LEIS:3175) Preinternship Seminar 1 s.h.
Orientation to therapeutic recreation internship process.

Practical field experience; direct leadership, program planning, administrative procedures. Prerequisites: 169:190 (LEIS:4190).

Problem in a specific area.

169:178 (LEIS:4198) NCAA Rules Compliance and Enforcement 3 s.h.
Educational opportunity involving a small group of students in a unique sport business experience; students serve as consultants for a sport or recreation organization; in-class preparation prior to off-campus work with designated agency; sport or recreation enterprise vary according to faculty expertise and agency availability. Prerequisites: 07P:025 (PSQF:1020), 031:001 (PSY:1001), 034:001 (SOC:1010), and 169:060 (LEIS:1060).
Rules that govern NCAA athletics, rules compliance function on campuses of member institutions, and enforcement of rules by NCAA; essential legislation in NCAA Manual, including bylaws covering recruiting, eligibility, and amateurism; history of NCAA as related to organization’s current structure and activities; capstone experience includes attendance at NCAA Regional Rules Seminar in Indiana and participation in educational sessions conducted by NCAA staff.

169:200 (LEIS:5200) Historical and Philosophical Perspectives on Leisure
3 s.h.
Historical and philosophical origins of leisure studies; historical issues related to leisure ideas, such as shorter hours, share-the-work, utopian vision of a better society.

169:205 (LEIS:5205) Research Methods and Leisure Behavior
3 s.h.
The scientific process: research designs for experiments and surveys, questionnaire construction, sampling theory, basic data analysis.

169:251 (LEIS:6251) Risk Management
3 s.h.
Legal knowledge necessary for effective management of sport, recreation, and physical activity programs, avoidance of legal problems; strategies for addressing issues such as right to participate, liability for injuries, risk management; legal statutes that govern sport, health, recreation organizations.

3 s.h.
Economic issues for sport/leisure services in nonprofit, private/commercial, and public sectors; strategic financial analysis for the nonfinancial manager; principles, issues in financing sport/leisure organizations.

169:253 (LEIS:6253) Sport Administration
3 s.h.
Overview of various segments that constitutes the role and function of a sport administrator (i.e., planning, organizing, leading, controlling); focus on ways in which sport administrators and their subsequent organizations influence and are influenced by the link between sport and globalization; sport administration encompassing services provided within an organizational context; administration viewed as the coordination of production and distribution of those services.

Linguistics is the scientific study of human languages, which are highly complex systems. Areas of study include word structure (morphology), speech sounds (phonetics) and their patterns of combination and contrast (phonology), sentence structure (syntax), and meaning relations (semantics).

Linguists study well-known and familiar languages, such as English, Spanish, Russian, and Chinese. They also study less well-known languages and even those languages about which little has been discovered. While human languages are different from one another in many ways, there are broad similarities among them, supporting the idea that the capacity for language is part of human cognitive functions.

The description of formal patterns of human language has a number of applications. Linguistics is connected to psychology and to speech and hearing, in studying how children learn language, how speakers process and interpret language, and how injuries and disorders affect both production and perception of speech. Linguistics also is linked with anthropology and other social sciences in studying how language use relates to culture, region, class, and gender. Linguists collaborate with computer scientists to construct computational representations of syntax and semantics for processing natural languages.

Linguistics has important ties with instruction in foreign languages and in English as a second language (ESL). Studies of how languages are learned are based in part on analysis of the languages in question. They also are grounded strongly in theories of second language acquisition, which in turn are related to theories of how linguistic knowledge is represented in the mind.

People with linguistic training teach ESL and help clinicians retrain people with linguistic disabilities. Some help design school programs for minority groups or intelligence and achievement tests. Linguists also work in occupations related to law, the computer industry, and foreign languages.

High scores on verbal, analytic, and quantitative aptitude tests are indicators of success in linguistics. Although few aspects of the field deal with numbers, students must be able to reason logically and explicitly and deal with formulas and abstract symbols.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
• Major in linguistics (Bachelor of Arts)
• Minor in linguistics

Depending on their vocational goals, students planning to major in linguistics should consider pursuing their studies either through the M.A. in linguistics with a professional focus or through the Ph.D., or they should complete a second major. Appropriate companion fields include languages, anthropology, computer science, English, mathematics, philosophy, psychology, sociology, speech pathology, and elementary and secondary education.

Bachelor of Arts
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in linguistics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 30 s.h. of work for the major. The program prepares students to do basic language analysis in syntax-semantics (sentence patterns and their relation to meanings) and phonology (sound patterns). Elective courses in a variety of subspecialties enable students to tailor the program to their own interests.

The major requires the following course work.

103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics 3 s.h.
103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics 3 s.h.
103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis 3 s.h.
103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis 3 s.h.

A course in language history, such as 103:131 (LING:3080) or 103:139 (LING:3301)
or
A course in an old language (classical Greek, Latin, Old English, Sanskrit)

Electives chosen in consultation with a faculty advisor, bringing the total hours earned in the major to 30 s.h.

Students must complete no fewer than 15 s.h. of requirements for the major at The University of Iowa, including 103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics, 103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis, and 103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis.

English Grammar [103:028 (LING:1003)] does not count toward the linguistics major.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

TESL Emphasis
As part of the major in linguistics, students may complete an emphasis in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL). The TESL emphasis can prepare students to teach English to nonnative speakers abroad. It also is excellent preparation for graduate work in second language acquisition. TESL emphasis students complete the requirements for the linguistics major listed above, using the following course work to partially satisfy the electives requirement.

Electives chosen in consultation with a faculty advisor, bringing the total hours earned in the major to 30 s.h.
Both of these:

103:141 (LING:4040) The Structure of English 3 s.h.
103:145 (LING:4050) Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language 3 s.h.

One of these:

103:156 (LING:3030) Child Language-Linguistic Perspectives 3 s.h.
103:157 (LING:4080) Linguistic Theory and Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
103:161 (LING:4090) Practical Phonetics 3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Before the fifth semester begins: Introduction to Linguistics [103:100 (LING:3001)], one additional linguistics course

Before the seventh semester begins: three more courses in the major and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

Students may graduate with honors in the linguistics major. They must complete the required course work for the major and must prepare an honors thesis, working in consultation with their academic advisor. Honors students in linguistics must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

Minor

The minor in linguistics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in linguistics courses, including at least 12 s.h. in University of Iowa courses numbered 103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

The minor in linguistics requires the following course work.

103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics 3 s.h.
103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics 3 s.h.
103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis 3 s.h.
103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis 3 s.h.
Additional approved course work to total a minimum of 15 s.h.

Joint B.A./M.A. with TESL Focus

Undergraduate linguistics majors who plan to earn a master's degree in linguistics with a Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL) focus have the opportunity to enroll in the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts degree program. Students in the joint B.A./M.A. program take selected graduate-level courses while they are still undergraduates and may count 12 s.h. of advanced course work toward both degrees. Once students complete the requirements for the bachelor's degree, they are granted the B.A., and they usually complete the M.A. one year later.

They substitute some graduate-level course work for normal undergraduate requirements. Instead of taking 103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis to fulfill the B.A. syntax requirement, they take 103:201 (LING:5010) Introduction to Syntax, the first course in the mandatory two-course syntax sequence for M.A. students. Instead of taking 103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis to fulfill the B.A. phonology requirement, they take 103:203 (LING:5020) Introduction to Phonology, the first in the graduate two-course phonology sequence.

In addition, 103:145 (LING:4050) Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language and 103:202 (LING:6010) Syntactic Theory count toward both degrees and typically are taken during the senior year.

To be admitted to the program, students must be working toward an undergraduate major in linguistics, must have completed at least 80 s.h. of undergraduate course work (typically by the end of their fifth semester), and must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Arts in linguistics (with or without thesis)
- Doctor of Philosophy in linguistics

Department of Linguistics graduate programs emphasize theory and research. Students interested in non-university careers also may take courses in applied linguistics and other fields, either in connection with doctoral work or as an option in the M.A. program.

Iowa’s linguistics department has particular strengths in second language acquisition (SLA), phonology, and syntax.

The curriculum in second language acquisition includes courses that provide an overview and analysis of current SLA research conducted within the generative framework, with emphasis on explaining the linguistic competence of second language learners in terms of universal grammar (UG), the innate language acquisition device. Work focuses on experimental research investigating the influence of the first language, theories of UG access, and related topics.

The phonology curriculum emphasizes current theoretical perspectives, including optimality theory, and the collection, description, and interpretation of novel phonological and phonetic data. Courses feature extensive work in data analysis and problem solving, focusing on construction and evaluation of phonological theories, particularly in light of new empirical data.

The syntax curriculum includes the dual emphases of empirical and theoretical perspectives. It offers a variety of foundational courses that build analytic and argumentation skills, as well as specialized course work on current issues in syntactic theory. The courses consist of intensive work in problem solving. They combine discovery and description of new linguistic data with exploration of the implications of such facts in testing and constructing syntactic theories.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in Linguistics requires a minimum of 31-37 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis, or 37 s.h. without thesis.

All M.A. students complete the following set of required core courses in phonology, syntax, and language acquisition (total of 22 s.h.).

- 103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics 3 s.h.
- 103:200 (LING:5000) Proseminar: Morphosyntax 1 s.h.
- 103:201 (LING:5010) Introduction to Syntax 3 s.h.
- 103:202 (LING:6010) Syntactic Theory 3 s.h.
- 103:203 (LING:5020) Introduction to Phonology 3 s.h.
- 103:204 (LING:6020) Phonological Theory 3 s.h.
- 103:211 (LING:6080) Generative Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.

One of these:

- 103:113 (LING:5040) Linguistic Field Methods 3 s.h.
- 103:210 (LING:6040) Linguistic Structures 3 s.h.
- 103:217 (LING:6050) Language Universals Linguistic Typology 3 s.h.

Thesis and Nonthesis Courses

Thesis students also complete at least 9 s.h. of electives and may earn up to 6 s.h. for the thesis. Nonthesis students also complete 15 s.h. of Department of Linguistics course work, which may include a 9 s.h. focus (e.g., teaching English as a second language). A student’s advisor must approve all courses that count toward the degree.

A student with a linguistics background may waive up to 6 s.h. of course work if the department determines that he or she completed comparable work before enrolling in the program.

Comprehensive examinations cover phonology, syntax, and applied linguistics (for students who choose this option).

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in Linguistics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, or 73 s.h. for graduates of the M.A. nonthesis program. The highly selective program provides students with a strong foundation in theoretical linguistics and helps them develop the skills they will need to explore the close relationship between linguistics and related disciplines.

The Ph.D. core includes the following course work (total of 18 s.h.).

- Two upper-level syntax courses numbered 103:212 (LING:7010) or above
- Two upper-level phonology courses numbered 103:214 (LING:7020) or above
- Two or more seminars

An approved specialty area of 18 s.h. also is required, and students must achieve proficiency in a foreign language, as specified by department regulations.

To pass the comprehensive examination for the Ph.D., a student must gain approval for two papers of publishable quality. One must be in phonology or syntax. The other should be in an area of the student’s choosing and must be distinct from the area of the first paper.

An oral defense of the dissertation and three years in residence at The University of Iowa are required. In addition, all candidates are required to gain supervised experience in teaching and research.

Admission

Applicants to the graduate program in linguistics must complete an application form, submit GRE General Test scores, and have three letters of recommendation sent to the Department of Linguistics. Students whose first language is not English must submit Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) scores. Applications for admission should be submitted as early as possible for the following academic year.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate (p. 888) College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Fellowships, teaching assistantships, and research assistantships are available to qualified graduate students. Applications are due no later than March 1 for the following academic year; earlier submission is strongly encouraged.

Exceptionally well-qualified applicants may be eligible for a Presidential Graduate Fellowship. Individuals interested in being nominated for a presidential fellowship should submit all application materials by January 15 for the following academic year.

Applications for all awards are considered only for students whose application for admission is complete.

Facilities

The Department of Linguistics has two laboratories. One is equipped with 14 computer workstations for small group instruction, individual work, and student research in speech analysis, second language acquisition, computational linguistics, and other areas. The other has a soundproof booth connected to a computer with software for speech analysis. Remote terminals and personal computers are also available to students.

The departmental reading room, which contains a modest library, provides a common meeting place for faculty and students. Students have considerable influence on departmental affairs and enjoy a high degree of individual instruction.

Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

- 103:011 (LING:1010) Language and Society 3 s.h.
  Correlations between social and linguistic behavior; methods for discovering and describing socially significant language behavior; educational and political implications of findings. GE: Social Sciences.

- 103:013 (LING:1050) Language and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.
Semantics and sentence structure of English; word meanings, meaning connected to truth conditions, reasoning based on logical connectives and quantifiers, evaluation of valid and invalid arguments. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

103:020 (LING:1020) Introduction to the Study of Language
3 s.h.
Nontechnical introduction: classification of languages, writing systems, language and the brain, acquisition of first and second languages, bilingualism, animal communication, language and computing.

103:028 (LING:1003) English Grammar
3 s.h.
Recognizing nouns, verbs, adverbs, adjectives, and other parts of speech; sentence analysis; subjects, objects; types of sentences; passives, relative clauses; for students with little or no background in English grammar study. Does not count toward the linguistics major.

103:029 (LING:1000) First-Year Seminar
1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

103:035 (LING:1030) English Words
3 s.h.
English word formation, basic units of English vocabulary; vocabulary skill expansion; word structure.

103:045 (LING:1040) Language Rights
3 s.h.

103:055 (LING:1060) Languages of the World
3 s.h.
Overview of structural similarities and differences in human language; survey of the world's major language families; emphasis on sentence and word structure, sound systems, and modes of classification. GE: Social Sciences.

103:095 (LING:2010) Research Practicum
arr.
Individual participation in faculty research projects.

103:099 (LING:2090) Special Project
arr.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

103:100 (LING:3001) Introduction to Linguistics
3 s.h.
Introduction to the study of human language: sounds and their contrasts and variation, words and meaningful subunits, sentence structure, historical change.

103:107 (LING:5070) Practicum in Teaching English as a Second Language
3 s.h.
Practical experience in TESL, observation and participation in intensive English classes; design and teaching of ESL classes under supervision. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 103:145 (LING:4050).

103:110 (LING:3005) Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics
3 s.h.
Production and transcription of sounds in human languages; physics of sound, computer analysis of speech sounds. Offered fall semesters. Same as 164:160 (SLA:3400).

103:111 (LING:3010) Syntactic Analysis
3 s.h.
Introduction to sentence structures and basic abstract relations that characterize them, including word category, word order, hierarchical organization; problem sets from English and other languages as basis for discussion, analysis. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001).

103:112 (LING:3020) Phonological Analysis
3 s.h.
Introduction to analysis of sound systems; generative phonological theory; practice in phonological analysis using data from a variety of languages. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001) and 103:110 (LING:3005).

103:113 (LING:5040) Linguistic Field Methods
3 s.h.
Collection and analysis of primary linguistic data from unfamiliar language; methods of elicitation, theory, practical problems; extensive practice in eliciting data from a consultant. Prerequisites: 103:110 (LING:3005). Requirements: a course in syntax and a course in phonology.

103:115 (LING:3040) Topics in Linguistics
3 s.h.
Varied topics in linguistics; for undergraduates.

103:131 (LING:3080) History of the English Language
3 s.h.
Development of phonological and grammatical structure of English, from Old to Modern English; dialectal differentiation in English. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001).

103:137 (LING:3670) Language Processes
3 s.h.
Psychological processes involved in using languages, including speech perception and production, the meaning of words, understanding and producing sentences, and basics of discourse and pragmatics; developmental and neural bases of language processes. Prerequisites: 031:002 (PSY:2701). Requirements: grade of C or higher in 031:010 (PSY:2810), grade of C or higher in 031:016 (PSY:2601), and psychology major; nonmajors and 103:100 (LING:3001) or 003:015 (CSD:1015). Same as 031:137 (PSY:3670).

103:139 (LING:3301) Chinese Historical Phonology
3 s.h.
Phonology of Mandarin, other major Chinese dialect groups; reconstruction of the sound system of Middle and Old Chinese. Same as 039:139 (CHIN:3301).

103:140 (LING:4030) Introduction to Computational Linguistics
3 s.h.
Introduction to computational linguistics; focus on theory and practice of natural language processing and syntactic and semantic analysis. Same as 22C:146 (CS:4460).

103:141 (LING:4040) The Structure of English
3 s.h.
Descriptive analysis of English, including word and sentence structure; focus on relevance to teaching English as a second language. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001).
103:144 (LING:3302) Introduction to Chinese Linguistics
Aspects of modern Chinese linguistics, such as Chinese phonology, syntax, pedagogical grammar, history of the language. Taught in English. Same as 164:181 (SLA:3302), 039:144 (CHIN:3302).

103:145 (LING:4050) Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language
Observations of ESL and intensive English classes at the University; design and presentation of short lessons, text evaluation, demonstrations of innovative approaches of the last decade; materials. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:110 (LING:3005) and 103:141 (LING:4040). Same as 164:163 (SLA:4401).

103:150 (LING:3100) Language and Gender
Gender-related language variation; current research on gender-specific linguistic forms and usage in the United States and other language communities; introduction to relevant principles of linguistic theory and analysis. GE: Values, Society, and Diversity.

103:155 (LING:4020) Morphology
Lexicon and principles of word formation; principal processes of inflection, derivation, and compounding found in the world’s languages; relation to phonology, syntax; practice in morphological analysis from a variety of languages. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001).

103:156 (LING:3030) Child Language-Linguistic Perspectives
Linguistic theory as applied to first-language learning, including acquisition of sounds, syntax and word meaning, acquisition strategies, properties of input, theories of first-language acquisition. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001).

103:157 (LING:4080) Linguistic Theory and Second Language Acquisition
Introduction of research results obtained by generative second language acquisition framework and their implications for classroom teaching methods; current views of language architecture; focus on inflectional morphology and linguistic interfaces, which have been proposed to be severe bottlenecks for acquisition; research findings on acquisition of syntax, phonology, semantics, linguistic pragmatics; pedagogical implications of these findings. Prerequisites: 103:111 (LING:3010) and 103:112 (LING:3020). Same as 164:157 (SLA:4080).

103:161 (LING:4090) Practical Phonetics
Contemporary articulatory and acoustic research, including second-language acquisition, elicitation and computer analysis of primary linguistic data. Prerequisites: 103:110 (LING:3005).

103:163 (LING:5589) Philosophy of Language
Contemporary topics. Same as 026:189 (PHIL:5589).

103:172 (LING:3117) Psychology of Language
Theoretical, empirical investigations of linguistic behavior; behaviorist, rationalist models in context of formal linguistic structure and context of models of speech perception and production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 (LING:3001). GE: Social Sciences. Same as 003:117 (CSD:3117).

103:175 (LING:4060) Introduction to Semantics
Overview of meaning in natural language mapped onto lexical and syntactic structures; formal logical and set theory description; discussion of truth conditions, compositionality, presupposition, definiteness, quantification in natural language. Requirements: course in syntax.

103:176 (LING:3118) Language Acquisition

103:177 (LING:3116) Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing
Basic anatomy, physiology of central nervous system; emphasis on neural systems involved in normal and disordered communication. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: biology, zoology, or physiology course. Same as 003:116 (CSD:3116).

103:199 (LING:5090) Special Projects
Theoretical and applied topics.

Primarily for Graduate Students

103:200 (LING:5000) Proseminar: Morphosyntax
Basic morphological analysis of languages other than English; morphological markers of syntactic relations (morphosyntax), such as case/agreement, possession, switch reference and other inflectional marking. Corequisites: 103:201 (LING:5010).

103:201 (LING:5010) Introduction to Syntax

103:202 (LING:6010) Syntactic Theory
Current syntactic theory examined through analysis of data sets, readings in recent research; emphasis on argument construction, statement of formal principles. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:201 (LING:5010). Same as 164:242 (SLA:6010).

103:203 (LING:5020) Introduction to Phonology
Analysis of sound systems, focus on early generative phonological theory; extensive practice in analysis using data from a variety of languages; linguistic argumentation. Prerequisites: 103:110 (LING:3005). Same as 164:203 (SLA:5020).

103:204 (LING:6020) Phonological Theory
Post-SPE phonological theory, including autosegmental phonology, feature geometry, the syllable, optimality theory. Prerequisites: 103:203 (LING:5020). Same as 164:244 (SLA:6011).

103:205 (LING:7040) Topics in Linguistic Theory
Varied topics in linguistic theory; for graduate students.

Undergraduate major: mathematics (B.A., B.S.)
Undergraduate minor: mathematics
Graduate degrees: M.S. in mathematics; Ph.D. in mathematics
Web site: http://www.math.uiowa.edu/

Mathematics is a basic tool for understanding modern society as well as a crucial requirement for many careers in science, engineering, business, and the professions. Research in this living, dynamic subject is at the highest level in history.

An undergraduate degree in mathematics prepares students for a variety of careers in government and business, for secondary teaching, for graduate study, and with proper planning, for a variety of professional programs. Graduate study is advisable for some business and governmental positions and for college and university teaching and research.

Undergraduate Programs of Study
- Major in mathematics (Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science)
- Minor in mathematics

Students majoring in mathematics (either B.A. or B.S.) enroll in one of three programs: Program A is for students who plan to work in business or government or pursue graduate study in mathematics; program B is for students who seek secondary school teaching licensure; and program C is for those seeking specialization in a math-related area, such as actuarial science, biomathematics, business, computer science, economics, physics, statistics, and so forth. Program C may be especially appropriate for students who plan to seek a math-related job after earning a bachelor’s degree, rather than going on to graduate study.

B.A. OR B.S. WITH SECOND MAJOR
Students majoring in mathematics may choose to earn a second major in computer science, statistics, actuarial science, or other disciplines. They must satisfy all requirements of program A, program B, or program C in mathematics as well as all requirements for the second major. For more information, consult an advisor and see Declaring or changing a major, minor, or certificate under For Students/Majors, Minors & Certificates on the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site.

TRANSFER FROM ENGINEERING TO MATHEMATICS

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science
The Bachelor of Arts with a major in mathematics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 41-43 s.h. (11-12 courses) of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science with a major in mathematics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 47-49 s.h. (13 courses) of work for the major. The semester hour requirement varies for each degree, depending on the student’s choice of program A, B, or C.

All students complete the post-calculus mathematics requirement, the upper-level mathematics requirement, and the requirements for program A, B, or C. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all work for the major.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program (p. 306).

For policies concerning transfer credit, correspondence credit, credit by examination, cumulative grade-point average, rules relating to regression and duplication, and so forth, see For Students on the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site. For information about duplication, regression, and use of the second-grade-only option for mathematics courses, contact the Department of Mathematics.

The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors is available from the Department of Mathematics and on its web site. The handbook provides details about schedule planning and career options. For more information on admission, financial support, employment opportunities, the faculty, facilities, and other topics, visit The University of Iowa and Department of Mathematics web sites.

The major in mathematics (B.A. or B.S., program A, B, or C) requires the following course work.

POST-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS REQUIREMENT

Students majoring in mathematics (Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science) must earn at least 15 s.h. in post-calculus mathematics courses offered by The University of Iowa; students may not count transfer courses or credit by exam toward this requirement. At least 12 s.h. of the required 15 s.h. in post-calculus courses must be earned in Department of Mathematics [prefix 22M (MATH)] courses or in courses cross-listed with the department.

Post-calculus courses in the Department of Mathematics are numbered 22M:027 (MATH:2700) or above, excluding these:

- 22M:032 (MATH:1560) Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus 4 s.h.
- 22M:081 (MATH:1140) Geometry for Elementary Teachers 3 s.h.
- 22M:104 (MATH:3700) Introduction to Matrix Theory 3 s.h.
- 22M:105 (MATH:4010) Basic Analysis 3 s.h.
- 22M:109 (MATH:3750) Classical Analysis 3 s.h.
- 22M:196 (MATH:3995) Topics in Mathematics arr.
- 22M:197 (MATH:3996) Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics arr.

Post-calculus courses offered by the Department of Computer Science and the Department of Statistics and Actuarial Science must have a calculus prerequisite.

UPPER-LEVEL MATHEMATICS REQUIREMENT

All mathematics majors must take at least one upper-level math course offered by the Department of Mathematics. Upper-level math courses include 22M:096 (MATH:2890) Introduction to Mathematics Research and courses numbered 22M:115 (MATH:5200) and above, excluding these:

- 22M:196 (MATH:3995) Topics in Mathematics arr.
- 22M:197 (MATH:3996) Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics arr.

Program A

Program A is primarily for students who plan to work in business or government or to pursue graduate study in mathematics.

PROGRAM A: CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (10 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit granted through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for all or part of the calculus requirement. B.A. and B.S. students complete the following core courses.

- 22M:027 (MATH:2700) Introduction to Linear Algebra 4 s.h.
- 22M:028 (MATH:2850) Calculus III 4 s.h.
- 22M:050 (MATH:3720) Introduction to Abstract Algebra I 4 s.h.
- 22M:055 (MATH:3770) Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I 4 s.h.

- 22M:100 (MATH:3600) Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations 3 s.h.

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

PROGRAM A: ELECTIVES

B.A. students complete four electives (each 3-4 s.h.) chosen from the following lists, including at least one upper-level mathematics course.

B.S. students complete six electives (each 3-4 s.h.) chosen from the following lists, including at least three upper-level mathematics courses.

Mathematics

Students may choose from all courses numbered 22M:070 (MATH:2150) and above, excluding these:

- 22M:081 (MATH:1140) Geometry for Elementary Teachers 3 s.h.
- 22M:095 (MATH:2995) Introduction to Research Opportunities 1 s.h.
- 22M:104 (MATH:3700) Introduction to Matrix Theory 3 s.h.
- 22M:105 (MATH:4010) Basic Analysis 3 s.h.
- 22M:109 (MATH:3750) Classical Analysis 3 s.h.

All mathematics majors must take at least one upper-level math course; see "Upper-Level Mathematics Requirement" above.

Computer Science

22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.

Any course numbered above 22C:016 (CS:1210) that counts toward an undergraduate major in computer science.

Statistics and Actuarial Science

22S:130 (STAT:3100) Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I 4 s.h.

22S:131 (STAT:3101) Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II 3 s.h.

22S:138 (STAT:4520) Bayesian Statistics 3 s.h.

22S:150 (STAT:4510) Regression, Time Series, and Forecasting 3 s.h.

22S:153 (STAT:4100) Mathematical Statistics I 3 s.h.

22S:154 (STAT:4101) Mathematical Statistics II 3 s.h.

22S:156 (STAT:6560) Applied Time Series Analysis 3 s.h.

22S:158 (STAT:3210) Experimental Design and Analysis 3 s.h.

22S:174 (ACTS:4130) Quantitative Methods for Actuaries 3 s.h.

22S:176 (ACTS:6580) Credibility and Survival Analysis 3 s.h.

22S:180 (ACTS:3080) Mathematics of Finance I 3 s.h.

22S:181 (ACTS:4180) Life Contingencies I 3 s.h.

22S:182 (ACTS:4280) Life Contingencies II 3 s.h.

22S:193 (STAT:5100) Statistical Inference I 3 s.h.

22S:194 (STAT:5101) Statistical Inference II 3 s.h.

22S:195 (STAT:6300) Probability and Stochastic Processes I 3 s.h.

22S:196 (STAT:6301) Probability and Stochastic Processes II 3 s.h.

May include one of these, if taken before 22S:153 (STAT:4100) Mathematical Statistics I:

- 22S:159 (ACTS:4100) Mathematical Statistics I 3 s.h.
- 22S:162 (STAT:4200) Life Contingencies II 3 s.h.
- 22S:183 (ACTS:4180) Life Contingencies II 3 s.h.
- 22S:184 (ACTS:4280) Life Contingencies III 3 s.h.
Program B

Program B is intended for students seeking secondary school teaching licensure. In addition to earning a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science with a major in mathematics, students must complete the Teacher Education Program (TEP); see "B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure" below.

PROGRAM B: CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (10 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit earned through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for part or all of the calculus requirement. B.A. and B.S. students complete the following core courses.

All of these:

- 22C:016 (CS:1210) Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.
- 22M:027 (MATH:2700) Introduction to Linear Algebra 4 s.h.
- 22M:028 (MATH:2850) Calculus III 4 s.h.
- 22M:050 (MATH:3720) Introduction to Abstract Algebra I 4 s.h.
- 22M:055 (MATH:3770) Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I 4 s.h.
- 22M:070 (MATH:2150) Foundations of Geometry 3 s.h.
- 22S:120 (STAT:3120) Probability and Statistics 4 s.h.

One of these:

- 22M:150 (MATH:4050) Introduction to Discrete Mathematics 3 s.h.
- 22M:151 (MATH:4060) Discrete Mathematical Models 3 s.h.

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

PROGRAM B: ELECTIVES

B.A. students in Program B must take at least one additional Department of Mathematics post-calculus course (3-4 s.h.). B.S. students in Program B must take at least three additional Department of Mathematics post-calculus courses (9-12 s.h.); two of the three must be chosen from 22M:107 (MATH:4120) History of Mathematics and other upper-level math courses. With their advisor's approval, capable students are encouraged to substitute more advanced courses in the same subject area for any of the electives. The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors offers advice on course selection.

Program C

Program C provides a degree with specialization in a math-related subtrack such as the mathematics of making optimal business decisions, risk management and insurance, economics, finance, physics, chemistry, biostatistics, biomathematics, computer science, or statistics and actuarial science. In consultation with the faculty advisor, each student prepares a study plan tailored to his or her interests and academic or career goals. Building on a core of mathematics courses, students have considerable freedom to design their curriculum. The proposed study plan must be approved by the mathematics department undergraduate committee. Students should submit their study plans on a Program C Plan of Study form, available at the mathematics department office. The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors has plans for choosing electives in several areas; students may use these or propose other plans.

PROGRAM C: CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (10 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit earned through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for part or all of the calculus requirement. B.A. and B.S. students complete the following core courses.

- 22M:027 (MATH:2700) Introduction to Linear Algebra 4 s.h.
- 22M:028 (MATH:2850) Calculus III 4 s.h.

One additional proof course such as

- 22M:030 (MATH:3720) or 22M:055 (MATH:3770)

Some subtracks require additional core courses; consult the Handbook for Undergraduate Majors. Additional core courses count as required electives (see "Program C: Electives" below).

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

PROGRAM C: ELECTIVES

B.A. students choose six or seven electives, depending on their subtrack. B.S. students choose eight electives. All electives must be offered for 3-4 s.h. of credit. At least three of the electives must be offered by the Departments of Computer Science, Mathematics, and Statistics and Actuarial Science [prefixes 22C (CS), 22M (MATH), and 22S (STAT or ACTS)].

Some subtracks require additional core courses (see "Program C: Core Courses" above); the additional core courses count as required electives. For a list of suggested subtracks and restrictions on electives in each subtrack, consult the Handbook for Undergraduate Majors.

All mathematics majors must take 15 s.h. of post-calculus math courses and at least one upper-level math course; see "Post-Calculus Mathematics Requirement" and "Upper-Level Mathematics Requirement" above.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Mathematics majors interested in earning licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must complete the College of Education’s Teacher Education Program (TEP) in addition to the requirements for the major and all requirements for graduation. The TEP requires several College of Education courses and student teaching. Contact the Office of Education Services for details.

Students must satisfy all degree requirements and complete Teacher Education Program licensure before degree conferral.

Students majoring in mathematics who wish to earn teacher licensure should choose program B in the mathematics major (Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science); see "Program B" above.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University’s Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)
Note: Many mathematics courses must be taken in sequence, so students must begin major requirements as early as possible, and individual plans of study must be constructed carefully. The mathematics major typically requires 11 or 12 courses for Bachelor of Arts students and 13 courses for Bachelor of Science students. Students must choose program A, B, or C by the end of the third semester and must remain in their chosen program until they graduate in order to stay on track for the four-year graduation plan.

Before the third semester begins: course work through second-semester calculus

Before the fifth semester begins: two or three more courses in the major

Before the seventh semester begins: three or four more major courses and at least 90 s.h. earned toward the degree

Before the eighth semester begins: two or three more major courses

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors in the Major

The department offers students the opportunity to graduate with honors in the mathematics major. Departmental honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and to fulfill other requirements; visit Honors at Iowa to learn about the University’s honors program.

In order to graduate with honors in the mathematics major, students must complete all requirements for the major with a g.p.a. of at least 3.40. They also must complete either an honors project or two course sequences from the following list with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00.

- 22M:115 (MATH:5200) - 22M:116 (MATH:5210) Introduction to Analysis I-II
- 22M:120 (MATH:5000) - 22M:121 (MATH:5010) Abstract Algebra I-II

Students who choose to complete an honors project are responsible for finding a faculty member willing to supervise their project; contact the department for help finding a project supervisor. Students typically register for 22M:197 (MATH:3996) Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics for at least 3 s.h. For more information, contact the mathematics honors advisor.

Minor

The minor in mathematics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in mathematics courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced (post-calculus) courses taken in the Department of Mathematics at The University of Iowa. Transfer credit and credit by examination do not count toward the 12 s.h. of advanced work. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Courses considered advanced for the minor are numbered 22M:027 (MATH:2700) or above, excluding these:

- 22M:032 (MATH:1560) Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus
- 22M:081 (MATH:5000) Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations
- 22M:109 (MATH:3750) Classical Analysis
- 22M:199 (MATH:3996) Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics
- 22M:199 (MATH:3997) Readings in Mathematics

Students who have taken 22M:032 (MATH:1560), 22M:033 (MATH:2550), 22M:034 (MATH:2560), and 22M:037 (MATH:3550) at The University of Iowa may satisfy the minor’s advanced course requirement by taking one additional course numbered 22M:050 (MATH:3720) or above, excluding these:

- 22M:100 (MATH:3600) Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations
- 22M:104 (MATH:3700) Introduction to Matrix Theory
- 22M:105 (MATH:4010) Basic Analysis
- 22M:109 (MATH:3750) Classical Analysis
- 22M:196 (MATH:3995) Topics in Mathematics
- 22M:197 (MATH:3996) Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics
- 22M:199 (MATH:3997) Readings in Mathematics

See the department’s Handbook for Undergraduate Majors.

Graduate Programs of Study

- Master of Science in mathematics
- Doctor of Philosophy in mathematics

Master of Science

The Master of Science in mathematics requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. Students earn the degree through courses and comprehensive examinations. There is no M.S. thesis. Requirements (courses and comprehensive examination areas) may be modified with the department's consent.

Four different programs (I, II, III, and IV) lead to the M.S. in mathematics. Program II is designed for secondary school teachers.

Program I

Program I prepares students for further study of pure and applied mathematics and for employment in government and business. M.S. students in program I take several courses and pass two comprehensive examinations. Students must earn a grade of B-minus or higher in six of the courses and maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 in all mathematics courses taken for the degree.
The following courses are required.

22M:115 (MATH:5200)-22M:116 (MATH:5210) Introduction to Analysis I-II 8 s.h.
22M:120 (MATH:5000)-22M:121 (MATH:5010) Abstract Algebra I-II 8 s.h.
22M:132 (MATH:5400) General Topology 4 s.h.
22M:133 (MATH:5410) Introduction to Smooth Manifolds 4 s.h.
22M:142 (MATH:5600) Nonlinear Dynamics with Numerical Methods 4 s.h.
22M:144 (MATH:5700) Partial Differential Equations with Numerical Methods 4 s.h.

Each student must pass two M.S. comprehensive exams, chosen from analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, and topology.

Program II

Program II is designed for secondary school teachers. Program II requirements are similar to those for programs I and III, but program II students complete two mathematics education courses and a minimum of 24 s.h. in Department of Mathematics courses. Department of Mathematics courses numbered 100 (4000) or above may be used to satisfy program II course requirements, including these:

22M:100 (MATH:3600) Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations 2-3 s.h.
22M:104 (MATH:3700) Introduction to Matrix Theory 3 s.h.
22M:105 (MATH:4010) Basic Analysis 3 s.h.
22M:109 (MATH:3750) Classical Analysis 3 s.h.

Students are encouraged to consult with the mathematics education faculty when planning their course of study.

Program III

Program III focuses on applied mathematics. Students in program III take several courses and pass two comprehensive examinations. Students must earn a grade of B-minus or higher in six of the courses and maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 in all mathematics courses taken for the M.S.

The following courses are required.

All of these:

22M:115 (MATH:5200)-22M:116 (MATH:5210) Introduction to Analysis I-II 8 s.h.
22M:142 (MATH:5600) Nonlinear Dynamics with Numerical Methods 4 s.h.
22M:144 (MATH:5700) Partial Differential Equations with Numerical Methods 4 s.h.

Both courses in group A, or two courses in group B:

Group A

22M:132 (MATH:5400) General Topology 4 s.h.
22M:133 (MATH:5410) Introduction to Smooth Manifolds 4 s.h.

Group B

22M:140 (MATH:4610) Continuous Mathematical Models 3 s.h.
22M:151 (MATH:4060) Discrete Mathematical Models 3 s.h.
22M:174 (MATH:4820) Optimization Techniques 3 s.h.

Each student must pass two M.S. comprehensive exams, chosen from analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, numerical analysis, and topology.

Program IV

Program IV is designed for nondepartmental students working toward the Ph.D. in areas that require mathematical knowledge. The program has no specific required courses. Course distribution requirements are the same as those for program I.

Students in program IV are considered to have passed the comprehensive examination for the master's degree in mathematics if they have maintained a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in all mathematics courses taken for the M.S. in mathematics and have successfully completed the Ph.D. comprehensive examination in their chosen area.

Students in program IV are assigned a mathematics advisor, who works with them and their major advisor to plan an appropriate curriculum for the M.S. in mathematics. A suitable program of study should be approved by a mathematics advisor before the student takes the Ph.D. comprehensive examination, and a member of the mathematics faculty should serve on the Ph.D. comprehensive examination committee.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in mathematics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program places strong emphasis on preparation for research and teaching. The department maintains no division between pure and applied mathematics. It cooperates in interdisciplinary doctoral programs with the College of Education (see Teaching and Learning (p. 774) in the Catalog) and the Program in Applied Mathematical and Computational Sciences (p. 908).

Ph.D. students in mathematics must satisfy the following requirements for course work (credits and breadth), examinations, foreign language, and the Ph.D. thesis.

Students must spend at least three years in residence at a graduate college, including at least one year at The University of Iowa. They also should enroll in specific courses designated as preparatory for the Ph.D. examinations (consult the Department of Mathematics graduate studies director).

To further encourage mathematical breadth, students must earn at least 33 s.h. of graduate credit in regular courses equivalent to or more advanced than Ph.D. comprehensive examination preparatory courses. For a list of accepted Department of Mathematics courses at the 200 (6000) and 300 (7000) levels, and rules to ensure proper distribution, contact the department.

The Ph.D. examinations consist of a qualifying exam and a comprehensive exam. Students choose three areas from the department's list of qualifying examination areas: algebra, analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, and topology. For each qualifying area, there is a two-semester course sequence numbered 100 (5000) or above that is designated as preparatory, although exams may differ from course content. The three parts of the qualifying exam are taken over a two-week period. One grade (pass, fail, conditional pass) is given on the entire three-part qualifying examination by a committee of at least six faculty members, at least two from each exam area. If the grade is fail, the committee has the option to consider each part of the exam separately, offering the student the option of pass in one or two of the areas and fail in the other(s).

The Ph.D. comprehensive exam tests students on research-related topics.

Candidates also take an oral final examination on their dissertation material.
